Ohioan Wins on Tenth; Massachusetts Gets 2nd Place

BEAT LEADERS TO NOMINATE BAY STATE MAN

For Once Delegates Have Own Way.

BY ARTHUR M. EVANS.

Gov. Calvin Coolidge of Massachusetts was picked as "running mate" for Senator Warren G. Harding in short order. It was one spot where the convention acted spontaneously. The delegates, relieved of the strain of listening for bandwagons, put Coolidge up for vice president without any "management" being perceptible in the process. Four candidates were put in the field, but the Massachusetts man who was reëlected last November after his vigorous action in the Boston police strike by the largest plurality known in New England, made almost a one man parade of it.

The group of senators and others who had engineered the breaking of the deadlock over the head of the ticket contemplated the selection of Senator Irvine Lenroot of Wisconsin. But the "untrammeled" delegates, as Murray Crane termed them last week, kicked up their heels and ran all over the pasture lot.

Senators for Lenroot.

Senator Medill McCormick of Illinois nominated Lenroot. A. T. Hert of Kentucky, the Lowden floor manager, and Senator Calder of New York were the first to second him.

Some one back in the Oregon chairs made his voice heard above the tumult and nominated Coolidge. Elbert S Smith of Springfield reared his patriarchal beard out of the Illinois delegation and seconded it. From all parts of the hall came similar responses.

Gov. Henry Allen of Kansas was nominated by W. J. Bailey, head of the Kansas delegation, in a perfectly good speech which was swallowed up in the hullaballoo.

A Virginian names Henry W. Anderson of Virginia.

Result of Ballot.

The ballot as announced:

Coolidge	674½
Lenroot	146½
Allen	68½
Anderson	28

Coolidge's vote was the same as that rolled up by Harding for president. Or, rather, to be precise, it was exactly two-fifths of a vote smaller.

Thus the governor of the old Bay state, nominated by a man from the Pacific slope, landed in second place on the ticket by the simple process of letting nature take its course in the convention. Spontaneity is the right word.

STORY OF FINAL DAY

The final day's session of the convention opened in a broiling temperature of 89 degrees at 10:25 a. m. The hall's well filled; the temperature is rising. Francis Taylor, who was secretary to Franklin MacVeagh, secretary of the treasury under Taft, takes his position in the main aisle and scowls like a "bouncer"—he is head of the sergeants at arms on the floor. New York's seats are empty; the delegates are in "corkus" somewhere. Indiana is perspiring under its suspenders and has to be told to sit down.

FRANCIS W. TAYLOR. [Copyright: Moffett.]

A subtle change is in the tone of the convention. There seems to be a great calmness. The excitement and turmoil of Friday have left everybody weary; yawning a bit on the inside. Interest, however—the deep, underlying interest—is more intense than ever; the convention has reached that absorbing problem known as "breaking the deadlock."

Population of Chicago 2,701,212

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., June 12.—[Special.]—Chicago's total population is 2,701,212. The figures were announced tonight by the census bureau.

This represents an increase of 515,929 over the 1910 population of 2,185,283. The ten year gain was an increase of 23.6 per cent.

Chicago's percentage increase was greater than that of New York, St. Louis, Pittsburgh, San Francisco, Buffalo, Milwaukee, Newark, Cincinnati, and New Orleans, but less than that of Washington, Baltimore, Los Angeles, Minneapolis, Seattle, and Indianapolis.

The average increase computed in percentages for the seventeen cities with a population of more than 300,000 for which totals have thus far been announced by the census bureau is 24.2 per cent. The Chicago figure thus runs close to the average.

The New York City incerase was considerably less than the average, being only 17.9 per cent, while Los Angeles leads the list with 80.3 per cent.

The number of inhabitants added to Chicago's population during the ten year period, 515,929, was exceeded only by New York, where the increase amounted to 854,268. Los Angeles added a quarter of a million.

Chciago, as the second city in the United States, has a population slightly less than one-half that of New York. It probably exceeds Philadelphia by approximately 1,000,000.

City's Slowest Decade.

The percentage of increase in the population of Chicago during the last ten years was less than during any other ten year period in the city's history. It was slightly less than during the ten year period from 1900 to 1910 and much below the ratio in previous ten year periods.

Nevertheless Chicago's rate of increase since 1910 was 5.7 per cent greater than New York's during the same period. It was the second largest growth numerically in Chicago's history, and was the third time Chicago had shown an increase of more than half a million.

Record by Decades.

The first census on record shows a population for Chicago, in 1840 of 4,479. It jumped during the next ten years 570.3 per cent to 28,269 in 1850.

In the next ten years it increased 264.6 per cent, the total in 1860 being 109,206. The following ten years there was a jump of 173.6 per cent, making a total of 298,977 in 1870. From 1870 to 1880 the increase was 68.3 per cent, the total in the latter year being 503,298. Then followed an increase of 18.6 per cent, bringing a total of 1,099,850 in 1890. From 1890 to 1900 the increase amounted to 54.4 per cent, the total in the latter year being 1,698,575. The population reached 2,185,283 in 1910, the increase during the ten year period being 28.7 per cent.

Cities Which Exceed 300,000.

OUT OF TOUCH WITH POLITICS, ROOT IS SILENT

[Chicago Tribune-New York Times Cable.]
[Copyright: 1920.]

THE HAGUE, June 12.—Elihu Root, who arrived here last night from Plymouth, absolutely refuses to speak either on political events in America or his coming work on the commission for the permanent court of justice.

"The work of this commission is entirely technical, having no political aspect," Mr. Root said. "Therefore, I am not at liberty to say anything."

At the time of cabling the results of the Chicago convention were not yet known here, but Mr. Root gave the impression that he is not thoroughly informed on the doings of the Republican party in the last few days, and is, therefore, afraid to commit himself.

The commission will open formally and publicly June 16.

PARIS MONUMENT TO EDITH CAVELL IS MASTERPIECE

[Copyright: 1920.]

PARIS, June 12.—In the Tuilleries gardens Monsieur Maginot, minister of prisons, this morning unveiled the monument to Nurse Edith Cavell.

It depicts the martyred nurse lying dead at the foot of a burning building, to recall the German destruction in Belgium. On her knees there is a German "pickelhaube," and Sculptor Gabriel Pech has skillfully conveyed the impression of the limbs, even though cold in death, still oppressed by the huge weight of the helment, arch symbol of Prussian militarism.

It seemed the bas relief was not a monument to one woman but an eternal memory of the wrongs inflicted [illegible] the world by the brutal savagery of war.

Search Lake Erie for 4 Children Adrift in Boat

Monroe, Mich., June 12.—A score of launches are searching for a rowboat containing four children ranging in age from three to nine years, reported adrift in Lake Erie two miles off shore.

The children had been missing from Lakeside, a summer colony, all day. A party reaching here this evening reported having seen a small boat apparently with no other occupants than four children in the lake. The lake was comparatively calm.

Harding's Second Name Tongue Twister for Fair

Marion, O., June 12.—Warren G. Harding doesn't bother to spell out his middle name. His friends do not try to pronounce it.

It is "Gamaliel."

PUT THE CLOCK AHEAD AND GAIN ONE GOLDEN HOUR

If you didn't have a chance to do it at 2 o'clock this morning, when the city ordinance went into effect, push the clock hands ahead one hour now.

It means an added hour of sunlight each day during the summer for play, for sports, for gardening, for visits with the home folks, and everybody's doing it.

'FILLED UP ON PAIR OF EIGHTS,' LAUGHS HARDING

How He Acted When Lightning Struck.

"How did you feel, Senator?" asked one of the early birds that caught Senator Warren G. Harding in the corridor outside his room at the Hotel La Salle shortly after the nomination was announced.

"Well," replied the senator, a broad, slow grin lighting his tired face, "you know how a fellow feels that holds a pair of eighs and has to stay in and draws full. You understand the language?"

"What are you going to do now?" was the visitor's next question.

"Well, even a candidate must feed. Haven't had anything to eat since morning."

Thinks He Never Slept.

A man who had a room close to the senator's on the second floor of the hotel said that he did not think Senator Harding went to bed at all. At dawn he passed the room and there was the candidate, sitting, possibly watching for the coming of the morning star of fame.

Senator Harding stepped easily, naturally, into the throbbing light of the world's publicity. His first move was to seek a quiet place. He tried to avoid reporters and friends. His friends checked him "out" of the hotel and he moved to a room next to the offices of the American Protective Tariff league.

When Lightning Struck.

He was at the Coliseum when the lightning struck. At the moment he was shaking hands with Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler in the national committee room offices.

Mrs. Harding was in Fred Upham's box, keeping tally as the roll of states was called. Her husband went on to the hotel ahead of her. An hour later, when it was all over, she joined him. Perhaps they thought of the glory ahead, or perhaps their minds ran back to the days in the little print shop in Marion, O., where they worked together to get out the Star.

The senator was so affected as he tramped down the lobby that he did not see one or two old friends, or could not recall their names.

Holds Little Reception.

Later he held a little reception in his room. Ohio politicians crowded in. Senator Edge of New Jersey was one of the early visitors. A volunteer doorkeeper was appointed, and he was a good one. He kept out those who claimed they had shouted themselves hoarse for Harding—always were for Harding.

"Strange how popular these rooms have become all of a sudden," said Wilbur F. Wakeman, secretary of the American Protective Tariff league. "It has been quite deserted along here until today."

Now reporters began to gather.

The house detective took up a position down the hall. Two special policemen were installed. Something precious was under the roof. He must be watched. Even as the nominee, Senator Harding already has more power and prestige than many rulers. Flashlights filled the hall with smoke. Mrs. Harding came out, genial and smiling, ready to be photographed. She said she did not like it. She was in black silk, a quick, determined lady, who will rule things.

Wife Sees Victory.

"I had faith in my husband," was all she cared to say. She was tensely watching the great battle in its critical stages. She saw the first "break" in the voting and the wild scene at the end of the balloting.

The senator had dinner with Chairman Will H. Hays of the Republican national committee, whose job it is to see that Harding is elected. They had [illegible]

LOWDEN HELPS SENATOR GET 674 7-10 VOTES

Wood Sticks to the Last.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Warren G. Harding, United States senator from Ohio, was nominated for president and Calvin Coolidge, governor of Massachusetts, was named for vice president by the Republican national convention last night.

The choice of Senator Harding was effected on the tenth ballot of the convention and the sixth roll call of the two sessions held yesterday. The impossibility of nominating either Gen. Wood or Gov. Lowden was demonstrated in the first of these sessions.

Gen. Wood went down fighting desperately to the last, but overwhelmed by the coalition of all his opponents under the Harding banner. Gov. Lowden, though he had forged ahead of Wood at the morning session, found his strength, like that of the general, receding, and, realizing that his continuance in the contest would only prolong the deadlock, released his delegates, most of whom went to Harding and accomplished his nomination.

Michigan Makes It Sure.

The nomination of Harding was made a certainty shortly after 6 o'clock, when Michigan gave him twenty-four votes. On the ninth ballot he was 118½ votes short of the majority of 493. On the tenth ballot his gains totaled 129 by the time Michigan had swung into line and his nomination was assured even if no further gains were made from the states yet to vote.

Harding would have been nominated even without a single delegate from Pennsylvania, which had not voted for him up to this time, but the Pennsylvanians saw the bandwagon coming and determined to clamber aboard without further delay. Pennsylvania swung sixty votes to Harding at 6:14 p. m., making the total for the candidate at that time 520, and the ensuing pandemonium heralded his nomination as an accomplished fact.

Result of Ballot.

The result of the complete roll call on the tenth and final ballot was:

Harding	674 7-10
Wood	157 1-2
Johnson	80 2-5
Scattering	58 9-10

Former Senator Flint of California, a Johnson delegate, moved to make the nomination of Harding unanimous, and, seconded by Congressman Frank L. Smith of Illinois, on behalf of Lowden, it was adopted over the protests of the twenty-four La Follette delegates from Wisconsin, amid a tumult of booing by the remainder of the convention.

The Wisconsin disaffection was widely regarded as an indication that La Follette may refuse to support the ticket if he does not actually bolt and join a third party.

Borah, Johnson Silent.

On the question of supporting the ticket Senator Borah was noncommittal last night. Senator Johnson declined to reveal his attitude until he had conferred with the members of the California delegation. He held the conference and is still noncommittal. But it was generally assumed that he would not repudiate the assurances he gave during the primary campaign that he would not bolt the ticket.

Senator Harding was in the headquarters of the national committee in the Coliseum annex when he was nominated. He was talking with Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, New York's candidate for the nomination, when Charles B. Warren of Michigan burst into the room and, seizing Senator Harding's hand, exclaimed:

"Senator, you are nominated!"

Traditions Are Shattered.

Traditions were shattered in the choice of Harding. Harding started as one of the leading contenders for the nomination months ago, but he participated in only two primaries—Ohio and Indiana—and was widely regarded as having been eliminated by his failure to capture the solid delegation of his own state and by the fact that he ran fourth in Indiana.

Senator Harding came to Chicago a week ago with no better prospect of consideration than that of a "dark horse." But fate was working secretly in his favor.

Opposed to Wood.

The party elements represented by a majority of the national committee were opposed to Wood for a variety of reasons, among them being the belief that he would be a vulnerable candidate because large business interests had contributed $1,500,000 to his campaign and because of the cry of "militarism" which the Democrats would raise against a soldier nominee.

The national committee crowd preferred Lowden and the nomination of the governor appeared to be a foregone conclusion when the confessions of the two Missouri delegates that they had pocketed $5,000 of Lowden money hit his candidacy like a lightning bolt. The cry that Lowden also would make a vulnerable candidate was raised and capitalized by his opponents.

Opportunity Is Seized.

The opportunity presented was seized by the friends of Harding, headed by the "senate crowd." Harding had come through the vicissitudes of the primary campaign with reputation unsullied. He had made few enemies. Though affiliated with the conservative faction, he was not unacceptable to the progressives.

He had made an admirable record in the senate. He had voted for woman suffrage and for the peace treaty with the Lodge reservations, and his vote for prohibition was regarded an asset instead of a liability.

He was put forward as the best candidate the party could nominate, and the elements opposing Wood and Lowden got into line for Harding as the result of the conferences held Friday night and during the recess between the morning and afternoon sessions of the convention yesterday.

Tryout in Morning.

The four ballots of the morning session showed that both Wood and Lowden had been halted and were weakening. The Johnson strength was receding also, while Harding was gaining on every call of the roll. Still there was a possibility that the deadlock could not be broken unless either Wood or Lowden should retire from the contest. So the convention took a recess from 1:30 to 4 p. m. to afford an opportunity for negotiations. It was then that Gov. Lowden resolved to break the deadlock and announced release of his delegates.

The leaders were then convinced that Harding could be nominated at the afternoon session, and the selection of the vice presidential candidate was under consideration. Harding himself had called on Senator Johnson during the forenoon and was reported to have asked him to take second place on the ticket and in any event to assure him his good will. Johnson declined to take the nomination for vice president.

Ninth Ballot Taken.

When the convention reconvened the roll was called for the ninth time, and the Harding boomers lost no time in getting into action. Connecticut started the ball rolling by switching thirteen Lowden votes to Harding. Illinois stood pat on Lowden and Johnson, but when Kansas was reached the entire Sunflower state delegation, instructed for Wood, was plumped for Harding.

The Kansans seized their delegation standard and started on a parade of the hall, escorting a banner bearing a picture of Harding. The sensational leap for the band wagon performed by the delegation which placed Gen. Wood in nomination attracted universal attention, and the move was generally thought to be a prearranged signal for the inauguration of a Harding stampede.

Kentucky Leaves Lowden.

The next sensation was produced when Kentucky was reached on the roll call and A. T. Hert, floor manager for Lowden, announced:

"Kentucky casts twenty-six votes for Harding."

The action of Hert signalized the elimination of Lowden. New York threw sixty-six votes to Harding, but Pennsylvania stood pat for Sproul. The Ohioan had left both Wood and Lowden far in the rear, but he was 118½ votes short of a majority when the ninth roll call was finished.

Wood's vote had declined to 249, Lowden's to 121½, and Johnson's to 82.

It was realized on all sides that Harding would go over the top on the next roll call and the utmost confusion reigned on the floor as the delegates made their preparations to jump on the band wagon.

On the tenth and final roll call Illinois split up and twenty-two and one-fifth votes were delivered to Harding with Gov. Lowden's consent. He had known for several hours that his nomination was impossible and he had turned in to heelp Warren Harding. There were seventeen Illinois men, however, who still voted for Lowden, and eighteen and four-fifths votes were cast for Johnson.

Indiana split up and delivered twenty-two of its thirty to Harding, and immediately thereafter Iowa went bodily from Lowden to the Ohio senator. Michigan split, giving twenty-five to Harding.

Then New York cast sixty-eight for Harding and his victory was almost within his grasp.

Ohio Solid First Time.

There was a big demonstration of enthusiasm for the candidate in the making when his own state, Ohio, voted for him solidly for the first time. Of the forty-eight Ohio delegates, nine had been voting their instructions for Gen. Wood. Four others had deserted Harding on an earlier ballot, but they came back and were joined by the nine instructed Wood men.

It had been noised about after the ninth ballot that Gov. Sproul had released the Pennsylvania delegation from obligation to vote for him; and when the Keystone state was reached the convention knew Harding was about to reach the goal. Pennsylvania delivered sixty votes to Harding, and an outburst of cheers shook the rafters, signalizing the fact that this accession had given the candidate more than a majority and consummated the nomination.

When the jubilation was over the outcome was stilled by Chairman Lodge's gavel, the calling of the roll was quickly completed, and the nomination of Harding officially announced.

Then followed the nomination of the candidate for vice president and the adjournment of the convention sine die at 7:32 p. m.

The drift to Harding developed as soon as the convention met in the morning and resumed balloting. There were four ballots in the first session of the day and Harding gained steadily.

SENATORS AGREE ON HARDING AS DAWN ARRIVES

Inside Story of Break in Deadlock.

BY E. O. PHILLIPS.

The nomination of Senator Harding became a definite political possibility about 4 o'clock yesterday morning. At that hour the conference of United States senators that has been meeting nightly determined that all humanly possible would be done to secure a victory for the Ohio senator.

At about the same hour a majority of the members of the national committee, in session in another part of the Congress hotel, decided that they had gone almost as far as they could in the effort to nominate Gov. Lowden. But they were deciding to continue the fight and would have gone to bat for Lowden yesterday morning but for the final decision made by the senators and the Washington contingent.

Senators Make Decision.

Shortly before 4 a. m. the word went from the senators to the national committeemen that the decision had been reached to start the Harding drive.

Joseph B. Keeling, who has been the organizer and general manager of the "uninstructed and unpledged" group of delegates, with which he had succeeded in deadlocking the convention, was sent for. He was informed of the morning's prospects and of the intentions and expectations of the senatorial conference.

In the final conference were Senator Wadsworth of New York, former Senator Crane of Massachusetts, Senator Smoot of Utah, Senator Watson of Indiana, Senator Brandegee of Connecticut, Senator New of Indiana, and former Governor Myron T. Herrick of Ohio, representing Senator Harding. Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania, represented in Chicago in part by John T. King of Connecticut, had been in more or less constant communication with Chicago by long distance telephone.

Dislike Hays' Ways.

It is no secret that the senatorial forces have had no particular liking for the national committee, and the conduct of party affairs by Chairman Hays. Nor is it concealed that the senators had no inclination to have the incoming Republican administraton in brotherly relationship to the national committee, rather than to the senators, if there were to be any preference, after the inauguration.

In an earlier conference of the senators, held shortly after the fourth ballot had been taken, the agreement was general that Gen. Wood had been eliminated as a dangerous factor. The views of the national committeemen friendly to Lowden coincided with the senators on this point, and it is the only one on which they did agree.

Scouts Are Sent Out.

At midnight, trusted scouts were sent into important delegations to approximate the probable ultimate strength of Gov. Lowden. The reports returned were that Lowden was not nearer than striking distance to the nomination, so long as the Pennsylvania delegation remained out of his column, and so long as his maximum vote in the New York delegation was kept under the fifty mark.

This determined the course of the senators, and the decision to go to Senator Harding followed.

Mr. Keeling was again sent for, and informed of the impasse that had been reached so far as Wood and Lowden were concerned. He was advised to get his uninstructed and unpledged delegates into line for Harding. Later the same information was conveyed to National Committeeman Hert of Kentucky and to David W. Mulvane of Kansas. There is no reason to doubt that National Chairman Hays, who was the real dark horse, kept always in reserve by his friends in the national committee, received the same tidings.

Plans Made by Dawn.

The wheels began to go around about the time the sun was registering over on Lake Michigan, and by the time the convention assembled at 10 o'clock the arrangements had been made that assured the votes of Missouri, West Virginia, Indiana, Wyoming, and part of Kansas in the Harding lineup.

The angle of incidence used in Harding's behalf as the logical candidate with which to break the deadlock was that Gen. Wood's nomination had been made impossible, because of the type of campaign that had been made for him in certain direct primary states, and antagonism reared that permanently prejudiced substantial leaders and delegations against his cause.

The argument against Gov. Lowden was that the so called "Missouri case" had made it impractical for him to become the nominee on the theory that the Republican national campaign would have to be defensive from its inception.

Last Word from Penrose.

The last word from Penrose was that he would stand for Lowden if he had to in order to defeat Wood.

At least such was the situation as reported by John T. King, who was deposed last January as Wood campaign manager, and whose first duty in Chicago was to bring about Gen. Wood's defeat.

Frank H. Hitchcock's contingent within the Wood camp withstood the fire that was laid under them. The only Hitchcock delegation that was converted into Harding votes was that of Florida.

Wood Is Obdurate.

The Wood lines stood intact when the noon recess was ordered after the eighth ballot, but his floor managers knew that he was gone. They told that to Gen. Wood, but he refused to accept the report as an assured fact. The first piece of real strategy that became highly dangerous to Gov. Lowden was this noon recess, and this was commented upon last night in the inner circles.

The recess was ordered when Lowden had obtained an actual plurality over Wood. Had there been an immediate ballot, some of the leaders say, certain of the states carrying Wood instructions could have gone to Lowden, on the theory that their instructions had been carried out and that there was no chance for the general to win.

Lowden Still Hopeful.

Gov. Lowden himself and his immediate managers were entirely hopeful at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon that a combination could be reached between the Wood and Lowden forces that would stop the Harding drive that was getting into high gear.

At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon Gen. Wood declined to enter into the proposed agreement.

At that hour he personally had confidence that he could be nominated.

A tentative arrangement was made, however, that the combined forces—and they expected the help of the Johnson delegates—could force an adjournment of the convention until tomorrow, following a single ballot to be taken at the 4 o'clock session.

Quick canvass of the delegations, regardleess of their alliances, indicated that such a proposition could be put through by the temporary allies only by strong arm methods, the worn out delegates being in no mood to stay in Chicago over Sunday and start in the week at practically the same position with which the convention opened.

This made it easy for the Harding combination, and while the floor leaders were trying to put over the adjournment the Harding people were picking up delegates in blocks on the single proposition that Harding was the quick, the simple, and the easy solution of the deadlock.

Lowden Men Released.

Before the ninth ballot had reached California on the roll call Gov. Lowden, who had gone to the Coliseum and was in the national committee headquarters, sent word to the convention floor releasing his delegates. The nomination would have been made on the ninth ballot except that Gov. Sproul of Pennsylvania, who also was at the Coliseum offices, refused to release the seventy-six delegates from his state, who had been tied in by caucus action to vote for him until personally released.

After the ninth ballot Gov. Sproul cut the ties and the bandwagon started.

The conduct of the campaign will remain in the hands of National Chairman Hays. Of this there is no doubt whatever. It was definitely said last night by an intimate adviser of the nominee that he is entirely in accord with the Hays policies and the Hays method of handling party affairs.

There were a few mutterings heard among some of the senators when this word went around, but there will be no substantial objection made in any quarter.

30 Autos Stolen in Day; Fleming Again Victim

Thirty automobiles were stolen yesterday. The machine of Edward J. Fleming, 4711 Ingleside avenue, former secretary to State's Attorney Hoyne, was stolen from in front of the Chicago Athletic association building. It is the fourth time he has been victimized by auto thieves. Dr. Gail E. Chandler of 1100 Davis street, Evanston, saw two men making off with his car from Grant Park, but couldn't catch them. Four other cars were stolen in Grant park.

MAYOR AND CITY HALL TO LINE UP BACK OF HARDING

Vote for Hiram to End, Then Bow to Defeat.

Although the followers of Mayor Thompson stuck to the finish for Johnson, they received the nomination of Senator Harding with evident signs of relief and noisy declarations that they are "still regular" and will be for Harding strong.

Asked for a statement of his stand immediately following the nomination of Harding, Mayor Thompson said events had been moving too swiftly for him and that he wished to retire for an hour and study the situation.

Likes Harding Policy.

An hour later he issued the following statement from room 302 in the Great Northern hotel:

"Senator Harding's published declaration against entangling alliances with old world powers and against compulsory military training for the youth of the land pleases me greatly."

The mayor's statement apparently refers to the Harding circulars which appeared in great numbers at the nominating session of the convention. They declare that Senator Harding "is opposed to the establishment in this country of the European system of conscription in times of peace" and is in favor of "keeping America for Americans and avoiding entangling alliances with old world powers."

Stick with Hiram to Finish.

Just before the second convention session opened an announcement came from men close to the mayor that the seventeen city hall delegates would swing to Harding on the tenth ballot, the plan being to have one or two downstate friends start the move on the ninth, it was said.

But the swing didn't come. Later, friends of the mayor said their leaders believed a stand to the end for Johnson would strengthen them in Chicago, where Hiram's name was written in 50,000 times.

Leader Hurls Lie.

George F. Harding gave the lie to those of the mayor's supporters who circulated the story that the seventeen city hallites "even talked" of going over to Harding.

"I have written instructions, given me in our caucus, to stick to the finish for Johnson," he declared. "We started out with seventeen for Johnson, and we ended up with eighteen and four-fifths votes for him, and we are proud of it."

HARDING STARTS AS FARMER BOY; WINS BY WORK

Teacher, Editor, Senator, Nation's Leader.

Warren G. Harding, the Republican party's choice for president, now nearing the end of his first term as United States senator from Ohio, is called a self-made man. He was in turn a farmer boy, member of a railroad construction gang, country school teacher, printer's devil, linotype operator, editor, publisher, business man, and banker before he became a commanding figure in the political life of the nation.

He is descended from two pioneer American families, hardy Holland Dutch on the one side and liberty loving Scotch on the other. He was born on his grandfather's farm just outside of the village of Blooming Grove in Morrow county, O., on Nov. 2, 1865. His father, Dr. George T. Harding, still a practicing physician in Marion, O., despite his advanced age—76 years—was then a struggling country doctor.

Works Way at College.

Young Harding worked on his grandfather's farm and attended the village school until he was 14, when he entered the Ohio Central college at Iberia. He worked his way through school by cutting corn, painting his neighbors' barns, and helping to grade the roadbed of the T. & O. C. railroad. He also played a cornet in the village band and was editor of the college paper.

Upon his graduation from college he went to work in the village printing office. When he was 19 his father moved to Marion and aided him in acquiring control of the Marion Star, of which he still is publisher. The senator learned to set type himself and when the linotype machine was introduced learned to operate that. The pocket piece he still carriers is the old printer's rule he used in those days.

Helps Boys Get to Press.

"I'd be a great senator if I didn't know anything else!" Harding replied. "This is a holiday, and we wish to get to press as early as possible, so the boys can get out and enjoy themselves. That is why I'm lending a helping hand."

The Star is still the senator's idol. He has "lived with it." He has never had a strike on his paper. Eleven years ago he inaugurated a profit sharing plan for employés, the dividends paying for their stock.

But the paper was not his only interest. As Marion grew from a town of 4,000 to its present population of more than 30,000, he became identified with the industries that sprang up. Today he is still a director in a bank, a director in several large manufacturing plants and a trustee of Trinity Baptist church.

A Leader for Twenty-two Years.

It was twenty-two years ago that he first entered politics. He was elected to the state senate from the thirteenth district in 1898, serving two terms. He was next elected lieutenant governor and in 1912 made the race for the governorship, but the state went Democratic and Gov. Harmon defeated him. In less than two years after this schism he was elected to the United States senate by a majority of 100,000, running 73,0000 ahead of the next highest on the ticket.

Evidence of his recognition among leaders of the party throughout the country was shown by his selection, without factional strife, as chairman of the national Republican convention in 1916, soon after he entered the senate. His keynote address at that time won national acknowledgement for him as a safe and sane thinker.

Expert on World Questions.

His work in the foreign relations committee of the senate has brought him in contact with great questions both domestic and foreign. He has made three trips abroad studying systems of government, economic questions, labor conditions, and tariff problems. He visited Hawaii after his election to the senate to get first hand information on the production and distribution of sugar.

Senator Harding stands more than 6 feet in height and possesses an impressive personality. He has the affability and winning personality that characterized McKinley. He is an omnivorous reader and a great story teller. As an orator he has wonderful carrying power. He is calm, forceful and quick at repartee, but never acrimonious.

Senator Harding was married in 1891 to Miss Florence Kling, daughter of the late Amos Kling, one of the leading business men in Marion. Her business acumen is said to have been of great assistance to him in his private and public undertakings. Mrs. Harding was present at the conference yesterday between Senator Harding and Gov. Lowden, while the former's nomination was still in doubt.

His Policy as to G. O. P.

On March 31 Senator Harding expressed the following as his personal beliefs on what the G. O. P. program should be:

"The United States should have an ample navy; should lead the world in aviation; should have an ample army; should have military training;

"Should prepare for defense without assuming the burdens of the military enslavement of continental Europe or the menace of Prussian militarism;

"Should get away from abnormal conditions of war and seek the stable ways of peace;

"Should restore our boasted freedom under the constitution and every extraordinary war statute should be repealed;

"Should declare opposition to government ownership and nationalization of industry."

And last—but not least—the senator is on record as advising legislation providing a farm for every American soldier who fought in the great war.

Mrs. Harding Glad for His Sake Alone; Happy as Senator's Wife

BY LEOLA ALLARD.

The friends and political associates of the Republican presidential nominee made way, and through the aisle that opened suddenly from the door ran a gray haired woman, her cheeks flushed with excitement.

"O, Warren," she cried, "isn't it just fine?"

The senator gently patted her arm.

"It is," he agreed—and grinned. "It's —it's great!"

"It's so good I can hardly believe it," Mrs. Harding told the newspaper correspondents, who immediately beseiged her.

* *

She was too exicted, she said, keeping track of the ballots, on which her husband was carried to victory, to remember exactly how she felt at that crucial juncture. She was so excited, in fact, that she missed an opportunity to congratulate her husband at the Coliseum. And so she had to hurry after him to the hotel, where eventually she found him.

When the senator was to pose with her she objected again. "It's so silly," she said.

"No, it isn't," the senator remonstrated:

"But it is," said Mrs. Harding. "See! We're almost on top of the cameras."

* *

And a few days ago Mrs. Harding said it would be a tragedy if he got it!

While the wives of other candidates hoped for the best, she was confiding to her friends that she "wanted Warren to win because he wants to, but for no other reason."

And now that he has won, she is at heart half happy and half sad—sad because the task ahead of him is such a big one, so fraught with serious responsibility. But she maintains happily, "He is the greatest man in the world, and there isn't anything he can't do."

"They told me in Washington"—and Mrs. Harding laughed nervously—"my husband should be able to get anything he wants with that smile of his.

* *

"But then he knows how to differ with people without offending them," she went on. "O, I know you think I'm boasting, but I have only one fad, the only fad I have had for the last twenty-six years, and that is my husband.

"It is old fashioned, I know, but that's the way I feel about it."

Mrs. Harding predicted that Hiram Johnson would not bolt the party. She felt sure he wouldn't, she said, "because he was only trying to scare the delegates into giving him the nomination so he wouldn't bolt." She laughed charmingly. No, she hadn't gotten her information from a man, she said; she'd thought it out herself.

"Being a senator's wife suits me," Mrs. Harding continues. "It's a quiet life, a pleasant one, and the problems aren't so huge. I liked it. I really liked it better than I like to think of going to the White House. Of course, I haven't seven daughters, but even so, that should not keep me out." And again that delicious laugh.

Mrs. Harding's clothes were—well, they gave the impression of black and white, but her manners were so pleasing and her affability so marked, one forgot to look at her clothes. She was exquisitely groomed.

As a diplomatist she should do well. When I met her earlier in the afternoon she was trying to get a much needed luncheon, and she was stopped an infinite number of times by an indifferent array of women and men.

She gave them each a word, and made each one think she would rather stand and talk than eat, though she hadn't had any food from early morning till late in the afternoon.

* *

An old engineer, who hurried Mr. and Mrs. Harding to a lecture date in the cab of his engine ten years ago in Nebraska, called at headquarters to see Mrs. Harding.

"She was so pleasant I wanted to see her again," he told the women there. "She probably won't remember me. It doesn't seem possible she may be the next president's wife—she was so chummy with us all, in that dirty cab. I am now a delegate from Nebraska."

When the workers told Mrs. Harding, she said: "Indeed I do remember him. His name was Humphreys. I always wanted to thank him for the help he gave us. Tell him if he comes while I am out to come back and see me."

A. R. Humphreys wasn't for Harding when he called there. What he did later might have been worth the memory Mrs. Harding had for him.

There was never a more cordial woman in public life than the wife of the Republican nominee, and it would be difficult to imagine the White House making any notable difference in her. She is essentially kind, and told me with a tear in her eye:

"We haven't any children. I wish we had. The senator plays with every child he meets. He flirts with them, even the babies in arms, and no matter how big the meeting, if he sees a child hanging to its parent's hand, he enjoys saying a word to it."

She finished by saying, "I'm of no importance. Don't say anything about me, but tell everybody what a wonderful man my husband is. I ought to know, having been married to him twenty-six years, and I am not doing this for campaign purposes. He IS wonderful."

Senator and Mrs. Harding were busy last night with preparations to enable them to catch a train for Washington in a few hours. The senator had been up until nearly dawn in the round of conferences with party chieftains which led to his nomination.

The gratification of victory had relaxed the strain, however, and the Ohio senator showed little evidence of it.

G. O. P. USHERS FEAR LOSS OF $10 A DAY PAY

One hundred ushers who finished duties last evening at the Coliseum learned with consternation that arrangements for paying them an understood $10 a day had not crystallized.

In view of their hard work during the convention, the ushers , who are ex-service men, addresesd a petition to Fred W. Upham, chairman of the committee on arrangements for the convntion.

Ticket Will Sweep U. S., Taft Wires to Coolidge

New Haven, Conn., June 12.—[Special.]—Former President Taft tonight sent the following telegram of congratulations to Calvin Coolidge, the nominee for vice president: "I congratulate you most heartily and sincerely on your nomination as vice president. This ticket of Harding and Coolidge will sweep the country and its certain victory means a useful and successful Republican administration of the affairs of this country the next four years."

Mr. Taft's telegram to Senator Harding said:

"I congratulate you most sincerely on your nomination. I am confident of your election."

HOME TOWN OF HARDING HOLDS A CELEBRATION

Father Opposed His Nomination.

Marion, O., June 12.—This little central Ohio city of nearly 36,000 people went wild with joy and enthusiasm tonight when it learned that one of its citizens, Warren G. Harding, had been nominated for the presidency by the Republican national convention.

Minutes before it was announced officially at Chicago that Harding had been nominated, Marion started celebrating what it considered a sure thing. Factory whistles were tooted, church bells rung, and Harding's friends and neighbors gathered on the streets in shouting, laughing groups.

Father and Sister Cheered.

Mr. Harding's father and sister, who live here, were the center of enthusiastic groups of townspeople, who discussed excitedly the developments of the day at the Chicago convention.

The father, Dr. J. P. Harding, a practicing physician, received the news of the honor to his son on his seventy-sixth birthday. He seemed highly elated, as did a sister, Abigail Harding, who teaches English in the Marion school.

The elder Harding declared that he had not wanted his son to be nominated, but now that he is nominated he declared he would vote for him for president.

Earlier in the day when Harding's nomiation appeared assured, the father told intimate friends he hoped "Warren" would not be nominated as so many presidents and men in high office are assassinated. He said he didn't want his "boy" harmed. Nevertheless, Dr. Harding appeared to be the happiest man in the world tonight.

Is Newspaper Publisher.

Mrs. Harding was with her husband at Chicago when the nomination was made. The Hardings have no children. Senator Harding is a successful newspaper publisher.

Golf is Senator Harding's particular hobby. He also is a great baseball fan, and attends the game whenever possible.

He is a great home man, and likes nothing better than to sit at his own fireside entertaining friends with the help of Mrs. Harding.

Senator Harding is a trustee of the Trinity Baptist church, of which he is a member, and upon whose services he is a regular attendant when in Marion.

Sister Hears News.

Washington, June 12.—Besides his father and a sister living at Marion, O., Senator Harding has one other sister, Mrs. Carolyn Votaw, wife of Dr. Heber Votaw and a member of the woman's bureau of the Washington police department. She received the news of her brother's nomination as the Republican presidential candidate direct from his headquarters at Chicago over the long distance telephone.

SPROUL REJOICES HIS STATE MADE HARDING WINNER

Gov. William C. Sproul of Pennsylvania said he was pleased to think that Pennsylvania's vote had been the one to nominate Senator Harding. In a statement thanking his delegation for the support it gave him, he said:

"Senator Harding has had a splendid experience both in his state and in the senate, and I think he has all the qualifications to be president. Pennsylvania Republicans will be solidly for him in November.

"I am glad Pennsylvania had the honor of casting the vote that nominated him."

WASHINGTON NEWS —IN BRIEF—

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]
[Washington Bureau of The Tribune.]
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 12.

A CONFERENCE of bankers and wool growers has been arranged by western senators to be held in Chicago on June 17 to consider the establishment of a fund of $100,000,000 or more for financial aid to the growers.

ABOUT 200,000 world war veterans, now discharged from the service, are eligible to take the examinations for commissions in the regular army, the war department announced.

WITH the announcement of census figures for Chicago, the only large cities whose 1920 population has not been made known are Philadelphia, Detroit, and Cleveland.

A PROGRAM for the resumption of the senate committee investigation of campaign expenditures of presidential candidates will be mapped out at a meeting of the committee in Chicago on July 7.

LOWDEN PLEDGES AID TO NOMINEE; SEES VICTORY

Gov. Lowden gave out the following statement at 8 o'clock last evening on the nomination of Senator Harding:

"After the eighth ballot, upon which he received a plurality of all votes cast, it was represented to me that the delegates were becoming restive under the delay.

"Fearing a protracted delay, which I believe would have been detrimental to the interest of the country, I decided to release all my delegates and advised them to use their best judgment as to whom they could suport.

"I have great confidence in the ability and character of the successful candidate. I shall support him with all heartiness and I believe the ticket will be elected. The Republican party has not had such an opportunity for service in half a century.

"For the friendships formed during this campaign and for the loyal support of many fine, patriotic men and women I shall never cease to be grateful."

Delighted to See Ohio Honored, Says Gov. Cox

Cincinnati, O., June 11.—Gov. James Cox of Ohio, strongly considered as a Democratic presidential nominee, was visiting W. A. Julian, candidate for senator, in Cincinnati when he received news of the nomination of Warren G. Harding for the presidency.

Asked for comment on the nomination, the governor said he had no statement to make beyond this:

"I am always delighted to see Ohio honored." Senator Harding and Gov. Cox both are Ohio editors, the former being editor of the Marion Star and Cox the editor of papers in Springfield and Dayton.

JOHNSON FAILS TO EXTEND GLAD HAND TO VICTOR

Also Avoids Talk on Bolt Question.

Senator Hiram Johnson maintained an ominous silence last night on the subject of whether he would support Harding for president. He made a speech at the Auditorium hotel to a small "battalion of death" of his followers and carefully avoided all mention of the bolt question. As to that, he will have something to say within the next day or two after he has had time to think it over.

All the other defeated candidates promptly congratulated their successful rival, but Senator Johnson is still withholding the glad hand. In view of Johnson's repeated assurances during the primary campaign that he would not bolt, party leaders were hopeful that he would bury the hatchet and take the stump in Harding's behalf.

Senator Borah of Idaho, Johnson's foremost supporter, was also imitating the Sphinx. When Borah left the convention hall immediately after Harding was nominated, he was alone and disappointed. He said he would have nothing to say about the nomination. "I am going to my hotel and go to bed," was his only comment.

No Vociferous Bolt Talk.

It was no secret in the progressive camp that the nomination of Harding and Coolidge hardly filled their expectations, but no very vociferous bolt talk could be heard anywhere.

When Johnson stepped before the "battalion of death" at his headquarters to bid them good-by he was greeted with the song: "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." The crowd sung lustily and with no signs of depression. When the demonstration had died down, Johnson said:

"There are no tears to be shed. There is no rancor. We come out of this fight as we went into it—with heads high and hands clean, and without a thing having been done that wouldn't bear the scrutiny of the whole world.

"We Don't Whine."

"It has been a good fight. We lost. We don't whine. We take our beating standing up. One of the proudest things of my life is that the California delegation and others went all the way down the line, and we all 'died' together.

"As we look back over the campaign, we soo now many things that might have been done and many things that might have been left undone. But there are no regrets. I have doubt whether I could have been nominated even if I had gone into the convention with a bare majority of delegates. We couldn't break through the combination."

Charges "Betrayal."

Senator Johnson was still indignant over what he characterized "betrayal" by delegates from states in which he carried the preference primary. He referred particularly to the delegates from North Carolina, which state he carried by a big majority. He promises to have something to say about these men "and some other gentlemen who have taken part in the convention" at a very early date.

"There isn't a thing under the sun," said Senator Johnson, "that I haven't been offered during the last week. It has been singular that the very gentlemen who have been so insistent on my taking the vice presidency have been equally insistent that I was utterly unfit to be president, although there is only a heart beat between the two."

The senator declared he was proud to leave the convention without having made "any political deals of whatever character," and entirely free to continue in the future as he saw fit. He is going back to Washington tomorrow, and later may go to California.

COOLIDGE FAMED FOR ACTION ON POLICE STRIKE

Vice President Nominee 100% American.

Calvin Coolidge, forty-eighth governor of Massachusetts, leaped into national esteem on Sept. 9 last when he crushed the strike of Boston's police force. With the city turned over to a reign of criminals, Gov. Coolidge called out the state troops on the jump and summarily discharged more than 1,200 policemen who had quit their posts.

This was made the paramount issue of the campaign for governor in November by his opponent, Richard H. Long, who promised to reinstate every one of the 1,200 discharged policemen. The answer of the people was that Coolidge carried Massachusetts—a state where normally a 20,000 plurality is large—by a plurality of 125,000. It was this, the largest vote ever accorded a governor of Massachusetts, that carried Coolidge into the national campaign.

A Star Spangled Nominee.

Gov. Coolidge is a red, white, and blue American by birth. He was born on the Fourth of July, in Plymouth, Vt. He will be 48 years old on next Independence day. His father, Col. John C. Coolidge of Vermont, is still living.

Gov. Coolidge attended Amherst college and later took up the practice of law in Northampton, Mass. It was there his political career began. His rise was steady. He served first in the Northampton city council. Subsequently he was elected mayor, city solicitor, clerk of the Hampshire county court, state representative, state senator, president of the state senate, lieutenant governor, and governor.

He is noted for the brevity of his speeches and his dislike for the old familiar "political handshake."

Boomed Liberal Laws.

Among the liberal measures he worked for while in the legislature were appropriation for pure food bill; new housing laws for Boston; free employment bureau; old age pension commission; bill against overtime for women and children; pensions for widows of policemen and firemen; eight hour day for state and city employés; workmen's compensation act; pensions for school teachers; better medical inspection for schools; limit to assumption of risk by rail employés; half fare for school children, and modification of injunction processes.

The governor's father, Col. Coolidge, was a member of the Vermont senate for two years, during which his son was in the Massachusetts senate.

At the time the governor swept the state by his reëlection President Wilson sent him the following message from the sick bed:

"I congratulate you upon your election as a victory for law and order. When that is the issue all Americans stand together."

"I deeply appreciate your telegram of congratulation," Gov. Coolidge wired in reply. "I trust the election will aid in the upholding of the laws of America in particular and strengthen the hand of righteous authority everywhere."

Warns Against Reds.

In his address to the legislature, inaugurating his second term, Gov. Coolidge said:

"Healthful housing, wholesome food, sanitary working conditions, reasonable hours, a fair wage for a fair day's work, opportunity full and free, justice speedy and impartial and at a cost within the reach of all, are among the objects not only to be sought out, but made absolutely certain and secure.

"There are strident voices urging resistance to law in the name of freedom. They are not seeking freedom even for themselves—they have it—they are seeking to enslave others.

"Their works are evil. They know it. They must be resisted. The evil they represent must be overcome by the good others represent. The meaning of America is a power which cannot be overcome. Prosecution of the criminal and education of the ignorant are the remedies."

Vetoes 2.75 Per Cent Beers.

Gov. Coolidge's last important official act was in vetoing a bill legalizing 2.75 per cent beer in Massachusetts.

"There is little satisfaction in attempting to deceive ourselves," he said, "and there is grave danger in attempting to deceive the people."

Gov. and Mrs. Coolidge have two sons, Calvin Jr. and John, both in their teens.

GOV. COOLIDGE "PLEASED TO RUN WITH HARDING"

Call Platform Sound and Leader Wise.

"The nomination for vice president, coming to me unsought and unexpectedly, I accept as an honor and a duty.

"It will be especially pleasing to be associated with my old friend Senator Warren G. Harding, our candidate for president.

"The Republican party has adopted a sound platform, chosen a wise leader, and is united. It deserves the confidence of the American people. That confidence I shall endeavor to obtain."

To newspaper men he said: "I am pleased and shall accept. I am particularly pleased that I am to make the run with Senator Harding."

Wife Pleased at News.

The governor received word of his nomination in his apartment at the Adams house. Present were Mrs. Coolidge, Capt. Charles S. Riley, the governor's aid; and his secretary, Henry E. Long.

"I was surprised," said Mrs. Coolidge. "The telephone rang about a quarter after 9, and Mr. Coolidge answered it, and then turned to me and said: 'I've been named for the vice presidency.' We had received the word about the nomination of Mr. Harding a few minutes before.

"I thought the governor was joking and I said: "O, you don't mean it.' He answered, 'Indeed, I do.' Even then I thought he was just trying to see how I would take the joke. It was fully a minute before I really believed it. All I can say is that I am surprised."

Sextons Ring the Bells.

Just then a Northampton neighbor of the governor and his wife, a Mrs. Hills, sent her congratulations and the congratulations of all the other neighbors to the vice presidential nominee and his wife.

Word comes from Northampton also that when the Coolidge family physician, Dr. Richard Brown, heard the news, he sent it broadcast over the town.

Immediately the sextons of the local churches got busy and the ringing of bells from every spire heralded the tidings.

Northampton is the seat of Smith college and is filled with alumnæ and friends there for commencement.

COOLIDGE WINS SECOND PLACE ON FREE BALLOT

balloting to start—the fifth ballot in the series.

New York comes in, having escaped the prayer, although if any delegation needs it, New York is probably the one.

Somebody sends out a report: "They're going to put Harding over on the fifth." Everybody yawns; the attitude of most of the delegates being "Let the ballot tell the story."

"Alabama, fourteen votes," sings ut Horace Bancroft, in a voice that hrough the sound amplifier almost acks the ear drums of the galleries.

"Ah!" sighs the great hall, settling ck expectantly. But the bell-weth- of the states registers no change om the last ballot of the night be- ore.

Slight differences are rated as the oll of the state progresses. Harding icks up a few votes—some of the ipsters wag their heads. "Here omes the Harding boom," they say. "It's all fixed for him."

New York gives Lowden ten more otes than before, and a shout rings ut. One thing is evident, however—Wood is slipping. Lowden is pushing forward to first place.

Lowden Takes Lead.

Lowden, 303.
Johnson, 133.

Harding has not broken the "Big Three" ranks as yet. His vote is 78.

A short demonstration follows. The Lowden men in the Illinois delegation jump on their chairs and shout joyously. Frank Funk, Bull Moose candidate for governor in 1912, leads the yells. Dave Shanahan, speaker of the legislature, has his mouth open until it might be taken for the La Salle street tunnel, while Senator L. Y. Sherman and Harold Ickes are also doing a noble job of welkin-ringing. Across the aisle Iowa is vociferous.

FRANK H. FUNK.
[Copyright: Moffett.]

Thompson Organ Appears.

Copies of the Thompson organ appear in the hall, filled with attacks on Gov. Lowden. The sergeant-at-arms would not let the newsboys in, but the police turned their backs. It proves too warm an outpouring of written language for such a hot day, and the floor is littered with discarded papers.

"Tobe" Hert of Kentucky, the Lowden manager, is active. It is his busy day, for sure. The Johnson floor manager, John F. Neylan of California, is a bee in a clover field. Hitchcock, on the outskirts, looks half doubtful, half confiden.

SIXTH BALLOT STARTS

The sixth ballot starts. This ballot marks the breaking away from Johnson of important batches of instructed delegates from direct primary states. Michigan, which has stuck through all the polls, splits. Wood gets eleven. Hiram keeps eighteen. Lowden gets one. A minute later Johnson drops six to Wood in Nebraska. Hiram's followers begin to look disconsolate.

Johnson's delegates are fast disintegrating. As the ballot is being counted upon the adding machines the floor becomes a beehive. Harding men peddle a report:

"Harding is going over on the next ballot. It's all set."

Offers Bet on Harding.

L. K. Torbet, naval officer of Chicago under Taft, wants to bet $100 n "Harding on the seventh."

He escapes before the press bench can take him up.

The seventh? That's not the one that will crack the deadlock, except for the seventh son of a seventh son, and none of the candidates is such.

DAVID W. MULVANE.

Has Johnson slipped on the sixth? Sure enough, the announcement shows he has dropped to 110 votes, just as the wise ones figured a week ago. It is Johnson, and not Wood, against whom the first "squeeze-out" operates, although the ambition of the anti-Wood forces was to kill off the general first among the "Big Three."

Cheer Close Finish.

A "horse race" finish is made on the sixth ballot by Wood and Lowden. Each gets 311½ votes. Lowden is the only one of the "Big Three" to this stage who has gained on each ballot.

There is an outburst of delight from the galleries over the "neck and neck" finish. It is spontaneous joy of the sort that bubbles up from spectators at a race track who have no money up on the ponies.

Fred Upham of Illinois, stage manager of the convention so far as the physical settings are concerned, is out in the Illinois aisle pulling for Lowden. Murray Crane of Massachusetts, one of the last of the real old guard, is talking with a fat man from New York, and what with the din the stout party is wishing that Crane would shoot his whispers through the electric resonator. But then the galleries might discover what is in Murray's mind, which is something many politicians have failed to do.

SEVENTH BALLOT TAKEN

"Call the seventh ballot!" shouts Lodge through the hubbub. Alabama slips two votes to Harding, which causes vast excitement among the Ohio senator's friends. California sticks closer than a cluster of raisins to Hiram. The Michigan chairman casts thirty votes for Johnson and for a moment it seems that the Wolverine instrusted delegates had gone back to Hi. But only for half a minute, for some one demands a poll of the delegation, and on this Johnson gets 16, Wood 13, Lowden 1, a gain of two votes for Wood over the preceding ballot. The delegates were under orders to stick to Hiram as long as he had a reasonable chance and Hiram blew up long ago.

Harding Gains Slowly.

Torbet is glad he did not bet on the seventh. The figures read by the clerk show that Harding has crept up by degrees to 105 votes. He is over the century mark. His friends become almost dizzy from excitement; much yelling and running about.

LEWIS K. TORBET.
[Photo by Sykes.]

Wood has crept one-half vote ahead of Lowden. The general has 312; the governor has 311½, his old number. Johnson has dropped one-half vote under the 100 mark. He has fallen from the big three, while Harding has jumped into his place.

EIGHTH BALLOT ON

Well, maybe the eighth ballot will tell. Everybody seems skeptical; that is, everybody but the Harding boosters. At this juncture the convention ties the deadlock of 1888 when it took eight ballots to nominate Harrison and in those days the delegates were not so "untrammelled" nor so far at sea.

Harding is to be given a tryout. What the analysts term a psychological moment is on the wing. Some of the conservative, standpat members of the senate seem to think the eighth poll will be a "test of strength," to use the usual phrase.

In the good old state of Michigan Johnson's vote has dropped to 10 from its pristine 30. Lowden gets 7 votes. Among the Michigan men are 6 Lowden men who have been ready to vote for him on any ballot after the first two. They have been held back by the Lowden managers.

Effort at Stampede.

Harding gains in Ohio, Oregon; many other states increase their Harding vote. Wyoming goes to him, down towards the tail end of the poll. This is the signal for the din to break out. Ohio is up on its seats roaring and screeching. Horns, megaphones, bells, and bazoos are adding to the bedlam. The hall is filled with shouts of "Harding," "Harding."

It looks like an attempt at a stampede—but one is still skeptical that this convention can be carried off its feet by mere noise and ebullition of enthusiasm. It will take more than whoops—conferences, caucuses, and a little pressure from the half-invisible "management" will be required.

The chairman of the Missouri delegation advances and announces his state will change its vote to thirty-six solid for Harding. But some one in the seats yells "No. No," and the chairman withdraws his change.

"They're saving it for the next ballot," everybody says.

The results of the eighth ballot show Harding has gained twenty-eight votes. He has a total of 133½. Johnson has slipped to 87—Hiram is not far ahead of Sproul, the Quaker dark horse, now. Lowden has dropped four votes, the first ballot on which he has receded. He is again leading the field. Wood is in second place. The poll:

Wood—299.
Lowden—307.
Harding—133.

Heads are being put together in several parts of the hall. Over in the New York delegation are Senator Harry New of Indiana, Senator James Wadsworth of New York, and John Francis Neylan of California, Johnson's floor leader. Wadsworth wants to take a recess, but the Harding people object—they want to keep the ball rolling until it finally rolls into the corner pocket. The Lowden men are for taking a rest.

HARRY S. NEW.

"Tobe" Hert of Kentucky moves a recess until 4 o'clock. A storm of "Noes" roars through the Coliseum. California second's Hert's motion. When it is put both sides vote so lustily that it is like measuring one minute of Niagara against another. Lodge strokes his whiskers—the chair is in doubt.

"No adjournment until we get Harding over," scream the Ohio men. But up on the platform heads are together; arms are around shoulders; much conference is going on; Smoot, McCormick, Warren, Neylan, Hert, Watson, and the rest look like a college glee club ready to sound a few barber shop chords.

The group evaporates. Lodge comes to the front—"the convention," he announces, "is adjourned until 4 o'clock."

4 O'CLOCK SESSION

The Harding parade marched into the hall when the afternoon session was due to start, a welcome diversion to the gallery, munching hot dog sandwiches. There were banners: "The Republicans need Ohio." "Harding means Ohio."

At 4:50 Lodge swung the mall.

"The ninth ballot will be taken," he said.

Now the Harding men tried to shout down the walls of Jericho. Alabama gives him 4. A great yell, but it is only what Alabama gave him on the eighth.

California stuck tight for Hiram.

Connecticut cast 13 votes for Harding. The gain in the Nutmeg state brought a resounding howl. Florida gave him a gain of 7 at the expense of Wood.

Kansas Swings in Line.

Then Kansas cast its twenty votes for Harding. A demonstration started. "Wow," they yelled, and started a parade down the aisles.

"Tobe" Hert, the Lowden manager, announced Kentucky's twenty-six votes were cast for Harding. It had been solid for Lowden up to this time. This brought everybody up standing. There was a great din, after which it was announced again:

"Kentucky cast its twenty-six votes for Harding."

ALVIN T. HERT.
[Copyright: Moffett.]

Louisiana cast its twelve votes for Harding. This took seven more from Lowden and three from Wood.

Delaware took three votes from Du Pont and gave them to Sproul, the first he had got outside of Pennsylvania.

Massachusetts, Maine, and Maryland stuck to Wood, and when Michigan was called the delegation had to be polled. The Harding men groaned. The polls showed Lowden had dropped one vote and Harding had picked it up. That's all.

Missouri for Harding.

Missouri threw its thirty-six votes to Harding. Another outburst; next minute Johnson's remaining delegates in Nebraska went to Wood, making a solid Wood vote for that state.

But when New York swung sixty-six of its eighty-eight votes to Harding the yelling made the girders tremble. Lowden was the chief loser.

North Carolina swung eighteen to But Ohio, Harding's home state ,split—giving Wood nine and Harding thirty-nine, as it had been doing.

Oklahoma had to be polled after the chairman had voted its twenty solid for Harding. On the poll, Harding got eighteen, Wood a half a vote, Will Hays got one vote—his first appearance in the field.

Pennsylvania did not swing to Harding, despite the rumor Penrose had come out for him. It still gave Sproul seventy-five and Knox one.

South Carolina took eleven from Lowden and gave them to Harding. Tennessee gave Hardding five more than before, taking them from Lowden and Wood.

Sproul on Floor.

Gov. Sproul came on the floor and joined the Pennsylvania delegation as Texas was being polled. Texas gave Harding eleven more than before, while Utah gave two Wood votes to Harding.

Virginia took ten votes from Lowden and gave nine of them to Harding, making his eleven. The other went to Wood, making his four.

"Woo—oo," groaned the galleries when Wisconsin for the ninth time registered twenty-four for LaFollette

Harding gained two from Wood in the District of Columbia and two from Lowden in Hawaii.

Philippines Stick to Wood.

The Philippines stuck to Wood, while Porto Rico swung its two votes to Harding.

Lodge's voice by this time was worn to a very strained whisper. When the result is announced, Harding is standing in first place with 374½ votes, the highest polled so far by any one.

He is still 119 votes short of the nomination. The polls stand:

Wood, 249.
Lowden, 121½.
Johnson, 82.
Harding, 374½.
Sproul, 78.

Amid intense interest the chair orders: "The tenth ballot will now be taken."

TENTH BALLOT ON

"Watch him go over, now," is the shout. As the call progressed Harding picked up four in Alabama, twelve in Arkansas, three in Delaware, a half in Florida, nine in Georgia, one in Idaho, twenty-two and one-half in Illinois, nine in Indiana, and twenty-six in Iowa.

He lost two in Kansas and gained five in Maryland. In Massachusetts he fourteen more votes now, provided on the remaining states he kept what he got on the ninth ballot.

Michigan's vote put Harding over. He made a gain in this state of twenty-four votes, putting him ten above the additional vote he had needed to make the required majority, 493.

Harding gained two more in Minnesota, five in Mississippi, four in Nebraska, one in New Jersey, two in North Carolina, nine in North Dakota.

Ohio swung solidly to its senator—forty-eight for Harding, a gain of nine. There was a demonstration, brief, because everybody was eager for the finish.

BOIES PENROSE.

Pennsylvania a minute later gave Harding sixty votes. This brought a more prolonged celebration. Penrose's orders had apparently been to swing whenever the candidate was in shape to put the nomination over. But Harding had it without Pennsylvania.

Parades formed in the aisle. A young man from Xenia, O., Paul Creswalter, bore a placard to the front of the press benches, "Say, Boys and Girls, Let's Nominate Harding," which was the finale to Frank B. Willis' nominating speech.

After that it was a band wagon rush. Illinois switched sixteen of the seventeen votes it had cast for Lowden to Harding. Mississippi switched twelve to Harding. Washington switched its fourteen to him.

FRANK L. SMITH.

The clerk was half way through the announcement of the result of the tenth ballot when Frelinghuysen of New Jersey moved it be made unanimous. This was seconded by Frank L. Smith of Illinois.

On the vote the only "nays" were sounded by Wisconsin.

They were echoed from floor and gallery: "Boo-oo-oo!"

FILL SECOND PLACE

One short roar of mingled relief and satisfaction and the convention passes to the job of picking a running mate for Harding.

Lodge's voice has become so worn that he calls Frank B. Willis of Ohio to take the gavel.

"A candiate for vice president is to be nominated," he announced.

"You have adopted a great and constructive platform. You have nominated for the presidency a many of large experience, deep learning, great power—Senator Harding. Now, you must nominate for vice president a man capable of filling the position of chief executive. I nominate Irving Lenroot of Wisconsin."

"Tobe" Hert of Kentucky seconded it. So does Senator Calder of New York; so do others.

W. J. Bailey of Kansas nominates Gov. Henry J. Allen in a speech which was lost in the uproar.

Ballot on Four Names.

"Make it unanimous," moved John G. Oglesby, lieutenant governor of Illinois. The motion was seconded by F. H. LaGuardia of New York, and was promptly carried.

Without a dissenting vote a resolution is adopted instructiong the national committee to devise some just and equitable method of representation in future national conventions, to be operative in 1924. It will cut down the representation of the southern Democratic states.

The policy and platform advisory committee, an innovation introduced this time by Will Hays, is made a permanent adjunct. Routine resolutions thanking Chairman Lodge and other officers of the convention for their services, providing for the filling of vacancies on the ticket if they should happen, and for the publishing of a report are adopted.

The fag end stuff is rapidly disposed of, and at 7:32 p. m., on motion of Will Hays, the seventeenth Republican national convention adjourns.

Political hammers and hatchets were generally buried last night, after the old time Republican fashion prevailing before the stormy days of 1912. Leaders of various convention groups lost the belligerency that had characterized them through the week.

Although it was not definitely ascertained whether Johnson and Borah would take off their coats for the nomineees, other treaty irreconcilables came smiling after the convention had run over their California candidate, and agreed to be good.

"I wish Senator Harding all the good luck in the world and success in his campaign," said Ralph Strassburger, of Pennsylvania, one of the campaign managers for Senator Johnson. "We congratulate Senator Harding."

Lowden Men Take Off Coats.

Not a trace of bitterness could be found in the Lowden camp. Disappointed, of course, were all the men who fought for Gov. Lowden, but they already have enlisted in the campaign to elect Harding.

"We put up the best fight we could, but lost," said Louis L. Emmerson, secretary of state for Illinois, and manager of the Lowden campaign. "Now we are out to support the nominee. Lowden's campaign was conducted throughout with the thought that nothing but good feeling should come out of it. Harding will win in November."

East Is Satisfied.

Men from the east, too, seemed satisfied and confident over the result.

"Warren Harding," said Senator Wadsworth of New York, "will prove to be a most excellent candidate. He is a man of wide experience, sound judgment, and intimate knowledge of the people of the United States."

William Barnes of New York, "Boss" Barnes, as he is familiarly known, said: "Senator Harding is representative of the best American citizenship. He has a cool, clear head and his feet are on the ground."

"I was never so pleased in my life," said Senator Elkins of West Virginia.

Senator Harry S. New of Indiana, who supported Gen. Wood, said: "Harding will be a great candidate and a great president."

Lodge Commends Ticket.

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, the chairman of the convention, was tired but happy when he dropped the gavel to whoop it up for the nominee.

"I am much pleased with the ticket," said Senator Lodge. "It is an especial pleasure to me that the convention should have chosen my good friend, Gov. Coolidge, for vice president. He is a very able man."

Senator Smoot, one of the party's old war horses, said: "The ticket is entirely satisfactory to me. So is the platform. Senator Harding will make a wonderful president."

Ohio Men Jubilant.

Ohio men, of course, were jubilant. Myron T. Herrick, ex-governor of Ohio and former ambassador to France, said:

"Senator Harding is the type of man who listens to good advice. He is big enough and broad enough to want advice and to profit by it. He will be a good president."

Gov. Morrow of Kentucky, one of the most loyal of the Lowden men, said: "Senator Harding is very popular among the rank and file of our people. He will carry Kentucky."

Puts Party on Mettle.

William Allen White of Kansas, a Wood man and a progressive, said:

"The Harding nomination is going to put the Republican party on its mettle. Of the three men, Wood, Lowden and Harding, I think Harding will be the easiest to elect. It will be a big fight, and I'm for it. The more the merrier."

Congressman Frank L. Smith, Illinois state chairman, said; "We were sorry to lose with Gov. Lowden but rejoice to win with Harding. The people will do the rest Nov. 4.

Senator Calder of New York said: "Senator Harding will carry New York overwhelmingly."

Louis Coolidge of Massachusetts said "Harding is an excellent nomination. He will make a great president."

Roosevelt Will Help Him.

Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas said: "Those who know Senator Harding know he will make a wonderful president."

"I shall work like a nailer for Harding," said Col. Theodore Roosevelt, who had been for months aiding Gen. Wood.

Charles B. Warren of Michigan, who was for Lowden, said: "Harding will unquestionably receive the indorsement of Republicans of all shades of opinion."

WOOD THANKS CAMPAIGN AIDS FOR LOYAL HELP

Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood issued this statement last night regarding the convention results:

"At the close of this campaign I take this opportunity to thank, from the bottom of my heart, all the men and women who have helped so loyally in the pre-convention and convention contest. I am sincerely grateful for their help and appreciate the spirit of unselfish loyalty in which it was given. I also appreciate the nation-wide expression of confidence and support."

Gen. Wood issued the following statement before the official vote which gave Senator Harding the Republican nomination for the presidency was announced:

"I congratulate Senator Harding on his nomination."

FELICITATIONS WIRED BY HOOVER TO SEN. HARDING

New York, June 12.—Herbert Hoover, defeated candidate for the Republican nomination, tonight sent the following message to Senator Harding:

"I haste: to tender you my most cordial per nal congratulations on your nomination and on the great opportunity it affords you to interpret the desires of the American people."

THE HUMAN SIDE OF THE REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES NAMED YESTERDAY

They were the center of interest and were surrounded by cheering and enthusiastic friends and admirers for several hours before they left on a midnight train for Washington. After a brief stay at the capital they will go to Marion, O., for a rest.

Gov. and Mrs. Coolidge are good pals, as the picture shows. They were together at the Adams house in Boston last night when they received word of the governor's nomination for the vice presidency.

They will go to Amherst for commencement Monday, Gov. Coolidge being a graduate of Amherst college.

Residence of Senator Harding at Marion, O. Just a comfortable home, of which there are many in this Ohio town.

GOV. CALVIN COOLIDGE.

Gov. Calvin Coolidge, like Senator Harding, was born on a farm near the village of Plymouth, Vt., July 4, 1872. He worked as a farmer and assisted his father in the village store. He was graduated at Amherst, after which he took up the study of law at Northampton. In 1918 he was elected governor of Massachusetts and re-elected in 1919 by an overwhelming majority because of his stand during the Boston police strike.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Getting an early start with the coming president: Senator McCormick may not be talking Illinois patronage, but he had something quite important and private to whisper to the candidate just after his nomination.

'SAY, BOYS AND GIRLS, LET'S PICK HARDING!' DONE!

Or, Willis and Creswell Start Something.

BY EYE WITNESS.

"Say boys—and girls—let's nominate Harding!"
WILLIS OF OHIO.

The jolly, companionable words that roaring Willis of Ohio had spoken on Friday were the only ones that soared above the tumult and the shouting when they were in the very rigor of the game on Saturday.

In that dusty hour, when state after state was wheeling—when it was not scurrying—into Mr. Harding's column, all the pompous shibboleths of party fealty went glimmering, and it was the seven rough and ready words out of the vernacular that made the tired fighting men lean back and laugh and forget their troubles.

Even Henry Cabot Lodge permitted himself the indelicacy of a grin—well, no, not a grin, but a tired smile—as the hurriedly scrawled placard was thrust perilously near to the sacred gangway from which he had vehemently shoved an overzealous journalist earlier in the day.

Paul Creswell's Triumph.

And Paul H. Creswell of Xenia, deputy auditor of Greene county, O., was a very happy man, by gosh.

For, though the words were the words of Willis on Friday, it was young Mr. Creswell, the deputy auditor, in the patent, self-ventilating linen cap that is prime for traveling, who resurrected them on Saturday and lifted them high above the din and heat of battle.

During that dramatic tenth ballot, when the wheeling into the column and the scurrying for the new and resplendent band wagon became a mania, he emerged steaming from the sloppy basement regions of the Coliseum with his placard.

He had found a big white sheet of bristol board that read on one side: "For Firemen Only." On the other he feverishly emblazoned the words of Willis. Then he swung the placard down from the gallery to the left of the platform as you face the chairman.

Cheers, Laughs, Victory.

A big, hearty, heartening cheer greeted it. A roar of laughter ballooned the cheer from end to end and from side to side of the tired old hall.

The deputy auditor of Greene county took heart of grace, descended into the arena, strode with many an "excuse-me-fellows," over the pine tables in the newspaper shambles, and hung his placard in the comfortable view of a dozen thousand people.

Then he dropped, pleased and panting, into a chair by Levy Mayer, one of the few momentous men who can be an agreeable looker on at affairs even when he cannot cut ice in connection with them, and Levy patted the deputy auditor on the back and remarked, "My boy, you've said it."

Mr. Creswell had, indeed, ecected more than he suspected. After all the rancors and the rhodamontade, his prank diffused the jovial consciousness that we in this goodly young land are still boys and girls, and, even amid the strain and fume of these colossal diets that make one governing system unique, just folks together.

"Uncle Joe" Says a Mouthful.

In other respects the "demonstrations" leading up to and culminating in the nomination of Mr. Harding were the usual thing. As Uncle Joseph Cannon says: "It's like the circus—you see one and you see 'em all."

You saw the strain on the white or the florid faces of the party managers who paced Lodge's sacred gangway relax as evening drew on. You saw their whispered conferrings transferred to the larger stage on the floor below, where they became intent chafferings not probably as important as chafferers thought, but calculated to save self-respect and to inform big men who decide things that present also were little men constituting a very large mechanism that sometimes gets out of hand and smashes the fingers of big men.

A Scene from the Drama.

I happened to fall in on one of those occasions when a little scene of the drama of the day had been transferred from the big actors to the little stage aloft to the minor actors on the big stage below. It was Kansas conferring—Kansas coatless, very intent, and twenty strong. They were all standing in a circle, all facing one another, and wholly oblivious of the 13,980 men and women around them. Had they been out in the middle of one of their own prairies they could not have cared a lesser damn about the rest of the world or been less self-conscious. One weary man—evidently well considered by the others—had twined an arm and a leg around the pole that bore the state's name, and he was saying, "Well, I vote to let it stand as it is."

There were sober nods at this, and phrases like "I guess you're right," and "For the present, then, that's agreed on," and "All right, Frank," and the group settled itself in chairs. I thought it beautiful—the quiet, kind faces, the forthrightness and sobriety of it all—and with a simplicity in it that made it somehow majestic. It was like a footnote to Bryce's "American Commonwealth," and thinking over it sort of steadied a man.

Calm Amid the Din.

More than once I happened on this kind of thing or had it indicated to me by colleagues wise in these matters—ah, very wise, and inclined to smile at perhaus o'er trustful receptivity. But the point of it all to me—and the one they had no time to bother with—was that this all-day shifting of the drama from behind the scenes to the very middle of the scenes went on soberly amid the most frantic hullaballoo. Men met in a maelstrom, extricated themselves from it, and then sat on the edge of it to confer, rationally enough, so far as I could see, about the steering of the ship. Men saw the prize hanging in midair above their heads, saw it come nearer, recede, vanish, nevermore to come again to them, and all they said by way of tirade was, "My God, how dry I am! Where's the water cooler?"

To me those were the real "demonstrations" of the day of the chieftains. There was the other kind, too—he kind you can see any feverish night in the Hungarian parliament. But they don't mean much over here as a rule, I fancy. They are the frolic with which calculation rewards itself after the long strain.

Feel Way to Band Wagon.

As I was saying, it was the ninth ballot that had the a realer drama in it than the tenth had, for during the ninth expectancy was keyed high, and the states did not so much swing toward as feel their way to the bandwagon. But when the tenth began it was all over but the shouting—and so they shouted.

"Over he goes now," said one of THE TRIBUNE'S Washington men as the tenth, and final, ballot began.

Alabama, that had said four for Harding in the ninth, now said eight for Harding, and that started the kind of demonstration that has the tassels on it, but that is in its essence as conventional as a coat of paint.

But it was when Delaware, which for nineteen hours has been fooling with Du Pont, fell as one man into seat No. 7 on the band wagon that the red fire began to sizzle and the final tableau to take shape.

How the band wagon shone! The evening sunshine fell straight athwart Michigan. A voice from the galleries cried, "Come on, Michigan!" Michigan piled on, twenty-four strong, never minding four little boys who sulked and hesitated, and missed the step.

New York's spokesman shouted, "Sixty-eight votes for Senator Harding," and the sapient one at my side said, "It's done."

It was 6:14 o'clock. Up with the standard, lads! Down the aisle it goes, a standard with the portrait of a pleasant, thoughtful, elderly face on it.

Everybody is on his feet now.

Delegates, spectators, all are standing, all are shouting—save Lodge, who sits and fingers his beard, and looks watchfully out from under his reflective brows, rising at 6:35 to remark dryly—and hoarsely—"I don't suppose that it is necessary for me to announce to you now that your nominee is Warren G. Harding of Ohio."

Lodge, the Imperturbable.

When the last trump sounds Senator Lodge no doubt will be there, for he always gravitates to large occasions, but he will be calm, and he will say, "It is not my wish—it is my last wish—to have the galleries cleared, but cleared they will be unless St. Peter is permitted to transact the business of this convention amid order."

I linger on the entrancing scene. Some routine of party government fills the last moments. The hall is nearly empty now and the band has nearly finished the old anthem. It is 7:30 o'clock. The sun has dropped behind the smoky battlements of the tired town, and all the ways grow dark, and turbulent men fare their ways to their Sunday rest like little children that have played and are aweary now.

EDITORIAL COMMENT ON TICKET

Editorial comment by papers of the country on the Republican ticket yesterday follows:

New York Times—Upon a platform that has produced general dissatisfaction, the Chicago convention presents a candidate whose nomination will be received with astonishment and dismay. Warren G. Harding is a very respectable Ohio politician of the second class. The nomination of Harding is the fine and perfect flower of the cowardice of the senatorial cabal that charged itself with the management of the Republican convention. Rejecting Leonard Wood, because they knew he would never be dictated to by them, they favored Gov. Lowden until Borah served upon them his notice of a veto of that nomination. Gov. Coolidge, for vice president, at least is a man of achievement; he is known to the party and to the nation. It will be felt and said everywhere that the Democrats at San Francisco have received from their opponents at Chicago the gift of a splendid opportunity.

New York Sun and Herald—In the nomination of Harding the Republican party has done the wisest thing it could have done. Senator Harding is the exemplification of the best type of Americanism. Gov. Coolidge is a fitting running mate for Senator Harding. He has come to occupy a big place with right thinking, sound living Americans.

"Palpably Lacking in Zeal."

Buffalo Times—By the choice of Harding the major figures of the convention are eliminated. He is not the man whom any large element in his party would have chosen. The decision reflects the tone of the convention, which was palpably lacking in zeal.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat—Harding resembles Garfield somewhat in his qualities, but the people of Ohio, who know him best, see a closer comparison with McKinley. He is without doubt a man of the McKinley type, having much the same sane and balanced judgment, the same soberness of demeanor, the same conservatism of speech.

Boston Globe—The nomination is one more achievement of that redoubtable political group known to popular imagination as the old guard. Senator Harding is a conservative candidate with a conservative platform.

Pittsburgh Dispatch—After all the pother about the league plank and making that the issue the candidates chosen are not especially noted for aggressiveness in that capacity. The two major parties will have to fight out the battle on American issues[and on these the ticket named undoubtedly represents the Republican viewpoint.

"Coolidge Adds Great Strength."

Columbus State Journal.—Senator Harding's nomination is another great triumph for the old guard. The nomination of the cool, calm, and courageous Calvin Coolidge of Massachusetts for the vice presidency, adds great strength to the ticket.

Buffalo Express.—Harding and Coolidge. The records of these two men assure the country that within the year the United States will be guided again by clear thinking, constructive, businesslike leaders. The Republicans have nominated the strongest of tickets.

Baltimore Sun—Warren G. Harding is a typical wheelhorse of the party. He will be agreeable to the party regulars, but he will not appeal strongly to the independent voters. He is the same kind of a candidate as the platform is a kind of a platform.

Baltimore American—In nominating Harding the party has done more toward restoring the country to its normal balance than it could have done by the nomination of any other aspirant.

Indianapolis Star — United States senators, after having framed a platform in which they bow in adoration before their own supernatural wisdom and nobility, have nominated this ticket as the result of their own plans and specifications. It remains to be seen whether it can be elected.

"Might Have Done Worse"

Atlanta Constitution—The nomination of Senator Harding will be received with surprise by many. Mr. Harding's chief strength lies in the fact that he has been a sort of middle of the roader. The Republicans might have gone further and done much worse.

Richmond, Va., Times Dispatch—Harding always has been a "regular." He is acceptable to the old guard and the "interests." He can stand on any and every plank in the G. O. P. platform without qualm of conscience or violation of political principle. Coolidge stands for at least one definite thing, law and order.

Wheeling Register—The nomination of Harding will please the conservative elements of the Republican party and "big business," but it will not please the progressive groups and labor.

SUSPECT BLACK HAND REVENGE AGAINST CARUSO

East Hampton, L. I., June 12.—[Special.]—Detectives working on the Caruso jewelry robbery here found their tasks further complicated today with the receipt of a letter by Mrs. Caruso in obscure Italian dialect, supposedly a "Black Hand threat."

Detective Rene Surdez said Italians among the Caruso household servants, while professing inability to translate the letter, appeared frightened when they read it.

Fearing that the jewel robbery is not the only danger if the Black Hand is connected with the case, Mrs. Caruso has made extraordinary preparations to insure the safety of her infant daughter. Members of the household, with the exception of Mrs. Caruso, are all armed.

Italians Quit Montenegro to Appease the Jugo-Slavs

ROME, June 12.—[United Press.]—Italian troops have evacuated all Montenegrin towns, including Antivari, Dulcigno, and Scutari, because of Jugo-Slav hostilities, a dispatch to the Tempo said today. The Italians also evacuated Santi-Quaranti naval base.

New Hotel in Marion, O., Travelers Ask Harding

Seattle, Wash., June 12.—[Special.]—Three traveling men from Ohio today wired congratulations to Harding and requested that he pass up the league of nations until he causes a new hotel to be built in Marion, O.

HARDING IDEAL CHOICE FOR G.O.P., DEMOCRATS SAY

Regard Him as Help in Fight for Votes.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., June 12.—[Special.] — Prominent Democrats expressed themselves as highly pleased tonight over the nomination of Senator Harding by the Republicans.

Secretary of State Colby, a former Roosevelt progressive, declared that the selection of a "stand patter" served to emphasize the issue between the two parties and that it would aid the Democrats.

"From the stanpoint of the Democratic party the nomination of Mr. Harding is a very admirable one, because it tends to clarify and emphasize every issue between the two parties," Secretary Colby said. "It is a clear-cut issue that will go before the American people.

Convention Highly Gratifying.

"I think Senator Harding's strength is an illusion that exists only in the minds of the stand-pat section of the Republican party, and, speaking as a former progressive, it seems to me the emphasis of the old stand-pat aspect of the Republican convention action is very gratifying from the standpoint of its opponents.

"Speaking in a lighter vein my thoughts turn to the Shakespearan quotation and lead me to say: 'Alas, poor Harding.'"

No formal comment on the nominations was obtainable at the White House. However, Secretary Tumulty, who was manifestly very happy over the Chicago result, when asked for an expression of opinion, replied:

"I am de-lighted."

Harding "Bully" Choice.

Senator Key Pittman of Nevada first said he felt "bully," when asked for comment on the nomination. Asked for further comment, he said:

"I haven't very much to say, I feel so good over the nomination. I am disappointed from one standpoint and very happy from another. It is the only consistent thing that this stand-pat, colorless convention has done.

"It has nominated a man who has preached reaction for the last two or three months. It has nominated a man without any human instincts whatever, and is absolutely subservient to the peculiar philosophy of Big Business. It explains their platform perfectly—a secret platform, a secret meeting, and a candidate who will accept interpretations.

"If the Democrats nominate a man who is in sympathy with the policies and spirit of this government—and I have no doubt whatever that they will—and who is not afraid to state where he stands, he will receive the overwhelming vote of this country."

CELLULOID BLOWS UP.

An explosion of celluloid in a steel vault of the J. B. Carroll company, Carroll and North Albany avenues, manufacturers of advertising novelties, destroyed the contents of the vault, valued at $5,000, and blew out all the windows in the three story building.

'FILLED UP ON PAIR OF EIGHTS,' LAUGHS HARDING

100 newspaper men waited in the lobby. The senator said he had no statement of importance to make. He wanted to think things over, he said. He would be guided by the advice of the national committee in the campaign.

To Stay in Marion.

"I want to go to Washington for a few days," he said. "Then I expect to go to Marion and remain there. I am very proud, as any American would be, to receive this great honor from the Republican party. I am not unmindful of the obligations and responsibilities that go with it."

He apologized for not having any "news." He knows news. He shook hands with all the reporters and told them he was leaving for Washington at 11:45. One of the senator's visitors was Henry B. Hayne, who presided at the Ohio state convention eighteen years ago that named Harding as candidate for the state senate.

Election Day Birthday.

Friends of the nominee reminded reporters that the day of the nomination was the birthday of Senator Harding's father, who lives in Marion, and that Nov. 2 next, election day, will be Senator Harding's birthday. His age will be 55. There is something of fate in this, his friends think. They have no doubt of his election. Already they begin to glorify him and place his many virtues for the world's inspection. Kindliness, they say, is his great characteristic. He has brown, friendly eyes, and a warm handclasp. His dignity is marked.

The senator's secretary, George B. Christian, found himseelf a very busy man. Something of the glory was shining on him also. But he took it easily as did his chief.

"On behalf of the Republicans of Ohio, and especially on behalf of Senator Harding, his family and friends, I desire to express to the Republicans of the country, men and women, our sincere gratitude for the confidence expressed in this wonderful man by nominating him as the candidate of the party for the presidency.

"We entered this campaign with considerable reluctance because Senator Harding did not desire to make a high powered organization campaign for the presidency. Our plan, as is now well known, was carried out, whereby we conducted rather a modest campaign and left the selection to the Republicans of the country without too much pressure.

"We have, throughout the campaign, had the highest respect for opposition candidates and for their supporters. At no time have we made any attacks upon any candidate or any candidate's supporters, and Senator Harding will receive the support, no doubt, of every man and woman in the country who desires to vote the Republican ticket. The ticket will be elected overwhelmingly in November."

Aid Predicted Harding Victory After Deadlock

New York, June 12.—[Special.]—Harry M. Daugherty, campaign manager for Senator Harding, made a prophetic statement in this city on Feb. 29 of this year, according to campaign material sent out from Wood headquarters in that month.

A statement from the Wood headquarters credited Mr. Daugherty with saying Senator Harding would be nominated by "fifteen or twenty men sitting around a table" after the national convention had become deadlocked on the other candidates.

Vera Cruz, June 12.—Two new cases of bubonic plague were reported here today and two deaths among those previously stricken. Friday there were no new cases.

HARDING MADE NEW TARGET OF WOMEN PICKETS

Demand Republican Aid for Amendment.

Senator Warren G. Harding, Republican nominee for president, last night became the target of the National Woman's party in its effort to obtain ratification of the suffrage amendment by a thirty-sixth state. Alice Paul, with a large delegation of suffragists, planned to wait on Senator Harding to urge him to bring his influence to bear to obtain legislative action in some state where Republicans control.

A statement issued by the Woman's party warned Republicans that the fight will continue.

"Our campaign against Republican obstruction to suffrage is not over," the statement said. "We will continue publicly and insistently to demand action from the Republican party to complete suffrage ratification."

Women from almost every state are on the committee, working to have the Republican nominee take up their cause. Among them are Mrs. Lawrence Lewis of Philadelphia, Miss Mabel Vernon of Wilmington, Del., Mrs. Abby Scott Baker of Washington, D. C.; Miss Sallie Hovey of Portsmouth, N. H.; Miss Mary Ingham of Philadelphia; Mrs. Lola Maverick Lloyd of Chicago; Miss Sue White of Nashville, Tenn.; Mrs. M. Toscan Bennett of Hartford, Conn.; Miss Natalie Gray of Colorado Springs, Colo.; Mrs. Frank Putnam of Milwaukee; Mrs Bertha Moller of Minneapolis, and Miss Anita Pollitzer of Charleston, S. C.

ROTTEN BOROUGH CURE ORDERED BY CONVENTION

Republicans Take Step to Clean Up South.

BY OSCAR E. HEWITT.

The "rotten boroughs" of the Republican organization are to be cleaned out. The delegates to the national convention so directed last night.

Two yelps came from the overrepresented south, but they failed even to get delay.

One came from H. F. McGregor, national committeeman from Texas. He attempted to side track the demand for fair and equitable representation in the next convention with a point of order. That failed. Then Walter L. Cohen, colored delegate from Alabama, protested that the proposed rule is "unfair" and "aimed primarily at the south." The national committeeman from Louisiana stood by Cohen while he talked. Cohen asked that the resolution be tabled. The convention declined with a decisive viva voce vote. Then the resolution passed unanimously.

Ohioan Offers Resolution.

It was offered by Paul Howland, former congressman from Ohio, who was a Johnson delegate in the convention. The national committeeman from that state, R. M. Hynicka, sat on the credentials committee and appeared to be disgusted with some of the contests presented.

The text of the convention's order reads as follows:

"Resolved, That, in order to effect proper and necessary changes in the present apportionment of delegates in proportion to the Republican votes actually cast at general elections throughout the various states of the union, and in order to inspire a greater effort to erect and maintain substantial party organizations in all the states, the national committee, notwithstanding any rule heretofore adopted, is hereby authorized and directed, within twelve months from the date of the adjournment of this convention, to adopt a just and equitable basis of representation in future national conventions, which basis shall be set forth in the call for the next convention and be binding upon the same and all future conventions until otherwise ordered."

Calls Present System Unjust.

That resolution indirectly says that the present system in inequitable and unjust. And the states of Texas and Louisiana, which protested, supply striking illustrations of the convention's judgment.

Texas had twenty-three votes in the convention. Its vote for Hughes four years ago was 64,356. Maine had only twelve delegates but it gave the 1916 presidential nominee 69,506 votes. Maine had less than half the representation of Texas. Kansas had only twenty votes in the convention, but it gave Hughes 277,658 votes. That means that Texas had four times as much representation in the convention as Kansas.

Another contrast is supplied by Nebraska. This state gave Hughes more than 101,000, as against 64,000 from Texas. But Nebraska had only eight votes to twenty-three from Texas.

A More Horrible Example.

Each delegate from Texas represented an average of 2,826 Republican voters. Outside of eleven southern states each delegate represented 9,875 Republican voters. This is on the basis of the 1916 presidential vote. If the last congressional election is taken as a gauge, each Texas delegate represented only 252 Republican votes, because in 1918 only a total of 5,807 votes were cast for Republican candidates for congress.

The other protestor, Louisiana, is a more horrible example of over representation. It only cast 6,466 votes for Hughes, yet had twelve delegate votes in the convention. Each delegate therefore represented only 539 Republican voters. At the last congressional election there was not a Republican candidate in the entire state. The reports on file in the department of state at Washington show that no Republican votes were cast at this congressional election. THE TRIBUNE yesterday gave more details regarding the south's overrepresentation in other states.

Alabamans Ask Change.

One hundred Republicans "from principle" of Mobile, Ala., presented a plea for fair representation to every state delegation at the convention. They also sent a petition to Will H. Hays, chairman of the Republican national committee, showing "the awful inequalities" existing in the represenation. A letter to the national committeemen said in part:

"You all well know and remember that at the convention in Chicago in 1912, through the use of the delegates from these solid Democratic states, the candidate wanted by the Republican states, which were obliged to furnish the vote on election day, was thrown down and defeated so outrageously as to cause a split in the party, thereby turning the government over to incompetents and grafters, who have left it such a terrible wreck for the G. O. P. to pick up and save what they can out of it. Our object in this appeal is to show to your honorable committee where the cancer lies which is directly responsible for destruction of our G. O. P. and the nation as well."

BUTLER IS FIRST TO FELICITATE RIVAL WHO WON

"Senator Harding is an old and very warm personal friend, and I greatly rejoice at the honor come to him. He is a thoroughgoing American and a sound Republican who belongs to no faction.

"I shall do everything in my power to promote his election in November. The state of New York may be counted on for literally a tremendous majority for Harding and Coolidge.

"By good fortune I was the first to congratulate Senator Harding on his election, as I was shaking his hand when the announcement of his nomination was made."

AT LEAST 2 MORE DAYS OF HEAT IN STORE FOR CITY

4 Are Prostrated; Ten Bitten by Dogs.

Chicago continued to swelter from the heat yesterday and the weather man fears the melting process will continue today and tomorrow.

As the torrid winds from the south poured over the city, four heat prostrations, ten dog bite cases, and a horse, maddened by the rays of Old Sol, kept police and firemen busy.

Those overcome by the heat were:

Robert Skene, 65 years old, 1116 Fullerton avenue.

John Axasimons, 70 years old, 8803 Colfax avenue.

Hugh B. Smith, 67 years old, 5411 Blackstone avenue.

Ten Bitten by Dogs.

The victims of dog bites:

Horse Runs Amuck.

Edward Means and his wife, Jennie, were asleep in their home, 3203 Calumet avenue, early yesterday, when they were awakened by a noise which sounded like the approach of an army. Their daughters, Bessie, 21 and Della, 15, screamed and ran out of the house. Means ran to the basement just as the door was smashed to splinters.

The cause of the disturbance was a wild horse which sought refuge in a small store room. A call for the police and fire departments was sent in and by the time they arrived, everything including the furnace, washing machine, and canned fruit, was in ruins. The animal was seriously hurt and had to be shot.

Evanston Beaches Open.

Evanston will take its first official dip of the 1920 season in the lake today. Supt. Charles Carland, commander of the coast guard station at Northwestern university, approved the opening last night.

BABY SCALDS ITSELF TO DEATH.

George Corbett, 18 months old, of 4809 South Wells street died yesterday of scalds. His mother had placed some of the child's clothes in a basin of boiling water on a chair. The baby tipped over the basin.

BANDITS ROB TWO PEDESTRIANS.

George S. Kimpslin, 2736 Seminary avenue, told the Sheffield avenue police that two armed men robbed him of $7 yesterday at Seminary and Diversey avenues. William Hillen, 117 East One Hundred and Eighth street, was robbed of $10 by two men at Seventy-fifth and South State streets.

TROLLEY CAR AND TRAIN COLLIDE.

FRIENDS OF POOR RAISE ALGONQUIN AND ICE FUNDS

$161 Given in Day, but More Is Needed.

A quick response was made yesterday to the appeal in THE TRIBUNE for funds to support convalescent mothers and their babies at THE TRIBUNE'S free hospital and camp at Algonquin. Many subscriptions also were received for THE TRIBUNE'S Free Ice fund. The contributions totaled $161.49.

Ice fund donations were:

G. L. Bruckert	$25.00
Collected from newly naturalized citizens by John Kjelhander, clerk of the Superior court	13.49
F. B.	20.00
Ladies' auxiliary of Temple Sholom	10.00
Children of the schools of Temple Sholom	5.00
F. S.	5.00
Lydia R. Appel	5.00
J. De K. Pool	3.00
Jennie T. Stiles	5.00
K. H. G.	5.00
Total	$96.49

$65 Is Given to Camp.

Algonquin contributions were:

W. T. Sprenger	$25.00
C. B. Block	10.00
B. H. C.	10.00
Anonymous	5.00
Journal Printing company, Racine, Wis.	10.00
F. K.	5.00
Total	$65.00

The hot weather of the last few days has increased the list of weary mothers waiting to go to the Algonquin camp by several scores. At the same time, poor families unable to purchase ice to keep milk fresh for the babies clamored for the free ice which THE TRIBUNE fund provides.

Hot Weather Creates Need.

As the summer continues the need for money to keep up these projects grows. Contributors may send money for either one or both.

Send contributions at once to the Algonquin hospital and camp, and THE TRIBUNE Free Ice Fund.

WARREN G. HARDING.

A convention, as freely deliberative as a great political assembly can be, a convention, numbering bosses, but as nearly unbossed as a party organization has ever been, a convention without a steam roller and as free to express its own judgment and what it honestly considered the true will of the party and the best interests of the country has nominated as Republican candidate for the presidency Warren G. Harding, senator from Ohio.

Whatever the adherents of other candidates may feel, their natural disappointment cannot be embittered by sense of injustice. The convention was free to choose, and its choice is freely made. We may all, therefore, go forward to the electoral test with good feeling and the confidence founded on the substantial claims of the Republican party to be restored to the full responsibility of government.

The candidate is a foursquare American, who has worked his way up from the humblest beginnings to the high position from which he is, we believe, to be called to the highest office in the land. His character is unblemished and he has proved himself in private and public life worthy of unhesitant confidence. His experience is many sided, as that of a chief executive of our government must be if he is to fulfill his complicated and heavy duties with judgment tested by real knowledge of affairs. As a journalist of attainment, as a successful business man, as a lawyer, and as a public man who has proved his worth, both as a state executive and as an influential member of the national senate, the party may well claim for him from American voters the heavy responsibility of the presidency. As president, Mr. Harding will bring to government firmness and breadth. We shall have true counsel once more in the White House, a constant guidance and influence for efficient and economical administration, a grasp of our critical problems of industry, a human sense of the needs of all classes of our people, a firm insistence upon the national interests in the world and upon practical measures for their protection and advancement.

The nomination of Senator Harding expresses the deep desire of the party and of the American people for a return to sound conservatism in public affairs and in public policies, for an emphatically American point of view, for a common sense consideration of American problems, for more practical consideration of public efficiency and economy and of the forces in American business and social life which have made the American people prosperous in the past and which will protect their welfare in these days of doubt, change, and disintegration.

American progress in politics, business, and social well-being must be founded on these conserving principles, which refuse to sacrifice the good in our past and our present, or, depart, in search of alien novelties, from the broad and solid path which has brought the American people so far and which will take them safely farther through a world shaken to its foundations.

Republicanism believes in America and Americanism, in American brains and character and ability to work out with this good American material the problems of modern society. It believes in the American man of practical achievement, and has placed one of these at the head of its ticket.

THE DEMOCRATIC DILEMMA.

A party cannot win by repudiation of its president. If it confesses a failure in the past it promises a failure for the future. President Wilson is an obligation which cannot be shirked. He carries with him the covenant of the league of nations. They are inseparable.

Mr. Wilson's only achievement is the covenant. He says it was not worth while fighting the war unless the covenant could be obtained. If Mr. Bryan succeeded in San Francisco in repudiating the covenant, as well as in preventing any dampness along the edges of the Democratic platform, he would have the Democrats repudiate their president and run a campaign on an admission of error and confession of failure.

It cannot be done. The Democrats either accept Wilson and the covenant, bolt that document complete, or they shut up shop. A great many Democrats probably wish with Mr. Bryan that the covenant were dead beyond a final kick. They gladly would agree with the Republicans to say no more about it, but that cannot be done.

In true values it may be the least essential of American issues and problems. It may have as much valid appeal to the American people as the ice crop in Greenland, but it is Mr. Wilson's great work, exclusively his great work.

The two parties will have to agree that the high cost of living is a bad thing and that profiteering is a bad thing, and the Democrats may dare the Republicans to outdo them in vehemence, but they cannot let the league of nations drop, no matter if it gets to be a hotter brick than it is.

The Republicans have declared for the approved tradition of the United States, of being of as much help as it can rationally in the world and of keeping out of troubles which are not in its natural development. Their declaration is one which ought to permit agreement from various shades of Republican opinion, but the Democrats must take the covenant, comma and period. They must advocate a surrender of American sovereignty and a subjection of American principles to foreign importunities and complications.

If Mr. Bryan suggests a different course he suggests repudiation. If the party adopts a different course it repudiates and enters the campaign as an apologist.

Mr. Wilson has given his party a perplexing dilemma, and the Republicans already have made good use of it. The Democratic candidates may carry either the dead weight of the covenant or the dead weight of an administration which fails of confidence.

BORAH AND BOLT.

After consultation with that sterling Republican, William Randolph Hearst, Senator Borah told a gathering of delegates Friday night that if either Lowden or Wood were nominated he would not support the nominee.

Senator Borah seems in a threatening mood. We were told that if the treaty plank were this or that, Borah would bolt. Borah's temperature remains high on the subject of campaign expenditure, on which topic he is talking a great deal of unadulterated bunk, bunk which is the more offensive in that it is in fact an accusation that the American electorate can be bought outright for money.

Mr. Hearst has been talking third party for months. He has been in Chicago throughout the Republican convention and his efforts to create dissension and to bring about a bolt are as plain as a prairie fire. Senator Borah seems to be sympathetic. Perhaps he ought not to remain with us any longer, he is so uncomfortable. Perhaps it is time for the party to say to this bellicose member: "Must you be going? Here's your hat."

But has Senator Borah, all dressed up in righteous indignation and militant virtue, any place to go? He can't join the Democrats on the league issue. Has the siren (in the sense of foghorn) voice of Mr. Hearst enchanted him? Are we to expect a third ticket, Hearst and Borah?

Whatever Senator Borah's alternative intentions, it seems to us his threats to bolt for one reason or another are getting rather wearisome. If he really must be going, isn't it time for him to be on his way—as the whale remarked to Jonah on the evening of the third day.

He will bolt first to Hearst and then to oblivion. The Republican party can find a substitute for Borah much more easily than Borah can find a substitute for the Republican party.

ROTTEN BOROUGHS ARE MORE ROTTEN THAN THEY SEEM.

The delegates from the south in Republican conventions seem to represent something, no matter how small a vote it is, but that vote is really no vote. It is a vote only because it is ineffective. So long as it amounts to nothing it may be cast. If it were to amount to anything it would be topped by a little increase in the Democratic vote or stopped by a little decrease in the Republican vote.

So far as Negro voting is permitted in the south it is upon the condition that it shall be ineffective. The south cannot take chances with effective Negro voting. Neither would the north take chances. When there are enough Chicago Negroes to elect Negro mayors, judges, and legislators, even William Hale Thompson will be with the dominant white minority.

The southern Republican vote is so manipulated and controlled by the Democrats that it cannot count for president. Occasionally a southern congressional district, in some fringe state, elects a Republican congressman. It is so rarely done that it is a piece of news of national interest. The south is solid and the north is solid bone.

Because Republican administrations want to capture this block of southern carpet baggers the northern Republicans permit their organization to preserve a system of representation which diminishes the legitimate power of northern votes by giving inequitable power to southern delegates.

If the south voted in Republican conventions as it votes in national elections no one would care whom the southern delegates were for. There would not be enough of them. In the system of representation now governing, northern Republicans have 1 delegate for about every 10,000 votes; southern carpet baggers have 1 for about every 3,000 votes; and the southern votes are not really votes. They are fictions.

The next Republican president will not oppose the system. He will use it. The time to make a change is when there is no Republican president.

A SEARCHLIGHT ON CHARACTER.

A lesson to the nation is contained in a news dispatch from Bloomington, Ill., which asserts that farmers in that region have been plowing and planting by night as well as by day, with the aid of searchlights, to overcome the handicap of a late spring and insufficient farm labor.

While the nation is threatened with the smallest crop output in many years and a consequent continuation of high prices for food, these farmers have been working night and day to increase production. Scoffers may say that they are doing it to reap a harvest of high prices. If so, they are entitled to the product of their labor, for before they reap the harvest of cash they will reap one of corn. They at least produce.

Editorial of the Day

KEEP THE LIMELIGHT ON "WILSON" AND WIN!

[From Philadelphia Public Ledger.]

The Republicans have at their disposal an infallible receipt for victory this year. All they need to do is to make "Wilson," Wilsonism, and the Wilson dynasty the issue.

It is even easier than that. All they need to do is to permit Wilsonism to remain the issue. It is the issue now. Wherever Americans fall into discussion of the political situation in this presidential year it is always "Wilson" and Wilsonism which they regard as the real question before the country. Just now they are taking a more or less sporting interest in the probabilities of the nomination "race" in Chicago. There was quite an excitement for a few days as to whether Penrose would be well enough to go to Chicago. But these are all little more than evanescent topics of interest.

LOVERS.

Whence and whither this dancing gleam,
 Light of my heart, my heart?
Comes it out of the sunset stream
Caught and held on a bright moonbeam,
Held, while the stars of morning spoke
In silver tones, till the dawn awoke?

Whence and whither this lilt I sing,
 Joy of my heart, my heart?
Is it the sound that the four winds bring
To forests, echoing, murmuring,
Whose rivers, lapping their way along,
Bear to the ocean depths their song?

Whence and whither this burning flame,
 Heart of my heart, my heart?
Brand aglow, from the gods it came,
His be the glory who bore the blame.
Through the ages the cleansing fire
Leaps to splendor in souls' desire.

Flame, sound, gleam! Oh heart of me,

Kind friend Sara: The reason I advertised for a hard working girl regardless of and no matter what she works at is that I am a poor hard working man myself having been such since the year 1899 that is the year or in other words the last year that I was in the show Biz. I am a natural born Comedian. I never forget what I once learn. I was on the Stage in Action 24 long years of my life. It has been 35 years since the first time that I ever appeared before the footlights. I have got plenty of Acts, Monologues, Jokes, Sketches Rapid fire conversation & etc., So if it is your ambition and desire to really became an Actress, and if you care to accept me as your instructor, & Partner after completion of your environment, in other words after you have acheived success & become an efficient performer, which beyond a reasonable doubt you certainly will, if you take me as your teacher, then and not until then will your ambition or desires be realized, There is one thing that you always must remember, and that is that this earth, you & I are living on wasn't built or made in 5 minutes, So it is the same with Actors & Actresses they are or never was or never will be made in 5 minutes or 5 years either. I've been at it now for 35 years since I began and I can still learn something about it, Its a true saying an old adage that there never was or never will be a thoroughly educated man or woman. That is true! for instance Take Noah Webster that founded our Dictionary. Just as he got it all complete and ready to enjoy it He died and forgot it all. So my dear Sara you cannot start to soon the quicher and sooner you start the better off you will be. Do it while you are young little Girl and when you become an old Woman then you will be independent, never will have to labor or work hard then, Now Sara you will have to write and let me know when & where, time & place, where I can call on you, as I have no office for you to call at. Now Sara here is another factor I wish to mention to you, is that I can tell you more in 5 minutes when I am in your company than I could write in 50 letters like this, As Shakespeare quoted The tongue is swifter & faster than Pen or pensils. Yours respectfully, etc.

FUMIGATION EXPERIMENTS.

B. J. B. writes asking "the latest concerning chemical fumigation." He wants to know "what became of the New York experiment leaving one-half the city unfumigated, using soap, water, paint, sunlight, air, etc."

The conclusion drawn from the New York City experiment was that fumigation did some good, though not a great deal. They thought that if the amount of money spent on fumigation were used to employ nurses and physicians it would accomplish more good. Nevertheless, though this experiment was made more than four years ago, New York City still buys a large amount of formalin and does a good deal of fumigating.

Another investigation was a study in the spread of contagion in Baltimore, where they fumigate very thoroughly and control fumigation well, and in Providence, where they fumigate very little.

It is always difficult and sometimes misleading to compare the prevalence of contagion in two communities located in different parallels and with differing population types. The conclusion drawn from the study was that fumigation was not helpful.

In spite of these conclusions, the reports of which have been widely spread, at least 90 per cent of communities still employ the procedure. Some say this is because public sentiment is not easily changed; some say it is because health departments want their people to feel that nothing to control contagion is being left undone. Some say that the New York conclusion is ample to justify them in going on as they are; that fumigation does some good, although not so much as was hoped for a dozen years ago. Some say it is justified because it sets a definite time and a definite act for the termination of isolation or quarantine, and that it causes a thorough cleaning, airing, and sunning.

The little regard in which fumigation is now held is due to the discovery that contagion is spread more by people than by objects, and people cannot be fumigated. If germs of contagion get on beds, rugs, carpets, and walls, they are dried quickly and quickly die. Fumigation kills all germs living on such surfaces, but the numbers of living germs there located is not large. Efforts spent in disinfecting sputum, nose secretions, and mouth secretions would be more effective.

We are probably not justified in abandoning disinfection until the proof is in, and until that proof shows it gains us little or nothing, and the compensating efforts, such as more inspectors, more nurses, and better disinfection of secretions, are available.

SEEMS SERIOUS CASE.

E. H. T. writes: "A woman of 45 years has had t. b. of the throat for a long time, but is just beginning to realize how serious it is. She can do a certain amount of work, her weight remaining stationary. Her bowels are regular or easily regulated by eating bran and a right diet. She seldom takes medicine. Menstruation is normal. In short her general health is good, but the local trouble grows gradually worse. Should she use tuberculin? She is not an object of charity, but cannot afford to pay present prices at a sanitarium. A good local doctor is available. She has no sleeping porch. What is tuberculin? How is it administered? Please advise the best course for her to pursue."

REPLY.

She should be under the best care available if by throat you mean the larynx, trachea, or vocal cords. The outlook in tuberculosis of the larynx is very bad, and the only hope lies in prompt service of the best available. Tuberculin may be of service. Heliotherapy is about the best remedy. In addition there should be rest, feeding, open air treatment. Sometimes local applications help.

BLOOD PRESSURE FACTS.

An Inquirer writes: "What is the normal blood pressure for a woman of 60; also pulse, temperature, and respiration?

REPLY.

Pressure, about 140.
Pulse, about 70.
Temperature, 98½.
Respiration, about 15.

IMPROVEMENT SEEMS UNLIKELY.

Troubled writes: "Will you kindly tell me if there is a hospital in Brooklyn where I can be treated for infantile paralysis? My right foot was affected in 1907. I have been visiting hospitals for the last nine or ten years, but with no results. Do you think it can be cured. I am 15 years of age and walk with a limp."

REPLY.

It is not probable that you will gain anything by treatment. Thirteen years of the established order is too much to be overcome. Nine years of treatment has proven ineffective.

FEVER AND TUBERCULOSIS.

Anxious Mother writes: "1. Would you please advise me if a person with a spot on the lung will run a fever until that is cured?

"2. My daughter is 20 years old and has not left the house since October, 1919. She does not seem to improve. Would you advise me to send her to a different climate?"

REPLY.

1. Fever in the course of tuberculosis means the disease is active. You cannot say the disease is cured because there is no fever. In fact, not infrequently consumption progresses slowly even when there is no fever.

2. It is better to send her to a sanitarium in your own city or near it. Do not send her away for a climate cure unless she has money enough to keep her in comfort without work for two years or if there is any likelihood that she will be homesick and discontented.

BAD, USED IN EXCESS.

A. L. M. writes: "What effect will a daily use of bromo seltzer have on the system or health? An uncle has stomach trouble and a good deal of headache. He takes it in large doses. Has been taking it more or less for two or three years. Is the effect detrimental?"

REPLY.

It contributes a moderate dose of acetanilide. The continued use of this medicine causes headaches and anemia. It also contains bromide and caffein.

LOAN FOR HOMESTEADING.

Chicago, June 7.—[Friend of the Soldier.]—I was in the army for one year and ten months. I was wounded and gassed. To improve my health I would like to go out west. I have been reading with interest your articles about the homestead land open in Oregon. I do not have the capital necessary to start west and to take up a claim. I am not afraid of work, and think the cultivation of one of these claims would just suit me. Does the government make any loans to men for this purpose? Where should one apply for such money? How long do they allow for it to be paid back? H. S.

We regret that we haven't encouraging news for you, but the government has appropriated no fund for making loans to ex-service men for taking up land claims.

We learn from good source that labor on farms in the west is in great demand and workers are well paid.

WISHES TO CLAIM HUSBAND'S BONUS.

Chicago, June 7.—[Friend of the Soldier.]—I would appreciate your printing the answer to the following in the daily issue of THE TRIBUNE as soon as possible:

A was married in 1914, from whom wife secured divorce in 1916, there being a child. In January, 1918, A enlisted in the United States navy, having made out insurance to the child, but to whom allotment was made is not known. The latter part of 1918 A was married again, a child was born, and he was released from the navy on grounds of being sole support of wife No. 2. Later he was divorced. Now, pertaining to bonus (if any is to be received), has child of wife No. 2 any claim on same? Divorce decree calls for alimony, which is hard in coming. JOSEPH E.

The $60 federal bonus was paid only to the soldier himself and not to relatives or dependents. Although the new bonus bill has not been passed yet, we are of the opinion that the same ruling would hold good about paying such bonus only to the ex-soldier. However, until the bonus bill is passed, if it does pass, no definite information can be given about its provisions.

BUYING CLAIMS.

Evanston, Ill., June 8.—[Friend of the Soldier.]—If I should take up a claim in Oregon and then wish to buy any surrounding claims which belong to some one else, would the government let me do this? Please give me the address of the department to write to for government land information. B. C.

If the person residing on an adjoining claim had not proved up on it, you could not buy the claim, but he would have to relinquish the claim and then you could file on it immediately. However, if a patent had been granted to him the land would belong to him and he could dispose of it if he so desired.

NATURAL BORN CITIZENS.

Chicago, June 8.—[Friend of the Soldier.]—Kindly advise me if children born in America of German parents, who have not become naturalized citizens of the United States, are Americans or foreigners. If they are not Americans, kindly explain why such young men were drafted into the American army. D. K.

The fact that they were born in America makes them "natural born citizens" of the United States, even though their parents were foreigners.

GARDEN DESTRUCTION.

Chicago, June 11.—[To the Friend of the People.]—In order to reduce the H. C. L. we have taken a lot directly in back of our house; have had it plowed, and now partly planted. A family has recently purchased the house on adjoining lot west and have two children who persist in trying to destroy the garden, running over it, throwing waste papers, grass, etc., on it. I have spoken to them, and have watched the children and called to them, but it does no good. Is there any department here that could take care of this complaint? MRS. M. P. C.

Referring to complaint of Mrs. M. P. C., relative to the destruction of her garden by children of the neighborhood, the commanding officer of the district reports one of his officers has seen the parents of the children and told them they must keep their children away from Mrs. C.'s garden. They claim they did not know the children were destroying the garden and will see to it that there is no further cause for complaint.

DIRTY DITCH.

Chicago, June 9.—[To the Friend of the People.]—On the south side of West One Hundred and Sixth street between Drew and Wood streets there is an open ditch (the street having no sewer) which is in a most insanitary and unhealthful condition. It is a disease and mosquito breeding place and should not be permitted to remain in its present condition. Can you not enlist the aid of the health authorities of the city to clean it up? CITIZEN.

Ditch complained of has been cleaned out.

UNDER OBSERVATION.

Chicago, June 11.—[To the Friend of the People.]—I have complained so often about the nuisance committed at 3550 North Halsted street, an upholstering shop, that it is time that the heath department take heed and has it stopped. I would like to ask any one at the health department if they would like to have an upholstering shop next door to their residence, cleaning mattresses and mattress hair, by machine, which forces volumes of dust out in the air? E. F. S.

Regarding recent complaint of dust nuisance from upholstering shop at 3550 North Halsted street, wish to advise you that notice has been served on the owner and tenant of this building to abate nuisance of dust from machine in rear yard entering living rooms of adjacent building. Several observations have been made of the premises since the notice was originally issued and the inspector reports that no serious nuisance has been observed. However, we will keep premises under observation and at any time a nuisance is noted summary action will be taken by this department to abate same.

JOHN DILL ROBERTSON,
Commissioner of Health.

A WRONG STEER.

Chicago, June 11.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Kindly use your influence to have alley fixed on the west side of Laramie avenue, between Cullom and Pensacola avenues, as it is a menace to the health and safety of the community, as on rainy days you have to walk through mud and slop crossing the same alley. J. F. M.

LANDLORD DOES NOT CLEAN.

Chicago, June 10.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Will you please advise me regarding some cleaning which I want to have done and which the landlord refuses to do? There are two bedrooms, calcimined over paper, which I wish to have cleaned. I got a raise of about 23 per cent in rent. The lease is signed, but no stipulation regarding cleaning. T. D. H.

THE FARMER'S GAMBLE.

Virden, Ill., June 9.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I have seen numerous editorials and comments on the farmer and the "soft" job he has, and have a few words to say as to what I think about it.

These city "wiseacres" are blowing around that the farmer works part of the year and then sits still with his hands folded waiting for the interest on his money and the wheat which sells for over $2 a bushel. They think that the farmer has nothing to kick about, but listen, ye "chair warmers":

The farmer works twelve months a year, seven days a week, and twelve to fourteen hours a day. When there is no planting or harvesting to be done he improves his farm and raises stock to be sold at the "city controlled" markets. Take, for instance, the present time. Here in Illinois the farmers have a very small portion of their corn in. Now that dry weather has come they are working seven days a week and from sun to sun in planting the crop. Maybe the farmer will make a success of his corn; maybe not. The same applies to wheat, and these two cereals are the main grains grown in this part of the country. All the farmer can do is to work his head off, harder than these city jays ever did, while the weather is good, and pray for a good crop.

If the men in the city lose a month now it is one month's pay. If the farmer loses a month's time now, or even a few days' or weeks' time now, his crops for the year are ruined and he will go broke, flat broke.

So remember, all you who think the farmer has a soft job, if you would care to have your year's pay rest on the work you do and the weather conditions of a few weeks' time. The farmers must gamble, gamble with the elements, and may lose hundreds of dollars—yes, thousands—while you still plug along drawing a salary. You can take a week off and lose a week's pay; if the farmer does he loses a season's.

Now don't you think you have the easiest position, Mr. City Dweller?

C. L. M. B.

"WE LOVE HIM FOR THE ENEMIES HE HAS MADE."

Chicago, June 8.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—By what right does Bill Thompson claim to represent the city of Chicago or any respectable part of the state of Illinois? His reëlection was possible only because the emphatic opposition to him split, leaving the balance of power with the barroom politicians and their cohorts of the morally lame, halt and blind, together with the hyphens of various persuasion, whose prejudice Thompson so cleverly appeals to.

Even the support of those journals which mistake noisy egotism and hypocrisy for quality and ability in themselves and their owner as well as in their candidates was only a secondary cause, and their present activities need give no undue concern. But by what miracle of self-justification do these murder scandal pipedream newsmongers, after their reams of editorials on the sacredness of ballot instructions to delegates, indorse the defection of Lowden instructed delegates to further the cheap personal ambitions of such a man?

I have been undecided as to my choice for Republican nominee. Wood, I simply cannot enthuse over. Johnson, with much that seems to recommend him, is handicapped in my esteem, first, by being a senator prominent in this lamentable congress; second, by being a "native son." (I lived seven years on the coast and know the mental processes of that breed.) And, third, by the papers that support him. Two black eyes and a knockout.

Lowden, I didn't know. While he was making his record I was in the army, suffering from "army administrators," stay at home copperheads, and spellbinding congressional investigators, who are always too busy finding what was wrong last time to get anything right for next time.

But durned if I can't pretty near "love him for his enemies." Nominate him on a half way decent platform and I'll vote for him, unless some unsuspected lowly Democrat grows man's size over night. EX-SOLDIER.

BIG DAY COMES IN NOVEMBER.

Chicago, June 7.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I find a lot of Republicans like me who are willing to vote for a Democrat for the first time in their lives to convince the mentally dilapidated standpatter element that we want a progressive Republican or no Republican at all. A candidate may be nominated by misrepresentatives of the people, but the day of reckoning happens to be in November—not in June. G. P. NITS.

"MAY THE BEST MAN WIN."

Houston, Tex., June 7.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The situation today regarding the action of the Republican convention seems to be as clouded as it was when your editorial of May 26, "The Man to Win," appeared. The convention will be a veritable "battle of the giants," and, as you said in that editorial, each man is deserving of the undivided support of the party as a whole.

It is to be hoped that the selection of the man to be at the head of the ticket will be the calm and deliberate judgment of the convention, and that the delegates will not be stampeded in their selection. The issues before the country are so great and of such importance that they demand cool and deliberate action, and if the Republican party wants to resume control of affairs it will have to impress the people with its determination and give us a leader unbiased, but firm and uncompromising. E. B. BARDEN.

CONCERNING "INVESTMENT" IN WIVES.

Peotone, Ill., June 7.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Regarding the idea of Reuben D. Martin, published in June 7th edition, Voice of the People, I wish to voice the sentiments of a few on the negative side of his argument.

I am sorry that his first investment did not yield him the income the second investment has.

I hope No. 1 is still alive and still weighs 250 pounds. That's my weight and should my husband wish to invest again (but he had better not voice his sentiments), I am willing he should, but I will look about for a real husband—a companion—be he a large part of a ton or a small one. That makes no difference to me.

As regards the work part, he may be right, he may be one of the followers of the old saying: "Let the women do the work." MRS. [illegible]

TABLOID BOOK REVIEW by FANNY BUTCHER

Last week's best sellers in a leading Chicago bookstore were:

FICTION.

"This Side of Paradise" [Scribner], by F. Scott Fitzgerald.
"The Voyage Out" [Doran], by Virginia Woolf.
"The Foolish Lovers" [Macmillan], by St. John Ervine.
"Kindred of the Dust" [Cosmopolitan], by Peter B. Kyne.
"The Romantic Woman" [Knopf], by Mary Borden.
"Slippy McGee" [Century], by Mary Conway Oehler.

NONFICTION.

"Now It Can Be Told" [Harper], by Philip Gibbs.
"Talks With T. R." [Houghton-Mifflin], by John J. Leary Jr.
"Leader of Men" [Putnam], by Robert Gordon Anderson.

* * *

The six best circulators in the public library last week were:
"This Side of Paradise," by F. Scott Fitzgerald.
"White Shadows in the South Seas," by Frederick J. O'Brien.
"The Economic Consequences of the Peace," by John Maynard Keynes.
"A Man for the Ages," by Zane Grey.
"Now It Can Be Told," by Philip Gibbs.
"The Great Desire," by Alexander Flack.

The library has made a new ruling about vacation books. Ten may be taken on a vacation card and kept until the first of October. If one wishes, the books will be delivered by parcel post. Each year the library outdoes itself in making reading easy.

THE scribes who usually somewhat scornfully allow themselves to be bored by the pharisees at these great bulwarks of our civilization, the national conventions, are this year, to the surprise of themselves, almost a closed corporation of journalists. The more leisurely magazines were refused seats in the press box. With 1,500 requests for tickets and a seating capacity of 500, the magazines, except the weeklies, were told to read the newspaper accounts and be satisfied.

That is the reason why so few men and women of literary prominence have attended the convention. One reason. The other is, as Edna Ferber says, "If you've once covered a convention you've had a convention for the rest of your life." She is here, in the spirit of Emma McChesney, a delegate, handsome in Paris frocks and a string from pearls, not real—cost $25 in Florence, Emma says. She is one of the real humorists of the world when she talks.

The visiting literary celebrity who was the greatest sensation among such ordinary goofs of us as think that literature is more fun than politics was H. L. Mencken. It is admitted, even by his enemies, that H. L. Mencken is the most fearless literary critic in America, and his friends passionately insist that he is the best. Those friends include practically the entire English speaking peoples across the Atlantic. No Englishman of literary position comes to this country without wanting to know what H. L. Mencken is like, because he has had from Mr. Mencken probably the most helpful and certainly the most unprejudiced and usually the cruelest criticism in the United States. Chicago has in him almost a knight errant. We are the trundle bed of the arts, he thinks, and his encouragement has given heart to many a Chicagoan who would otherwise have packed his clean collar and gone to live in Greenwich Village.

I was frankly afraid of him. He has a cunning about cutting off an author's head, sticking it on a peg in the marketplace, and letting time do the disintegrating. But when he appears he is just an ordinary regular human being, with no Mephistopheles makeup, none of the "cleverness" that makes bonmots when a straightaway statement would be just as memorable and not half so hard on the auditor, with a digestion that doesn't balk at shrimps Newburg at 10 p. m., a suit that he wears to bull fights and conventions, and conversation just as much fun to listen to as his books are fascinating to read, but tempered with a great personal kindliness, and simple and real as all really great men are. He thinks that Willa Sibert Cather and James Branch Cabell are the hope of American fiction.

Two men who aren't surprises are William Allen White and Irvin S. Cobb. They are both exactly like what one has always heard of them. William Allen White is a wholly real, gentle, fine big man, with the fun in his eyes and in his speech. He wrote as an inscription in his "In the Heart of a Fool": "W. A. White: his book and his heart." Irvin Cobb looks like a composite of all the cartoons that have ever been made of him and talks like his best selling humor. Ring Lardner is back in town, and he still does most of his chatting with his immovable two inch black eyebrows and his huge round eyes that never bat. Samuel Blythe is the same busy, pleasant, one and a half chinned, bare foreheaded political shark, about as easy to interview in a convention as a niggah would be in a henhouse. That's the trouble about collecting immortal words from the literati. One can't plug in on the political wire.

There are a few which I haven't seen—Walter Lippman, the boy wonder; Stephen Bonsal, the literary authority on Morocco and one of the present administration's pets; Corinne Roosevelt Robinson, whose political ancestry is just now eclipsing her reputation as a poet; William Hard, once of Evanston and points north; Fannie Hurst, who thinks that the world is "crucifying" her and Jacques, her trial husband; Clarence Budington Kelland, whose "A Little Moment of Happiness" isn't being spent at the convention; Richard Washburn Child and George Barr McCutcheon, two of our bluest blue ribbon short story writers, and Albert J. Beveridge, Col. Theodore Roosevelt Jr., and the chairman of the convention, Henry Cabot Lodge, who are just now more political than lit'ry lights; Mary Roberts Rinehart, who is, every one says, very handsome and impressive; and Blasco Ibanez, who has dropped in to compare this mental bull fight with the real ones of his own country.

St. John Ervine in his new novel, "The Foolish Lovers," proves that tragedy has not entered his soul and that he can do a light story, with no special plot, with a great deal of charm. "The Foolish Lovers" is the story of a young and amusingly uneducated Irish boy who, instead of selling tea in the ancestral shop, takes himself to London to become an author, a journey not so much into romance as away from the chill of a romance blighted. He had been in love with a waitress in Belfast who, he found, was being "married on a peeler" when he went, with passionate eagerness, to keep an engagement with her for tea. He took his shattered heart to London, where it was immediately healed, but rended a trifle by the unwillingness of Eleanor. London proves as chilly as the peeler's wife. London will not recognize his genius. Eleanor does. They marry—but it would spoil the story to tell the really ironic humor of the end of it. "The Foolish Lovers" is amusing, deftly done—a jolly companion for a holiday.

"Shakespeare Identified" [Stokes] is written by J. Thomas Looney. A man with a name like that should never take up the battle cry of "Down with Shakespeare! Up with Edward de Vere, seventeenth Earl of Oxford!" But if one can keep one's self from being too much amused by the fact of his name the book will be most interesting. They say that Walt Whitman, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Whittier, and Emerson were all certain that Shakespeare didn't write his own stuff, and Lowell, Byron, Hallam, Disraeli, and the gentleman that caused Europe a great deal of trouble, Bismarck, were frankly skeptical. Prof. Looney makes out a good case for his candidate, one must admit. Times certainly have changed. Nowadays it's the great man who signs his name to the work of some clever reporter.

"The Silence of Colonel Bramble," by Andre Maurois, extremely popular in France when it appeared there a year or so ago, has been translated into English and published in this country by John Lane. It is a collection of amusing sketches of life at the front, and an especially deft characterization of the English. Books about active service, however, leave one rather cold these days. The war is like a giant accouchement. The whole world held its breath while the shrieks of Europe resounded through the corridors. But when it was over and Europe had recovered her health, if not her strength, every one, including the sufferer, almost miraculously forgot.

A few months ago a friend of Marjorie Benton Cooke met her on Fifth avenue, was shocked at her obvious lack of health, and tried to dissuade her from taking the long trip that she had planned through the orient. "It'll do me good. I'm tired of everything here. I'm not going to die, but if I do I don't want it to be here." She took the trip, as she had planned, and in Manila pneumonia found in her ill health an easy victim. And she died in the new surroundings that she craved.

"A Frenchwoman's Impression of America" [Century], by Comtesse Madeleine de Bryas and her sister, Mlle. Jacqueline de Bryas, is a record of a speaking tour which two charming and beautiful young French women made for Miss Morgan's "Devastated France" and a cataloguing of the pleasant observations which they made of American life. They loathed Pullman cars, found cocktails ravishing, admired the svelte and refined lines of American shoes, ate too much and too rich food, adored Americans for their open heartedness and their hospitality, and didn't lose their tempers and their digestion on a coast to coast jaunt with appearances twice a day and all of the attending social duties of visiting dignitaries.

"Born of the Crucible," by Charles Cleveland Cohan, is a first novel, earmarked from the first page as such—the story of a young and eager reformer who works in the mines of Butte and eventually marries the sister of the owner, after averting arson and other tragedies. It is, like most first novels, full of promise, because it was obviously written with a passionate belief in the truth, but, also like most first novels, it is amateurish to a degree. The prize first novel of a decade is F. Scott Fitzgerald's "This Side of Paradise." There is a book which is the living, palpitant being of the youth of the hour, a book which, I haven't a doubt in the world, will have a serious and far reaching effect on American literature.

Dr. William Beebe, curator of birds of the New York Zoölogical park, director of the tropical research station of the New York Zoölogical society, and author of that delightful book "Jungle Peace" [Holt], has just gone to the South American jungle for the society. It is his third trip to the tropics on the same mission. With him went seven specialists who are only a vanguard of the small army of men of science who are to join Dr. Beebe later.

POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

THE OLD FAMILIAR FACES.

By Charles Lamb.

I have had playmates, I have had companions,
In my days of childhood, in my joyful school days—
All, all are gone, the old familiar faces.

I have been laughing, I have been carousing,
Drinking late, sitting late, with my bosom cronies—
All, all are gone, the old familiar faces.

I loved a love once, fairest among women;
Closed are her doors on me, I must not see her—
All, all are gone, the old familiar faces.

I have a friend, a kinder friend has no man;
Left him to muse on the old familiar faces.

Ghostlike I pace round the haunts of my childhood,
Earth seemed a desert I was bound to traverse,
Seeking to find the old familiar faces.

Friend of my bosom, thou more than a brother,
Why wert not thou born in my father's dwelling?
So might we talk of the old familiar faces—

How some have died, and some they have left me,
And some are taken from me; all are departed—
All, all are gone, the old familiar faces.

RE-ELECT HAYS; START WORK FOR G. O. P. VICTORY

Order 5,000,000 Pictures of Candidate.

The new Republican national committee met last night, reëlected Will H. Hays chairman and started work.

Henry M. Daugherty, campaign manager for Senator Harding, requested "prompt, snappy and energetic action at once." He asked that the preconvention campaign be continued as nearly without interruption as possible.

Before Mr. Daugherty arrived, Chairman Hays had ordered 5,000,000 lithographs of the nominee and ordered the offices of the committee fitted up. They will be ready for occupancy Monday morning. The paper for the lithographs had ben obtained in advance, as well as a picture and autograph of all af the candidates. The contract had been awarded, and only the selection of the picture remained to be done. Four years ago lithographs were not available until well up in August.

Upham Made Treasurer.

Henry B. McCoy, temporary chairman, introduced Chairman Hays after his reëlection, as the "only lacking part to insure a tremendous victory in November."

Other of the present officers were also reëlected as follows: Fred Upham of Illinois, treasurer; John T. Adams of Iowa, vice chairman; Clarence B. Miller of Minnesota, secretary, and Edward P. Thayer of Indiana, sergeant-at-arms.

The assistant officers will be selected by the executive committee after a conference with Senator Harding. To confer with the nominee the following committee was selected in addition to Chairman Hays: Charles D. Hillis of New York, A. T. Hert of Kentucky, John W. Weeks of Massachusetts, Jake E. Hammon of Oklahoma, and Ralph E. Williams of Oregon.

Will Name Eight Women.

The assistant secretary of the general committee will be a woman. That was announced officially last night. The vice chairman and seven of the fifteen members of the executive committee will also be women, according to the present plan.

All of the members of the committee were present except the committeemen from Illinois, California, Maryland, Michigan, and Nevada. Eighteen new faces apeared at the first session.

COUNTRY LUCKY TO GET HARDING, PENROSE STATES

Philadelphia, Pa., June 12.—[Special.]—"Senator Harding as president will know how to control affairs at home as well as command the respect of foreign nations," said Senator Boies Penrose late tonight, when confirmation of the nomination of Harding by the Republican convention at Chicago was received.

"I say advisedly that the country is fortunate, and the situation is fully met."

G. O. P. Praises Garrity for Convention Policing

Chief of Police Garrity, having been complimented by members of the Republican national committee for the "efficient policing of the Coliseum during the convention," issued an order last night giving two days off to the policemen who had been detailed there since Monday and one day off to those detailed since Friday.

HENRY G. LAMBERT. [White Photo.]

Henry George Lambert of Maywood will graduate from West Point Wednesday as an honor man—"for high achievement in all studies, particularly mathematics."

Lambert will be 21 years old Oct. 23. He was born in Chicago, attended St. James school in Maywood, then the Proviso Township high school, and took a year's course at Lewis institute.

He entered West Point in July, 1918. His mother, Mrs. George H. Lambert, and his sister, Elizabeth, have been spending the week at West Point.

CAMPAIGN FUND INQUIRY TO BE RESUMED JULY 7

Senators Will Sit in Chicago.

The senate investigation of campaign funds will be resumed in Chicago on July 7. Senator Kenyon, chairman of the investigators, applied yesterday to the federal building custodian for space in which to hold the hearings.

Among the prominent witnesses to be heard is William Loeb, former secretary to President Roosevelt. He was the Wood campaign manager in the east. He will be asked to come to Chicago.

Most of the other witnesses desired are located in the west, and perhaps the committee thought that Chicago will be a cooler place for the work than Washington during July and August.

To Go Into Records.

In addition to witnesses, the committee will here devote much of its time to financial books and statements by candidate and their managers, according to the program.

"Most of the members of the committee are in Chicago at present," said Senator Kenyon, "and we thought that it would be more convenient for the witnesses to have the sessions of the committee in Chicago. We desire to go along as rapidly as the task will permit."

To Vacation in Maine.

The senator has obtained a cottage in the Maine woods, and he plans to take Mrs. Kenyon there for a month.

About two minutes before the senate adjourned the task of the committee was greatly enlarged, so that it now includes investigation of campaign funds until the election is held in November. No plans to comply with this instruction have been made, and that subject will probably be discussed as soon as all of the members of the committee arrive in town.

To Call Treasurers.

It has been suggested that the committee will call upon the treasurers—perhaps chairman—of the national parties to disclose the source and use of their campaign funds. This idea came from Washington.

Senator Kenyon said there has not even been a tentative decision on the future work of the committee on election funds.

Some of the senators may not desire a task so long and tedious for all summer and autumn.

FATALITY IN EXPLOSION.

Park Falls, Wis., June 12.—[Special.]—In an explosion of a gasoline tank in the machine shop of the Flambeau Paper company today William Jenson was killed, B. A. Nordel fatally injured, and three others seriously hurt.

"Goodbye and good luck—and come again four years from now."

It was Chicago bidding good-by to the delegates to the Republican national convention—men of all the states in the Union, and of Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippines, who were packing up and in too much of a hurry to catch the train for home to heed or care for Chicago's farewell.

The Republican candidate and his wife, Senator and Mrs. Warren G. Harding, took the 11:30 train for Ohio, and rest. Mrs. Harding feels that after the strenuous week in Chicago, and the excitement of the last few days especially, the senator needs a rest.

The business of getting out of Chicago started as soon as the convention was adjourned. It began with the rush to get out of the Coliseum.

Crowds of shirtsleeved, red-faced, and perspiring men pushed their way through the doors. Some were shouting. Some were singing. Some were bawling for taxicabs.

The fleet of taxicabs outside the big gray building went scurrying off to railroad ticket offices, to hotels, to boarding houses, to private homes rented by some of the delegates.

The hotel clerks had a busy night. Everybody, it seemed, was "checking out." The porters went about with happy smiles. There were hundreds of grips to carry out to taxicabs—and each grip meaning anywhere from a dime to a dollar.

The headqujarters of the various candidates for nomination, a few hours before crowded and buzzing, were empty and desolate. Here and there a man in overalls, or a hotel maid or two, might be seen putting the "headquarters" in order.

Buttons and badges, pennants, fans, gay colored feathers, and other objects used by various champions to further their ambitions went back into boxes whence they had come.

TERMS OF BIDS FOR LEVIATHAN ARE ANNOUNCED

Washington, D. C., June 12.—Terms of the former German passenger liner Leviathan, bids on which will be opened June 30, were announced today by the shipping board. Each bid must be accompanied by a certified check for $100,000 and the purchaser will be required to pay 20 per cent of his bid in cash and the remainder in installments extending over ten years. Details of these installments remain to be worked out.

The International Mercantile Marine corporation offered $3,500,000 for the liner at the auction sale in February which was halted by the injunction obtained by William Randolph Hearst. Officials of the board confidently expect even higher offers in the private bids.

Estimates received by the board for reconditioning the liner for passenger service call for the expenditure of between $8,000,000 and $10,000,000. From a year to a year and a half will be required to complete the work, it is said.

BRIDE-TO-BE GOES SPEEDING; HALT! 'BROKE!'—FREED

Judge Can't Be Harsh on Wedding Eve.

"O dear!" exclaimed Miss Catherine Woodman of 1111 Hinman avenue, Evanston. "I was hurrying to get my bridesmaids. Now I'll be late!"

CATHERINE WOODMAN.

"O dear!" agreed her mother, Mrs. Andrew W. Woodman, "this is most annoying!"

What Justice of the Peace Arthur S. McKenna of Kenilworth wanted to know was why they were traveling at a rate of thirty miles an hour when Motorcycle Policeman C. C. Ley stopped them yesterday.

"Why, I'm to be married on Monday," explained Miss Woodman, "and I was hurrying to the Moraine hotel in Highland Park to get my bridesmaids for the rehearsal. It's a shame they have different speed limits in these towns. I'm in favor of a national speed law."

Alas, the Pocketbook's Bare.

"Five dollars and costs," replied the judge.

"O dear!' 'said Miss Woodman. "We haven't $5 between us. What shall we do? I have this wrist watch and these other pieces of jewelry. They are my wedding presents, but I'll leave them as security."

The judge relented and allowed Miss Woodman to proceed to the rehearsal of her marriage tomorrow to her childhood playmate, Walter Stockton, son of John Stockton, head of the Stocktons are next door neighbors at Stocktons are next doo neighbors at 1109 Hinman avenue. Miss Woodman, promised to appear before the justice on her wedding day.

A Baby in Distress.

The justice was just mopping his fevered brow when up stepped another young woman with Policeman Ley as complaining witness.

MRS. W. V. KELLEY JR. Copyright: Moffett.]

"I'm Mrs. Kelley," explained the woman. "My husband couldn't come."

"He is charged with going thirty-five miles an hour south in Sheridan road," said McKenna.

"I know," agreed Mrs. Kelley. "He was hurrying to Chicago to get some rubber stoppers for my baby's nursing bottle. Our baby is under the care of a physician and must be fed regularly. It was twenty minutes past feeding time."

The Records Against Him.

"Hm-m-m," mused the justice. "Let me see the records. The name Kelley sounds familiar."

The justice found that William Valandingham Kelley Jr. was in an automobile with Miss Helen Hoyne when it turned turtle in the summer of 1913. He was arrested for speeding in 1914. Then in February, 1919, just after he had been discharged as a lieutenant in the tank service, his car figured in an automobile accident in North State street. But what most interested the justice concerning the son of the millionaire president of the Miehle Printing Press and Manufacturing company was that he was arrested for speeding in Kenilworth just a year ago.

"I know my husband speeds dreadfully," said Mrs. Kelley, "but I just can't break him of it."

"Twenty and costs," said the justice.

Thinks He's at Indianapolis.

Two other defendants were James W. Stevens, 18 years old, son of R. W. Stevens of Highland Park, vice president of the Illinois Life Inssurance company, and R. W. Sears of 4144 Sheridan road. They were racing their cars fifty-five miles an hour through Winnetka early yesterday morning.

"Just trying out our boats," explained Stevens.

"Forty and costs for you and thirty and costs for Sears," said the court.

Stevens paid the fine, leaped into his car and sped away. A few minutes later the machine collided with the automobile of Mrs. N. J. Wilcox, 80 Sheridan road, and was demolished.

ELWELL, SLAIN WHIST EXPERT, KING OF HEARTS

Gallery of Beauties Is Found in Home.

New York, June 12.—A picture gallery of beautiful women found in the west side residence of Joseph B. Elwell, wealthy sportsman and authority on whist, tonight was being investigated by the police for a clew to his mysterious murder yesterday morning. Detectives, who today expressed belief that Elwell had been shot to death by a man—possibly one provoked to jealousy—turned to this picture gallery for the original whose intimacy with the dead sportsman may have aroused this blood lust.

Includes Russian Beauty.

The gallery is said to include pictures of many women widely known in society. Rumor has even included the name of a Russian beauty, who, in the reign of the czar, bore the title of princess.

The report of the medical examiner, made today, that Elwell met his death from a .45 caliber revolver inclined the police to believe that a man had fired the shot. They pointed out that it would have been difficult for a woman to handle effectively so heavy a weapon.

Mrs. Helen Derby Elwell, widow of the murdered man, said of him: "He had a peculiar idea of women. He thought that every woman above 30 ought to be chloroformed.

Spirit of the Chase.

"His was the spirit of the chase. But any woman above 30 wasn't worth chasing, he thought. He could make himself very attractive to strangers, especially women.

"I am the one who suffered because of his peculiar ideas about women. We lived together happily for a while, but it was impossible to continue doing so as long as he tried to put his notion of women into effect."

Aman killed Elwell because of a woman. Beyond that basic conclusion police inquiry only darkens his death at his home at 244 West Seventieth street Friday morning.

CAPTAIN DENIES SUICIDES ABOARD ARMY TRANSPORT

Washington, D. C., June 12.—Arrival at Norfolk of the army transport Mount Vernon carrying 4,000 Czecho-Slovak troops, 900 German war prisoners, and 250 women and children, was reported today to the war department by Capt. Ferguson, commander of the vessel.

Capt. Ferguson denied reports, received yesterday, that several suicides had occurred aboard the transport.

The loss of one propeller, Capt. Ferguson, said, caused him to abandon the direct route to Europe and head into Hampton Roads.

The transport probably will be in dry dock at Norfolk for several days, he added, and in the meantime the returning troops, war prisoners, and passengers will be cared for by representatives of the Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., and Y. W. C. A.

Young Craftsmen

The exhibition of handcraft held at Seward Park under the auspices of the Lower North Community council closed last night. Among the seventeen organizations exhibiting were the Chicago Latin school, Frances Parker school, Chicago Kindergarten institute, Chicago Boys' clubs, Olivet institute, and ten public schools in the Twenty-first and Twenty-second wards.

The boys and girls whose work was represented had labored industriously for several months getting ready for the exhibition of household furniture, dresses, preserved fruits, vegetables, toys, airplanes, yachts, pottery, tinware, drawings, and posters.

Special Grand Jury Will Probe Bergdoll Escape

Philadelphia, Pa., June 12.—A special federal grand jury to investigate the escape of Grover Cleveland Bergdoll from his mother's home here on May 21, and to consider the cases of all who had a hand in the escape, was impaneled by Judge J. Whitaker Thompson in the United States District court. The grand jury was drawn at the request of United States District Attorney McAvoy. The investigation will begin June 21.

CHICAGO WAKES UP WITH ADDED DAYLIGHT HOUR

Clocks Pushed Ahead at 2 O'Clock.

Did you miss church this morning? Did you find the congregation streaming out of the doors as you were about to enter? Ah, you forgot to turn your clock ahead an hour.

Chicago clocks and watches were pushed ahead one hour last night in compliance with the daylight saving ordinance, which became a law Friday afternoon with the signing of the document of Mayor Thompson. The law became effective at 2 o'clock this morning. Suburban cities and villages generally followed Chicago's lead.

Churches, theaters, offices and manufacturing establishments are complying with the ordinance. All departments of the city, including the schools, are automatically required to observe the advancing of the hour.

Association of Commerce Acts.

In order that confusion may be avoided, the Association of Commerce, through its president, Wyllys W. Baird, issued a statement yesterday calling upon all residents of Chicago to observe the change in time. It read:

"To the People of Chicago: The daylight saving ordinanoe passed by the city council and approved by Mayor Thompson becomes effective Sunday, June 13, 1920, at 2 o'clock a. m. That we may all enjoy the added daylight hour, let us turn our clocks ahead one hour tonight and Chicago will wake up on Sunday morning with daylight saving accomplished."

Courts Adopt Plan.

Coöperation in the plan was given yesterday by the executive committee of the Superior and Circuit courts when an order was passed pushing ahead the clocks in the county building. The County, Probate, and Criminal courts took similar action. The announcement that the churches will push ahead their clocks was made by Walter R. Mas in behalf of the Chicago Church Federation.

Local weather data will be compiled by the weather bureau on the new summer time, it was stated yesterday by Henry J. Cox, forecaster. The old time, which is government standard time, will be observed in issuing the daily morning predictions, which are dependent upon telegraphic observations throughout the nation.

Change Train Schedules.

It was announced by the Chicago Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad that the schedules of local trains between Chicago and Elgin and Chicago, Deerfield, Libertyville and Fox Lake will be changed today. The time tables will be printed according to central railroad time, with a note to the public to add one hour to make the readings compare with the daylight saving time.

FUND FOR MOTHER OF WIEBECK GIRL NOW REACHES $1,117

THE fund for Mrs. Mary Wiebeck, mother of Bertha Wiebeck, the little Kansas girl who was lured to a resort by Dorsey Chambliss, a Negro policeman, and who was taken from there dying, passed the $1,100 mark yesterday. The money was contributed to aid the mother in paying off a mortgage she was compelled to negotiate in order that she might attend and testify at the trial of Chambliss who was convicted. Contributions received yesterday follow:

M. R.	$10.00	Geo. Smith	5.00
Edna M. Dea..	5.00
Mrs. Harry L. Bisbee	5.00		$32.00

'BOY' WHO KICKED OVER JUG IN RUM CASE, MAN OF 30

Landis Discovers It as He Fines 3.

Constant reference to the "boy" who kicked over a jug of evidence, and the "boy" who later furnished valuable evidence against three dry law violators who appeared before Judge Landis for sentence yesterday aroused the judge's curiosity.

"Let's see this boy," he demanded. "He must be some youngster."

A bailiff rushed to obey the judge's order. Witnesses testified that beside possessing whisky, the charge on which the three defendants, Martin Towalazyk, Joseph Dollman, and Peter Sarnecki had been convicted, they had sold some liquor. Detectives were explaining how the "boy" had pointed out Sarnecki's bakery shop at 1479 West Erie street as the place where the whisky had been sold, when a tall, broad shouldered man entered the courtroom.

"Boy" Is 30 Years Old.

"That's him," said a detective.

"What," shouted the judge, leaping to his feet, "you the boy? Why, I was looking for a little fellow about waste paper basket size.

"How old are you?"

"Thirty years," was the answer.

Judge Landis mopped his brow. "Take him away," he said.

Wife Says She Made Sales.

Sarnecki's wife was called to the stand.

"What do you know about the sale of whisky," she was asked.

"I sold it," she answered. "I was afraid my husband would drink it if I kept it in the bakery."

The three defendants were fined $500 each and ordered to return Monday for further investigation on the charges of selling whisky.

ARMED, GET $5,000 "HOOTCH."

Iron Mountain, Mich., June 12.—[Special.]—Three men in an auto, posing as federal agents, visited Joe De Concin's store at Florence, Wis., near here. They searched it for liquor, pointed a revolver at him. They made him take them to his home, where they seized whisky valued at $5,000 and drove away with it.

CHAMBLISS AND MRS. ROSS GET ONE TO 5 YEARS

Prison Terms to Avenge Wiebeck Girl's Death.

Within thirty days Dorsey Chambliss and Mrs. Emma Ross will change their residence from the county jail to the penitentiary.

Judge Harry Lewis yesterday denied a motion for a new trial on behalf of the former policeman and the rooming house keeper, both of whom are colored, and gave them sentences of from one to five years. This is the maximum penalty for luring a minor female into an immoral life.

Chambliss and the Ross woman had been found guilty by a jury of leading 17 year old Bertha Wiebeck, the yellow-haired white girl who came from Kansas to recoup the family's humble fortune, into evil ways. She died in the county hospital as a result of her experiences.

Defense Makes Plea.

In asking a new trial Attorney Francis Walker claimed the state had not offered a "scientilla of evidence" against Chambliss and that the court "had erred in instructing the jury." He indicated racial prejudice had been a factor in the trial.

"The atmosphere of the courtroom was played up by the state's attorney in order to convict Chambliss," he said. "The dead girl's mother was detained in the courtroom day after day to play upon the emotions of the jury. Her presence was necessary for only a few moments, for the purpose of identification. Yet, despite my protests, she was allowed to remain there weeping."

State Scouts Pleas.

Assistant State's Attorneys James McShane and Grover Neimeyer declared all of Walker's points had been raised during the trial and passed upon by the court. Nothing new had been brought up, they said.

In passing sentence Judge Lewis granted a thirty day stay of mittimus and a ninety day stay to allow the filing of a bill of exceptions.

A Friend of Yours in Europe

IN a strange city there is no more welcome sight than that of a familiar face. In a strange country, could anything be more welcome than the presence of an old friend? In a foreign land, with a strange language, strange habits, different customs, wouldn't you be glad to find an old friend who had been there for years and who knew all there was to be known about the country and the people?

In thirty European cities the American Express Company is an old friend of yours. Those in charge of the offices know the things you wish to find out; know the shops and the places of interest, how to get from one place to another and all the other little things that make a stranger feel at home.

These offices were the friends of the soldiers and sailors, the army nurses and Red Cross nurses, the Y. M. C. A. and Knights of Columbus forces. They have been the friends of travelers for over 25 years. In 1914, when Europe went to war and the extended bank holidays left travelers in actual distress for money, food and lodgings, these offices were perhaps of greater financial assistance than any other agency in London or Paris.

All the services which these offices have been rendering to others are at your disposal when you make your trip to Europe. All the experience and knowledge gained by years of residence abroad is available for you. And in these offices you will find also, the courteous, prompt, efficient service and the hospitable welcome that will mean much to you in a foreign land.

HOPES FOR FLIGHT 7 1-2 MILES HIGH IN OXYGEN BELL

Frenchman Tests Device to Smash Records.

[Copyright: 1920.]

PARIS, June 12.—Shut in an airtight bell, Jean Casale, French airman, has been experimenting with oxygen-breathing apparatus which he hopes will enable him to fly seven a half miles above the earth.

When he made his height record he used electrified clothes to keep him warm, but the effect of the rarefied air compelled him to come down sooner than he had intended.

At eight thousand meters [a meter is about 39 inches] he found it difficult to raise his arms. When he moved them to control his machine it seemed like lifting a hundred pounds.

Spirit Seems to Leave.

Higher up he became completely indifferent to everything and felt that death and life meant nothing. His spirit, he declares, seemed already detached from his body. When he neared 10,000 meters his memory began to fail and it was only with great will effort that he could pull himself together and begin to descend.

His experience, however, convinced him that if he could get enough oxygen to breathe there was no reason why he should not reach 12,000 meters, at which height his engine would still function. To discover how best to arrange an effective breathing apparatus the aerotechnic institute at Saint Cyr had an airtight bell set up from which the air could be gradually exhausted.

Makes Mock Record Flight.

The airman took a seat inside with a barometer in his hand which showed the rate of air exhaustion and also of the height theoretically reached. Two tanks of compressed oxygen were also placed inside and the airman was fitted with a mask through which to breathe.

In the wall of the bell were two windows through which these outside could see if he made any signs. When the pressure inside the bell reached the equivalent of that at 4,000 meters Casale began to use oxygen. At the equivalent of 6,000 meters he felt cold and strengthened the oxygen doses.

At 9,000 he signaled that everything was going well, but those outside noticed that he moved his hands slowly as if his muscles did not respond to his will, in the same way as he had found when actually flying at that height.

Flyer Closes His Eyes.

At 11,000 meters he was seen to close his eyes as if overcome by the rarefied atmosphere in which he was sitting. Whenever the barometer showed that he was in an atmosphere corresponding to that at 12,000 meters altitude he signaled to begin pumping in air again and when released he declared that he was perfectly satisfied with the experiment and hoped soon with the apparatus to attempt a flight at 12,000 meters. In all he spent sixty-seven minutes in the bell.

WAR OFFICERS NOW MAY JOIN REGULAR ARMY

Washington, D. C., June 12.—[Special.]—The war department today announced that 200,000 officers, who served in the war and have returned to civil life, may take the examination for regular army commissions if they apply before June 23. There are now 17,000 applications on file. The examinations will begin July 7. Examining boards have been directed to make allowance for the lack of opportunity of discharged officers for keeping informed of military matters.

The physical examination will conform to the standard required by recruits. Exemptions from any and all parts of the educational examination are authorized when the candidate's personal history shows him of proper qualifications.

THE POLISH FRONT

Infantry fighting is in progress along the whole front. A Red division has crossed the Dnieper north of Kiev.

The Polish forces are yielding ground.

U. S. DELEGATION SAILS TO ATTEND JEWISH SESSION

New York, June 12.—The first group of American delegates to the international Zionist conference which convenes in London July 4 left here today for England on the steamer Lapland. In all there were thirty-nine American delegates to this conference, considered by American Zionists a most momentous gathering. The others will leave for England next Saturday.

In the party going today are Justice Louis D. Brandeis of the United States Supreme court, honorary president of the Zionist Organization of America; Judge Julian W. Mack of the United States District court, president of the organization; Nathan Straus, Mrs. Mary Fels, Jacob de Haas, Zionist executive secretary; Louis Lusky, organization secretary; Prof. Felix Frankfurter of Harvard, Capt. Abraham Tulin and David Rosenbloom.

The first world Zionist conference held in six years, since the outbreak of the war, the forthcoming convention is considered of importance, because it will deal with the practical problem of the establishment of the Jewish national homeland.

London Denies Story of British-Japanese Treaty

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

TOKIO, June 10—A general understanding relative to a continuation of the Anglo-Japanese alliance already has been reached between the Japanese and British governments, according to the Jiji Shimpo.

REDS' CAVALRY CUTS RAILWAY ON POLISH FRONT

Heavy Infantry Fighting Along Whole Line.

BULLETIN.

LONDON, June 13, 3 a. m.—The Polish army, the Sunday Observer says it understands, evacuated Kiev on Friday, owing to the continued menacing advance of the bolshevik army, which threatened to cut off the Polish line of retreat. The source of this information is not given by the newspaper.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

WARSAW, June 12.—Russian bolshevik cavalry engaged in the drive southwest of Kiev designed to encircle that city has cut the railroad between Kiev and Berditchev at several places and has pierced the Polish front lines at various points, according to news from the front.

The soviet forces are reported to number from 30,000 to 40,000. One body of their cavalry numbers 9,000 men.

This leaves the Poles with only a single line of railroad into Kiev. In addition the Kiev-Korosten line is threatened by a division of bolsheviki which has crossed the Dnieper river north of Kiev.

Heavy fighting continues on both sides of the city, and infantry is in action all alone the front.

Driving Back Poles.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LONDON, June 12.—The Polish lines north and south of Kiev on the west bank of the Dnieper are being driven in by the bolsheviki, who are cutting Polish railway communication with the city, according to Friday's official statement from Moscow.

Pressing Reds in Crimea.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 11.—[By the Associated Press.]—The first considerable offensive by the forces of Gen. Wrangel, anti-bolshevik leader on the Crimean front, is reported to have been successful.

On June 4 large detachments of Wrangel's troops left Theodosia by sea and landed June 6 at Berdiansk and Marioupol, ports on the Sea of Azov. The forces of Gen. Wrangel were not attacked while passing through the strait of Kertch. They landed with slight opposition and captured both ports easily.

FRIENDS URGING SULTAN TO QUIT FUTILE THRONE

May Oust Him as Religious Chief.

BY LARRY RUE.

[By Special Cable.]
[Copyright: 1920: By The Chicago Tribune.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, via Paris, June 12.—It is whispered in official Turkish circles that intimate friends of the sultan are advising his abdication. Also, that Moslem manifesto will declare praying invalid on the grounds that the sultan is under Christian control. In this way the Moslems themselves are contemplating working hardship on Islam as a whole, blaming allies. This course, it is suggested, would be a whip over the people, turning them more than ever against the allies.

Would Mitigate Treaty.

This is aall in the hope of obtaining better peace treaty terms. The sultan is not unenthusiastic over the project.

Millerand's reported characterization of the Tewfik Pasha delagtion as not being representative of the Turks, is regarded here as showing a tendency on the part of the allies to open negotiations with the Nationalists.

The Armenian patriarchs in the interior, possibly under pressure, are issuing denials for publication in Constantinople papers. They say the Turks are not deporting or massacreing Armenians. Admittedly the instinct of self-preservation is compelling the Armenians throughout Anatolia to support the Nationalists.

Grand Vizier Ferid Pasha attempted to resign today following the telegram from Tewfik Pasha at Paris saying that Millerand in an interview intimated that the Tukish govenment does not represent the people.

Sultan Retains Ferid Pasha.

The sultan refused to accept the resignation, but admitted that his hands are tied. The Nationalists announce the French evacuated Adana and will leave Mersina soon. The armistice terms provide for complete French evacuation of Anatolia as far as the Alexandretta line, but leaving Aintab in French hands.

It is reported from Angora that Kemal is calling four additional classes to the colors, thus increasing forces in Anatolia by 100,000.

Seventeen naval aviators have joined Kemal recently, and an effective air squadron is reported under organization. At the present time Kemal has given his troops leave for the Ramadan holiday.

RED GERMS BREED MUTINY IN BLACK FRENCH TROOPS

Senegalese Rebel When Ordered to Asia.

[Copyright: 1920.]

PARIS, June 12.—A brigade if Senegalese—the black soldiers who, up to a few days ago formed a part of the French army of occupation and who helped to occupy Frankfort—has refused to embark at Marseilles for duty in the French zone in Syria. When ordered to board the transports yesterday these soldiers refused to obey. A French general who came to remonstrate had to be protected by his guard with drawn sabers. The French war office has ordered an immediate investigation. Meanwhile no further efforts will be made to send the troops to Asia Minor.

Bolshevik Propaganda Blamed.

At Paris action of the black troops is blamed on bolshevik propaganda sown among them while they were on the Rhine.

When the Senegalese reached Marseilles they were placed in two camps at Oddo and Covington, near the port city, with the Senegalese of the 150th regiment on its way home to be demobilized.

The effect of association with their brothers about to regain native Africa appears to have had a very demoralizing effect upon the brigade bound for duty against the Turk nationals. Thursday afternoon officers observed that the habitual discipline of their troops seemed very much affected. There was an unwonted excitement.

General Defended by Guards.

When the men were lined up and the order was given to shoulder their knapsacks preparatory to marching on board, they crossed their arms and did not budge. When the order was repeated by the officers the men scattered about the camps. Gen. Murros in command, was summoned and found the troops in disorder.

Last night officers of the brigade abandoned the effort to embark their men and reported to Paris. There appears to have been some sort of organization among the men.

Telegrams from Marseilles this afternoon says perfect order has been restored among the black troops. They salute their officers and obey all orders except the order to go to Asia Minor.

OUTLAWS MADE PAY ROLL HOLDUP AN INDOOR SPORT

Trap Cashier in Plant and Escape.

The usual Saturday morning payroll robbery occurred yesterday at the plant of the Stromberg Electric company, 223 West Erie street, the loss being about $500.

R. E. Corneilson, 4506 Oakenwald avenue, the cashier, had finished paying the shop hands, distributing about $5,000, and was returning to the first floor to pay the office help, when, on the stairway between the first and second floors, two armed bandits appeared.

Threatening to shoot if he made an outcry, they took the money box, stuffed the envelopes in their pockets and made their escape.

An alarm was given, and an attempt made to give chase, but the bandits separated and were soon out of sight. The police were unable to get trace of them.

Auto Thief Is Captured.

One man was captured and another is believed to have been wounded when the Warren avenue police surprised five men attempting to steal an automobile from the garage of James T. Brakey, 2052 West Jackson boulevard.

Brakey, whose home adjoins the garage, heard the men breaking in and notified the police. As the patrol arrived the men ran out of the garage and scattered. A score of shots were fired at them.

Takes Refuge in Shed.

Joseph Gleason, 26 years old, of 2207 West Thirteenth street was captured after a siege of an empty shed a block away, where he had sought refuge. He refused to give the names of the others.

A trail of blood leading from the garage door indicated that at least one of the bandits had been shot. A search of all hospitals for him proved fruitless.

WOMEN'S LEAGUE CLUB BUYS LOOP BUILDING 'HOME'

Will Erect Structure Like University's.

BY AL CHASE.

First steps toward a big loop clubhouse for women, similar in type to the University and Union League clubs, were taken yesterday when the Women's League Club of Chicago bought the twelve story Daniel Hayes building at 105-9 North Dearborn street for $550,000 from the International Life Insurance company of St. Louis, Mo.

MRS. J. R. SHIRRA.

"It was merely a preliminary move towards a club home which we expect to build in the loop as soon as building conditions change," said Mrs. Mary Black Richter, a director. "Our temporary home in the Hayes building, which we are going to rechristen the Women's League Club building, will occupy only one floor. The rest of the building is rented.

Members May Live There.

"But in our new building we'll have a gymnasium, a swimming pool, a restaurant, and everything else the loop business man has in his downtown club, including living quarters for transients and for Chicago club members.

According to Mrs. Jennette Rodgers Shirra, president of the club, the organization will be for business, professional and all other women who have made good in various lines of endeavor, and who can afford a high class club.

"So far we've only admitted life or founder members," said Mrs. Shirra, "and we're making no campaign for either money or members. We wanted to get a good foundation laid for our organization by owning our own home, and we've done that.

For Advancement of Women.

"The objects for which the club is formed are for the advancement of womankind; to encourage physical culture and women's athletic sports; to aid and encourage worthy movements for the betterment of social conditions; to commemorate the Chicago women's part in winning the world's war, and to cultivate friendly and cordial relations among its members."

The Hayes building fronts 105 feet on Dearborn street, and is 109 feet deep. The failure of the Hayes organization opened the way to the purchase of the property, and leaves the second floor vacant for club purposes.

The directors of the club are Miss Josephine Conger, Mrs. Maud N. Rea, Mrs. Richter, Mrs. M. H. Patterson, Miss Sally Wilson, Mrs. Harriet Martin Snow and Miss Essalee Wallace, managing director. Mrs. Potter Palmer is a life member.

The club was organized in May, 1919. The membership is limited to 1,500. Life memberships cost $250.

8 OIL TANKERS OF GERMANY GO TO UNCLE SAM

PARIS, June 12.—Eight oil tankers belonging to a German subsidiary of the Standard Oil company finally have been allotted to the United States for the transport of petrol and oil to Europe, according to an official communication issued this evenng by the reparation commission.

These vessels had been the subject of controversy since January, 1919. The rights of nations, among them France, Italy, and Great Britain, were involved.

Question of ownership of the tankers has been reserved and will be examined into later by an arbitration tribunal.

Ex-Marine Confesses Theft of $50,000 in Bonds from Millionaire.

HENRY H. SIRLES.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Henry H. Sirles, former marine, confessed yesterday that on June 4 he had rifled the safe of John J. McKay, millionaire tailor, in Detroit, of stock certificates.

Detroit police appraise the loot at $50,000.

Sirles disposed of some of it to Lester, Carter & Co. in the Rookery building for $360; and some in Detroit. He was arrested by Detective Nagle, Flaherty, Ryan and Paladini yesterday at the Planters hotel, when he called for a letter. The letter was a decoy sent by the brokerage firm.

"I was working as a mechanic in Detroit," said Sirles, who was staying at 4518 North Racine avenue. "I went into the McKay shop to have a suit pressed. I was alone in the office for a time. I saw the safe door open, and helped myself.

"I put some of the stocks in a couple of suits that were hanging up."

FRANCO-BELGIAN MILITARY PACT IS AGREED UPON

[Copyright: 1920.]

PARIS, June 12.—It is announced that France and Belgium have agreed upon the principles of the military alliance. Gen. Maglinez left Paris for Brussels this afternoon, bearing with him a preliminary draft of the agreement drawn up by Marshal Foch and himself.

The French and Belgian experts will begin next week to work out details. The general lines of the alliance are given as follows:

Aviation, engineering, artillery, cavalry, infantry and staffs will appoint one delegate each for each country. The alliance will be strictly an alliance for defense. It will not be a political alliance and cannot involve Belgium in any colonial war. Its purpose is the defense of the Belgian and French frontiers.

The treaty will have a duration of from five to fifteen years. Belgium will conserve her absolute independence and will have to respond to no outside call for men, arms, or material. Belgium promises to maintain under arms an army of a size somewhat superior to that which she had before the war.

175 Graduate at Golden Jubilee of Loyola "U"

Exercises commemorating the golden jubilee of Loyola university were held on the campus yesterday afternoon. The event marked the graduation of 175 students, among them twelve nuns. James Graham of Springfield, president of the state board of education, delivered the commencement address. Tomorrow a solemn pontifical high mass will be celebrated at the Holy Family church by Archbishop Bonzano, the apostolic delegate. Archbishop Mundelein will be present and Bishop Edmund Dunne of Peoria will preach.

Crowd Fleeing from Heat Caught in Crash.

The hot weather indirectly brought injuries to about forty persons last night when a street car crashed into a truck at Grand avenue and Fairbanks court.

Because of the heat thousands of people went to the municipal pier. The Grand avenue cars were crowded and many people waiting for the cars were "passed up" by the motormen.

Starts a Jitney.

Samuel Geraci, 935 West Grand avenue, got out his father's truck and turned it into a jitney bus, collecting about fifty passengers along the way.

He was going east and turning out of the car tracks when the car struck the truck, throwing men and women to the street. The police say forty or more were hurt.

Taken to Hospitals.

The following were taken to hospitals:

SAMUEL ALVAREZ, 1741 Washington boulevard, internal injuries.
MRS. CLARA ALVAREZ, wife of Samuel, left wrist broken.
ABE MALINA, 1306 West Hastings street.
ANNA AND HARRY ZEBOVITZ, 1306 Hastings street, brother and sister.
MAX RATTMAN, 1306 Hastings street.
DANIEL REGILLO, 4160 Oakdale avenue.
THOMAS SEDILE, 1038 West Grand avenue.
LESLIE BLOOM, 1228 West Fifteenth street.
ANGELO GERACI, brother of the truck driver.
RALPH ROSENTHAL, 1256 Roosevelt road.

The police made no arrests.

RAIL PAY AWARD WILL CARRY BACK WAGES TO MAY 1

The United States railroad labor board announced yesterday that its wage decision, when made, will date back to May 1, and workers will receive the difference between the former wage and the wage authorized by the board for the time intervening between May 1 and the date the new award is made.

The award will apply, according to the time served, to all employés who were in the service May 1, and who remained in service, or who have come into the service since and remained.

The board added that the decision will cover only the employés of the roads represented by the executives' committee, and of such other roads as are properly before the board. "The decision, however, will cover approximately 93 per cent of the railroad employés of the United States," said the statement, "and the board will as soon as practicable give a hearing to the representatives of the Short Line and other carriers not represented at the recent hearings, and as soon afterward as possible a decision for the employés of these carriers will also be made."

Autoist Ordered Held as Unknown Woman's Slayer

Subway Sale

HERE'S the simple explanation of our ability to offer you such radical reductions—in the face of the present market.

In the last few days we've received thousands of Suits from eastern manufacturers—mostly New York. Some shipments were en route since March 3. Obviously we could not use them to advantage at this late date.

We wired the makers asking if they would make concessions that would dispose of these excellent garments quickly—or if we should return them.

With one exception, they instructed us to dispose of the suits here, so we combined all these goods in our great Subway Store at a single price.

Values Up to $45

'L' OUSTS WEDDED WOMEN TO GIVE JOBS TO GIRLS

Old Rule Revived as War Emergency Ends.

Married women employés keep the good jobs away from the single girls. That is the opinion expressed yesterday by Britton I. Budd, president of the Chicago Elevated Railways. Consequently all married women employed by the elevated lines have been discharged.

The rule against the employment of married women is an old one, which was relaxed during the war by the elevated companies, John H. Mallen, general superintendent, explained. A bulletin requesting the resignations of women employés who have husbands was sent out to enforce the rule, so unmarried women employés may have an opportunity for advancement.

"False Income" Created.

"If we continued to keep the married women, extra girls would be extra girls all their lives," said Mr. Mallen. "During the war many married women needed jobs because their husbands went into the service. We did our best to help them out. The war is over now and we wish to do what we can for the single girls.

"Besides, the employment of married women whose husbands are able to work has created a sort of false income. Later, when these women have to leave their jobs because of illness or children, the family income is cut nearly in two. It makes it all the harder for them to get along.

Where Extra Girls Lose Out.

"We employ approximately the same number of persons all the time. With the married women hanging on to their jobs, the extra girls are forced to work different shifts of hours. Naturally they look forward to a time when they can have a regular shift."

The notice calling for the resignations of married women was sent out on May 1, giving the women a month's time. Many resignations followed. About a dozen discharges have occurred since June 1.

U. S. Suffrage Leader Makes Farewell Talk to World Organization.

MRS. CARRIE CHAPMAN CATT.

GENEVA, June 12.—A farewell speech by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, as president of the International Suffrage Alliance, officially ended the organization's congress which has been in progress here for the last week. She called on the women of America to aid the alliance, politically, morally, and economically during the many years of hard work ahead.

Several resolutions were adopted at the final session, among them one thanking the press of the world for its sympathy and aid, and another congratulating the twenty-one countries which, since the last congress was held, had given the vote to women.

One of the resolutions felicitates woman on the fact that the league of nations admits women to all its activities; another calls on the women of the world to use their utmosts power to prevent future wars, and educate their children to a better international undestanding.

Philadelphia to Be Easy Third.

The three chief cities whose population remains to be announced are Philadelphia, Detroit, and Cleveland. Philadelphia will continue to rank third among American cities, being eclipsed in size by New York and Chicago only. Its population in the 1910 census was 1,549,008, which probably has been increased to approximately 1,750,000.

Detroit, which ten years ago was the ninth city in the United States, with a population of 465,766, has grown so rapidly that the new census is expected to show at least a doubling of its population. This will move Detroit up to fourth place ahead of St. Louis, Boston, Cleveland, Baltimore, and Pittsburgh, all of which had a larger population in 1910.

Cleveland was sixth with a population of 560,663 in 1910, ranking just below Boston. It remains to be determined whether Cleveland will hold this position or be outdistanced by Baltimore.

About the only other cities with a population of more than 300,000 for which totals have not been announced are Jersey City and Kansas City, both of which were below the 300,000 mark ten years ago.

Chicago Fourth in World.

Chicago probably continues to maintain its position as fourth among the cities of the world. The latest total on Paris, the third city, whose population may have been subject to violent fluctuations on account of the war, was compiled in 1911. The eight largest cities in the world, according to the latest available figures, are the following:

London	1917	6,726,753
New York City	1920	5,621,151
Paris	1911	2,888,110
Chicago	1920	2,701,212
Tokio	1917	2,349,830
Petrograd	1915	2,318,645
Vienna	1914	2,149,800
Berlin	1910	2,071,257

Additional Census Returns.

"SLUMP" AFTER A "SCOOP."

The official figures of Chicago's population are 183,615 less than the Chicago "census figures" printed as accurate several weeks ago in the Herald and Examiner and widely exploited as a "newspaper scoop."

Eighty-seven years have elapsed since a few score of pioneer settlers incorporated Chicago as a town with an area of two and one-half square miles. Since that eventful day in 1833 Chicago has grown like magic. The Indian trail that wound around the lake has become Michigan boulevard and the Lake Shore drive. The canoe routes over the river have been turned into channels for great ships. The two and a half miles of territory have expanded into 191 square miles.

The steady expansion could not even be checked by the great Chicago fire of 1871, which wiped out more than two-thirds of the city. In the decade following the fire the city increased in size four times.

The valuation of Chicago in 1910 was placed at $2,446,983,608. Postoffice receipts for the year 1910 were $18,502,854. The internal revenue collections that year were $11,652,567.87. The bank clearings were $13,939,689,984.43.

F. OF L. SAYS G. O. P. TURNS BACK ON LABOR

oks to Golden Gate for Consolation.

Montreal, Que., June 12.—Organized labor today threw down the gantlet to the Republican party, and now will appeal to the Democrats for recognition of its platform demands.

This decision came when the American Federation of Labor, in annual convention here, unanimously condemned the Republican platform adopted in Chicago as a document "defiant in its defense of the enemies of labor and one that proposes an industrial enslavement and an abrogation of rights as precious as life itself."

Declaring the Republican party had turned its back upon labor," the convention instructed Samuel Gompers and Matthew Woll, president and vice president of the federation, to submit in "identical form" to the Democratic party convention at San Francisco the proposals of labor which were presented by them to the Republicans in Chicago.

G. O. P. Planks Assailed.

In a lengthy report bitterly assailing and condemning the various planks of the Republican platform President Gompers and Mr. Woll brought the matter before the delegates. The labor leaders' indictment of the party was greeted with enthusiastic cheers and applause, while hisses and "boos" interrupted the reading of several of the Republican planks.

Without debate the report was approved and the federation went on record as condemning the Republican platform on the grounds that it:

Offers no remedy for the high cost of living and denies the importance of profiteering.

Repudiates Labor's Plea.

Denies right of workers to cease working in its plank on peaceful arbitration of wage disputes.

Aims to undermine sovereignty of the Mexican people and "fulfill the hopes and aims of those whose sole object is the exploitation of the people and boundless resources of Mexico."

Fails to favor federal compensation law and election of federal judges by the people for six year terms.

Threatens the right of the people to bring about "a change in the administration and laws of the government by peaceful means as is guaranteed by the constitution."

Heritage of Lincoln.

"The heritage left to the Republican party by Abraham Lincoln," declared the report, "is abandoned in the platform, which embraces every opportunity to strengthen the concept of repression and coercion of the working people."

Before adjourning until Monday the convention accepted the invitation of Secretary of Labor Wilson to recommend a representative of the federation for the coming meeting of the international labor commission, which was established under the league of nations. The United States will be represented on the commission's conference by labor, industry, and government, but the delegates will have no voting power until this country joins the league.

FIRELESS FOURTH OF JULY? TRY TO BAR SPARKLERS

It's going to be a fireless Fourth of July this year, kids, unless you are good at the game of political lobbying. Plans to take the last vestige of fireworks out of the annual celebration in observance of the declaration of independence are being made by the council buildings committee and the fire prevention bureau.

In recent years, sparklers and colored lights have been permitted. An amendment to the fire prevention ordinance barring even these is now in the hands of Ald. Kostner, chairman of the committee. He will try to have the council pass the amendment before Independence day.

A number of other proposed changes in the ordinance are also to be considered by the committee. One would enact comprehensive regulations regarding the storage and compression of oxygen and hydrogen. Another would regulate the storage and use of fuel oils.

MURDER THEORY SCOUTED IN LAKE DEATH MYSTERY

Investigation of the death of Mrs. Ella Kraus, whose body was found in the lake in Jackson park, led the police yesterday to abandon the theory that Mrs. Kraus was murdered.

Coroner's Physician Dr. Joseph ringer said Mrs. Kraus was drowned and that the bruise on her temple might have been made when the waves threw the body against rocks.

Detectives at the home of Mrs. A. O. mp, 111 South Seeley avenue, where Mrs. Kraus had been rooming, found a wedding ring in a trunk which had been reported as missing. The detectives announced they also expect to find the watch and the other ring Mrs. Kraus is believed to have worn when she disappeared.

Mrs. A. H. Vaudell, 2909 West Lake street, a sister, said she knew no reason why Mrs. Kraus should end her life. Her husband has been dead three years and she had no children.

San Diego, June 12.—Lieut. Louis T. Barin, U. S. N., one of the pilots of the NC-1 in its transatlantic flight, was killed when an airplane he was piloting collided with an army airplane piloted by Cadet Joseph L. Walker of Rockwell field.

MOVIE DIRECTOR SUES TO KEEP HIS HERO, MR. BRYAN

Fears Commoner Will Star for Rival.

To be or not to be a movie star—that's the question agitating William Jennings Bryan. Mr. Bryan is willing. So is Edward F. Goltra of St. Louis.

The hitch in the proceeding (or the fly in the ointment) is George R. Dalton, who filed suit for an injunction in the Superior court yesterday to restrain the prohibition lecturer and ex-secretary of state from infringing on his copyright and appropriating the result of his labor.

According to Dalton, he originated the idea to produce a motion picture as an argument for prohibition. The picture was to be a dramatization of certain lectures in which Mr. Bryan was to appear as hero.

Demand for More Cash.

Dalton claims an agreement was made whereby he was to devote all his time to promoting and producing the picture and was to set aside 10 per cent of the net proceeds to further the cause of prohibition under the direction of a commission to be appointed by Mr. Bryan.

Later, he asserts, Mr. Bryan refused to carry out the pact, demanding a modification under which he was to be paid for his services as an actor and was to receive 20 per cent of the net proceeds. The clause about the commission and the 10 per cent for prohibition propaganda was abrogated.

Then, according to Mr. Dalton, another hitch arose. On March 17, 1919, Mr. Bryan, he says, demanded 37 per cent of the proceeds and proposed that the financing was to be done by Edward F. Goltra of St. Louis.

A Bitter Denouement.

Before Dalton agreed to this change in the contract, he declares, he learned from Goltra that the financing was very uncertain.

It was contingent upon Goltra being able to recover from the government $160,000 penalty imposed upon the Hostetter's Bitters company for an alleged violation of the internal revenue laws.

When Dalton refused further to modify his agreement with Mr. Bryan the latter obtained a copyright on the idea of using his lectures for scenario purposes, it is alleged.

According to the bill, Dalton expended $12,000 on the proposed movie and time and effort, which he values at $25,000.

"Defendant Bryan is a man of peculiar attainments," the bill reads, "possessing especial ability as an actor. The complainant is unable to obtain any other person of such ability."

Mr. Bryan was served with the notice by Deputy Sheriff J. E. Olis, who called him from the press platform at the Coliseum.

"Have you got something for me?" inquired the commoner.

"Yes, colonel, I've got a summons."

Thereupon Mr. Olis proceeded to read the document. When he had concluded, Mr. Bryan asseverated: "Well, they're not going to have it all their own way."

"He seemed kind of taken back," observed Mr. Olis later.

AUTOS KILL TWO MEN; ONE, OF 70, FROM OAK FOREST

Frank Peterson, 70 years old, a patient at the Cook county infirmary in Oak Fores, died yesterday at the infirmary shortly after he had been struck by an automobile owned and driven by W. J. Fulton of Oak Forest. Fulton took the man to the infirmary, where he was given medical aid. The accident took place at One Hundred and Fifty-eighth streeet and Cicero avenue. Peterson had left the infirmary to take a walk.

Harry Carson of 4224 North Harding avenue died at Montrose hospital from injuries received when he was struck by an automobile driven by George F. Carpenter, 677 North Michigan avenue.

Carson was walking from behind a street car when he was struck. He was taken to the hospital by Carpenter, who then reported the accident to the police.

Judge Scanlan's Uncle Is Ill of Pneumonia

John F. Scanlan, 4333 Indiana avenue, founder of the Catholic Order of Foresters and an uncle of Judge Kickham Scanlan, is dangerously ill with pneumonia. For years a friend of James G. Blaine, he stumped the country for him during Blaine's campaign for the presidency. Mr. Scanlan also was one of the late President McKinley's trusted aids, his friends say. He is a veteran of the civil war and has written two books on the tariff question.

MAYOR THOMPSON URGES CITY TO PAY HONOR TO U. S. FLAG

MAYOR THOMPSON yesterday issued the following proclamation for Flag day, Monday:

"Whereas, Monday, June 14, 1920, is the one hundred and forty-third anniversary of the adoption of our national emblem consisting of alternate stripes of red and white, representing the colonies or thirteen original states of the union, and the arrangement of a number of stars on a blue field, representing the total number of states, and,

"Whereas, Our national emblem typifies the sovereignty of our federal government as established in our wonderful constitution, and is the symbol of a free government conducted under laws which should be administered impartially and before which all men should be equal, thus preserving the rights of the humble against the aggressions of the rich and powerful;

"Therefore, I, William Hale Thompson, mayor of the city of Chicago, do hereby proclaim Monday, June 14, as Flag day, and recommend to our citizens that we rededicate our lives to the maintenance and perpetuation of those blessings of liberty which have been purchased so dearly by the suffering and sacrifice of our people, living and dead, and earnestly request sincere observance of the day by an appropriate display of the American flag and by patriotic demonstrations suitable to the day and the occasion."

BANKERS TO AID WOOL GROWERS WITH BIG LOAN

Washington, D. C., June 12.—[Special.]—Establishment of a fund of $100,000,000 or more to extend financial aid to western wool growers, awaiting the reëstablishment of the wool market, will be considered at a conference of bankers and the wool producers to be held in Chicago on Thursday, June 17.

The call of the conference was made today by western senators remaining at the capital, after a conference with Gov. W. P. G. Harding of the federal reserve board.

Plans for stimulating the wool market, which the senators say has declined until current prices are below the cost of production, also will be discussed at the Chicago meeting.

Conditions in the wool market at present, senators said, are similar to those prevailing with cotton in 1914, there being neither actual or speculative demand, with the wool growers unable to obtain loans to finance them awaiting a profitable market.

950 TO RECEIVE U. OF I. DIPLOMAS ON WEDNESDAY

Urbana, Ill., June 12.—[Special.]—Nine hundred and fifty students will be graduated from the University of Illinois next Wednesday morning. The commencement address will be delivered by President Vinton of the University of Texas, and the baccalaureate address will be given by the Rev. John Timothy Stone, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church of Chicago, tomorrow afternoon.

Senior students of the college of medicine, dentistry, and pharmacy of the University of Illinois held commencement exercises in the Studebaker theater yesterday. One hundred and thirty-four degrees and certificates were conferred by Dr. David Kinley, president.

OBITUARY.

Keith School Principal Dies; 35 Years in Service

Mary A. McNarney, principal of the Keith school, died at her home, 1409 North Dearborn street, yesterday, after a short illness. Cerebral hemorrhages are believed to have been the cause. Miss McNarney was born in Chicago fifty-eight years ago, and had been connected with the public schools as teacher and principal for thirty-five years. For twenty years she was principal of the Hardigan school, and upon the tearing down of that building was assigned to the Keith school.

NOW You Can Still Get In On This Season's Planting

RESERVE YOUR ALMOND TRACT BEFORE JULY 1ST

When an automobile manufacturer finds that the demand for his cars is running ahead of his output he announces the fact to the public and advises all prospective buyers to place their orders far enough in advance to insure delivery by a certain date.

We are in the same position. Within the past six months the demand for our almond orchard tracts in the Paso Robles district of California has been so great that a shortage of pedigreed, nursery grown almond trees available for this coming season's planting is already in sight. This means a strict limitation of the number of acres we can plant—because under no circumstances will we plant any trees except those grown under the direct supervision of our horticultural expert, Mr. G. A. Nehrhood, who is the acknowledged almond authority of the United States.

$2,500 to $3,000 a Year from Only 10 Acres

We have so many times explained in detail why such big profits are possible that we do not believe it is necessary to go into a lengthy discussion of these reasons here. Briefly summarized they are: we plant 700 of the finest pedigreed almond trees that horticultural skill has ever produced, to each 10-acre tract. At a most conservative estimate these trees when 8½ years old will produce 20 pounds of almonds a year—14,000 pounds from 700 trees. The price paid to growers in 1918 was 25c per pound. On this basis the gross income is $3,500. Deducting $50.00 an acre, or a total of $500.00 for the scientific care of a 10-acre orchard, leaves a net profit of $3,000.

Last year the price paid to growers was 30c to 32½c per pound, which meant a net profit of from $415.00 to $460.00 an acre. It should be understood, however, that these figures apply only to almond orchards that have been planted to pedigreed stock on properly tested soil at the proper elevation where conditions are absolutely known to be most favorable for almond culture. Those are the only kind of trees we plant and that is the only kind of soil we plant them in.

The Aims and Purposes of Our Organization

In their eagerness to grasp the remarkable money making opportunity represented by the ownership of an almond orchard many buyers do not even stop to ask who we are or what our ultimate plans contemplate. On the other hand others as, for example, the ultra-conservative business-man type of investor, frequently frame their acknowledged skepticism as to the soundness of our proposition in questions something like this:

"You keep advising the public that desirable almond land in the Paso Robles district is scarce. According to your own statements, therefore, the time cannot be far off when all of your land will be sold and planted. What, then, are your buyers to do? To be left to shift for themselves the best way they can? And, having no more almond land to sell and develop, what is your Association going to do—dissolve into nothingness?"

Those are fair questions. They deserve straightforward answers. It is true that every acre of good almond land in the Paso Robles district that we can buy will be sold within a comparatively short time—perhaps before this year comes to an end. But you must keep this thought well in mind; that the buying and selling of almond land is merely incidental to our main purpose, which is the development—the bringing into full bearing thousands of acres of almond orchards and delivering to the market the crops of those orchards at a profit.

It is not our aim to make a profit out of the direct sale of these lands. The buyer pays only half the purchase price in cash, the first half of which must be paid in by July 1st, to make sure of a planting the following planting season. The balance of the first half of the purchase price may be spread out in small payments as low as $25.00 a month on a 10-acre orchard throughout a period of five years. In the meantime, at the age of 4½ years from the time of planting, the orchard will have come into commercial bearing. The last half of the purchase price is taken out of the crops from your orchard.

How Your Interests Are Protected by Trust Agreement

Every dollar that you pay for the purchase of an almond orchard from us is held in trust by the County National Bank and Trust Company of Santa Barbara, California—one of the most conservative financial institutions of the Pacific Coast, with assets of approximately $3,000,000. Your money is used for the development of your own orchard and for the fixed overhead expense incidental to the conduct of the business of our Association.

It is within this Trust Company's power to determine what sums shall be appropriated to cover every item of expense incidental to the furtherance of your—the purchaser's—best interests.

One of the leading Agricultural and Horticultural experts of California, whose efforts have gone far toward making California the wonderfully productive state that it now is, and who has watched closely the numberless land development projects of one kind or another which have been launched in that state during the past dozen years or so, recently stated that the Trust Agreement under which our Association operates offers the largest measure of protection to the buyer that has ever been known in the horticultural history of the state and that, moreover, the Associated Almond Growers of Paso Robles are today conducting the greatest constructive work along horticultural lines that he has ever witnessed. He declares that our proposition is 100% throughout—that there is not a single objectionable feature to it.

A Permanent Organization for Your Continued Benefit

We have built up an organization of cool, level-headed, far-seeing business men who from the start anticipated the day when there would be no more desirable almond land to be sold.

Our organization was founded with this thought and belief in mind: that only a very small percentage of the buyers of our almond tracts would ever care to give their almond orchards, even when fully paid for, their personal care and attention. We have laid our plans accordingly and are prepared to look after every buyer's interests so long as he wishes us to do so. We already have under successful cultivation for our buyers and ourselves more than 5,500 acres of almonds. This means that the Associated Almond Growers is a permanent organization. It necessarily must be to protect our own interests if for no other reason. Our future profits will be derived not merely from the percentage of the crops to apply on the last half of the purchase price of each orchard, but also from the future care, upkeep and marketing of the crops for the orchard owners after the orchards are fully paid for. We are specialists in this work. Of course, we do not insist that this work be turned over to us, but we can assure each buyer that we can do it for him better than he could do it for himself and far more advantageously than he could hire it done by anyone else. We will enter into a contract with any buyer to perform this work for him at a nominal cost per acre—a contract which he may terminate at any time by giving us thirty days' notice, but which is perpetually binding upon us. Already a sufficient number of these contracts have been made with buyers to insure the permanency of our organization for many years to come.

What Is Your Idea of a Life Income?

The 3% or 4% interest from a few thousand dollars in a savings bank? The 5%, 6% or, at the outside, 7% interest returns from a few conservative bond, stock or mortgage investments? A stock and bond investment yields a sure and steady income—true. But have you ever stopped to consider how large a principal is required to yield you a livable income? If you have $40,000, $50,000 or more to set aside for such an investment, well and good; but even so, it would pay you infinitely better to invest a part of that capital in one or more of our 10-acre almond orchard tracts. Because we say to you—and our declaration has the endorsement of conservative business men, bankers, and the leading horticulturists of California—that your investment of only $3,000 in cash should easily yield you a life income of from $2,500 to $3,000 a year.

Is it worth your while to make a temporary sacrifice—to deny yourself a few luxuries—to obtain such an income? To open the way to you for a home in the wonderful state of California? Your best judgment will tell you that it is a thousand times worth your while—that here is an opportunity for an investment of such an unusual character that it is being eagerly grasped by those who can foresee its tremendous money making possibilities.

In justice to the many prospective buyers who have seriously been considering the matter for several weeks, we say that you have no further time to lose. We have just one word of good advice to offer you—HURRY!

Up until July 1st we can definitely promise you a planting this season. After that date there may still be left a few tracts—but the strong probabilities are that there will not be a single 10-acre tract available for planting this season.

In view of these conditions—which are now beyond our control—the vital necessity for prompt action needs no comment. If you are wise you will buy now—before July 1st.

Come to Our Offices and Get All the Facts

901-6 Lytton Building, 9 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Open Any Evening by Special Appointment. Tel. Harrison 8620.

See the permanent exhibit which we have here—large colored photographs of the almond orchards of Paso Robles which show you exactly what the orchard you buy will look like when in full bearing. Also see the detailed figures which we have here on the profits of almond raising. You will be interested in reading letters which have come from men who have gone to Paso Robles to investigate our proposition and to get all the facts at first hand. Let us tell you how the local almond association and the State Almond Growers' Exchange fix the market prices so that every grower is assured of a profit. Then let us explain how we select the trees, plant and care for them, relieving you of any anxiety or personal attention. All these facts and much more will be given if you will call at our offices any day. This information is open to anyone who is interested in putting his surplus savings where they will bring the largest returns and be safe. We can show that nothing in the world is safer than almond soil in California planted with an orchard. We will show how this is proved by the experience of the planting there. PEP PUT IN PREPS BY ASSURANCE OF INTERCITY GAME

Chicago Champions to Be Decided This Week.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

COACH MOORE.
[Lane Tech.]

Since assurance came from the New York high school authorities that the champion team of Gotham will invade Chicago to take on the local prep champs, all players on the three teams still in the race here have reneweed interest in their play and the games this week that will determine the title and decide which one will battle the New Yorkers, promise to be as high spirited combats as the professionals ever played.

Parker, champions of the southern section, having lost to Lane and Harrison in the final round, are out of it. Lane, Harrison and Englewood will fight it out for the honor. Lane and Harrison each have a victory to their credit, each having beaten Parker. Englewood and Lane fought to a tie and will have to play again.

Englewood-Harrison Tomorrow.

The Englewood boys will take on Harrison tomorrow morning at Riverview park; Wednesday they will play Parker. Lane will play Harrison Wednesday and then Lane and Englewood will meet, possibly next Saturday, the game not yet being scheduled.

The big contest against the New Yorkers is booked for Saturday, June 26, at the Cubs park, and these final and deciding games should serve to put all three of the Chicago teams in good form for such a game. Whichever one lands the honor should be in better form than ever when the test comes for supremacy between the two cities. Along with these games of the final round, the coaches are giving the players long periods of batting drill and fielding practice each day besides blackboard lectures on the inside things of the game.

Incentive to Prep Players.

There is no doubt that the intercity contest and the prospect of a Chicago team going to New York next year has given the prep players more incentive than they ever were able to get from the coaching. Many of them are just beginning to grasp the fine points of baseball. In another year the high school teams of the city should be 25 per cent more efficient in the game because of their added interest and effort.

As would be expected from boys of little experience, many mistakes are made on the ball field. One reason for this may be that outsiders, who know little about the game, are apparently permitted to take part in the coaching. For instance, at the Lane-Englewood game, I noticed one man, who may have been a teacher, taking quite an active part in instructing the Englewood boys what to do and what not to do, though Coach Peacable was there for that purpose.

A Sample Misplay.

During the game a Lane batter bunted one down the third base line. The ball rolled slowly, not more than four inches foul. The Englewood third baseman stood away down near the bag, and, seeing it was a foul, waited for it to roll to him. Meanwhile the batter ran clear to first base.

Had that ball hit a pebble or something and bounded over on the fair side of the line it would have been a fair ball and no chance for a play, because the batter was already at first base. Of course, the Englewood third baseman should have dashed in and picked up the ball or at least touched it while it was foul, thus spoiling any chance for it to be a hit. Fortunately no pebble caused it to carom back into fair ground and the batter had to return.

The Outsider's Idea.

"That third baseman would look pretty bad if that ball had hit something and gone fair," was remarked to the "outsider."

"It would have been a foul ball anyway," was his positive reply.

"O, no, not if it had rolled fair before getting to third," was offered.

"Sure it would have been a foul ball. That wouldn't make it a fair one. It was rolling down on foul ground, wasn't it?"

That was the man advising the Englewood boys how to play, and they respectfully were listening to him.

LONDON PAPERS PRAISE GARDNER FOR TITLE MATCH

LONDON, June 12.—Cyril Tolley's victory over Robert Gardner of Chicago for the British amateur golf championship yesterday is received with natural gratification by London newspapers, but there is no extravagant note of triumph in their comments. Full credit is given Gardner's skill and pluck, and occasional betrayals of nervousness at critical moments have been noted as impartially in Tolley's case as in that of the American.

Pride in the young Oxonian, which is none the less because he won the military cross as an officer in the tank corps during the war, does not prevent whole-hearted admiration of Gardner, who, the Times says, "possesses the temperament of which champions are made."

HIGH SCHOOL WORLD'S SERIES.

CHAMPIONSHIP high school teams of Chicago and New York will meet in a game in this city June 26 to determine supremacy.

This game, made possible by the interest of THE TRIBUNE and New York News, with the coöperation of the high school athletic authorities, is underwritten by twenty public spirited firms and individuals. That is, if the gate receipts do not meet the expenses, the schools are guaranteed against loss, as they have no fund for this purpose. If there is a profit, the schools will get it.

The significance of the game, which probably will become an annual fixture with next year's contest in New York, lies not alone in which team is victorious, although, of course, we hope Chicago will win, but in the incentive it gives high school baseball players to learn and play the best baseball possible.

With a climax game at the end of each season, there is a stimulus all through the practice season and regular league schedule. It is a constructive move for raising the standard of high school baseball.

Some Triple Play.

W. S. calls attention to the report of an unusual triple play described in the St. Joseph, Mo., News-Press as follows:

>
> A St. Mary's batter hit the ball into the air above short and was called out on an infield fly. The wind blew the ball toward second, and as it fell it hit the runner who was standing just off the bag, and he was called out for being hit by a batted ball.
>
> Then the ball caromed toward first base, where the runner, disgusted at the luck of his teammates, grabbed the ball and threw it out of the lot, and was called out for interference.

[Ballad of the Bullivard.]

I met her only yesterday, upon the bull-i-vard,
With languid eyes she looked my way, and I fell for her quite hard.
I steered her toward a swell hotel; you know the place—it's where
They even have the nerve to charge for ozone in the air.

Then, while eating swell confections and cooling beverage there,
She conversed of swell connections away down east somewhere.
I listened quite attentively, then spoke about my pelf,
My clubs, my horses, limousines—I shoot the bull myself.

Today, I took my other shirt, to the laundry 'cross the way,
And there, behind the counter, found—my queen of yesterday.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Leading from start to finish and crossing the line with a great burst of speed despite the extreme heat, Oswald Larsen, the long distance runner of the Illinois A. C., yesterday won the thirteenth annual five mile road race of the Sleipner A. C. over the streets of the northwest side. Larsen covered the distance in 28:28 4-5.

Honors in the three mile novice race went to W. J. Ross of the Swedish American A. A., who came from behind in the last half of the contest. George Olsen of the Sleipner A. C. set the pace for the first mile and a half and then dropped out because of the heat. Ross then took the lead and although closely pressed by G. Gustafson of the Swedish American A. A., won by five yards. The winner's time was 17:33 4-5.

Large Fields Start.

Despite the heat large fields entered both races. Twenty-nine runners were sent away by Julian T. Fitzgerald in the five mile run and Larsen and Hankel immediately went out in the lead. Hankel tried to hold to the fast pace set by the tri-color club runner, but was compelled to drop back at the half way mark.

In the meantime Shou Christensen of the Logan Square A. C. came up and ran on even terms with Hankel during the fourth mile. In the dash to the tape in the last quarter mile, Christensen had more reserve and won second place by five yards. The other runners were strung out along the course.

Prize Winners.

Following are the prize winners in the three mile novice and the order in which they finished: W. J. Ross, Swedish American A. A.; G. Gustafson, Swedish American A. A.; C. H. Blum, C. H. I.; W. Perkins, un.; Ollie Ostergren, Swedish American A. A.; H. Baum, C. H. I., and Arthur Santchi, Sleipner A. C.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

Today's Question.

The Answers.

H. J. THOMPSON, 3709 Gladys avenue, a clerk—Of course, I have never seen Anson play ball, but I know he couldn't have been of as much value as Ruth. The game is harder today; it is more scientific. I don't believe Anson was worth as much as Ruth.

STEVEN SAWALSKI, 1928 North Hoyne avenue, an engraver—No. Babe Ruth is more valuable because the game pays more today than it did, and because the fans flock to the ball yard when they know Ruth is going to play. He is a greater drawing card.

W. A. KENDALL, Chattanooga, Tenn., business manager of a newspaper—Why, no. Babe Ruth is more valuable. The game was a different proposition in Anson's day. It is a much harder game now. And Ruth is the big star of a higher class of ball players.

HENRY H. EVANS, 4622 Calumet avenue, a jewelry salesman—I think so. Anson was the master. He played in hundreds of games. Babe Ruth is a flash, a mighty brilliant flash, I'll admit, but Anson was the consistent player.

G. B. HEGNEY, 4216 Adams street, an adjustor—Old "Pop" certainly was. He was the one big attraction of his day and he played just as good ball and more of it than Ruth plays today.

DIRECTOR STAGG NAMED REFEREE

Athletic Director A. A. Stagg of the University of Chicago has been chosen referee of the midwest Olympic track and field trials to be held on Stagg field June 26. Announcement of the selection was made yesterday by Everett C. Brown, Olympic committeeman in this district who will be in charge of the tests.

With the college athletic season over, Director Stagg has turned over his athletic field to the athletes who will compete in the trials. Last week the stars of both athletic clubs and the university were out in large numbers, while the squad will be increased this week with the arrival of out of town college performers who intend to compete in the central trials.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Boston, Mass., June 12.—[Special.]—Sergeant Grover Alexander and the Cubs broke their losing streak simultaneously today by scalping the Braves 8 to 1 in their opening game here. The sergeant had three two legged outfielders behind him and the Cubs were a much improved ball team.

MAX FLACK.

By bunching a flock of four swats with a couple of walks and a balk in the second inning, the Mitchells bagged four runs and the sergeant was on easy street thereafter. The Braves tagged him for seven hits altogether and two of them, with the help of an outfield fly, saved Boston from a shutout in the second inning.

Sub Outfielders Help.

Boss Mitchell used both Twombly and Friberg in the outfield, as Paskert was too lame after yesterday's efforts to go in again. Twombly delivered two hits in five chances and both of them figured in the run column. Friberg pulled off a safe and timely bunt which helped upset McQuillan in the glad second round.

Flack was the hitting kid, ripping off two singles and a home run of the geuine brand into deep right field. Flack also drew a pass and not until the ninth inning did the Braves retire him before he got to first.

Merkle Starts Trouble.

Merkle started the winning rally in the second with a single. Deal was hit on the leg. O'Farrell failed in bunting, then flied out. Friberg dumped a bunt toward third and beat it easily, filling the bases. Alexander struck out, but Flack whaled a single over Maranville's head, good for two runs. McQuillan made a balk and passed Hollocher, filling the bases again. Terry hit a nasty bounder which shot over Maranville's head and scored two more tallies.

Flack's home run came with two out and nobody on in the fourth. Singles by Twombly and Merkle and a wild chuck from the outfield let in a run in the fifth and that was all off McQuillan, who gave way to pinch hitter in the seventh.

NOTES OF THE CUBS

Boston, Mass., June 12.—[Special.]—The Cubs have three more games here, Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday.

Tomorrow, instead of being an off day for the crippled Cubs, brings an all day trip to Rocky Point and back to play an exhibition game against a team managed by Dave Shean. Manager Mitchell tried to call off the game, but Shean refused to cancel it.

Two youngsters from Brookline were in Cub uniform in case of more accidents to the Mitchells. They were a catcher named Mahoney and a shortstop named Palmer. Both have been tried out by Boston teams.

Word came from Chicago that Bill Killefer is the happy father of a young lady who has not yet been christened.

HURLER SALLEE SUSPENDED FOR RULE INFRACTION

New York, June 12.—Harry Sallee, the Cincinnati pitcher, was suspended for ten days by President Heydler today for violating the new pitching rules during yesterday's game at the Polo grounds. The National league president also announced that the indefinite suspension of Outfielder Roush would be lifted tomorrow so that he could play in Sunday's game with Cincinnati against Brooklyn.

Baseball Will Run Out Players Who Hurt Game

Cincinnati, O., June 12.—[Special.]—Both Magee and Chase are out of organized baseball forever, said President Ban Johnson of the American league yesterday. So, too, are twenty or thirty players who have jumped their contracts in order to play in outlaw leagues. The big league clubs, just like the newspapers and the public, are working for clean baseball, and just such an occurrence as the Magee case gave them the opportunity to prove it.

Pinch hitters kept the White Sox from tumbling into the second division yesterday. Eddie Murphy and Ted Jourdan were rushed into the tussle in the ninth frame, and singles by each started a rally that finished with two runs across, and the league champions to the good by 9 to 8 in the first of the series with Griff's Senators.

HAPPY FELSCH.

The matinée was a slugging affair from start to finish. Walter Johnson was on the mound for the visitors and was bumped quite consistently, but even then had a big edge until he weakened in the eighth and ninth. A grand total of eleven blows resulted from the Sox attack, where as the Senators peeled off fifteen safe clouts off Roy Wilkinson and Dick Kerr, who took up the hurling task in the midst of a base hit shower in the fifth frame.

Hap Felsch Hits Homer.

Among the notable swats of the afternoon was a homer by Hap Felsch. Jackson singled with one down in the sixth, and a moment later Hap pushed the pill into the left field seats. This brace of runs was sorely needed, as the Senators were leading by 5 to 4 at the time. Gleason's men couldn't hold the advantage, however, the visitors picking up two in the seventh and another in the eighth, only to be nosed out by the unexpected splurge of the South Siders.

The first happening of the ninth round was an easy infield out by McMullin. Murphy is known for his ability to hit Johnson's speed, so Gleason delegated him to bat for Schalk, who had fanned twice. Murphy responded with a bounding single over the pitcher's dome. Jourdan was sent forth to swing for Kerr and he shocked the multitude with a safe hit to right, Murphy going to third. McClellan ran for Jourdan, who has an ailing ankle.

Weaver's Single Wins Game.

Leibold socked a healthy line drive to right center and Rice managed to get it, but Murphy made home after the catch, tying the score. McClellan then stole second, and Johnson refused to give E. Collins a good ball to hit, so the latter walked. Weaver came up and slammed a clean liner to center, McClellan carrying the winning tally over the pan.

WHITE SOX NOTES

Griff's team is in bad shape. Milan sprained an ankle at St. Louis and Judge hasn't recovered from a spike wound received from Babe Ruth at New York.

Eddie Collins' speed gave him a base hit on an infield roller in the eighth. He went to third on a single by Weaver and scored when Felsch sent a long fly to Roth.

A fan who acted as though he had been drinking ether and brown sugar water started a fist fight in the grand stand in the ninth inning. He couldn't be suppressed until a bluecoat arrived and dragged him off the landscape.

SOX GAMES OPEN AT 3:30 O'CLOCK

Starting this afternoon, all games at Comiskey park will be called at 3:30 p. m., instead of 3 o'clock, as has been the custom for several years. Secretary Grabiner announced the change yesterday, claiming that many patrons, particularly those from the stockyards offices, had complained for some time about the 3 o'clock start. With daylight saving in effect there will be no fear of darkness under the new starting time but the fans probably will eat on Chicago time, hence there will be an epidemic of late dinners.

INDIANS DEFEAT YANKEES, 5 TO 4, IN TIGHT BATTLE

Caldwell Outpitches Quinn in Mound Duel.

Cleveland, O., June 12.—Cleveland won the first game of the series with New York, 5 to 4. It was hotly contested, with Caldwell outpitching Quinn, who had won eight straight games prior to today. But for an error by Wambsganss, New York would have scored only two runs, his misplay allowing New York to tie the count in the sixth inning. Score:

Airy-Lite
SUMMER COOL CLOTHES

DO the clothes you wear make summer weather 20 degrees warmer than it need be? Klingmade Airy-Lite summer cool clothes make you feel as comfortable as you do in sport togs. They bring cool breezes to you in the office, on the street, at home, everywhere. Light, porous, clean cut, they give you more enthusiasm for business and pleasure.

Airy-Lite are more than ordinary summer clothes. Correctly cut and carefully finished—stylish and well fitting—they have all the smartness of heavier suits—plus comfort. No padding, very little lining. Made in genuine Palm Beach Fabric, Coolkenny Crash, Aerpore Cloth, Cool Cloth, Shantung Silk and Priestley Mohairs.

Klingmade Airy-Lite suits are moderately priced. They cost no more than summer clothes of average quality, but they make you feel cooler and look better.

Go to any good dealer and ask for Klingmade Airy-Lite summer clothes. Try on a suit. You will find a wide range of sizes, shades and smart styles.

Majority of Awards Goes to Outside Entries.

Entries from other cities carried off a majority of the laurels in Chicago's most interesting horse show, which came to a brilliant close at South Shore Country club yesterday. In the morning the club staged a special exhibition for children and the seats were crowded with gleeful youngsters from charitable institutions. William E. Dee's boxing ponies received a great hand.

[Photo (C) U. & U.]

The championships in the various divisions were decided in the afternoon and evening, with keen speculation over the awards. There was a lively competition in the women's harness horse class, which was won by Miss Isabella Wanamaker of Philadelphia with Netherhall's Pride and Eve. Mrs. Loula Long Combs of Kansas City was second.

Mrs. Peabody Wins.

Great Heart, the jumper of Mrs. F. S. Peabody of Chicago, brought one trophy to this city, taking the high jump honors by clearing the bars at 6 feet 9 inches. Guy C. Woodin's Bateman won the hunters and jumpers' championship of the show. Mrs. J. K. Dering and George H. Heyl were heavy scorers in the pony events.

Among other winners in the principal classes were Miss Janice Liggett, Boston, whose Bohemian Actress was first among the three gaited saddle horses; Mrs. Combs, whose Animation won the blue ribbon for harness horses; R. E. Moreland of Lexington, Ky., whose Col. Stroller was victor in the single harness championship; W. L. Lewis, Tulso, Okla., whose Mass of Gold scored highest in the five gait saddle horse event; and Mrs. F. P. Garvan of New York, consistent scorer in the pony events.

The Prize Winners.

The draws for the open golf championship at Deal have been made. There are 168 professional and twenty-two amateur entries, which is only four less than for the open championship in 1914.

The qualifying competitions will be played at Walton and Weybridge June 23 and 24, and the championship games on the Deal links on June 30, and July 1.

The big men are divided remarkably well. The qualifying games will be played in two sections—A and B. Somewhat unfortunately, the two Americans, Walter Hagen, and Jim Barnes, will play in the same section—in which Harry Vardon, holder, Arnaud Massey, Abe Mitchell, Jack White and Angel Dela Torre, the Spanish champion, are playing.

LATONIA DERBY PRIZE TO UPSET; GLADIATOR NEXT

Big Crowd Sees Race; Paul Jones Scratched.

Latonia, Ky., June 12.—Upset won the Latonia Derby today. Gladiator was second and Ethel Gray third. The time for the mile and a half was 2:32. Rouleau, Capt. Mac, Peace Pennant, Prince Pal, and Makeup ran.

The track was fast and the weather ideal for racing. The attendance is said to have broken all records for this track.

Paul Jones, winner of the Suburban handicap and the Kentucky Derby, entered as a starter, was withdrawn on account of lameness. Sterling also was scratched.

The record time for the Latonia Derby is 2:30 2-5, held by Gov. Gray and John Gund.

MAN O' WAR SETS NEW RECORD IN BELMONT STAKE

New York, June 12.—Man o' War, the sensational 3 year old, made his second world's record in the Belmont stake at Belmont park today when he ran a mile and three furlongs in the remarkable time of 2:14 1-5. He won the event with ease against only one other starter, Donnacona.

Thirty thousand spectators went out, not to see him win, for the honors had been awarded to him in advance, but to watch him make a run against time.

Lincoln Park Amateur Shoot Won by Fessler

D. F. Fessler, local amateur, won the trophy for contestants shooting at seventy-five targets from twenty yards yesterday at the Lincoln Park Gun club. Fessler and J. H. May tied for first place with totals of 70. In the first shootoff they tied at 22, but in the second attempt to settle the trophy, Fessler broke 25 against 22 for his opponent. W. ESSEX MOTOR CARS

Essex Reveals True Economy

Not Limited to But One Advantage

It includes oil, tires and particularly repair costs.

The Essex consumes no more gasoline than other cars of similar capacity. And it is a common remark of all owners that it requires hardly any oil.

As for its tire economy, many reports are so remarkable that we repeat them only with the explanation that they are exceptional rather than average. One owner has a record of 29,600 miles on one set of tires that appear good for several thousand more miles of use.

The repair requirements are so slight that it has given Essex a distinctive position among all cars.

WHAT'S BEST WAY TO BEAT SOU'PAW IN GLOVE SPORT?

One Boxer Thinks He's Found Proper System.

BY RAY PEARSON.

Everybody who knows anything about the game of pugilism knows that these sou'paw boxers, especially when they happen to have class, as in the case of Johnny Panica, which is the honest to goodness name of Johnny Wilson, middleweight champion, and Lew Tendler, the Philadelphia lightweight, are mighty tough fellows to handle. It isn't because they wallop harder or possess greater skill, but because they don't do things in the stereotyped way. They're an awkward class, any right handed scrapper will say.

Having watched this Tendler person engage in a ten rounder with Pinkie Mitchell and beat him by a margin that could not be disputed, and also having watched Richie Mitchell, Pinkie's brother, scrap the Philadelphia sou'paw more than ever convinces us that sou'paws are tough 'uns.

Here's a Question.

Having come to this conclusion, the writer has quizzed several boxers, the principal question asked being:

Now, as a rule, boxers don't do any considerable amount of studying out these things unless they happen to be matched to scrap one of the fellows who jab with the right hand, but as these matches come so rarely because sou'paws seldom get very far in the glove game, we found little success in getting a solution to the problem. Most of those with whom we talked didn't know of any way to beat a classy left hander and simply shook their heads, indicating the question was a bit too deep for them.

Solution Offered.

But we did manage to find one fellow, and a lightweight, too, who offered something in the way of a solution. He didn't care to have his name mentioned, but the way he would beat a sou'paw is interesting. Perhaps his system may be O. K.; perhaps no good at all, but at any rate there seems to be some logic in the way he has figured it out. Here's the way he puts it:

"I've never had a battle with a sou'paw opponent, but it seems to me a right hander should be able to find a way to beat these awkward fellows who jab with the right hand and cross or hook with the left. Now I think that the thing to do when meeting this type is to let him jab with his right, I mean not to try to stop him from landing his jab, for jabs don't do any damage. It's pretty nearly a cinch that after he has found that he can plant his right where and when he wants to he will quickly follow the right with his left cross or hook. Then is the time for the right handed fellow to bring into play the stuff that does the work.

Make Sou'paw Miss.

"He should take the jab, but always keep his eyes watching for the left and when it comes over make the sou'paw miss with it. Then after missing the sou'paw would have shot all he had and the chances are he would be off his balance which should give a quick and alert right handed person the chance to speed in with a hard wollop."

"But what if the sou'paw didn't miss?" we timidly asked.

"Oh, he might not always miss, but some time he's going to and that's the time to send over the stuff that makes the birdies sing," was our informant's reply.

WOMEN IN ATHLETICS TODAY.

Three events for women will feature the west zone tryouts of the city wide track and field championships at the Chicago Hebrew institute athletic field today. The events are fifty and 100 yard dashes and running broad jump. Fourteen contests will be staged in the big meet, which is under the supervision of Clayton Everett of the Alverno A. A. The contests will start at 2 o'clock.

CITY HIGH SCHOOLS QUALIFY BOYS IN PRELIMS TO MEET

PRELIMINARIES in nine of the senior and seven of the junior events of the Chicago high school league track and field meet, which will be held at Riverview park tomorrow afternoon, were run off yesterday at Douglas park playground. With fourteen schools entering a total of 252 athletes—a new entry record for the league—it was necessary to run preliminaries in all but four of the senior and three of the junior events.

Crane Tech loomed the strongest of the contesting teams, placing twenty men in the senior events and nineteen in the junior. Hyde Park stood second and Senn third in the total number of men placed in the senior events. Senn stood a close second in the junior meet, qualifying fourteen.

Slutzkin of Schurz set a new junior record for the eight pound shot, putting the weight 43 feet 1 inch, which bettered the former mark by one foot and seven inches.

No times or record of the heats were made, the athletes being divided into heats of four and the first two men qualifying in the track events. The field events were boiled down to either six or eight finalists. Qualifiers:

Benny Leonard to Train for White Bout on Coast

Los Angeles, Cal., June 12.—Benny Leonard will condition himself here for his fight with Charlie White at Benton Harbor, instead of going to Chicago or the Michigan city. His reasons are that he can reduce weight easier and that the mountains of California afford better training. Leonard, who scales over 150 pounds, must come to 13ᵤ pounds at 10 o'clock the morning of the fight, July 5.

TENNIS MATCHES TO SOUTH SIDERS BY 8 TO 1 SCORE

Victory Over South Parks Proves a Surprise.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

South Side Tennis club started the 1920 team race for the city association championship with a signal triumph of eight individual contests to one against South Park in the division A competition on the south side courts yesterday. The heavy margin was a surprise, as South Park had been the annual unbeaten winner in the south section for several seasons.

One of the best fights was the singles match in which George O'Connell upset Harold Forster, 3—6, 6—1, 6—2. Every one of the three doubles encounters was bitterly contested. That in which O'Connell and Harry Vories won from E. E. Wiley and Perry Segal, 6—4, 7—5, was featured by spirited sallies. Summaries:

Singles—A. P. Hubbell, South Side, beat Perry Segal, S. Park, 6—1, 6—4; Harry Vories, S. Side, beat E. E. Wiley, S. Park, 6—1, 6—3; Thomas Cochrane, S. Side, beat Harry Holbrook, S. WOODS AND WATERS

BY LARRY ST. JOHN

SOME SOUTHERN MICHIGAN WATERS.

BULLETIN—Season on Large and Small Mouthed Black Bass in Michigan opens June 16.

IN spite of being well settled, southern Michigan still offers excellent black bass fishing. Lakes, most of them small and good for casting, are found in almost every county and some of the Michigan rivers are not only well stocked with bass but are of surprising scenic beauty as well. Varying conditions offer both small and large mouthed bass fishing, the former being more common in the rivers while the big mouths are most often taken in the lakes.

There is no particular secret to successful fishing in Michigan nor is special tackle needed. Good strings are taken there by still fishing, trolling, bait casting, skittering or fly fishing. Pickerel and the common pan fishes also abound in most Michigan waters.

* *

Along the coast of Lake Michigan are some lakes that are much fished but still yield mighty fine catches. Take White lake. It used to be used for lumbering and old docks, rollways, piers and booms abound where casters, trollers and still fishers catch bass and pickerel.

In the summer months white bass are numerous, the best lure being a small minnow or a number 10 trout fly. This lake connects with Lake Michigan by a short channel and on the White lake end of the channel many big bass are taken with minnows.

Duck lake, a smaller piece of water, is near by and is a fine lake for black bass. Coming down the lake a few miles you find Muskegon lake. It has as large a variety of fish as any lake we know. Everything from muskellunge, sturgeon and big lake cats down to minnows are caught here; lots of bass and pickerel. The lake is about six miles long and relics of the old lumbering days make excellent casting spots. Bear lake, fine bass waters, connects with Muskegon lake by a channel. Some trout creeks in the vicinity.

Another drop to the south along Lake Michigan and you come to Spring lake, at Grand Haven. It is a cut up, spread out affair and although a resort place, the fishing is better than you would expect. The same may be said of Black lake at Holland. Nothing to speak of but white bass in the main lake but Waukazoo and Pine creek bayous offer good bass casting. Kalamazoo lake, at Saugatuck, is a widening of the Kalamazoo river with many channels and backwaters; the bass fishing is good and pan fishes are more than common.

Do not overlook the rivers that flow into Lake Michigan. The White, Muskegon, Grand, Kalamazoo and St. Joe are all good bass streams and good canoeing rivers, flowing, for the most part, through prettily wooded country.

Going inland a ways you will find a whole nest of lakes north of Kalamazoo and reached by interurban from that city. Gun lake is a fine piece of casting water; then there are Gull, Crooked, Pine, Long and Wall lakes. South of Kalamazoo you will find Austin, Indian, another Long lake and the Portage river.

Near Dowagiac are Keeler, Indian, Whip, Magician, and Sister lakes; near Lawton are Bankston and Cedar lakes; in the vicinity of Cassopolis are Diamond, Birch, Eagle, Juno and a number of smaller lakes. Going eastward you will find good bass lakes near Fabius, the famous Corey chain and others, while the vicinity of Coldwater and Hillsdale offer some topnotch bass waters.

At three Rivers the Portage and Rock join the upper St. Joe. From here to Constantine the water is backed up by the Constantine power dam and good casting is found in the weedy water, the favorite lure being a river chub; from Constantine to Bristol, Ind., the St. Joe is a fine stretch of fast water, good for either bait or fly. Near Bristol, but in Michigan, are Baldwin and Long lakes, both of them good bass waters.

Jumping eastward again you will find fine groups of bass lakes north of Ann Arbor, west of Fenton and west of Pontiac. In fact you can place your hand on a map of southern Michigan and it will cover a number of good bass lakes and at least one good stream.

For the angler who wants a variety of fishing but who must keep in too close touch with other affairs to permit a trip to the wilderness, surely southern Michigan, with its numerous lakes and rivers and good roads, offers many advantages.

VANITIE WINNER IN SEVENTH RAC OF YACHT SERIE

Newport, R. I., June 12.—Vani outsailed Resolute on every le a triangular race of thirty mile day, winning by 4 minutes and 2 onds corrected time, and 5 minute seconds elapsed time. It was the s enth race of the series to select defenders of the America's cup Vanitie's third success.

Resolute allowed Vanitie an ini advantage by permitting the Gar boat to cross the starting line 1 ute and 30 seconds ahead of it, ticipating that it would be able to better wind and draw up on its during the reach to the first mar

After three miles the wind ha around from northeast to south making the leg a beat instead of reach. Vanitie picked up the wind first, beating Resolute 3 min 2 seconds elapsed time on the first

On the second leg Vanitie gai 23 seconds more in reaching, and the third leg, a run down the wind which both yachts tacked to leewa Vanitie added 2 minutes and 1 onds. Summary:

THE CAR THAT MADE GOOD IN A DAY
STUTZ

There is Only One STUTZ Car

We are proud of the STUTZ. It is a thoroughbred, born and reared on the race courses of America. It never shuns a brush with the best.

This institution is the builder of but one product—the STUTZ car—and is devoting all of its skill, all of its energy and resources, to the manufacture of that car.

Only the STUTZ car, manufactured by the Stutz Motor Car Co. of America, can measure up the reputation of the STUTZ institution.

Stutz reputation is the accumulation of years of experience on the race track, of immense manufacturing facilities, of thousands of miles of performance in the hands of owners.

We are proud of the STUTZ reputation on the race track, but STUTZ racing successes were instrumental only in perfecting the design.

The STUTZ car itself is the real achievement into which is built the prestige of mechanical perfection, of user satisfaction, of unusual dignity and class.

Without its many trials in racing, without its efficient manufacturing organization, without the big capable institution behind it, there could be no STUTZ car.

The STUTZ car is a combination of all these things—impossible of duplication in a day, a month or a year, but only after years of experimenting, years of careful preparation, years of actually "making good."

BIG LONGS SELL CORN AND OATS; CLOSE IS LOWER

BY CHARLES D. MICHAELS.

Heavy selling by the leading longs in corn and oats more than offset the effect of hot and dry weather over the belt, and while prices were higher early, the close was at net losses of ¾@2½c, while oats were 1@2¾c lower, rye unchanged to 1⅛c higher, and barley 1c higher.

While corn prices were sharply higher early in the week, the close Saturday was irregular as compared with a week ago, July being 1⅝c lower and September 2c higher. Oats showed great strength and closed 5⅝@6⅞c higher, rye 5¼@8¼c higher, and barley 3c higher.

Local traders were bullish on corn at the start, due to the upturn in oats and the continued light receipts. The best recent buyers, however, were heavy and persistent sellers, and July dropped sharply to $1.70½, or 4c under the early top. Week end evening up and buying on resting orders checked the decline.

Cash corn was weak and 2@4c lower. Part of the receipts was grain that had been out for some time. The car situation was reporter as better, and consignment notices were larger, one firm having 125 cars in transit. Actual receipts were materially under the estimates. The latter was the basis for considerable selling, preliminary returns indicating 210 cars.

New High on Oats.

Leading bulls in September oats took advantage of a bulge of 2½c early to a new high on the crop to start to unload. Dry and hot weather prevailed over the belt, and damage reports were received, but the selling persistent and prices yielded gradually with huge trade on. At the inside figure, September was off 3¾c from the top, with the close on a moderate rally. Strong commission houses sold July frely. Premiums in the sample market weakened after being firm early.

Champaign, Ill., reported 20,000 bu new grain bought for August-September shipment at 80c, track loading stations.

Rye showed considerable strength and closed firm. Houses with seaboard connections bought July, and Sold September at 20@20½c difference. An outside market reported 15,000 bu sold to Baltimore at 29c over July, prompt shipment guaranteed.

Lard Offered Freely.

The feature in provisions was the selling of around 2,000,000 lbs July lard at $20.80 by Armour, which was taken by Wagner and Harris-Winthrop. At the close prices were 5c lower for the day. Ribs were sold more freely by carriers, with the buying scattered and the close 2½c lower to unchanged, while pork was slow and unchanged to 5c lower. Cash trade was moderate. Shipments of lard and meats for the week increased 2,516,000 lbs, being 20,959,000 lbs, against 39,027,000 last year. Packing here since March 1 aggregates 1,638,000 hogs, or 536,000 less than last year's.

ADDRESS B O 476, TRIBUNE

WORLD'S·GRAIN MARKET·NEWS

Corn and oat traders were very bearish at the close Saturday, in expectation of lower prices on Monday. They based their predictions on prospects of larger receipts. The inspection sheet, however, showed only 153 cars corn and 53 cars oats. More than 200 cars were estimated early. It was understood the inspectors on the leading roads will not work Sunday. The receipts on Monday, however, may show as high as 400 cars. The future course of prices is largely a question of cars and receipts, as a majority of traders see it.

It is said the big local and eastern traders who have been largely responsible for the sharp upturn in prices of late were the largest sellers of both corn and oats yesterday. A big local trader was a heavy seller of September oats at 84c late in the day, while others were equally heavy buyers. One house that has been on the selling side off and on of late took a big line at 84c. The top price of the day, 87½c, was the highest on record for September delivery, and the close was 3½c under the top of the morning.

A lot of selling of September oats was on late in the day, based on the favorable weekly weather forecast, which was decidedly different from early expectations.

Dressed beef prices are up 1½@3c a pound within the last two weeks as a result of an advance of $3.50 to $4 in the price of live cattle. Hog prices at $15.30 yesterday were the highest of the month.

High temperatures over the leading grain states should force the crops along rapidly. As yet there has been no deterioration from climatic conditions.

The month of June, says an old trader, is not generally a good time to get too bullish on grain, especially around the present level. It is also well to use caution in selling on the extreme break.

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

Shipping sales of cash grain at Chicago yesterday were 14,000 bu corn and 18,000 bu oats.

A good demand for wheat was reported at the seaboard with light offerings, but aside from sales of 200,000 to 500,000 bu to Holland at $3.12@3.14, f. o. b. Baltimore, no business was claimed. There were 20,000 bu sold c. i. f. Georgian Bay, at $2.90.

Bids on new No. 2 hard or red winter to arrive advanced 5c to the basis of $2.70 for August and $2.70 for September shipment, track Chicago. Receipts, 3 cars, with No. 4 northern sold at $2.80. Minneapolis unchanged to 5c lower.

While receipts of cash corn were not as large as expected the demand was rather slow and prices declined 2@5c, closing at the bottom with the leading industry the best buyer. Arrivals, 153 cars. Sample grade averaged 10@20c lower. A car of corn testing 13 per cent moisture arrived in a heating condition. Oats, 1@4c lower, with premiums off 4c, with No. 2 white down to 12c and No. 3 white 8c over July.

With half the number of hogs expected, Saturday's market advanced 10@20c, best selling at $15.35, or 90c above a week ago, and the highest since May 10. Shippers purchased freely, while the big packers were indifferent buyers. Day's average price was $14.65, against $13.80 a week ago and $21.03 a year ago.

Week's hog receipts at 150,300 were the smallest in six weeks, with the estimated average weight at 228 lbs, second lightest in five months, against 234 lbs previous week and 231 lbs a year ago.

Closing cattle trade was strong, with the week's average price of good beef steers, $2, above previous week and highest since last December, at $15.05, against $13.50 a year ago. Last August the record average of $17.30 was established.

There were no sheep on sale Saturday, the 5,000 received going direct to packers. Closing lamb values were 50c@$1.00 higher than a week ago.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 17,000 cattle, 40,000 hogs and 11,000 sheep, against 13,904 catle, 37,425 hogs and 8,068 sheep corresponding Monday a year ago.

Next Week's receipts are estimated at 53,000 cattle, 150,000 hogs and 45,000 sheep, against 48,818 cattle, 189,240 hogs, and 74,769 sheep a year ago.

Probable receipts of hogs for Monday are estimated from 30,000 to 45,000. Edward Morris and F. W. Waddell marked 45,000; E. R. Gentry and W. H. Overman, 43,000; G. M. Nicoll and F. R. Burrows, 41,000; J. M. Waters, 39,000, and Felix Gehrmann, 30,000.

CORN RECEIPTS LARGER

Corn receipts at Chicago last week of 1,655,000 bushels exceeded the previous week by 553,000 bushels, but were 623,000 bushels short of last year and the smallest at this time in over four years. The movement of oats is also the smallest in four years or more. While there is a wider distribution of box cars at interior loading points in Iowa and Illinois, there is an acute shortage in the aggregate supply. Loadings west of the Mississippi river have increased, but east of it show no particular enlargement.

More grain, particularly, is being loaded out of Missouri river terminals for shipment eastward and strenuous efforts are being made to furnish cars to country elevator interests so that the grain can be moved before it gives out of condition, as the germinating season is at hand and keeping qualities are poor.

Eastern roads are taking more grain and their loadings increased 315,000 bushels last week and flour shipments increased materially, being the largest at this time in five years, while of provisions there was a good average.

ORGANIZATION

The Shotwell Manufacturing Company was incorporated under the laws of Illinois in 1903 for the purpose of manufacturing Popcorn and Candy Specialties.

BUSINESS

The Company is one of the two largest buyers of Popcorn in the world; sales of its trademarked confection "Checkers" last year amounting to 30,000,000 packages. The Company also manufactures Candy Specialties. In addition to a considerable foreign business the Company has over 7,000 active wholesale accounts in this country.

PROPERTIES

The Company owns Candy Factories in Chicago and Brooklyn, Grain Elevators at Arthur, Iowa, and Ord, Nebraska, and a warehouse at Odebolt, Iowa. The factories are equipped with special automatic machinery and the elevator at Arthur is the largest in the world handling Popcorn exclusively.

ASSETS

Net tangible assets are over $1,360,000, which is equal to over $30.00 per share for this Preferred Stock, and net quick assets are approximately $800,000, which is equivalent to $17.70 per share.

EARNINGS

The Company has averaged over $65,000 per year for five years, and during the six months ended December 31, 1919, net earnings were over $120,000, or at the rate of over 240,000 per year. This is sufficient to pay the regular 8% dividend and in addition an extra dividend of 8% more, making a total of 16% each on both the Preferred and Common Stocks. These earnings include no return from the investment in the new factory now under construction.

SAFEGUARDS

No mortgage or other encumbrances (except purchase-money-mortgages on newly acquired property) may be issued without the consent of three-fourths of the Stock, each share of both classes having equal voting power.

PURPOSE OF THIS ISSUE

The proceeds of this Preferred Stock will be used partly to pay for the additional candy factory now under construction, which is needed to take care of an immense existing demand which the Company is at present unable to handle.

PRICE—subject to allotment, we offer the unsold balance of our purchase of the 8% Cumulative Participating Preferred Stock (Class "A" shares) at $10.00 per share. The telegraph may be used at our expense.

RESERVE BANKS IMPOSE HALT ON INFLATED CREDIT

The Chicago clearing house banks will open at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning and will close at 2 p. m. The Chicago stock exchange will open at 9 o'clock and will close at 2 p. m., an hour later in both cases than heretofore.

The improvement in the transportation situation, coupled with the extraordinary efforts to force a deflation of credit, is reflected in the weekly statements of the federal reserve banks. The freer liquidation of commodities and the restrictions imposed on borrowing by advancing rediscount rates or imposing graduated rates resulted in a general decrease in loans and an improvement in reserves.

The action of the New York and Chicago institutions in advancing the rediscount rate on loans on commercial bills to 7 per cent produced marked results last week, although in the previous week it appeared to be ineffective in checking borrowing. Other and various restrictions put into effect by the other federal reserve banks showed their effect in a considerable decrease in loans, as indicated in the combined statement of the twelve federal reserve institutions.

New York Loans Cut.

The New York federal reserve bank showed a decrease in total loans of $17,444,000, this recession being entirely the result of a drop in loans on commercial bills, which declined $17,920,000, whereas loans on government securities increased $476,000. The borrowings of member banks remained about the same, but other federal reserve banks contracted their borrowings by $18,352,000. Total bills on hand decreased $12,464,000.

Probably the most important change was a contraction of $10,865,129 in outstanding federal reserve note circulation. Gold reserves increased $5,928,939. Total deposits decreased $13,734,808. The ratio of reserves to deposit and note liabilities combined rose to 40.6 from 40.1 per cent in the preceding week, and the ratio of reserves to net deposits, after deducting 40 per cent gold reserve against note circulation, rose to 41.2 from 40.2 per cent in the preceding week.

Chicago Improvement Marked.

The statement of the Chicago federal reserve bank showed more marked improvement.

Total loans declined $11,722,917, the decrease being represented entirely by commercial bills, which receded $17,319,216, whereas loans on government securities increased $5,596,299. Total bills on hand declined $13,412,957. The decrease in loans was accompanied by a decline of $2,307,717 in the member banks' reserve account. Total gold reserves gained $1,75,158. Note circulation decreased $5,940,764. Total gross deposits declined $11,561,037.

As a result of these changes the bank was able to reduce its indebtedness to other federal reserve banks by $5,600,000, this item now standing at $13,400,000, and at the same time improve its reserve position. The ratio of reserves to net deposit and note liabilities combined rose to 40.54 from 39.69 per cent in the preceding week, and the ratio of reserves to note circulation, after setting aside 35 per cent against net deposit liabilities, rose to 43 from 41.8 per cent in the preceding week.

New York Also Improves.

The statement of the New York associated banks also showed further improvement, the chief factor being a reduction in loans, which receded $15,264,000. Net demand deposits declined $14,610,000 and time deposits decreased $1,544,000. Cash declined $2,599,000 and note circulation was $165,000 lower.

The excess reserve increased $9,531,510, now standing at $38,098,910. The member banks increased their reserve accounts at the federal reserve bank by $8,422,000. Aggregate reserve increased $8,202,000. Government deposits increased slightly.

Consolidated Statement.

The consolidated statement of the twelve federal reserve banks showed a decrease in total loans of $41,308,000, and here again the decline is represented entirely by commercial loans, which receded $48,824,000, whereas loans secured by war paper increased $7,516,000. Total bills on hand decreased $48,100,000. Federal reserve note circulation showed a decline of $15,086,000. Deposits declined $43,755,000, government deposits dropping $15,283,000. The member banks increased their reserve accounts $11,466,000. Holdings of treasury certificates increased $5,292,000.

Total gold reserves increased $4,205,000, while total reserves increased $3,651,000. The ratio of total reserves to net deposit and note liabilities combined rose to 43 from 42.5 per cent in the preceding week, and the ratio of gold reserves to note circulation, after setting aside 35 per cent against net deposit liabilities, rose to 47.5 from 46.9 per cent in the preceding week.

METAL MARKETS.

NEW YORK, June 12.—No fresh feature has developed in the copper market during the last week. Producing interests have maintained their asking price of about 19 cents for electrolytic for June, July, and August delivery, but the quotation was more or less nominal in the absence of any important business. Iron was unchanged.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—LEAD—Unchanged at 8.60c. ZINC—Slab, weaker, at 7.65c.

DRY GOODS MARKETS.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Cotton goods today were quiet, yarns easy, burlaps firmer, linens quiet, and knit goods dull. Textile production continues to decline owing to the closing of mills, many of which find themselves without orders due to cancellations in silks and woolens.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE

CHICAGO MONEY MARKET.

Money in Chicago steady; 7½ per cent on collateral; commercial paper, 6½@7¼ per cent; 6½@7 per cent over the counter. New York exchange by wire, par; by mail, 15@30c discount.

Chicago bank clearings yesterday were $107,565,603, as compared with $98,512,334 a week ago, and $85,121,737 a year ago.

The New York Times.

New York, June 12.—[Special.]—The overnight news from the convention at Chicago again pleased the stock market, and with no outstanding events of disconcerting nature to offset this the opening was firm.

Business was not unusually heavy, but there was enough to give the list the appearance of activity, especially among the recently favored industrial specialties.

Stocks in the steel, motor and oil groups attracted a good deal of attention during the first hour, and Crucible Steel, the sensation of the day before, was run up more than 6 points, while Mexican Petroleum, another present favorite, also was in brisk demand.

Market Is Variable.

At about the close of the first hour, however, the character of the market changed, there was a pause and trading went absolutely flat, followed by profit taking and then by quite a little free selling. At this time it looked as if the activity of the first hour had been more or less artificial, and when the support was withdrawn a good many stop orders were uncovered and prices eased off.

A sharp drive in the railroad list developed, too, with Great Northern preferred and Northern Pacific feeling the weight most heavily. These two stocks fell off rapidly, going down 3 or 4 points. The occurrence upset the whole market and at the close of the day the tone was distinctly weak.

G. O. P. "Scare" Is Factor.

At the beginning of the second hour a story got around on the floor of the stock exchange that a snag of some sort had been encountered at Chicago, and the confidence that no radical victory would be scored there was shaken for a little while. This probably had something to do with the change in market sentiment, but before the session came to an end the report was contradicted and it was then said the delegates were closer to a decision that at any time previously and that the decision would favor a candidate entirely acceptable to business.

But this assurance came too late to do the market much good.

COTTON NEWS

NEW YORK, June 12.—Cotton prices had a narrow range. Traders disregarded the weather map as a bear factor. There was fair buying on the weak spots and a moderate rally from the low point. The trade is looking for consumptive figures to be published on Monday to have sufficient influence to lift the market out of the rut. Net gains were 2 to 12 points. Prices follow:

Cause for Gratitude

We have a lot of things to be grateful for.

There never was a time in the history of the country when bankers and business men in general displayed as much intelligence and confidence, and so little corresponding fear and panic relative to the business situation, as they are showing today.

The result is that while the country is beset with many difficulties and unanswered questions, it is experiencing a readjustment to more normal conditions without the serious setbacks which characterized similar periods.

This is real cause for gratitude.

We recently completed a 300 ton gray iron foundry for the General Motors Corporation in Saginaw. Other clients in Michigan for whom we have designed industrial plants include—

THE KEYSTONE FACTOR
of Integrity in Investments

Three factors enter into the purchase of investment securities—Safety—Income—Integrity. But the greatest of these is Integrity.

Integrity alone stands sponsor for the character of your investment, and bulwarks the factors of Safety and Income, to make them more than mere meaningless terms.

For this reason we call Integrity the Keystone Factor.

For a third of a century H. O. Stone & Co. has builded its business upon the foundation of conservatism that keystones the arch of investment. That this great organization has builded wisely its very growth attests.

From the man with but a hundred dollars to invest to the single client who has intrusted more than twelve millions of dollars to the investment judgment of H. O. Stone & Co., not one has ever had cause to regret the confidence placed in us.

Today, in times when many former "investments" have become speculative, the 6% securities offered by H. O. Stone & Co., aside from government bonds, are one of the few classes of securities that have stood the acid test of safety. Why? Because these securities are backed by improved real estate of known value.

He who prefers to consider first Integrity, then Safety and Income, will find in H. O. Stone & Co. securities the maximum protected return on his investment.

We invite inquiries from investors who appreciate the bed-rock strength of the Keystone Factor of Integrity in Investments.

Our several departments covering the branches of real estate, mortgage loans and investment bonds are equipped to furnish experienced, courteous, personal service, no matter how small or how large the transaction may be.

HARDING & COOLIDGE!

BEAT LEADERS TO NOMINATE BAY STATE MAN

For Once Delegates Have Own Way.

BY ARTHUR M. EVANS.

Gov. Calvin Coolidge of Massachusetts was picked as "running mate" for Senator Warren G. Harding in short order. It was one spot where the convention acted spontaneously. The delegates, relieved of the strain of listening for bandwagons, put Coolidge up for vice president without any "management" being perceptible in the process. Four candidates were put in the field, but the Massachusetts man who was reëlected last November after his vigorous action in the Boston police strike by the largest plurality known in New England, made almost a one man parade of it.

The group of senators and others who had engineered the breaking of the deadlock over the head of the ticket contemplated the selection of Senator Irvine Lenroot of Wisconsin. But the "untrammeled" delegates, as Murray Crane termed them last week, kicked up their heels and ran all over the pasture lot.

Senators for Lenroot.

Senator Medill McCormick of Illinois nominated Lenroot. A. T. Hert of Kentucky, the Lowden floor manager, and Senator Calder of New York were the first to second him.

Some one back in the Oregon chairs made his voice heard above the tumult and nominated Coolidge. Elbert S Smith of Springfield reared his patriarchal beard out of the Illinois delegation and seconded it. From all parts of the hall came similar responses.

Gov. Henry Allen of Kansas was nominated by W. J. Bailey, head of the Kansas delegation, in a perfectly good speech which was swallowed up in the hullaballoo.

A Virginian names Henry W. Anderson of Virginia.

Result of Ballot.

The ballot as announced:

Coolidge	674½
Lenroot	146½
Allen	68½
Anderson	28

Coolidge's vote was the same as that rolled up by Harding for president. Or, rather, to be precise, it was exactly two-fifths of a vote smaller.

Thus the governor of the old Bay state, nominated by a man from the Pacific slope, landed in second place on the ticket by the simple process of letting nature take its course in the convention. Spontaneity is the right word.

STORY OF FINAL DAY

The final day's session of the convention opened in a broiling temperature of 89 degrees at 10:25 a. m. The hall's well filled; the temperature is rising. Francis Taylor, who was secretary to Franklin MacVeagh, secretary of the treasury under Taft, takes his position in the main aisle and scowls like a "bouncer"—he is head of the sergeants at arms on the floor. New York's seats are empty; the delegates are in "corkus" somewhere. Indiana is perspiring under its suspenders and has to be told to sit down.

FRANCIS W. TAYLOR.
[Copyright: Moffett.]

A subtle change is in the tone of the convention. There seems to be a great calmness. The excitement and turmoil of Friday have left everybody weary; yawning a bit on the inside. Interest, however—the deep, underlying interest—is more intense than ever; the convention has reached that absorbing problem known as "breaking the deadlock."

Prayer, Then Ballot.

Bishop Thomas Nicholson, who looks like a rabbi but is a Methodist, offers a prayer, and Lodge orders the

Population of Chicago 2,701,212

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., June 12.—[Special.]—Chicago's total population is 2,701,212. The figures were announced tonight by the census bureau.

This represents an increase of 515,929 over the 1910 population of 2,185,283. The ten year gain was an increase of 23.6 per cent.

Chicago's percentage increase was greater than that of New York, St. Louis, Pittsburgh, San Francisco, Buffalo, Milwaukee, Newark, Cincinnati, and New Orleans, but less than that of Washington, Baltimore, Los Angeles, Minneapolis, Seattle, and Indianapolis.

Has Average Increase of Big Cities.

The average increase computed in percentages for the seventeen cities with a population of more than 300,000 for which totals have thus far been announced by the census bureau is 24.2 per cent. The Chicago figure thus runs close to the average.

The New York City incerase was considerably less than the average, being only 17.9 per cent, while Los Angeles leads the list with 80.3 per cent.

The number of inhabitants added to Chicago's population during the ten year period, 515,929, was exceeded only by New York, where the increase amounted to 854,268. Los Angeles added a quarter of a million.

Chciago, as the second city in the United States, has a population slightly less than one-half that of New York. It probably exceeds Philadelphia by approximately 1,000,000.

City's Slowest Decade.

The percentage of increase in the population of Chicago during the last ten years was less than during any other ten year period in the city's history. It was slightly less than during the ten year period from 1900 to 1910 and much below the ratio in previous ten year periods.

Nevertheless Chicago's rate of increase since 1910 was 5.7 per cent greater than New York's during the same period. It was the second largest growth numerically in Chicago's history, and was the third time Chicago had shown an increase of more than half a million.

Record by Decades.

The first census on record shows a population for Chicago, in 1840 of 4,479. It jumped during the next ten years 570.3 per cent to 28,269 in 1850.

In the next ten years it increased 264.6 per cent, the total in 1860 being 109,206. The following ten years there was a jump of 173.6 per cent, making a total of 298,977 in 1870. From 1870 to 1880 the increase was 68.3 per cent, the total in the latter year being 503,298. Then followed an increase of 18.6 per cent, bringing a total of 1,099,850 in 1890. From 1890 to 1900 the increase amounted to 54.4 per cent, the total in the latter year being 1,698,575. The population reached 2,185,283 in 1910, the increase during the ten year period being 28.7 per cent.

Cities Which Exceed 300,000.

Cities with a population of more than 300,000 for which totals have thus far been announced by the census bureau.

OUT OF TOUCH WITH POLITICS, ROOT IS SILENT

[Copyright: 1920.]

THE HAGUE, June 12.—Elihu Root, who arrived here last night from Plymouth, absolutely refuses to speak either on political events in America or his coming work on the commission for the permanent court of justice.

"The work of this commission is entirely technical, having no political aspect," Mr. Root said. "Therefore, I am not at liberty to say anything."

At the time of cabling the results of the Chicago convention were not yet known here, but Mr. Root gave the impression that he is not thoroughly informed on the doings of the Republican party in the last few days, and is, therefore, afraid to commit himself.

The commission will open formally and publicly June 16.

LENIN FLEEING? TROTZKY SLAIN? SO JAPS REPORT

TOKIO, June 10.—[Delayed.]—Information that the Moscow government has been overthrown, that Leon Trotzky has been killed, and that Premier Lenin is a fugitive, said to come from the Vladivostok government, is printed in an extra edition of the Asahi Shimpen. A new government headed by Gen. Brussiloff is reported to have been established.

London reports of May 19 had Gen. Alexis Brussiloff, former commander in chief of the Russian armies, in supreme authority at Moscow, in place of Nikolai Lenin.

PARIS MONUMENT TO EDITH CAVELL IS MASTERPIECE

[Chicago Tribune-New York Times Cable.]
[Copyright: 1920.]

PARIS, June 12.—In the Tuilleries gardens Monsieur Maginot, minister of prisons, this morning unveiled the monument to Nurse Edith Cavell.

It depicts the martyred nurse lying dead at the foot of a burning building, to recall the German destruction in Belgium. On her knees there is a German "pickelhaube," and Sculptor Gabriel Pech has skillfully conveyed the impression of the limbs, even though cold in death, still oppressed by the huge weight of the helmet, arch symbol of Prussian militarism.

It seemed the bas relief was not a monument to one woman but an eternal memory of the wrongs inflicted upon helpless womanhood throughout the world by the brutal savagery of war.

Search Lake Erie for 4 Children Adrift in Boat

Monroe, Mich., June 12.—A score of launches are searching for a rowboat containing four children ranging in age from three to nine years, reported adrift in Lake Erie two miles off shore. The children had been missing from Lakeside, a summer colony, all day. A party reaching here this evening reported having seen a small boat apparently with no other occupants than four children in the lake. The lake was comparatively calm.

Harding's Second Name Tongue Twister for Fair

Marion, O., June 12.—Warren G. Harding doesn't bother to spell out his middle name. His friends do not try to pronounce it.

It's "Gamaliel."

It is of Biblical origin, one bearer being a Prince of Manasseh in the Exodus. It means "God is avenger."

PUT THE CLOCK AHEAD AND GAIN ONE GOLDEN HOUR

If you didn't have a chance to do it at 2 o'clock this morning, when the city ordinance went into effect, push the clock hands ahead one hour now.

It means an added hour of sunlight each day during the summer for play, for sports, for gardening, for visits with the home folks, and everybody's doing it.

'FILLED UP ON PAIR OF EIGHTS,' LAUGHS HARDING

How He Acted When Lightning Struck.

"How did you feel, Senator?" asked one of the early birds that caught Senator Warren G. Harding in the corridor outside his room at the Hotel La Salle shortly after the nomination was announced.

"Well," replied the senator, a broad, slow grin lighting his tired face, "you know how a fellow feels that holds a pair of eighs and has to stay in and draws full. You understand the language?"

"What are you going to do now?" was the visitor's next question.

"Well, even a candidate must feed. Haven't had anything to eat since morning."

Thinks He Never Slept.

A man who had a room close to the senator's on the second floor of the hotel said that he did not think Senator Harding went to bed at all. At dawn he passed the room and there was the candidate, sitting, possibly watching for the coming of the morning star of fame.

Senator Harding stepped easily, naturally, into the throbbing light of the world's publicity. His first move was to seek a quiet place. He tried to avoid reporters and friends. His friends checked him "out" of the hotel and he moved to a room next to the offices of the American Protective Tariff league.

When Lightning Struck.

He was at the Coliseum when the lightning struck. At the moment he was shaking hands with Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler in the national committee room offices.

Mrs. Harding was in Fred Upham's box, keeping tally as the roll of states was called. Her husband went on to the hotel ahead of her. An hour later, when it was all over, she joined him. Perhaps they thought of the glory ahead, or perhaps their minds ran back to the days in the little print shop in Marion, O., where they worked together to get out the Star.

The senator was so affected as he tramped down the lobby that he did not see one or two old friends, or could not recall their names.

Holds Little Reception.

Later he held a little reception in his room. Ohio politicians crowded in. Senator Edge of New Jersey was one of the early visitors. A volunteer doorkeeper was appointed, and he was a good one. He kept out those who claimed they had shouted themselves hoarse for Harding—always were for Harding.

"Strange how popular these rooms have become all of a sudden," said Wilbur F. Wakeman, secretary of the American Protective Tariff league. "It has been quite deserted along here until today."

Now reporters began to gather.

The house detective took up a position down the hall. Two special policemen were installed. Something precious was under the roof. He must be watched. Even as the nominee, Senator Harding already has more power and prestige than many rulers. Flashlights filled the hall with smoke. Mrs. Harding came out, genial and smiling, ready to be photographed. [illegible] said she did not like it. She was in black silk, a quick, determined lady, who will rule things.

Wife Sees Victory.

"I had faith in my husband," was all she cared to say. She was tensely watching the great battle in its critical stages. She saw the first "break" in the voting and the wild scene at the end of the balloting.

The senator had dinner with Chairman Will H. Hays of the Republican national committee, whose job it is to see that Harding is elected. They had a long conference after dinner, while

LOWDEN HELPS SENATOR GET 674 7-10 VOTES

Wood Sticks to the Last.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Warren G. Harding, United States senator from Ohio, was nominated for president and Calvin Coolidge, governor of Massachusetts, was named for vice president by the Republican national convention last night.

The choice of Senator Harding was effected on the tenth ballot of the convention and the sixth roll call of the two sessions held yesterday. The impossibility of nominating either Gen. Wood or Gov. Lowden was demonstrated in the first of these sessions.

Gen. Wood went down fighting desperately to the last, but overwhelmed by the coalition of all his opponents under the Harding banner. Gov. Lowden, though he had forged ahead of Wood at the morning session, found his strength, like that of the general, receding, and, realizing that his continuance in the contest would only prolong the deadlock, released his delegates, most of whom went to Harding and accomplished his nomination.

Michigan Makes It Sure.

The nomination of Harding was made a certainty shortly after 6 o'clock, when Michigan gave him twenty-four votes. On the ninth ballot he was 118⅓ votes short of the majority of 493. On the tenth ballot his gains totaled 129 by the time Michigan had swung into line and his nomination was assured even if no further gains were made from the states yet to vote.

Harding would have been nominated even without a single delegate from Pennsylvania, which had not voted for him up to this time, but the Pennsylvanians saw the bandwagon coming and determined to clamber aboard without further delay. Pennsylvania swung sixty votes to Harding at 6:14 p. m., making the total for the candidate at that time 520, and the ensuing pandemonium heralded his nomination as an accomplished fact.

Result of Ballot.

The result of the complete roll call on the tenth and final ballot was:

Harding	674 7-10
Wood	157 1-2
Johnson	80 2-5
Lowden	12
Scattering	58 9-10

Former Senator Flint of California, a Johnson delegate, moved to make the nomination of Harding unanimous, and, seconded by Congressman Frank L. Smith of Illinois, on behalf of Lowden, it was adopted over the protests of the twenty-four La Follette delegates from Wisconsin, amid a tumult of booing by the remainder of the convention.

The Wisconsin disaffection was widely regarded as an indication that La Follette may refuse to support the ticket if he does not actually bolt and join a third party.

Borah, Johnson Silent.

On the question of supporting the ticket Senator Borah was noncommittal last night. Senator Johnson declined to reveal his attitude until he had conferred with the members of the California delegation. He held the conference and is still noncommittal. But it was generally assumed that he would not repudiate the assurances he gave during the primary campaign that he would not bolt the ticket.

Senator Harding was in the headquarters of the national committee in the Coliseum annex when he was nominated. He was talking with Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, New York's candidate for the nomination, when Charles B. Warren of Michigan burst into the room and, seizing Senator Harding's hand, exclaimed:

"Senator, you are nominated!"

Traditions Are Shattered.

Traditions were shattered in the choice of Harding. Harding started as one of the leading contenders for the nomination months ago, but he participated in only two primaries—Ohio and Indiana—and was widely regarded as having been eliminated by his failure to capture the solid delegation of his own state and by the fact that he ran fourth in Indiana.

Senator Harding came to Chicago a week ago with no better prospect of consideration than that of a "dark horse." But fate was working secretly in his favor.

Opposed to Wood.

The party elements represented by a majority of the national committee were opposed to Wood for a variety of reasons, among them being the belief that he would be a vulnerable candidate because large business interests had contributed $1,500,000 to his campaign and because of the cry of "militarism" which the Democrats would raise against a soldier nominee.

The national committee crowd preferred Lowden and the nomination of the governor appeared to be a foregone conclusion when the confessions of the two Missouri delegates that they had pocketed $5,000 of Lowden money hit his candidacy like a lightning bolt. The cry that Lowden also would make a vulnerable candidate was raised and capitalized by his opponents.

Opportunity Is Seized.

The opportunity presented was seized by the friends of Harding, headed by the "senate crowd." Harding had come through the vicissitudes of the primary campaign with reputation unsullied. He had made few enemies. Though affiliated with the conservative faction, he was not unacceptable to the progressives.

He had made an admirable record in the senate. He had voted for woman suffrage and for the peace treaty with the Lodge reservations, and his vote for prohibition was regarded an asset instead of a liability.

He was put forward as the best candidate the party could nominate, and the elements opposing Wood and Lowden got into line for Harding as the result of the conferences held Friday night and during the recess between the morning and afternoon sessions of the convention yesterday.

Tryout in Morning.

The four ballots of the morning session showed that both Wood and Lowden had been halted and were weakening. The Johnson strength was receding also, while Harding was gaining on every call of the roll. Still there was a possibility that the deadlock could not be broken unless either Wood or Lowden should retire from the contest. So the convention took a recess from 1:30 to 4 p. m. to afford an opportunity for negotiations. It was then that Gov. Lowden resolved to break the deadlock and announced release of his delegates.

The leaders were then convinced that Harding could be nominated at the afternoon session, and the selection of the vice presidential candidate was under consideration. Harding himself had called on Senator Johnson during the forenoon and was reported to have asked him to take second place on the ticket and in any event to assure him his good will. Johnson declined to take the nomination for vice president.

Ninth Ballot Taken.

When the convention reconvened the roll was called for the ninth time, and the Harding boomers lost no time in getting into action. Connecticut started the ball rolling by switching thirteen Lowden votes to Harding. Illinois stood pat on Lowden and Johnson, but when Kansas was reached the entire Sunflower state delegation, instructed for Wood, was plumped for Harding.

The Kansans seized their delegation standard and started on a parade of the hall, escorting a banner bearing a picture of Harding. The sensational leap for the band wagon performed by the delegation which placed Gen. Wood in nomination attracted universal attention, and the move was generally thought to be a prearranged signal for the inauguration of a Harding stampede.

Kentucky Leaves Lowden.

The next sensation was produced when Kentucky was reached on the roll call and A. T. Hert, floor manager for Lowden, announced:

"Kentucky casts twenty-six votes for Harding."

The action of Hert signalized the elimination of Lowden. New York threw sixty-six votes to Harding, but Pennsylvania stood pat for Sproul. The Ohioan had left both Wood and Lowden far in the rear, but he was 118½ votes short of a majority when the ninth roll call was finished.

Wood's vote had declined to 249, Lowden's to 121½, and Johnson's to 82.

It was realized on all sides that Harding would go over the top on the next roll call and the utmost confusion reigned on the floor as the delegates made their preparations to jump on the band wagon.

On the tenth and final roll call Illinois split up and twenty-two and one-fifth votes were delivered to Harding with Gov. Lowden's consent. He had known for several hours that his nomination was impossible and he had turned in to heelp Warren Harding. There were seventeen Illinois men, however, who still voted for Lowden, and eighteen and four-fifths votes were cast for Johnson.

Indiana split up and delivered twenty-two of its thirty to Harding, and immediately thereafter Iowa went bodily from Lowden to the Ohio senator. Michigan split, giving twenty-five to Harding.

Then New York cast sixty-eight for Harding and his victory was almost within his grasp.

Ohio Solid First Time.

There was a big demonstration of enthusiasm for the candidate in the making when his own state, Ohio, voted for him solidly for the first time. Of the forty-eight Ohio delegates, nine had been voting their instructions for Gen. Wood. Four others had deserted Harding on an earlier ballot, but they came back and were joined by the nine instructed Wood men.

It had been noised about after the ninth ballot that Gov. Sproul had released the Pennsylvania delegation from obligation to vote for him; and when the Keystone state was reached the convention knew Harding was about to reach the goal. Pennsylvania delivered sixty votes to Harding, and an outburst of cheers shook the rafters, signalizing the fact that this accession had given the candidate more than a majority and consummated the nomination.

When the jubilation was over the outcome was stilled by Chairman Lodge's gavel, the calling of the roll was quickly completed, and the nomination of Harding officially announced. Then followed the nomination of the candidate for vice president and the adjournment of the convention sine die at 7:32 p. m.

The drift to Harding developed as soon as the convention met in the morning and resumed balloting. There were four ballots in the first session of the day and Harding gained steadily.

SENATORS AGREE ON HARDING AS DAWN ARRIVES

Inside Story of Break in Deadlock.

BY E. O. PHILLIPS.

The nomination of Senator Harding became a definite political possibility about 4 o'clock yesterday morning. At that hour the conference of United States senators that has been meeting nightly determined that all humanly possible would be done to secure a victory for the Ohio senator.

At about the same hour a majority of the members of the national committee, in session in another part of the Congress hotel, decided that they had gone almost as far as they could in the effort to nominate Gov. Lowden. But they were deciding to continue the fight and would have gone to bat for Lowden yesterday morning but for the final decision made by the senators and the Washington contingent.

Senators Make Decision.

Shortly before 4 a. m. the word went from the senators to the national committeemen that the decision had been reached to start the Harding drive.

Joseph B. Keeling, who has been the organizer and general manager of the "uninstructed and unpledged" group of delegates, with which he had succeeded in deadlocking the convention, was sent for. He was informed of the morning's prospects and of the intentions and expectations of the senatorial conference.

In the final conference were Senator Wadsworth of New York, former Senator Crane of Massachusetts, Senator Smoot of Utah, Senator Watson of Indiana, Senator Brandegee of Connecticut, Senator New of Indiana, and former Governor Myron T. Herrick of Ohio, representing Senator Harding. Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania, represented in Chicago in part by John T. King of Connecticut, had been in more or less constant communication with Chicago by long distance telephone.

Dislike Hays' Ways.

It is no secret that the senatorial forces have had no particular liking for the national committee, and the conduct of party affairs by Chairman Hays. Nor is it concealed that the senators had no inclination to have the incoming Republican administraton in brotherly relationship to the national committee, rather than to the senators, if there were to be any preference, after the inauguration.

In an earlier conference of the senators, held shortly after the fourth ballot had been taken, the agreement was general that Gen. Wood had been eliminated as a dangerous factor. The views of the national committeemen friendly to Lowden coincided with the senators on this point, and it is the only one on which they did agree.

Scouts Are Sent Out.

At midnight, trusted scouts were sent into important delegations to approximate the probable ultimate strength of Gov. Lowden. The reports returned were that Lowden was not nearer than striking distance to the nomination, so long as the Pennsylvania delegation remained out of his column, and so long as his maximum vote in the New York delegation was kept under the fifty mark.

This determined the course of the senators, and the decision to go to Senator Harding followed.

Mr. Keeling was again sent for, and informed of the impasse that had been reached so far as Wood and Lowden were concerned. He was advised to get his uninstructed and unpledged delegates into line for Harding. Later the same information was conveyed to National Committeeman Hert of Kentucky and to David W. Mulvane of Kansas. There is no reason to doubt that National Chairman Hays, who was the real dark horse, kept always in reserve by his friends in the national committee, received the same tidings.

Plans Made by Dawn.

The wheels began to go around about the time the sun was registering over on Lake Michigan, and by the time the convention assembled at 10 o'clock the arrangements had been made that assured the votes of Missouri, West Virginia, Indiana, Wyoming, and part of Kansas in the Harding lineup.

The angle of incidence used in Harding's behalf as the logical candidate with which to break the deadlock was that Gen. Wood's nomination had been made impossible, because of the type of campaign that had been made for him in certain direct primary states, and antagonism reared that permanently prejudiced substantial leaders and delegations against his cause.

The argument against Gov. Lowden was that the so called "Missouri case" had made it impractical for him to become the nominee on the theory that the Republican national campaign would have to be defensive from its inception.

Last Word from Penrose.

The last word from Penrose was that he would stand for Lowden if he had to in order to defeat Wood.

At least such was the situation as reported by John T. King, who was deposed last January as Wood campaign manager, and whose first duty in Chicago was to bring about Gen. Wood's defeat.

Frank H. Hitchcock's contingent within the Wood camp withstood the fire that was laid under them. The only Hitchcock delegation that was converted into Harding votes was that of Florida.

Wood Is Obdurate.

The Wood lines stood intact when the noon recess was ordered after the eighth ballot, but his floor managers knew that he was gone. They told that to Gen. Wood, but he refused to accept the report as an assured fact. The first piece of real strategy that became highly dangerous to Gov. Lowden was this noon recess, and this was commented upon last night in the inner circles.

The recess was ordered when Lowden had obtained an actual plurality over Wood. Had there been an immediate ballot, some of the leaders say, certain of the states carrying Wood instructions could have gone to Lowden, on the theory that their instructions had been carried out and that there was no chance for the general to win.

Lowden Still Hopeful.

Gov. Lowden himself and his immediate managers were entirely hopeful at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon that a combination could be reached between the Wood and Lowden forces that would stop the Harding drive that was getting into high gear.

This suggestion was carried directly to Gen. Wood from Gov. Lowden.

At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon Gen. Wood declined to enter into the proposed agreement.

At that hour he personally had confidence that he could be nominated.

A tentative arrangement was made, however, that the combined forces—and they expected the help of the Johnson delegates—could force an adjournment of the convention until tomorrow, following a single ballot to be taken at the 4 o'clock session.

Quick canvass of the delegations, regardleess of their alliances, indicated that such a proposition could be put through by the temporary allies only by strong arm methods, the worn out delegates being in no mood to stay in Chicago over Sunday and start in the week at practically the same position with which the convention opened.

This made it easy for the Harding combination, and while the floor leaders were trying to put over the adjournment the Harding people were picking up delegates in blocks on the single proposition that Harding was the quick, the simple, and the easy solution of the deadlock.

Lowden Men Released.

Before the ninth ballot had reached California on the roll call Gov. Lowden, who had gone to the Coliseum and was in the national committee headquarters, sent word to the convention floor releasing his delegates. The nomination would have been made on the ninth ballot except that Gov. Sproul of Pennsylvania, who also was at the Coliseum offices, refused to release the seventy-six delegates from his state, who had been tied in by caucus action to vote for him until personally released.

After the ninth ballot Gov. Sproul cut the ties and the bandwagon started.

The conduct of the campaign will remain in the hands of National Chairman Hays. Of this there is no doubt whatever. It was definitely said last night by an intimate adviser of the nominee that he is entirely in accord with the Hays policies and the Hays method of handling party affairs.

There were a few mutterings heard among some of the senators when this word went around, but there will be no substantial objection made in any quarter.

30 Autos Stolen in Day; Fleming Again Victim

Thirty automobiles were stolen yesterday. The machine of Edward J. Fleming, 4711 Ingleside avenue, former secretary to State's Attorney Hoyne, was stolen from in front of the Chicago Athletic association building. It is the fourth time he has been victimized by auto thieves. Dr. Gail E. Chandler of 1100 Davis street, Evanston, saw two men making off with his car from Grant Park, but couldn't catch them. Four other cars were stolen in Grant park.

MAYOR AND CITY HALL TO LINE UP BACK OF HARDING

Vote for Hiram to End, Then Bow to Defeat.

Although the followers of Mayor Thompson stuck to the finish for Johnson, they received the nomination of Senator Harding with evident signs of relief and noisy declarations that they are "still regular" and will be for Harding strong.

Asked for a statement of his stand immediately following the nomination of Harding, Mayor Thompson said events had been moving too swiftly for him and that he wished to retire for an hour and study the situation.

Likes Harding Policy.

An hour later he issued the following statement from room 302 in the Great Northern hotel:

"Senator Harding's published declaration against entangling alliances with old world powers and against compulsory military training for the youth of the land pleases me greatly."

The mayor's statement apparently refers to the Harding circulars which appeared in great numbers at the nominating session of the convention. They declare that Senator Harding "is opposed to the establishment in this country of the European system of conscription in times of peace" and is in favor of "keeping America for Americans and avoiding entangling alliances with old world powers."

Stick with Hiram to Finish.

Just before the second convention session opened an announcement came from men close to the mayor that the seventeen city hall delegates would swing to Harding on the tenth ballot, the plan being to have one or two downstate friends start the move on the ninth, it was said.

But the swing didn't come. Later friends of the mayor said their leaders believed a stand to the end for Johnson would strengthen them in Chicago, where Hiram's name was written in 50,000 times.

Leader Hurls Lie.

George F. Harding gave the lie to those of the mayor's supporters who circulated the story that the seventeen city hallites "even talked" of going over to Harding.

"I have written instructions, given me in our caucus, to stick to the finish for Johnson," he declared. "We started out with seventeen for Johnson, and we ended up with eighteen and four-fifths votes for him, and we are proud of it."

HARDING STARTS AS FARMER BOY; WINS BY WORK

Teacher, Editor, Senator, Nation's Leader.

Warren G. Harding, the Republican party's choice for president, now nearing the end of his first term as United States senator from Ohio, is called a self-made man. He was in turn a farmer boy, member of a railroad construction gang, country school teacher, printer's devil, linotype operator, editor, publisher, business man, and banker before he became a commanding figure in the political life of the nation.

He is descended from two pioneer American families, hardy Holland Dutch on the one side and liberty loving Scotch on the other. He was born on his grandfather's farm just outside of the village of Blooming Grove in Morrow county, O., on Nov. 2, 1865. His father, Dr. George T. Harding, still a practicing physician in Marion, O., despite his advanced age—76 years—was then a struggling country doctor.

Works Way at College.

Young Harding worked on his grandfather's farm and attended the village school until he was 14, when he entered the Ohio Central college at Iberia. He worked his way through school by cutting corn, painting his neighbors' barns, and helping to grade the roadbed of the T. & O. C. railroad. He also played a cornet in the vilage band and was editor of the college paper.

Upon his graduation from college he went to work in the village printing office. When he was 19 his father moved to Marion and aided him in acquiring control of the Marion Star, of which he still is publisher. The senator learned to set type himself and when the linotype machine was introduced learned to operate that. The pocket piece he still carriers is the old printer's rule he used in those days.

Helps Boys Get to Press.

"A great senator you are!" exclaimed the visitor.

"I'd be a great senator if I didn't know anything else!" Harding replied. "This is a holiday, and we wish to get to press as early as possible, so the boys can get out and enjoy themselves. That is why I'm lending a helping hand."

The Star is still the senator's idol. He has "lived with it." He has never had a strike on his paper. Eleven years ago he inaugurated a profit sharing plan for employés, the dividends paying for their stock.

But the paper was not his only interest. As Marion grew from a town of 000 to its present population of more than 30,000, he became identified with the industries that sprang up. Today he is still a director in a bank, a director in several large manufacturing plants and a trustee of Trinity Baptist church.

A Leader for Twenty-two Years.

It was twenty-two years ago that he first entered politics. He was elected to the state senate from the thirteenth district in 1898, serving two terms. He was next elected lieutenant governor and in 1912 made the race for the governorship, but the state went Democratic and Gov. Harmon defeated him. In less than two years after this schism he was elected to the United States senate by a majority of 100,000, running 73,0000 ahead of the next highest on the ticket.

Evidence of his recognition among leaders of the party throughout the country was shown by his selection, without factional strife, as chairman of the national Republican convention in 1916, soon after he entered the senate. His keynote address at that time won national acknowledgement for him as a safe and sane thinker.

Expert on World Questions.

His work in the foreign relations committee of the senate has brought him in contact with great questions both domestic and foreign. He has made three trips abroad studying systems of government, economic questions, labor conditions, and tariff problems. He visited Hawaii after his election to the senate to get first hand information on the production and distribution of sugar.

Senator Harding stands more than 6 feet in height and possesses an impressive personality. He has the affability and winning personality that characterized McKinley. He is an omnivorous reader and a great story teller. As an orator he has wonderful carrying power. He is calm, forceful and quick at repartee, but never acrimonious.

Senator Harding was married in 1891 to Miss Florence Kling, daughter of the late Amos Kling, one of the leading business men in Marion. Her business acumen is said to have been of great assistance to him in his private and public undertakings. Mrs. Harding was present at the conference yesterday between Senator Harding and Gov. Lowden, while the former's nomination was still in doubt.

His Policy as to G. O. P.

On March 31 Senator Harding expressed the following as his personal beliefs on what the G. O. P. program should be:

"The United States should have an ample navy; should lead the world in aviation; should have an ample army; should have military training;

"Should prepare for defense without assuming the burdens of the military enslavement of continental Europe or the menace of Prussian militarism;

"Should get away from abnormal conditions of war and seek the stable ways of peace;

"Should restore our boasted freedom under the constitution and every extraordinary war statute should be repealed;

"Should declare opposition to government ownership and nationalization of industry."

And last—but not least—the senator is on record as advising legislation providing a farm for every American soldier who fought in the great war.

Mrs. Harding Glad for His Sake Alone; Happy as Senator's Wife

BY LEOLA ALLARD.

The friends and political associates of the Republican presidential nominee made way, and through the aisle that opened suddenly from the door ran a gray haired woman, her cheeks flushed with excitement.

Warren G. Harding opened his arms. His wife rushed into them.

"O, Warren," she cried, "isn't it just fine?"

The senator gently patted her arm. "It is," he agreed—and grinned. "It's —it's great!"

"It's so good I can hardly believe it," Mrs. Harding told the newspaper correspondents, who immediately beseiged her.

* *

She was too exicted, she said, keeping track of the ballots, on which her husband was carried to victory, to remember exactly how she felt at that crucial juncture. She was so excited, in fact, that she missed an opportunity to congratulate her husband at the Coliseum. And so she had to hurry after him to the hotel, where eventually she found him.

The photographers shortly were ready with their flashlights.

When the senator was to pose with her she objected again. "It's so silly," she said.

"No, it isn't," the senator remonstrated.

"But it is," said Mrs. Harding. "See! We're almost on top of the cameras."

* *

And a few days ago Mrs. Harding said it would be a tragedy if he got it!

While the wives of other candidates hoped for the best, she was confiding to her friends that she "wanted Warren to win because he wants to, but for no other reason."

And now that he has won, she is at heart half happy and half sad—sad because the task ahead of him is such a big one, so fraught with serious responsibility. But she maintains happily, "He is the greatest man in the world, and there isn't anything he can't do."

"They told me in Washington"—and Mrs. Harding laughed nervously—"my husband should be able to get anything he wants with that smile of his.

* *

"But then he knows how to differ with people without offending them," she went on. "O, I know you think I'm boasting, but I have only one fad, the only fad I have had for the last twenty-six years, and that is my husband.

"It is old fashioned, I know, but that's the way I feel about it."

Mrs. Harding predicted that Hiram Johnson would not bolt the party. She felt sure he wouldn't, she said, "because he was only trying to scare the delegates into giving him the nomination so he wouldn't bolt." She laughed charmingly. No, she hadn't gotten her information from a man, she said; she'd thought it out herself.

"Being a senator's wife suits me," Mrs. Harding continues. "It's a quiet life, a pleasant one, and the problems aren't so huge. I liked it. I really liked it better than I like to think of going to the White House. Of course, I haven't seven daughters, but even so, that should not keep me out." And again that delicious laugh.

Mrs. Harding's clothes were—well, they gave the impression of black and white, but her manners were so pleasing and her affability so marked, one forgot to look at her clothes. She was exquisitely groomed.

As a diplomatist she should do well. When I met her earlier in the afternoon she was trying to get a much needed luncheon, and she was stopped an infinite number of times by an indifferent array of women and men.

She gave them each a word, and made each one think she would rather stand and talk than eat, though she hadn't had any food from early morning till late in the afternoon.

* *

An old engineer, who hurried Mr. and Mrs. Harding to a lecture date in the cab of his engine ten years ago in Nebraska, called at headquarters to see Mrs. Harding.

"She was so pleasant I wanted to see her again," he told the women there. "She probably won't remember me. It doesn't seem possible she may be the next president's wife—she was so chummy with us all, in that dirty cab. I am now a delegate from Nebraska."

When the workers told Mrs. Harding, she said: "Indeed I do remember him. His name was Humphreys. I always wanted to thank him for the help he gave us. Tell him if he comes while I am out to come back and see me."

A. R. Humphreys wasn't for Harding when he called there. What he did later might have been worth the memory Mrs. Harding had for him.

* *

There was never a more cordial woman in public life than the wife of the Republican nominee, and it would be difficult to imagine the White House making any notable difference in her. She is essentially kind, and told me with a tear in her eye:

"We haven't any children. I wish we had. The senator plays with every child he meets. He flirts with them, even the babies in arms, and no matter how big the meeting, if he sees a child hanging to its parent's hand, he enjoys saying a word to it."

She finished by saying, "I'm of no importance. Don't say anything about me, but tell everybody what a wonderful man my husband is. I ought to know, having been married to him twenty-six years, and I am not doing this for campaign purposes. He IS wonderful."

Senator and Mrs. Harding were busy last night with preparations to enable them to catch a train for Washington in a few hours. The senator had been up until nearly dawn in the round of conferences with party chieftains which led to his nomination.

The gratification of victory had relaxed the strain, however, and the Ohio senator showed little evidence of it.

G. O. P. USHERS FEAR LOSS OF $10 A DAY PAY

One hundred ushers who finished duties last evening at the Coliseum learned with consternation that arrangements for paying them an understood $10 a day had not crystallized.

In view of their hard work during the convention, the ushers, who are ex-service men, addresesd a petition to the Fred W. Upham, chairman of the committee on arrangements for the convntion.

Ticket Will Sweep U. S., Taft Wires to Coolidge

New Haven, Conn., June 12.—[Special.]—Former President Taft tonight sent the following telegram of congratulations to Calvin Coolidge, the nominee for vice president: "I congratulate you most heartily and sincerely on your nomination as vice president. This ticket of Harding and Coolidge will sweep the country and its certain victory means a useful and successful Republican administration of the affairs of this country the next four years."

Mr. Taft's telegram to Senator Harding said:

"I congratulate you most sincerely on your nomination. I am confident of your election."

HOME TOWN OF HARDING HOLDS A CELEBRATION

Father Opposed His Nomination.

Marion, O., June 12.—This little central Ohio city of nearly 36,000 people went wild with joy and enthusiasm tonight when it learned that one of its citizens, Warren G. Harding, had been nominated for the presidency by the Republican national convention.

Minutes before it was announced officially at Chicago that Harding had been nominated, Marion started celebrating what it considered a sure thing. Factory whistles were tooted, church bells rung, and Harding's friends and neighbors gathered on the streets in shouting, laughing groups.

Father and Sister Cheered.

Mr. Harding's father and sister, who live here, were the center of enthusiastic groups of townspeople, who discussed excitedly the developments of the day at the Chicago convention.

The father, Dr. J. P. Harding, a practicing physician, received the news of the honor to his son on his seventy-sixth birthday. He seemed highly elated, as did a sister, Abigail Harding, who teaches English in the Marion school.

The elder Harding declared that he had not wanted his son to be nominated, but now that he is nominated he declared he would vote for him for president.

Earlier in the day when Harding's nomiation appeared assured, the father told intimate friends he hoped "Warren" would not be nominated as so many presidents and men in high office are assassinated. He said he didn't want his "boy" harmed. Nevertheless, Dr. Harding appeared to be the happiest man in the world tonight.

Is Newspaper Publisher.

Mrs. Harding was with her husband at Chicago when the nomination was made. The Hardings have no children. Senator Harding is a successful newspaper publisher.

Golf is Senator Harding's particular hobby. He also is a great baseball fan, and attends the game whenever possible.

He is a great home man, and likes nothing better than to sit at his own fireside entertaining friends with the help of Mrs. Harding.

Senator Harding is a trustee of the Trinity Baptist church, of which he is a member, and upon whose services he is a regular attendant when in Marion.

Sister Hears News.

Washington, June 12.—Besides his father and a sister living at Marion, O., Senator Harding has one other sister, Mrs. Carolyn Votaw, wife of Dr. Heber Votaw and a member of the woman's bureau of the Washington police department. She received the news of her brother's nomination as the Republican presidential candidate direct from his headquarters at Chicago over the long distance telephone.

SPROUL REJOICES HIS STATE MADE HARDING WINNER

Gov. William C. Sproul of Pennsylvania said he was pleased to think that Pennsylvania's vote had been the one to nominate Senator Harding. In a statement thanking his delegation for the support it gave him, he said:

"Senator Harding has had a splendid experience both in his state and in the senate, and I think he has all the qualifications to be president. Pennsylvania Republicans will be solidly for him in November.

"I am glad Pennsylvania had the honor of casting the vote that nominated him."

WASHINGTON NEWS —IN BRIEF—

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]
[Washington Bureau of The Tribune.]
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 12.

A CONFERENCE of bankers and wool growers has been arranged by western senators to be held in Chicago on June 17 to consider the establishment of a fund of $100,000,000 or more for financial aid to the growers.

ABOUT 200,000 world war veterans, now discharged from the service, are eligible to take the examinations for commissions in the regular army, the war department announced.

WITH the announcement of census figures for Chicago, the only large cities whose 1920 population has not been made known are Philadelphia, Detroit, and Cleveland.

A PROGRAM for the resumption of the senate committee investigation of campaign expenditures of presidential candidates will be mapped out at a meeting of the committee in Chicago on July 7.

LOWDEN PLEDGES AID TO NOMINEE; SEES VICTORY

Gov. Lowden gave out the following statement at 8 o'clock last evening on the nomination of Senator Harding:

"After the eighth ballot, upon which he received a plurality of all votes cast, it was represented to me that the delegates were becoming restive under the delay.

"Fearing a protracted delay, which I believe would have been detrimental to the interest of the country, I decided to release all my delegates and advised them to use their best judgment as to whom they could suport.

"I have great confidence in the ability and character of the successful candidate. I shall support him with all heartiness and I believe the ticket will be elected. The Republican party has not had such an opportunity for service in half a century.

"For the friendships formed during this campaign and for the loyal support of many fine, patriotic men and women I shall never cease to be grateful."

The governor and his party left for Springfield this morning on the 1 o'clock train over the Illinois Central.

Delighted to See Ohio Honored, Says Gov. Cox

Cincinnati, O., June 11.—Gov. James Cox of Ohio, strongly considered as a Democratic presidential nominee, was visiting W. A. Julian, candidate for senator, in Cincinnati when he received news of the nomination of Warren G. Harding for the presidency.

Asked for comment on the nomination, the governor said he had no statement to make beyond this:

"I am always delighted to see Ohio honored." Senator Harding and Gov. Cox both are Ohio editors, the former being editor of the Marion Star and Cox the editor of papers in Springfield and Dayton.

JOHNSON FAILS TO EXTEND GLAD HAND TO VICTOR

Also Avoids Talk on Bolt Question.

Senator Hiram Johnson maintained an ominous silence last night on the subject of whether he would support Harding for president. He made a speech at the Auditorium hotel to a small "battalion of death" of his followers and carefully avoided all mention of the bolt question. As to that, he will have something to say within the next day or two after he has had time to think it over.

All the other defeated candidates promptly congratulated their successful rival, but Senator Johnson is still withholding the glad hand. In view of Johnson's repeated assurances during the primary campaign that he would not bolt, party leaders were hopeful that he would bury the hatchet and take the stump in Harding's behalf.

Senator Borah of Idaho, Johnson's foremost supporter, was also imitating the Sphinx. When Borah left the convention hall immediately after Harding was nominated, he was alone and disappointed. He said he would have nothing to say about the nomination. "I am going to my hotel and go to bed," was his only comment.

No Vociferous Bolt Talk.

It was no secret in the progressive camp that the nomination of Harding and Coolidge hardly filled their expectations, but no very vociferous bolt talk could be heard anywhere.

When Johnson stepped before the "battalion of death" at his headquarters to bid them good-by he was greeted with the song: "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." The crowd sung lustily and with no signs of depression. When the demonstration had died down, Johnson said:

"There are no tears to be shed. There is no rancor. We come out of this fight as we went into it—with heads high and hands clean, and without a thing having been done that wouldn't bear the scrutiny of the whole world.

"We Don't Whine."

"It has been a good fight. We lost. We don't whine. We take our beating standing up. One of the proudest things of my life is that the California delegation and others went all the way down the line, and we all 'died' together.

"As we look back over the campaign, we soo now many things that might have been done and many things that might have been left undone. But there are no regrets. I have doubt whether I could have been nominated even if I had gone into the convention with a bare majority of delegates. We couldn't break through the combination."

Charges "Betrayal."

Senator Johnson was still indignant over what he characterized "betrayal" by delegates from states in which he carried the preference primary. He referred particularly to the delegates from North Carolina, which state he carried by a big majority. He promises to have something to say about these men "and some other gentlemen who have taken part in the convention" at a very early date.

"There isn't a thing under the sun," said Senator Johnson, "that I haven't been offered during the last week. It has been singular that the very gentlemen who have been so insistent on my taking the vice presidency have been equally insistent that I was utterly unfit to be president, although there is only a heart beat between the two."

The senator declared he was proud to leave the convention without having made "any political deals of whatever character," and entirely free to continue in the future as he saw fit. He is going back to Washington tomorrow, and later may go to California.

COOLIDGE FAMED FOR ACTION ON POLICE STRIKE

Vice President Nominee 100% American.

Calvin Coolidge, forty-eighth governor of Massachusetts, leaped into national esteem on Sept. 9 last when he crushed the strike of Boston's police force. With the city turned over to a reign of criminals, Gov. Coolidge called out the state troops on the jump and summarily discharged more than 1,200 policemen who had quit their posts.

This was made the paramount issue of the campaign for governor in November by his opponent, Richard H. Long, who promised to reinstate every one of the 1,200 discharged policemen. The answer of the people was that Coolidge carried Massachusetts—a state where normally a 20,000 plurality is large—by a plurality of 125,000. It was this, the largest vote ever accorded a governor of Massachusetts, that carried Coolidge into the national campaign.

A Star Spangled Nominee.

Gov. Coolidge is a red, white, and blue American by birth. He was born on the Fourth of July, in Plymouth, Vt. He will be 48 years old on next Independence day. His father, Col. John C. Coolidge of Vermont, is still living.

Gov. Coolidge attended Amherst college and later took up the practice of law in Northampton, Mass. It was there his political career began. His rise was steady. He served first in the Northampton city council. Subsequently he was elected mayor, city solicitor, clerk of the Hampshire county court, state representative, state senator, president of the state senate, lieutenant governor, and governor.

He is noted for the brevity of his speeches and his dislike for the old familiar "political handshake."

Boomed Liberal Laws.

Among the liberal measures he worked for while in the legislature were appropriation for pure food bill; new housing laws for Boston; free employment bureau; old age pension commission; bill against overtime for women and children; pensions for widows of policemen and firemen; eight hour day for state and city employés; workmen's compensation act; pensions for school teachers; better medical inspection for schools; limit to assumption of risk by rail employés; half fare for school children, and modification of injunction processes.

The governor's father, Col. Coolidge, was a member of the Vermont senate for two years, during which his son was in the Massachusetts senate.

At the time the governor swept the state by his reëlection President Wilson sent him the following message from the sick bed:

"I congratulate you upon your election as a victory for law and order. When that is the issue all Americans stand together."

"I deeply appreciate your telegram of congratulation," Gov. Coolidge wired in reply. "I trust the election will aid in the upholding of the laws of America in particular and strengthen the hand of righteous authority everywhere."

Warns Against Reds.

In his address to the legislature, inaugurating his second term, Gov. Coolidge said:

"Healthful housing, wholesome food, sanitary working conditions, reasonable hours, a fair wage for a fair day's work, opportunity full and free, justice speedy and impartial and at a cost within the reach of all, are among the objects not only to be sought out, but made absolutely certain and secure.

"There are strident voices urging resistance to law in the name of freedom. They are not seeking freedom even for themselves—they have it—they are seeking to enslave others.

"Their works are evil. They know it. They must be resisted. The evil they represent must be overcome by the good others represent. The meaning of America is a power which cannot be overcome. Prosecution of the criminal and education of the ignorant are the remedies."

Vetoes 2.75 Per Cent Beers.

Gov. Coolidge's last important official act was in vetoing a bill legalizing 2.75 per cent beer in Massachusetts.

"There is little satisfaction in attempting to deceive ourselves," he said, "and there is grave danger in attempting to deceive the people."

Gov. and Mrs. Coolidge have two sons, Calvin Jr. and John, both in their teens.

GOV. COOLIDGE "PLEASED TO RUN WITH HARDING"

Call Platform Sound and Leader Wise.

"The nomination for vice president, coming to me unsought and unexpectedly, I accept as an honor and a duty.

"It will be especially pleasing to be associated with my old friend Senator Warren G. Harding, our candidate for president.

"The Republican party has adopted a sound platform, chosen a wise leader, and is united. It deserves the confidence of the American people. That confidence I shall endeavor to obtain."

To newspaper men he said: "I am pleased and shall accept. I am particularly pleased that I am to make the run with Senator Harding."

Well Pleased at News.

The governor received word of his nomination in his apartments at the Adams house. Present were Mrs. Coolidge, Capt. Charles S. Riley, the governor's aid; and his secretary, Henry E. Long.

"I was surprised," said Mrs. Coolidge. "The telephone rang about a quarter after 9, and Mr. Coolidge answered it, and then turned to me and said: 'I've been named for the vice presidency.' We had received the word about the nomination of Mr. Harding a few minutes before.

"I thought the governor was joking and I said: "O, you don't mean it.' He answered, 'Indeed, I do.' Even then I thought he was just trying to see how I would take the joke. It was fully a minute before I really believed it. All I can say is that I am surprised."

Sextons Ring the Bells.

Just then a Northampton neighbor of the governor and his wife, a Mrs. Hills, sent her congratulations and the congratulations of all the other neighbors to the vice presidential nominee and his wife.

Word comes from Northampton also that when the Coolidge family physician, Dr. Richard Brown, heard the news, he sent it broadcast over the town.

Immediately the sextons of the local churches got busy and the ringing of bells from every spire heralded the tidings.

Northampton is the seat of Smith college and is filled with alumnæ and friends there for commencement.

COOLIDGE WINS SECOND PLACE ON FREE BALLOT

balloting to start—the fifth ballot in the series.

New York comes in, having escaped the prayer, although if any delegation needs it, New York is probably the one.

The various managers are busy on the floor.

Somebody sends out a report: "They're going to put Harding over on the fifth." Everybody yawns; the attitude of most of the delegates being "Let the ballot tell the story."

"Alabama, fourteen votes," sings out Horace Bancroft, in a voice that through the sound amplifier almost cracks the ear drums of the galleries.

"Ah!" sighs the great hall, settling back expectantly. But the bell-wether of the states registers no change from the last ballot of the night before.

Slight differences are rated as the poll of the state progresses. Harding picks up a few votes—some of the tipsters wag their heads. "Here comes the Harding boom," they say. "It's all fixed for him."

New York gives Lowden ten more votes than before, and a shout rings out. One thing is evident, however—Wood is slipping. Lowden is pushing forward to first place.

Lowden Takes Lead.

Lowden, 303.
Wood, 299.
Johnson, 133.

Harding has not broken the "Big Three" ranks as yet. His vote is 78.

A short demonstration follows. The Lowden men in the Illinois delegation jump on their chairs and shout joyously. Frank Funk, Bull Moose candidate for governor in 1912, leads the yells. Dave Shanahan, speaker of the legislature, has his mouth open until it might be taken for the La Salle street tunnel, while Senator L. Y. Sherman and Harold Ickes are also doing a noble job of welkin-ringing. Across the aisle Iowa is vociferous.

FRANK H. FUNK. [Copyright: Moffett.]

Thompson Organ Appears.

Copies of the Thompson organ appear in the hall, filled with attacks on Gov. Lowden. The sergeant-at-arms would not let the newsboys in, but the police turned their backs. It proves too warm an outpouring of written language for such a hot day, and the floor is littered with discarded papers.

"Tobe" Hert of Kentucky, the Lowden manager, is active. It is his busy day, for sure. The Johnson floor manager, John F. Neylan of California, is a bee in a clover field. Hitchcock, on the outskirts, looks half doubtful, half confiden.

SIXTH BALLOT STARTS

The sixth ballot starts. This ballot marks the breaking away from Johnson of important batches of instructed delegates from direct primary states. Michigan, which has stuck through all the polls, splits. Wood gets eleven. Hiram keeps eighteen. Lowden gets one. A minute later Johnson drops six to Wood in Nebraska. Hiram's followers begin to look disconsolate.

Johnson's delegates are fast disintegrating. As the ballot is being counted upon the adding machines the floor becomes a beehive. Harding men peddle a report:

"Harding is going over on the next ballot. It's all set."

Offers Bet on Harding.

L. K. Torbet, naval officer of Chicago under Taft, wants to bet $100 on "Harding on the seventh."

He escapes before the press bench can take him up.

The seventh? That's not the one that will crack the deadlock, except for the seventh son of a seventh son, and none of the candidates is such.

DAVID W. MULVANE. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Has Johnson slipped on the sixth? Sure enough, the announcement shows he has dropped to 110 votes, just as the wise ones figured a week ago. It is Johnson, and not Wood, against whom the first "squeeze-out" operates, although the ambition of the anti-Wood forces was to kill off the general first among the "Big Three."

Cheer Close Finish.

A "horse race" finish is made on the sixth ballot by Wood and Lowden. Each gets 311½ votes. Lowden is the only one of the "Big Three" to this stage who has gained on each ballot.

There is an outburst of delight from the galleries over the "neck and neck" finish. It is spontaneous joy of the sort that bubbles up from spectators at a race track who have no money up on the ponies.

Fred Upham of Illinois, stage manager of the convention so far as the physical settings are concerned, is out in the Illinois aisle pulling for Lowden. Murray Crane of Massachusetts, one of the last of the real old guard, is talking with a fat man from New York, and what with the din the stout party is wishing that Crane would shoot his whispers through the electric resonator. But then the galleries might discover what is in Murray's mind, which is something many politicians have failed to do.

SEVENTH BALLOT TAKEN

"Call the seventh ballot!" shouts Lodge through the hubbub. Alabama slips two votes to Harding, which causes vast excitement among the Ohio senator's friends. California sticks closer than a cluster of raisins to Hiram. The Michigan chairman casts thirty votes for Johnson and for a moment it seems that the Wolverine instrusted delegates had gone back to Hi. But only for half a minute, for some one demands a poll of the delegation, and on this Johnson gets 16, Wood 13, Lowden 1, a gain of two votes for Wood over the preceding ballot. The delegates were under orders to stick to Hiram as long as he had a reasonable chance and Hiram blew up long ago.

Harding Gains Slowly.

Torbet is glad he did not bet on the seventh. The figures read by the clerk show that Harding has crept up by degrees to 105 votes. He is over the century mark. His friends become almost dizzy from excitement; much yelling and running about.

LEWIS K. TORBET. [Photo by Sykes.]

Wood has crept one-half vote ahead of Lowden. The general has 312; the governor has 311½, his old number. Johnson has dropped one-half vote under the 100 mark. He has fallen from the big three, while Harding has jumped into his place.

EIGHTH BALLOT ON

Well, maybe the eighth ballot will tell. Everybody seems skeptical; that is, everybody but the Harding boosters. At this juncture the convention ties the deadlock of 1888 when it took eight ballots to nominate Harrison and in those days the delegates were not so "untrammelled" nor so far at sea.

Harding is to be given a tryout. What the analysts term a psychological moment is on the wing. Some of the conservative, standpat members of the senate seem to think the eighth poll will be a "test of strength," to use the usual phrase.

In the good old state of Michigan Johnson's vote has dropped to 10 from its pristine 30. Lowden gets 7 votes. Among the Michigan men are 6 Lowden men who have been ready to vote for him on any ballot after the first two. They have been held back by the Lowden managers.

Effort at Stampede.

Harding gains in Ohio, Oregon; many other states increase their Harding vote. Wyoming goes to him, down towards the tail end of the poll. This is the signal for the din to break out. Ohio is up on its seats roaring and screeching. Horns, megaphones, bells, and bazoos are adding to the bedlam. The hall is filled with shouts of "Harding," "Harding."

It looks like an attempt at a stampede—but one is still skeptical that this convention can be carried off its feet by mere noise and ebullition of enthusiasm. It will take more than whoops—conferences, caucuses, and a little pressure from the half-invisible "management" will be required.

The chairman of the Missouri delegation advances and announces his state will change its vote to thirty-six solid for Harding. But some one in the seats yells "No. No," and the chairman withdraws his change.

"They're saving it for the next ballot," everybody says.

The results of the eighth ballot show Harding has gained twenty-eight votes. He has a total of 133½. Johnson has slipped to 87—Hiram is not far ahead of Sproul, the Quaker dark horse, now. Lowden has dropped four votes, the first ballot on which he has receded. He is again leading the field. Wood is in second place. The poll:

Wood—299.
Lowden—307.
Johnson—87.
Harding—133.

Heads are being put together in several parts of the hall. Over in the New York delegation are Senator Harry New of Indiana, Senator James Wadsworth of New York, and John Francis Neylan of California, Johnson's floor leader. Wadsworth wants to take a recess, but the Harding people object—they want to keep the ball rolling until it finally rolls into the corner pocket. The Lowden men are for taking a rest.

HARRY S. NEW.

"Tobe" Hert of Kentucky moves a recess until 4 o'clock. A storm of "Noes" roars through the Coliseum. California second's Hert's motion. When it is put both sides vote so lustily that it is like measuring one minute of Niagara against another. Lodge strokes his whiskers—the chair is in doubt.

"No adjournment until we get Harding over," scream the Ohio men. But up on the platform heads are together; arms are around shoulders; much conference is going on; Smoot, McCormick, Warren, Neylan, Hert, Watson, and the rest look like a college glee club ready to sound a few barber shop chords.

The group evaporates. Lodge comes to the front—"the convention," he announces, "is adjourned until 4 o'clock."

4 O'CLOCK SESSION

The Harding parade marched into the hall when the afternoon session was due to start, a welcome diversion to the gallery, munching hot dog sandwiches. There were banners: "The Republicans need Ohio." "Harding means Ohio."

At 4:50 Lodge swung the mall.

"The ninth ballot will be taken," he said.

Now the Harding men tried to shout down the walls of Jericho. Alabama gives him 4. A great yell, but it is only what Alabama gave him on the eighth.

California stuck tight for Hiram.

Connecticut cast 13 votes for Harding. The gain in the Nutmeg state brought a resounding howl. Florida gave him a gain of 7 at the expense of Wood.

Kansas Swings in Line.

Then Kansas cast its twenty votes for Harding. A demonstration started. "Wow," they yelled, and started a parade down the aisles.

"Tobe" Hert, the Lowden manager, announced Kentucky's twenty-six votes were cast for Harding. It had been solid for Lowden up to this time. This brought everybody up standing. There was a great din, after which it was announced again:

"Kentucky cast its twenty-six votes for Harding."

ALVIN T. HERT. [Copyright: Moffett.]

Louisiana cast its twelve votes for Harding. This took seven more from Lowden and three from Wood.

Delaware took three votes from Du Pont and gave them to Sproul, the first he had got outside of Pennsylvania.

Massachusetts, Maine, and Maryland stuck to Wood, and when Michigan was called the delegation had to be polled. The Harding men groaned. The polls showed Lowden had dropped one vote and Harding had picked it up. That's all.

Missouri for Harding.

Missouri threw its thirty-six votes to Harding. Another outburst; next minute Johnson's remaining delegates in Nebraska went to Wood, making a solid Wood vote for that state.

But when New York swung sixty-six of its eighty-eight votes to Harding the yelling made the girders tremble. Lowden was the chief loser.

North Carolina swung eighteen to But Ohio, Harding's home state, split—giving Wood nine and Harding thirty-nine, as it had been doing.

Oklahoma had to be polled after the chairman had voted its twenty solid for Harding. On the poll, Harding got eighteen, Wood a half a vote, Will Hays got one vote—his first appearance in the field.

Pennsylvania did not swing to Harding, despite the rumor Penrose had come out for him. It still gave Sproul seventy-five and Knox one.

South Carolina took eleven from Lowden and gave them to Harding. Tennessee gave Hardding five more than before, taking them from Lowden and Wood.

Sproul on Floor.

Gov. Sproul came on the floor and joined the Pennsylvania delegation as Texas was being polled. Texas gave Harding eleven more than before, while Utah gave two Wood votes to Harding.

Virginia took ten votes from Lowden and gave nine of them to Harding, making his eleven. The other went to Wood, making his four.

"Woo—oo," groaned the galleries when Wisconsin for the ninth time registered twenty-four for LaFollette.

Harding gained two from Wood in the District of Columbia and two from Lowden in Hawaii.

Philippines Stick to Wood.

The Philippines stuck to Wood, while Porto Rico swung its two votes to Harding.

Lodge's voice by this time was worn to a very strained whisper. When the result is announced, Harding is standing in first place with 374½ votes, the highest polled so far by any one.

He is still 119 votes short of the nomination. The polls stand:

Wood, 249.
Lowden, 121½.
Johnson, 82.
Harding, 374½.
Sproul, 78.

Amid intense interest the chair orders: "The tenth ballot will now be taken."

TENTH BALLOT ON

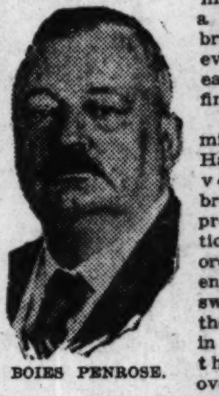
"Watch him go over, now," is the shout. As the call progressed Harding picked up four in Alabama, twelve in Arkansas, three in Delaware, a half in Florida, nine in Georgia, one in Idaho, twenty-two and one-half in Illinois, nine in Indiana, and twenty-six in Iowa.

He lost two in Kansas and gained five in Maryland. In Massachusetts he fourteen more votes now, provided on the remaining states he kept what he got on the ninth ballot.

Michigan's vote put Harding over. He made a gain in this state of twenty-four votes, putting him ten above the additional vote he had needed to make the required majority, 493.

Harding gained two more in Minnesota, five in Mississippi, four in Nebraska, one in New Jersey, two in North Carolina, nine in North Dakota.

Ohio swung solidly to its senator—forty-eight for Harding, a gain of nine. There was a demonstration, brief, because everybody was eager for the finish.



BOIES PENROSE.

Pennsylvania a minute later gave Harding sixty votes. This brought a more prolonged celebration. Penrose's orders had apparently been to swing whenever the candidate was in shape to put the nomination over. But Harding had it without Pennsylvania.

Parades formed in the aisle. A young man from Xenia, O., Paul Creswalter, bore a placard to the front of the press benches, "Say, Boys and Girls, Let's Nominate Harding," which was the finale to Frank B. Willis' nominating speech.

After that it was a band wagon rush. Illinois switched sixteen of the seventeen votes it had cast for Lowden to Harding. Mississippi switched twelve to Harding. Washington switched its fourteen to him.

The clerk was half way through the announcement of the result of the tenth ballot when Frelinghuysen of New Jersey moved it be made unanimous. This was seconded by Frank L. Smith of Illinois.

FRANK L. SMITH.

On the vote the only "nays" were sounded by Wisconsin.

They were echoed from floor and gallery: "Boo-oo-oo!"

FILL SECOND PLACE

One short roar of mingled relief and satisfaction and the convention passes to the job of picking a running mate for Harding.

Lodge's voice has become so worn that he calls Frank B. Willis of Ohio to take the gavel.

"A candiate for vice president is to be nominated," he announced.

"You have adopted a great and constructive platform. You have nominated for the presidency a many of large experience, deep learning, great power—Senator Harding. Now, you must nominate for vice president a man capable of filling the position of chief executive. I nominate Irving Lenroot of Wisconsin."

"Tobe" Hert of Kentucky seconded it. So does Senator Calder of New York; so do others.

W. J. Bailey of Kansas nominates Gov. Henry J. Allen in a speech which was lost in the uproar.

Ballot on Four Names.

"Make it unanimous," moved John G. Oglesby, lieutenant governor of Illinois. The motion was seconded by F. H. LaGuardia of New York, and was promptly carried.

Without a dissenting vote a resolution is adopted instructiong the national committee to devise some just and equitable method of representation in future national conventions, to be operative in 1924. It will cut down the representation of the southern Democratic states.

The policy and platform advisory committee, an innovation introduced this time by Will Hays, is made a permanent adjunct. Routine resolutions thanking Chairman Lodge and other officers of the convention for their services, providing for the filling of vacancies on the ticket if they should happen, and for the publishing of a report are adopted.

The fag end stuff is rapidly disposed of, and at 7:32 p. m., on motion of Will Hays, the seventeenth Republican national convention adjourns.

Leaders Assure Harding of United Party in Campaign for Election

Political hammers and hatchets were generally buried last night, after the old time Republican fashion prevailing before the stormy days of 1912. Leaders of various convention groups lost the belligerency that had characterized them through the week.

Although it was not definitely ascertained whether Johnson and Borah would take off their coats for the nomineees, other treaty irreconcilables came smiling after the convention had run over their California candidate, and agreed to be good.

"I wish Senator Harding all the good luck in the world and success in his campaign," said Ralph Strassburger, of Pennsylvania, one of the campaign managers for Senator Johnson. "We congratulate Senator Harding."

Lowden Men Take Off Coats.

Not a trace of bitterness could be found in the Lowden camp. Disappointed, of course, were all the men who fought for Gov. Lowden, but they already have enlisted in the campaign to elect Harding.

"We put up the best fight we could, but lost," said Louis L. Emmerson, secretary of state for Illinois, and manager of the Lowden campaign. "Now we are out to support the nominee. Lowden's campaign was conducted throughout with the thought that nothing but good feeling should come out of it. Harding will win in November."

East Is Satisfied.

Men from the east, too, seemed satisfied and confident over the result.

"Warren Harding," said Senator Wadsworth of New York, "will prove to be a most excellent candidate. He is a man of wide experience, sound judgment, and intimate knowledge of the people of the United States."

William Barnes of New York, "Boss" Barnes, as he is familiarly known, said: "Senator Harding is representative of the best American citizenship. He has a cool, clear head and his feet are on the ground."

"I was never so pleased in my life," said Senator Elkins of West Virginia.

Senator Harry S. New of Indiana, who supported Gen. Wood, said: "Harding will be a great candidate and a great president."

Lodge Commends Ticket.

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, the chairman of the convention, was tired but happy when he dropped the gavel to whoop it up for the nominee.

"I am much pleased with the ticket," said Senator Lodge. "It is an especial pleasure to me that the convention should have chosen my good friend, Gov. Coolidge, for vice president. He is a very able man."

Senator Smoot, one of the party's old war horses, said: "The ticket is entirely satisfactory to me. So is the platform. Senator Harding will make a wonderful president."

Ohio Men Jubilant.

Ohio men, of course, were jubilant. Myron T. Herrick, ex-governor of Ohio and former ambassador to France, said:

"Senator Harding is the type of man who listens to good advice. He is big enough and broad enough to want advice and to profit by it. He will be a good president."

Gov. Morrow of Kentucky, one of the most loyal of the Lowden men, said: "Senator Harding is very popular among the rank and file of our people. He will carry Kentucky."

Puts Party on Mettle.

William Allen White of Kansas, a Wood man and a progressive, said:

"The Harding nomination is going to put the Republican party on its mettle. Of the three men, Wood, Lowden and Harding, I think Harding will be the easiest to elect. It will be a big fight, and I'm for it. The more the merrier."

Congressman Frank L. Smith, Illinois state chairman, said: "We were sorry to lose with Gov. Lowden but rejoice to win with Harding. The people will do the rest Nov. 4.

Senator Calder of New York said: "Senator Harding will carry New York overwhelmingly."

Louis Coolidge of Massachusetts said "Harding is an excellent nomination. He will make a great president."

Roosevelt Will Help Him.

Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas said: "Those who know Senator Harding know he will make a wonderful president."

"I shall work like a nailer for Harding," said Col. Theodore Roosevelt, who had been for months aiding Gen. Wood.

Charles B. Warren of Michigan, who was for Lowden, said: "Harding will unquestionably receive the indorsement of Republicans of all shades of opinion."

WOOD THANKS CAMPAIGN AIDS FOR LOYAL HELP

Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood issued this statement last night regarding the convention results:

"At the close of this campaign I take this opportunity to thank, from the bottom of my heart, all the men and women who have helped so loyally in the pre-convention and convention contest. I am sincerely grateful for their help and appreciate the spirit of unselfish loyalty in which it was given. I also appreciate the nation-wide expression of confidence and support."

Gen. Wood issued the following statement before the official vote which gave Senator Harding the Republican nomination for the presidency was announced:

"I congratulate Senator Harding on his nomination."

FELICITATIONS WIRED BY HOOVER TO SEN. HARDING

New York, June 12.—Herbert Hoover, defeated candidate for the Republican nomination, tonight sent the following message to Senator Harding:

"I hasten to tender you my most cordial personal congratulations on your nomination and on the great opportunity it affords you to interpret the desires of the American people."

THE HUMAN SIDE OF THE REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES NAMED YESTERDAY

They were the center of interest and were surrounded by cheering and enthusiastic friends and admirers for several hours before they left on a midnight train for Washington. After a brief stay at the capital they will go to Marion, O., for a rest.

Gov. and Mrs. Coolidge are good pals, as the picture shows. They were together at the Adams house in Boston last night when they received word of the governor's nomination for the vice presidency. They will go to Amherst for commencement Monday, Gov. Coolidge being a graduate of Amherst college.

Residence of Senator Harding at Marion, O. Just a comfortable home, of which there are many in this Ohio town.

GOV. CALVIN COOLIDGE.

Gov. Calvin Coolidge, like Senator Harding, was born on a farm near the village of Plymouth, Vt., July 4, 1872. He worked as a farmer and assisted his father in the village store. He was graduated at Amherst, after which he took up the study of law at Northampton. In 1918 he was elected governor of Massachusetts and re-elected in 1919 by an overwhelming majority because of his stand during the Boston police strike.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Getting an early start with the coming president: Senator McCormick may not be talking Illinois patronage, but he had something quite important and private to whisper to the candidate just after his nomination.

'SAY, BOYS AND GIRLS, LET'S PICK HARDING!' DONE!

Or, Willis and Creswell Start Something.

BY EYE WITNESS.

"Say boys—and girls—let's nominate Harding!"

WILLIS OF OHIO.

The jolly, companionable words that roaring Willis of Ohio had spoken on Friday were the only ones that soared above the tumult and the shouting when they were in the very rigor of the game on Saturday.

In that dusty hour, when state after state was wheeling—when it was not scurrying—into Mr. Harding's column, all the pompous shibboleths of party fealty went glimmering, and it was the seven rough and ready words out of the vernacular that made the tired fighting men lean back and laugh and forget their troubles.

Even Henry Cabot Lodge permitted himself the indelicacy of a grin—well, no, not a grin, but a tired smile—as the hurriedly scrawled placard was thrust perilously near to the sacred gangway from which he had vehemently shoved an overzealous journalist earlier in the day.

Paul Creswell's Triumph.

And Paul H. Creswell of Xenia, deputy auditor of Greene county, O., was a very happy man, by gosh.

For, though the words were the words of Willis on Friday, it was young Mr. Creswell, the deputy auditor, in the patent, self-ventilating linen cap that is prime for traveling, who resurrected them on Saturday and lifted them high above the din and heat of battle.

During that dramatic tenth ballot, when the wheeling into the column and the scurrying for the new and resplendent band wagon became a mania, he emerged steaming from the sloppy basement regions of the Coliseum with his placard.

He had found a big white sheet of bristol board that read on one side: "For Firemen Only." On the other he feverishly emblazoned the words of Willis. Then he swung the placard down from the gallery to the left of the platform as you face the chairman.

Cheers, Laughs, Victory.

A big, hearty, heartening cheer greeted it. A roar of laughter ballooned the cheer from end to end and from side to side of the tired old hall.

The deputy auditor of Greene county took heart of grace, descended into the arena, strode with many an "excuse-me-fellows," over the pine tables in the newspaper shambles, and hung his placard in the comfortable view of a dozen thousand people.

Then he dropped, pleased and panting, into a chair by Levy Mayer, one of the few momentous men who can be an agreeable looker on at affairs even when he cannot cut ice in connection with them, and Levy patted the deputy auditor on the back and remarked, "My boy, you've said it."

Mr. Creswell had, indeed, ecected more than he suspected. After all the rancors and the rhodamontade, his prank diffused the jovial consciousness that we in this goodly young land are still boys and girls, and, even amid the strain and fume of these colossal diets that make one governing system unique, just folks together.

"Uncle Joe" Says a Mouthful.

In other respects the "demonstrations" leading up to and culminating in the nomination of Mr. Harding were the usual thing. As Uncle Joseph Cannon says: "It's like the circus—you see one and you see 'em all."

You saw the strain on the white or the florid faces of the party managers who paced Lodge's sacred gangway relax as evening drew on. You saw their whispered conferrings transferred to the larger stage on the floor below, where they became intent chafferings not probably as important as chafferers thought, but calculated to save self-respect and to inform big men who decide things that present also were little men constituting a very large mechanism that sometimes gets out of hand and smashes the fingers of big men.

A Scene from the Drama.

I happened to fall in on one of those occasions when a little scene of the drama of the day had been transferred from the big action to the little stage aloft to the minor actors on the big stage below. It was Kansas conferring—Kansas coatless, very intent, and twenty strong. They were all standing in a circle, all facing one another, and wholly oblivious of the 13,980 men and women around them. Had they been out in the middle of one of their own prairies they could not have cared a lesser damn about the rest of the world or been less self-conscious. One weary man—evidently well considered by the others—had twined an arm and a leg around the pole that bore the state's name, and he was saying, "Well, I vote to let it stand as it is."

There were sober nods at this, and phrases like "I guess you're right," and "For the present, then, that's agreed on," and "All right, Frank," and the group settled itself in chairs. I thought it beautiful—the quiet, kind faces, the forthrightness and sobriety of it all—and with a simplicity in it that made it somehow majestic. It was like a footnote to Bryce's "American Commonwealth," and thinking over it sort of steadied a man.

Calm Amid the Din.

More than once I happened on the kind of thing or had it indicated to me by colleagues wise in these matters—ah, very wise, and inclined to smile at perhaus o'er trustful receptivity. But the point of it all to me—and the one they had no time to bother with—was that this all-day shifting of the drama from behind the scenes to the very middle of the scenes went on soberly amid the most frantic hullaballoo. Men met in a maelstrom, extricated themselves from it, and then sat on the edge of it to confer, rationally enough, so far as I could see, about the steering of the ship. Men saw the prize hanging in midair above their heads, saw it come nearer, recede, vanish, nevermore to come again to them, and all they said by way of tirade was, "My God, how dry I am! Where's the water cooler?"

To me those were the real "demonstrations" of the day of the chieftains. There was the other kind, too—he kind you can see any feverish night in the Hungarian parliament. But they don't mean much over here as a rule, I fancy. They are the frolic with which calculation rewards itself after the long strain.

Feel Way to Band Wagon.

As I was saying, it was the ninth ballot that had the a realer drama in it than the tenth had, for during the ninth expectancy was keyed high, and the states did not so much swing toward as feel their way to the bandwagon. But when the tenth began it was all over but the shouting—and so they shouted.

"Over he goes now," said one of THE TRIBUNE's Washington men as the tenth, and final, ballot began.

Alabama, that had said four for Harding in the ninth, now said eight for Harding, and that started the kind of demonstration that has the tassels on it, but that is in its essence as conventional as a coat of paint.

Arizona and Arkansas wheeled in. And the racket rose.

But it was when Delaware, which for nineteen hours has been fooling with Du Pont, fell as one man into seat No. 7 on the band wagon that the red fire began to sizzle and the final tableau to take shape.

How the band wagon shone! The evening sunshine fell straight athwart Michigan. A voice from the galleries cried, "Come on, Michigan!" Michigan piled on, twenty-four strong, never minding four little boys who sulked and hesitated, and missed the step.

New York's spokesman shouted, "Sixty-eight votes for Senator Harding," and the sapient one at my side said, "It's done."

It was 6:14 o'clock. Up with the standard, lads! Down the aisle it goes, a standard with the portrait of a pleasant, thoughtful, elderly face on it.

Everybody is on his feet now.

Delegates, spectators, all are standing, all are shouting—save Lodge, who sits and fingers his beard, and looks watchfully out from under his reflective brows, rising at 6:35 to remark dryly—and hoarsely—"I don't suppose that it is necessary for me to announce to you now that your nominee is Warren G. Harding of Ohio."

Lodge, the Imperturbable.

When the last trump sounds Senator Lodge no doubt will be there, for he always gravitates to large occasions, but he will be calm, and he will say, "It is not my wish—it is my last wish—to have the galleries cleared, but cleared they will be unless St. Peter is permitted to transact the business of this convention amid order."

I linger on the entrancing scene. Some routine of party government fills the last moments. The hall is nearly empty now and the band has nearly finished the old anthem. It is 7:30 o'clock. The sun has dropped behind the smoky battlements of the tired town, and all the ways grow dark, and turbulent men fare their ways to their Sunday rest like little children that have played and are aweary now.

EDITORIAL COMMENT ON TICKET

Editorial comment by papers of the country on the Republican ticket yesterday follows:

New York Times—Upon a platform that has produced general dissatisfaction, the Chicago convention presents a candidate whose nomination will be received with astonishment and dismay. Warren G. Harding is a very respectable Ohio politician of the second class. The nomination of Harding is the fine and perfect flower of the cowardice of the senatorial cabal that charged itself with the management of the Republican convention. Rejecting Leonard Wood, because they knew he would never be dictated to by them, they favored Gov. Lowden until Borah served upon them his notice of a veto of that nomination. Gov. Coolidge, for vice president, at least is a man of achievement; he is known to the party and to the nation. It will be felt and said everywhere that the Democrats at San Francisco have received from their opponents at Chicago the gift of a splendid opportunity.

New York Sun and Herald—In the nomination of Harding the Republican party has done the wisest thing it could have done. Senator Harding is the exemplification of the best type of Americanism. Gov. Coolidge is a fitting running mate for Senator Harding. He has come to occupy a big place with right thinking, sound living Americans.

"Palpably Lacking in Zeal."

Buffalo Times—By the choice of Harding the major figures of the convention are eliminated. He is not the man whom any large element in his party would have chosen. The decision reflects the tone of the convention, which was palpably lacking in zeal.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat—Harding resembles Garfield somewhat in his qualities, but the people of Ohio, who know him best, see a closer comparison with McKinley. He is without doubt a man of the McKinley type, having much the same sane and balanced judgment, the same soberness of demeanor, the same conservatism of speech.

Boston Globe—The nomination is one more achievement of that redoubtable political group known to popular imagination as the old guard. Senator Harding is a conservative candidate with a conservative platform.

Pittsburgh Dispatch—After all the pother about the league plank and making that the issue the candidates chosen are not especially noted for aggressiveness in that capacity. The two major parties will have to fight out the battle on American issues[and on these the ticket named undoubtedly represents the Republican viewpoint.

"Coolidge Adds Great Strength."

Columbus State Journal.—Senator Harding's nomination is another great triumph for the old guard. The nomination of the cool, calm, and courageous Calvin Coolidge of Massachusetts for the vice presidency, adds great strength to the ticket.

Buffalo Express.—Harding and Coolidge. The records of these two men assure the country that within the year the United States will be guided again by clear thinking, constructive, businesslike leaders. The Republicans have nominated the strongest of tickets.

Baltimore Sun—Warren G. Harding is a typical wheelhorse of the party. He will be agreeable to the party regulars, but he will not appeal strongly to the independent voters. He is the same kind of a candidate as the platform is a kind of a platform.

Baltimore American—In nominating Harding the party has done more toward restoring the country to its normal balance than it could have done by the nomination of any other aspirant.

Indianapolis Star — United States senators, after having framed a platform in which they bow in adoration before their own supernatural wisdom and nobility, have nominated this ticket as the result of their own plans and specifications. It remains to be seen whether it can be elected.

"Might Have Done Worse"

Atlanta Constitution—The nomination of Senator Harding will be received with surprise by many. Mr. Harding's chief strength lies in the fact that he has been a sort of middle of the roader. The Republicans might have gone further and done much worse.

Richmond, Va., Times Dispatch—Harding always has been a "regular." He is acceptable to the old guard and the "interests." He can stand on any and every plank in the G. O. P. platform without qualm of conscience or violation of political principle. Coolidge stands for at least one definite thing, law and order.

Wheeling Register—The nomination of Harding will please the conservative elements of the Republican party and "big business," but it will not please the progressive groups and labor.

SUSPECT BLACK HAND REVENGE AGAINST CARUSO

East Hampton, L. I., June 12.—[Special.]—Detectives working on the Caruso jewelry robbery here found their tasks further complicated today with the receipt of a letter by Mrs. Caruso in obscure Italian dialect, supposedly a "Black Hand threat."

Detective Rene Surdez said Italians among the Caruso household servants, while professing inability to translate the letter, appeared frightened when they read it.

Fearing that the jewel robbery is not the only danger if the Black Hand is connected with the case, Mrs. Caruso has made extraordinary preparations to insure the safety of her infant daughter. Members of the household, with the exception of Mrs. Caruso, are all armed.

Italians Quit Montenegro to Appease the Jugo-Slavs

ROME, June 12.—[United Press.]—Italian troops have evacuated all Montenegrin towns, including Antivari, Dulcigno, and Scutari, because of Jugo-Slav hostilities, a dispatch to the Tempo said today. The Italians also evacuated Santi-Quaranti naval base.

New Hotel in Marion, O., Travelers Ask Harding

Seattle, Wash., June 12.—[Special.]—Three traveling men from Ohio today wired congratulations to Harding and requested that he pass up the league of nations until he causes a new hotel to be built in Marion, O.

HARDING IDEAL CHOICE FOR G.O.P., DEMOCRATS SAY

Regard Him as Help in Fight for Votes.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., June 12.—[Special.] — Prominent Democrats expressed themselves as highly pleased tonight over the nomination of Senator Harding by the Republicans.

Secretary of State Colby, a former Roosevelt progressive, declared that the selection of a "stand patter" served to emphasize the issue between the two parties and that it would aid the Democrats.

"From the stanpoint of the Democratic party the nomination of Mr. Harding is a very admirable one, because it tends to clarify and emphasize every issue between the two parties," Secretary Colby said. "It is a clear-cut issue that will go before the American people.

Convention Highly Gratifying.

"I think Senator Harding's strength is an illusion that exists only in the minds of the stand-pat section of the Republican party, and, speaking as a former progressive, it seems to me the emphasis of the old stand-pat aspect of the Republican convention action is very gratifying from the standpoint of its opponents.

"Speaking in a lighter vein my thoughts turn to the Shakespearan quotation and lead me to say: 'Alas, poor Harding.'"

No formal comment on the nominations was obtainable at the White House. However, Secretary Tumulty, who was manifestly very happy over the Chicago result, when asked for an expression of opinion, replied:

"I am de-lighted."

Harding "Bully" Choice.

Senator Key Pittman of Nevada first said he felt "bully," when asked for comment on the nomination. Asked for further comment, he said:

"I haven't very much to say, I feel so good over the nomination. I am disappointed from one standpoint and very happy from another. It is the only consistent thing that this stand-pat, colorless convention has done.

"It has nominated a man who has preached reaction for the last two or three months. It has nominated a man without any human instincts whatever, and is absolutely subservient to the peculiar philosophy of Big Business. It explains their platform perfectly—a secret platform, a secret meeting, and a candidate who will accept interpretations.

"If the Democrats nominate a man who is in sympathy with the policies and spirit of this government—and I have no doubt whatever that they will—and who is not afraid to state where he stands, he will receive the overwhelming vote of this country."

CELLULOID BLOWS UP.

An explosion of celluloid in a steel vault of the J. B. Carroll company, Carroll and North Albany avenues, manufacturers of advertising novelties, destroyed the contents of the vault, valued at $5,000, and blew out all the windows in the three story building.

'FILLED UP ON PAIR OF EIGHTS,' LAUGHS HARDING

How He Acted When Lightning Struck.

100 newspaper men waited in the lobby. The senator said he had no statement of importance to make. He wanted to think things over, he said. He would be guided by the advice of the national committee in the campaign.

To Stay in Marion.

"I want to go to Washington for a few days," he said. "Then I expect to go to Marion and remain there. I am very proud, as any American would be, to receive this great honor from the Republican party. I am not unmindful of the obligations and responsibilities that go with it."

He apologized for not having any "news." He knows news. He shook hands with all the reporters and told them he was leaving for Washington at 11:45. One of the senator's visitors was Henry B. Hayne, who presided at the Ohio state convention eighteen years ago that named Harding as candidate for the state senate.

Election Day Birthday.

Friends of the nominee reminded reporters that the day of the nomination was the birthday of Senator Harding's father, who lives in Marion, and that Nov. 2 next, election day, will be Senator Harding's birthday. His age will be 55. There is something of fate in this, his friends think. They have no doubt of his election. Already they begin to glorify him and place his many virtues for the world's inspection. Kindliness, they say, is his great characteristic. He has brown, friendly eyes, and a warm handclasp. His dignity is marked.

The senator's secretary, George B. Christian, found himseelf a very busy man. Something of the glory was shining on him also. But he took it easily as did his chief.

Harry M. Daugherty, national manager for the Harding campaign, gave out this statement:

"On behalf of the Republicans of Ohio, and especially on behalf of Senator Harding, his family and friends, I desire to express to the Republicans of the country, men and women, our sincere gratitude for the confidence expressed in this wonderful man by nominating him as the candidate of the party for the presidency.

"We entered this campaign with considerable reluctance because Senator Harding did not desire to make a high powered organization campaign for the presidency. Our plan, as is now well known, was carried out, whereby we conducted rather a modest campaign and left the selection to the Republicans of the country without too much pressure.

"We have, throughout the campaign, had the highest respect for opposition candidates and for their supporters. At no time have we made any attacks upon any candidate or any candidate's supporters, and Senator Harding will receive the support, no doubt, of every man and woman in the country who desires to vote the Republican ticket. The ticket will be elected overwhelmingly in November."

Aid Predicted Harding Victory After Deadlock

New York, June 12.—[Special.]—Harry M. Daugherty, campaign manager for Senator Harding, made a prophetic statement in this city on Feb. 29 of this year, according to campaign material sent out from Wood headquarters in that month.

A statement from the Wood headquarters credited Mr. Daugherty with saying Senator Harding would be nominated by "fifteen or twenty men sitting around a table" after the national convention had become deadlocked on the other candidates.

HARDING MADE NEW TARGET OF WOMEN PICKETS

Demand Republican Ai for Amendment.

Senator Warren G. Harding, Rep lican nominee for president, last n became the target of the Nati Woman's party in its effort to ob ratification of the suffrage amen ment by a thirty-sixth state. A Paul, with a large delegation of fragists, planned to wait on Se tor Harding to urge him to bring influence to bear to obtain legislat action in some state where Rep licans control.

A statement issued by the Woma party warned Republicans that t fight will continue.

"Our campaign against Republi obstruction to suffrage is not ove the statement said. "We will co tinue publicly and insistently to d mand action from the Republica party to complete suffrage rati tion."

Women from almost every state a on the committee, working to h the Republican nominee take up t cause. Among them are Mrs. La rence Lewis of Philadelphia, M Mabel Vernon of Wilmington, De Mrs. Abby Scott Baker of Washingto D. C.; Miss Sallie Hovey of Po mouth, N. ROTTEN BOROUGH CURE ORDERED BY CONVENTION

Republicans Take Step to Clean Up South.

BY OSCAR E. HEWITT.

The "rotten boroughs" of the Republican organization are to be cleaned out. The delegates to the national convention so directed last night.

Two yelps came from the overrepresented south, but they failed even to get delay.

One came from H. F. McGregor, national committeeman from Texas. He attempted to side track the demand for fair and equitable representation in the next convention with a point of order. That failed. Then Walter L. Cohen, colored delegate from Alabama, protested that the proposed rule is "unfair" and "aimed primarily at the south." The national committeeman from Louisiana stood by Cohen while he talked. Cohen asked that the resolution be tabled. The convention declined with a decisive viva voce vote. Then the resolution passed unanimously.

Ohioan Offers Resolution.

It was offered by Paul Howland, former congressman from Ohio, who was a Johnson delegate in the convention. The national committeeman from that state, R. M. Hynicka, sat on the credentials committee and appeared to be disgusted with some of the contests presented.

The text of the convention's order reads as follows:

"Resolved, That, in order to effect proper and necessary changes in the present apportionment of delegates in proportion to the Republican votes actually cast at general elections throughout the various states of the union, and in order to inspire a greater effort to erect and maintain substantial party organizations in all the states, the national committee, notwithstanding any rule heretofore adopted, is hereby authorized and directed, within twelve months from the date of the adjournment of this convention, to adopt a just and equitable basis of representation in future national conventions, which basis shall be set forth in the call for the next convention and be binding upon the same and all future conventions until otherwise ordered."

Calls Present System Unjust.

That resolution indirectly says that the present system in inequitable and unjust. And the states of Texas and Louisiana, which protested, supply striking illustrations of the convention's judgment.

Texas had twenty-three votes in the convention. Its vote for Hughes four years ago was 64,356. Maine had only twelve delegates but it gave the 1916 presidential nominee 69,506 votes. Maine had less than half the representation of Texas. Kansas had only twenty votes in the convention, but it gave Hughes 277,658 votes. That means that Texas had four times as much representation in the convention as Kansas.

Another contrast is supplied by Nebraska. This state gave Hughes more than 101,000, as against 64,000 from Texas. But Nebraska had only eight votes to twenty-three from Texas.

A More Horrible Example.

Each delegate from Texas represented an average of 2,826 Republican voters. Outside of eleven southern states each delegate represented 9,875 Republican voters. This is on the basis of the 1916 presidential vote. If the last congressional election is taken as a gauge, each Texas delegate represented only 252 Republican votes, because in 1918 only a total of 5,807 votes were cast for Republican candidates for congress.

The other protestor, Louisiana, is a more horrible example of over representation. It only cast 6,466 votes for Hughes, yet had twelve delegate votes in the convention. Each delegate therefore represented only 539 Republican voters. At the last congressional election there was not a Republican candidate in the entire state. The reports on file in the department of state at Washington show that no Republican votes were cast at this congressional election. THE TRIBUNE yesterday gave more details regarding the south's overrepresentation in other states.

Alabamans Ask Change.

One hundred Republicans "from principle" of Mobile, Ala., presented a plea for fair representation to every state delegation at the convention. They also sent a petition to Will H. Hays, chairman of the Republican national committee, showing "the awful inequalities" existing in the representation. A letter to the national committeemen said in part:

"You all well know and remember that at the convention in Chicago in 1912, through the use of the delegates from these solid Democratic states, the candidate wanted by the Republican states, which were obliged to furnish the vote on election day, was thrown down and defeated so outrageously as to cause a split in the party, thereby turning the government over to incompetents and grafters, who have left it such a terrible wreck for the G. O. P. to pick up and save what they can out of it. Our object in this appeal is to show to your honorable committee where the cancer lies which is directly responsible for destruction of our G. O. P. and the nation as well."

BUTLER IS FIRST TO FELICITATE RIVAL WHO WON

"Senator Harding is an old and very warm personal friend, and I greatly rejoice at the honor come to him. He is a thoroughgoing American and a sound Republican who belongs to no faction.

"I shall do everything in my power to promote his election in November. The state of New York may be counted on for literally a tremendous majority for Harding and Coolidge.

"By good fortune I was the first to congratulate Senator Harding on his election, as I was shaking his hand when the announcement of his nomination was made."

AT LEAST 2 MORE DAYS OF HEAT IN STORE FOR CITY

4 Are Prostrated; Ten Bitten by Dogs.

Chicago continued to swelter from the heat yesterday and the weather man fears the melting process will continue today and tomorrow.

As the torrid winds from the south poured over the city, four heat prostrations, ten dog bite cases, and a horse, maddened by the rays of Old Sol, kept police and firemen busy.

Those overcome by the heat were:

Robert Skene, 65 years old, 1116 Fullerton avenue.

John Axasimons, 70 years old, 8803 Colfax avenue.

Hugh B. Smith, 67 years old, 5411 Blackstone avenue.

Ten Bitten by Dogs.

The victims of dog bites:

Harry Warren, 18 years old 3828 Park avenue.

Horse Runs Amuck.

Edward Means and his wife, Jennie, were asleep in their home, 3203 Calumet avenue, early yesterday, when they were awakened by a noise which sounded like the approach of an army. Their daughters, Bessie, 21 and Della, 15, screamed and ran out of the house. Means ran to the basement just as the door was smashed to splinters.

The cause of the disturbance was a wild horse which sought refuge in a small store room. A call for the police and fire departments was sent in and by the time they arrived, everything including the furnace, washing machine, and canned fruit, was in ruins. The animal was seriously hurt and had to be shot.

Evanston Beaches Open.

Evanston will take its first official dip of the 1920 season in the lake today. Supt. Charles Carland, commander of the coast guard station at Northwestern university, approved the opening last night.

BABY SCALDS ITSELF TO DEATH.

George Corbett, 18 months old, of 4809 South Wells street died yesterday of scalds. His mother had placed some of the child's clothes in a basin of boiling water on a chair. The baby tipped over the basin.

BANDITS ROB TWO PEDESTRIANS.

George S. Kimpslin, 2736 Seminary avenue, told the Sheffield avenue police that two armed men robbed him of $7 yesterday at Seminary and Diversey avenues. William Hillen, 117 East One Hundred and Eighth street, was robbed of $10 by two men at Seventy-fifth and South State streets.

TROLLEY CAR AND TRAIN COLLIDE.

convention, as freely deliberative as a great ical assembly can be, a convention, numbering ies, but as nearly unbossed as a party organ- ion has ever been, a convention without a m roller and as free to express its own judg- t and what it honestly considered the true will he party and the best interests of the country nominated as Republican candidate for the idency Warren G. Harding, senator from Ohio. hatever the adherents of other candidates may their natural disappointment cannot be em- ered by sense of injustice. The convention was to choose, and its choice is freely made. Ve all, therefore, go forward to the electoral test good feeling and the confidence founded on substantial claims of the Republican party to estored to the full responsibility of government. he candidate is a foursquare American, who worked his way up from the humblest begin- gs to the high position from which he is, we eve, to be called to the highest office in the . His character is unblemished and he has ved himself in private and public life worthy unhesitant confidence. His experience is many d, as that of a chief executive of our govern- t must be if he is to fulfill his complicated and vy duties with judgment tested by real knowl- e of affairs. As a journalist of attainment, as a cessful business man, as a lawyer, and as a pub- man who has proved his worth, both as a state cutive and as an influential member of the ional senate, the party may well claim for him American voters the heavy responsibility of presidency. As president, Mr. Harding will g to government firmness and breadth. We l have true counsel once more in the White use, a constant guidance and influence for ef- ent and economical administration, a grasp of critical problems of industry, a human sense needs of all classes of our people, a firm in- ce upon the national interests in the world upon practical measures for their protection advancement.

he nomination of Senator Harding expresses deep desire of the party and of the American ple for a return to sound conservatism in pub- affairs and in public policies, for an emphatically erican point of view, for a common sense con- ration of American problems, for more prac- consideration of public efficiency and economy of the forces in American business and social which have made the American people pros- us in the past and which will protect their fare in these days of doubt, change, and dis- gration.

merican progress in politics, business, and al well-being must be founded on these con- ing principles, which refuse to sacrifice the in our past and our present, or depart, in h of alien novelties, from the broad and solid which has brought the American people so far which will take them safely farther through a d shaken to its foundations.

epublicanism believes in America and Ameri- ism, in American brains and character and ity to work out with this good American ma- al the problems of modern society. It believes the American man of practical achievement, has placed one of these at the head of its ticket.

THE DEMOCRATIC DILEMMA.

A party cannot win by repudiation of its presi- nt. If it confesses a failure in the past it prom- s a failure for the future. President Wilson is obligation which cannot be shirked. He carries th him the covenant of the league of nations. ey are inseparable.

Mr. Wilson's only achievement is the covenant. says it was not worth while fighting the war less the covenant could be obtained. If Mr. yan succeeded in San Francisco in repudiating e covenant, as well as in preventing any damp- ss along the edges of the Democratic platform, would have the Democrats repudiate their presi- nt and run a campaign on an admission of error d confession of failure.

It cannot be done. The Democrats either accept ilson and the covenant, bolt that document com- as, or they shut up shop. A great many Demo- ats probably wish with Mr. Bryan that the cove- nt were dead beyond a final kick. They gladly ould agree with the Republicans to say no more out it, but that cannot be done.

In true values it may be the least essential of merican issues and problems. It may have as uch valid appeal to the American people as the e crop in Greenland, but it is Mr Wilson's great ork, exclusively his great work.

The two parties will have to agree that the high st of living is a bad thing and that profiteering a bad thing, and the Democrats may dare the epublicans to outdo them in vehemence, but they nnot let the league of nations drop, no matter if gets to be a hotter brick than it is.

The Republicans have declared for the approved adition of the United States, of being of as much lp as it can rationally in the world and of keeping t of troubles which are not in its natural development. Their declaration is one which ought to permit agreement from various shades of Republican opinion, but the Democrats must take the covenant, comma and period. They must advocate a surrender of American sovereignty and a subjection of American principles to foreign importunities and complications.

If Mr. Bryan suggests a different course he suggests repudiation. If the party adopts a different course it repudiates and enters the campaign as an apologist.

Mr. Wilson has given his party a perplexing dilemma, and the Republicans already have made good use of it. The Democratic candidates may carry either the dead weight of the covenant or the dead weight of an administration which fails of confidence.

BORAH AND BOLT.

After consultation with that sterling Republican, William Randolph Hearst, Senator Borah told a gathering of delegates Friday night that if either Lowden or Wood were nominated he would not support the nominee.

Senator Borah seems in a threatening mood. We were told that if the treaty plank were this or that, Borah would bolt. Borah's temperature remains high on the subject of campaign expenditure, on which topic he is talking a great deal of unadulterated bunk, bunk which is the more offensive in that it is in fact an accusation that the American electorate can be bought outright for money.

Mr. Hearst has been talking third party for months. He has been in Chicago throughout the Republican convention and his efforts to create dissension and to bring about a bolt are as plain as a prairie fire. Senator Borah seems to be sympathetic. Perhaps he ought not to remain with us any longer, he is so uncomfortable. Perhaps it is time for the party to say to this bellicose member: "Must you be going? Here's your hat."

But has Senator Borah, all dressed up in righteous indignation and militant virtue, any place to go? He can't join the Democrats on the league issue. Has the siren (in the sense of foghorn) voice of Mr. Hearst enchanted him? Are we to expect a third ticket, Hearst and Borah?

Whatever Senator Borah's alternative intentions, it seems to us his threats to bolt for one reason or another are getting rather wearisome. If he really must be going, isn't it time for him to be on his way—as the whale remarked to Jonah on the evening of the third day.

He will bolt first to Hearst and then to oblivion. The Republican party can find a substitute for Borah much more easily than Borah can find a substitute for the Republican party.

ROTTEN BOROUGHS ARE MORE ROTTEN THAN THEY SEEM.

The delegates from the south in Republican conventions seem to represent something, no matter how small a vote it is, but that vote is really no vote. It is a vote only because it is ineffective. So long as it amounts to nothing it may be cast. If it were to amount to anything it would be topped by a little increase in the Democratic vote or stopped by a little decrease in the Republican vote.

So far as Negro voting is permitted in the south it is upon the condition that it shall be ineffective. The south cannot take chances with effective Negro voting. Neither would the north take chances. When there are enough Chicago Negroes to elect Negro mayors, judges, and legislators, even William Hale Thompson will be with the dominant white minority.

The southern Republican vote is so manipulated and controlled by the Democrats that it cannot count for president. Occasionally a southern congressional district, in some fringe state, elects a Republican congressman. It is so rarely done that it is a piece of news of national interest. The south is solid and the north is solid bone.

Because Republican administrations want to capture this block of southern carpet baggers the northern Republicans permit their organization to preserve a system of representation which diminishes the legitimate power of northern votes by giving inequitable power to southern delegates.

If the south voted in Republican conventions as it votes in national elections no one would care whom the southern delegates were for. There would not be enough of them. In the system of representation now governing, northern Republicans have 1 delegate for about every 10,000 votes; southern carpet baggers have 1 for about every 3,000 votes; and the southern votes are not really votes. They are fictions.

The next Republican president will not oppose the system. He will use it. The time to make a change is when there is no Republican president.

A SEARCHLIGHT ON CHARACTER.

A lesson to the nation is contained in a news dispatch from Bloomington, Ill., which asserts that farmers in that region have been plowing and planting by night as well as by day, with the aid of searchlights, to overcome the handicap of a late spring and insufficient farm labor.

While the nation is threatened with the smallest crop output in many years and a consequent continuation of high prices for food, these farmers have been working night and day to increase production. Scoffers may say that they are doing it to reap a harvest of high prices. If so, they are entitled to the product of their labor, for before they reap the harvest of cash they will reap one of corn. They at least produce.

Editorial of the Day

KEEP THE LIMELIGHT ON "WILSON" AND WIN!

[From Philadelphia Public Ledger.]

The Republicans have at their disposal an infallible receipt for victory this year. All they need to do is to make "Wilson," Wilsonism, and the Wilson dynasty the issue.

It is even easier than that. All they need to do is to permit Wilsonism to remain the issue. It is the issue now. Wherever Americans fall into discussion of the political situation in this presidential year it is always "Wilson" and Wilsonism which they regard as the real question before the country. Just now they are taking a more or less sporting interest in the probabilities of the nomination "race" in Chicago. There was quite an excitement for a few days as to whether Penrose would be well enough to go to Chicago. But these are all little more than evanescent topics of interest.

LOVERS.

Whence and whither this dancing gleam,
Light of my heart, my heart?
Comes it out of the sunset stream
Caught and held on a bright moonbeam,
Held, while the stars of morning spoke
In silver tones, till the dawn awoke?

Whence and whither this lilt I sing,
Joy of my heart, my heart?
Is it the sound that the four winds bring
To forests, echoing, murmuring,
Whose rivers, lapping their way along,
Bear to the ocean depths their song?

Whence and whither this burning flame,
Heart of my heart, my heart?
Brand aglow, from the gods it came,
His be the glory who bore the blame.
Through the ages the cleansing fire
Leaps to splendor in souls' desire.

Flame, sound, gleam! Oh heart of me,
Wrapt and lapt in ecstasy! C. S. P. W.

Kind friend Sara: The reason I advertised for a hard working girl regardless of and no matter what she works at is that I am a poor hard working man myself having been such since the year 1899 that is the year or in other words the last year that I was in the show Biz. I am a natural born Comedian. I never forget what I once learn. I was on the Stage in Action 24 long years of my life. It has been 35 years since the first time that I ever appeared before the footlights. I have got plenty of Acts, Monologues, Jokes, Sketches Rapid fire conversation & etc., So if it is your ambition and desire to really became an Actress, and if you care to accept me as your instructor, & Partner after completion of your environment, in other words after you have acheived success & become an efficient performer, which beyond a reasonable doubt you certainly will, if you take me as your teacher, then and not until then will your ambition or desires be realized, There is one thing that you always must remember, and that is that this earth, you & I are living on wasn't built or made in 5 minutes, So it is the same with Actors & Actresses they are or never was or never will be made in 5 minutes or 5 years either. I've been at it now for 35 years since I began and I can still learn something about it, Its a true saying an old adage that there never was or never will be a thoroughly educated man or woman. That is true! for instance Take Noah Webster that founded our Dictionary. Just as he got it all complete and ready to enjoy it He died and forgot it all. So my dear Sara you cannot start to soon the quicher and sooner you start the better off you will be. Do it while you are young little Girl and when you become an old Woman then you will be independent, never will have to labor or work hard then, Now Sara you will have to write and let me know when & where, time & place, where I can call on you, as I have no office for you to call at. Now Sara here is another factor I wish to mention to you, is that I can tell you more in 5 minutes when I am in your company than I could write in 50 letters like this, As Shakespeare quoted The tongue is swifter & faster than Pen or pensils. Yours respectfully, etc.

FUMIGATION EXPERIMENTS.

B. J. B. writes asking "the latest concerning chemical fumigation." He wants to know "what became of the New York experiment leaving one-half the city unfumigated, using soap, water, paint, sunlight, air, etc."

The conclusion drawn from the New York City experiment was that fumigation did some good, though not a great deal. They thought that if the amount of money spent on fumigation were used to employ nurses and physicians it would accomplish more good. Nevertheless, though this experiment was made more than four years ago, New York City still buys a large amount of formalin and does a good deal of fumigating.

Another investigation was a study in the spread of contagion in Baltimore, where they fumigate very thoroughly and control fumigation well, and in Providence, where they fumigate very little.

It is always difficult and sometimes misleading to compare the prevalence of contagion in two communities located in different parallels and with differing population types. The conclusion drawn from the study was that fumigation was not helpful.

In spite of these conclusions, the reports of which have been widely spread, at least 90 per cent of communities still employ the procedure. Some say this is because public sentiment is not easily changed; some say it is because health departments want their people to feel that nothing to control contagion is being left undone. Some say that the New York conclusion is ample to justify them in going on as they are; that fumigation does some good, although not so much as was hoped for a dozen years ago. Some say it is justified because it sets a definite time and a definite act for the termination of isolation or quarantine, and that it causes a thorough cleaning, airing, and sunning.

The little regard in which fumigation is now held is due to the discovery that contagion is spread more by people than by objects, and people cannot be fumigated. If germs of contagion get on beds, rugs, carpets, and walls, they are dried quickly and quickly die. Fumigation kills all germs living on such surfaces, but the numbers of living germs there located is not large. Efforts spent in disinfecting sputum, nose secretions, and mouth secretions would be more effective.

We are probably not justified in abandoning disinfection until the proof is in, and until that proof shows it gains us little or nothing, and the compensating efforts, such as more inspectors, more nurses, and better disinfection of secretions, are available.

SEEMS SERIOUS CASE.

E. H. T. writes: "A woman of 45 years has had t. b. of the throat for a long time, but is just beginning to realize how serious it is. She can do a certain amount of work, her weight remaining stationary. Her bowels are regular or easily regulated by eating bran and a right diet. She seldom takes medicine. Menstruation is normal. In short her general health is good, but the local trouble grows gradually worse. Should she use tuberculin? She is not an object of charity, but cannot afford to pay present prices at a sanitarium. A good local doctor is available. She has no sleeping porch. What is tuberculin? How is it administered? Please advise the best course for her to pursue."

REPLY.

She should be under the best care available if by throat you mean the larynx, trachea, or vocal cords. The outlook in tuberculosis of the larynx is very bad, and the only hope lies in prompt service of the best available. Tuberculin may be of service. Heliotherapy is about the best remedy. In addition there should be rest, feeding, open air treatment. Sometimes local applications help.

BLOOD PRESSURE FACTS.

An Inquirer writes: "What is the normal blood pressure for a woman of 60; also pulse, temperature, and respiration?

REPLY.

Pressure, about 140.
Pulse, about 70.
Temperature, 98½.
Respiration, about 15.

IMPROVEMENT SEEMS UNLIKELY.

Troubled writes: "Will you kindly tell me if there is a hospital in Brooklyn where I can be treated for infantile paralsysis? My right foot was affected in 1907. I have been visiting hospitals for the last nine or ten years, but with no results. Do you think it can be cured. I am 15 years of age and walk with a limp."

REPLY.

It is not probable that you will gain anything by treatment. Thirteen years of the established order is too much to be overcome. Nine years of treatment has proven ineffective.

FEVER AND TUBERCULOSIS.

Anxious Mother writes: "1. Would you please advise me if a person with a spot on the lung will run a fever until that is cured?

"2. My daughter is 20 years old and has not left the house since October, 1919. She does not seem to improve. Would you advise me to send her to a different climate?"

REPLY.

1. Fever in the course of tuberculosis means the disease is active. You cannot say the disease is cured because there is no fever. In fact, not infrequently consumption progresses slowly even when there is no fever.

2. It is better to send her to a sanitarium in your own city or near it. Do not send her away for a climate cure unless she has money enough to keep her in comfort without work for two years or if there is any likelihood that she will be homesick and discontented.

BAD, USED IN EXCESS.

A. L. M. writes: "What effect will a daily use of bromo seltzer have on the system or health? An uncle has stomach trouble and a good deal of headache. He takes it in large doses. Has been taking it more or less for two or three years. Is the effect detrimental?"

REPLY.

It contributes a moderate dose of acetanilide. The continued use of this medicine causes headaches and anemia. It also contains bromide and caffein.

LOAN FOR HOMESTEADING.

Chicago, June 7.—[Friend of the Soldier.]—I was in the army for one year and ten months. I was wounded and gassed. To improve my health I would like to go out west. I have been reading with interest your articles about the homestead land open in Oregon. I do not have the capital necessary to start west and to take up a claim. I am not afraid of work, and think the cultivation of one of these claims would just suit me. Does the government make any loans to men for this purpose? Where should one apply for such money? How long do they allow for it to be paid back? H. S.

We regret that we haven't encouraging news for you, but the government has appropriated no fund for making loans to ex-service men for taking up land claims.

We learn from good source that labor on farms in the west is in great demand and workers are well paid.

WISHES TO CLAIM HUSBAND'S BONUS.

Chicago, June 7.—[Friend of the Soldier.]—I would appreciate your printing the answer to the following in the daily issue of THE TRIBUNE as soon as possible:

A was married in 1914, from whom wife secured divorce in 1916, there being a child. In January, 1918, A enlisted in the United States navy, having made out insurance to the child, but to whom allotment was made is not known. The latter part of 1918 A was married again, a child was born, and he was released from the navy on grounds of being sole support of wife No. 2. Later he was divorced. Now, pertaining to bonus (if any is to be received), has child of wife No. 2 any claim on same? Divorce decree calls for alimony, which is hard in coming. JOSEPH B.

The $60 federal bonus was paid only to the soldier himself and not to relatives or dependents. Although the new bonus bill has not been passed yet, we are of the opinion that the same ruling would hold good about paying such bonus only to the ex-soldier. However, until the bonus bill is passed, if it does pass, no definite information can be given about its provisions.

BUYING CLAIMS.

Evanston, Ill., June 8.—[Friend of the Soldier.]—If I should take up a claim in Oregon and then wish to buy any surrounding claims which belong to some one else, would the government let me do this? Please give me the address of the department to write to for government land information. B. C.

If the person residing on an adjoining claim had not proved up on it, you could not buy the claim, but he would have to relinquish the claim and then you could file on it immediately. However, if a patent had been granted to him the land would belong to him and he could dispose of it if he so desired.

NATURAL BORN CITIZENS.

Chicago, June 8.—[Friend of the Soldier.]—Kindly advise me if children born in America of German parents, who have not become naturalized citizens of the United States, are Americans or foreigners. If they are not Americans, kindly explain why such young men were drafted into the American army. D. K.

The fact that they were born in America makes them "natural born citizens" of the United States, even though their parents were foreigners.

Any American citizen is subject to U. S. selective service regulations.

GARDEN DESTRUCTION.

Chicago, June 11.—[To the Friend of the People.]—In order to reduce the H. C. L. we have taken a lot directly in back of our house; have had it plowed, and now partly planted. A family has recently purchased the house on adjoining lot west and have two children who persist in trying to destroy the garden, running over it, throwing waste papers, grass, etc., on it. I have spoken to them, and have watched the children and called to them, but it does no good. Is there any department here that could take care of this complaint? MRS. M. P. C.

Referring to complaint of Mrs. M. P. C., relative to the destruction of her garden by children of the neighborhood, the commanding officer of the district reports one of his officers has seen the parents of the children and told them they must keep their children away from Mrs. C.'s garden. They claim they did not know the children were destroying the garden and will see to it that there is no further cause for complaint.

DIRTY DITCH.

Chicago, June 9.—[To the Friend of the People.]—On the south side of West One Hundred and Sixth street between Drew and Wood streets there is an open ditch (the street having no sewer) which is in a most insanitary and unhealthful condition. It is a disease and mosquito breeding place and should not be permitted to remain in its present condition. Can you not enlist the aid of the health authorities of the city to clean it up? CITIZEN.

Ditch complained of has been cleaned out.

Superintendent of Streets.

UNDER OBSERVATION.

Chicago, June 11.—[To the Friend of the People.]—I have complained so often about the nuisance committed at 3550 North Halsted street, an upholstering shop, that it is time that the heath department take heed and has it stopped. I would like to ask any one at the health department if they would like to have an upholstering shop next door to their residence, cleaning mattresses and mattress hair, by machine, which forces volumes of dust out in the air? E. F. S.

Regarding recent complaint of dust nuisance from upholstering shop at 3550 North Halsted street, wish to advise you that notice has been served on the owner and tenant of this building to abate nuisance of dust from machine in rear yard entering living rooms of adjacent building. Several observations have been made of the premises since the notice was originally issued and the inspector reports that no serious nuisance has been observed. However, we will keep premises under observation and at any time a nuisance is noted summary action will be taken by this department to abate same.

JOHN DILL ROBERTSON,
Commissioner of Health.

A WRONG STEER.

Chicago, June 11.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Kindly use your influence to have alley fixed on the west side of Laramie avenue, between Cullom and Pensacola avenues, as it is a menace to the health and safety of the community, as on rainy days you have to walk through mud and slop crossing the same alley. J. F. M.

This is a paved alley return. We can see no cause for complaint.

LANDLORD DOES NOT CLEAN.

Chicago, June 10.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Will you please advise me regarding some cleaning which I want to have done and which the landlord refuses to do? There are two bedrooms, calcimined over paper, which I wish to have cleaned. I got a raise of about 23 per cent in rent. The lease is signed, but no stipulation regarding cleaning. T. D. H.

THE FARMER'S GAMBLE.

Virden, Ill., June 9.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I have seen numerous editorials and comments on the farmer and the "soft" job he has, and have a few words to say as to what I think about it.

These city "wiseacres" are blowing around that the farmer works part of the year and then sits still with his hands folded waiting for the interest on his money and the wheat which sells for over $2 a bushel. They think that the farmer has nothing to kick about, but listen, ye "chair warmers":

The farmer works twelve months a year, seven days a week, and twelve to fourteen hours a day. When there is no planting or harvesting to be done he improves his farm and raises stock to be sold at the "city controlled" markets. Take, for instance, the present time. Here in Illinois the farmers have a very small portion of their corn in. Now that dry weather has come they are working seven days a week and from sun to sun in planting the crop. Maybe the farmer will make a success of his corn; maybe not. The same applies to wheat, and these two cereals are the main grains grown in this part of the country. All the farmer can do is to work his head off, harder than these city jays ever did, while the weather is good, and pray for a good crop.

If the men in the city lose a month now it is one month's pay. If the farmer loses a month's time now, or even a few days' or weeks' time now, his crops for the year are ruined and he will go broke, flat broke.

So remember, all you who think the farmer has a soft job, if you would care to have your year's pay rest on the work you do and the weather conditions of a few weeks' time. The farmers must gamble, gamble with the elements, and may lose hundreds of dollars—yes, thousands—while you still plug along drawing a salary. You can take a week off and lose a week's pay; if the farmer does he loses a season's.

Now don't you think you have the easiest position, Mr. City Dweller?

C. L. M. B.

"WE LOVE HIM FOR THE ENEMIES HE HAS MADE."

Chicago, June 8.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—By what right does Bill Thompson claim to represent the city of Chicago or any respectable part of the state of Illinois? His reëlection was possible only because the emphatic opposition to him split, leaving the balance of power with the barroom politicians and their cohorts of the morally lame, halt and blind, together with the hyphens of various persuasion, whose prejudice Thompson so cleverly appeals to.

Even the support of those journals which mistake noisy egotism and hypocrisy for quality and ability in themselves and their owner as well as in their candidates was only a secondary cause, and their present activities need give no undue concern. But by what miracle of self-justification do these murder scandal pipedream newsmongers, after their reams of editorials on the sacredness of ballot instructions to delegates, indorse the defection of Lowden instructed delegates to further the cheap personal ambitions of such a man?

I have been undecided as to my choice for Republican nominee. Wood, I simply cannot enthuse over. Johnson, with much that seems to recommend him, is handicapped in my esteem, first, by being a senator prominent in this lamentable congress; second, by being a "native son." (I lived seven years on the coast and know the mental processes of that breed.) And, third, by the papers that support him. Two black eyes and a knockout.

Lowden, I didn't know. While he was making his record I was in the army, suffering from "army administrators," stay at home copperheads, and spell binding congressional investigators, who are always too busy finding what was wrong last time to get anything right for next time.

But durned if I can't pretty near "love him for his enemies." Nominate him on a half way decent platform and I'll vote for him, unless some unsuspected lowly Democrat grows man's size over night. EX-SOLDIER.

BIG DAY COMES IN NOVEMBER.

Chicago, June 7.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I find a lot of Republicans like me who are willing to vote for a Democrat for the first time in their lives to convince the mentally dilapidated standpatter element that we want a progressive Republican or no Republican at all. A candidate may be nominated by misrepresentatives of the people, but the day of reckoning happens to be in November—not in June. G. P. NITZ.

"MAY THE BEST MAN WIN."

Houston, Tex., June 7.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The situation today regarding the action of the Republican convention seems to be as clouded as it was when your editorial of May 26, "The Man to Win," appeared. The convention will be a veritable "battle of the giants," and, as you said in that editorial, each man is deserving of the undivided support of the party as a whole.

It is to be hoped that the selection of the man to be at the head of the ticket will be the calm and deliberate judgment of the convention, and that the delegates will not be stampeded in their selection. The issues before the country are so great and of such importance that they demand cool and deliberate action, and if the Republican party wants to resume control of affairs it will have to impress the people with its determination and give us a leader unbiased, but firm and uncompromising. E. B. BARDEN.

CONCERNING "INVESTMENT" IN WIVES.

Peotone, Ill., June 7.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Regarding the idea of Reuben D. Martin, published in June 7th edition, Voice of the People, I wish to voice the sentiments of a few on the negative side of his argument.

I am sorry that his first investment did not yield him the income the second investment has.

I hope No. 1 is still alive and still weighs 250 pounds. That's my weight and should my husband wish to invest again (but he had better not voice his sentiments), I am willing he should, but I will look about for a real husband—a companion—be he a large part of a ton or a small one. That makes no difference to me.

As regards the work part, he may be right, he may be one of the followers of the old saying: "Let the women do the work." MRS. NICHOLS

TABLOID BOOK REVIEW by FANNY BUTCHER

Last week's best sellers in a leading Chicago bookstore were:

FICTION.

"This Side of Paradise" [Scribner], by F. Scott Fitzgerald.
"The Voyage Out" [Doran], by Virginia Woolf.
"The Foolish Lovers" [Macmillan], by St. John Ervine.
"Kindred of the Dust" [Cosmopolitan], by Peter B. Kyne.
"The Romantic Woman" [Knopf], by Mary Borden.
"Slippy McGee" [Century], by Mary Conway Oehler.

NONFICTION.

"Now It Can Be Told" [Harper], by Philip Gibbs.
"Talks With T. R." [Houghton-Mifflin], by John J. Leary Jr.
"Leader of Men" [Putnam], by Robert Gordon Anderson.

* * *

The six best circulators in the public library last week were:
"This Side of Paradise," by F. Scott Fitzgerald.
"White Shadows in the South Seas," by Frederick J. O'Brien.
"The Economic Consequences of the Peace," by John Maynard Keynes.
"A Man for the Ages," by Zane Grey.
"Now It Can Be Told," by Philip Gibbs.
"The Great Desire," by Alexander Black.

The library has made a new ruling about vacation books. Ten may be taken on a vacation card and kept until the first of October. If one wishes, the books will be delivered by parcel post. Each year the library outdoes itself in making reading easy.

* * *

THE scribes who usually somewhat scornfully allow themselves to be bored by the pharisees at these great bulwarks of our civilization, the national conventions, are this year, to the surprise of themselves, almost a closed corporation of journalists. The more leisurely magazines were refused seats in the press box. With 1,500 requests for tickets and a seating capacity of 500, the magazines, except the weeklies, were told to read the newspaper accounts and be satisfied.

That is the reason why so few men and women of literary prominence have attended the convention. One reason. The other is, as Edna Ferber says, "If you've once covered a convention you've had a convention for the rest of your life." She is here, in the spirit of Emma McChesney, a delegate, handsome in Paris frocks and a string from pearls, not real—cost $25 in Florence, Emma says. She is one of the real humorists of the world when she talks.

The visiting literary celebrity who was the greatest sensation among such ordinary goofs of us as think that literature is more fun than politics was H. L. Mencken. It is admitted, even by his enemies, that H. L. Mencken is the most fearless literary critic in America, and his friends passionately insist that he is the best. Those friends include practically the entire English speaking peoples across the Atlantic. No Englishman of literary position comes to this country without wanting to know what H. L. Mencken is like, because he has had from Mr. Mencken probably the most helpful and certainly the most unprejudiced and usually the cruelest criticism in the United States. Chicago has in him almost a knight errant. We are the trundle bed of the arts, he thinks, and his encouragement has given heart to many a Chicagoan who would otherwise have packed his clean collar and gone to live in Greenwich Village.

I was frankly afraid of him. He has a cunning about cutting off an author's head, sticking it on a peg in the marketplace, and letting time do the disintegrating. But when he appears he is just an ordinary regular human being, with no Mephistopheles makeup, none of the "cleverness" that makes bonmots when a straightaway statement would be just as memorable and not half so hard on the auditor, with a digestion that doesn't balk at shrimps Newburg at 10 p. m., a suit that he wears to bull fights and conventions, and conversation just as much fun to listen to as his books are fascinating to read, but tempered with a great personal kindliness, and simple and real as all really great men are. He thinks that Willa Sibert Cather and James Branch Cabell are the hope of American fiction.

Two men who aren't surprises are William Allen White and Irvin S. Cobb. They are both exactly like what one has always heard of them. William Allen White is a wholly real, gentle, fine big man, with the fun in his eyes and in his speech. He wrote as an inscription in his "In the Heart of a Fool": "W. A. White: his book and his heart." Irvin Cobb looks like a composite of all the cartoons that have ever been made of him and talks like his best selling humor. Ring Lardner is back in town, and he still does most of his chatting with his immovable two inch black eyebrows and his huge round eyes that never bat. Samuel Blythe is the same busy, pleasant, one and a half chinned, bare foreheaded political shark, about as easy to interview in a convention as a niggah would be in a henhouse. That's the trouble about collecting immortal words from the literati. One can't plug in on the political wire.

There are a few which I haven't seen—Walter Lippman, the boy wonder; Stephen Bonsal, the literary authority on Morocco and one of the present administration's pets; Corinne Roosevelt Robinson, whose political ancestry is just now eclipsing her reputation as a poet; William Hard, once of Evanston and points north; Fannie Hurst, who thinks that the world is "crucifying" her and Jacques, her trial husband; Clarence Budington Kelland, whose "A Little Moment of Happiness" isn't being spent at the convention; Richard Washburn Child and George Barr McCutcheon, two of our bluest blue ribbon short story writers, and Albert J. Beveridge, Col. Theodore Roosevelt Jr., and the chairman of the convention, Henry Cabot Lodge, who are just now more political than lit'ry lights; Mary Roberts Rinehart, who is, every one says, very handsome and impressive; and Blasco Ibanez, who has dropped in to compare this mental bull fight with the real ones of his own country.

St. John Ervine in his new novel, "The Foolish Lovers," proves that tragedy has not entered his soul and that he can do a light story, with no special plot, with a great deal of charm. "The Foolish Lovers" is the story of a young and amusingly uneducated Irish boy who, instead of selling tea in the ancestral shop, takes himself to London to become an author, a journey not so much into romance as away from the chill of a romance blighted. He had been in love with a waitress in Belfast who, he found, was being "married on a peeler" when he went, with passionate eagerness, to keep an engagement with her for tea. He took his shattered heart to London, where it was immediately healed, but rended a trifle by the unwillingness of Eleanor. London proves as chilly as the peeler's wife. London will not recognize his genius. Eleanor does. They marry—but it would spoil the story to tell the really ironic humor of the end of it. "The Foolish Lovers" is amusing, deftly done—a jolly companion for a holiday.

"Shakespeare Identified" [Stokes] is written by J. Thomas Looney. A man with a name like that should never take up the battle cry of "Down with Shakespeare! Up with Edward de Vere, seventeenth Earl of Oxford!" But if one can keep one's self from being too much amused by the fact of his name the book will be most interesting. They say that Walt Whitman, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Whittier, and Emerson were all certain that Shakespeare didn't write his own stuff, and Lowell, Byron, Hallam, Disraeli, and the gentleman that caused Europe a great deal of trouble, Bismarck, were frankly skeptical. Prof. Looney makes out a good case for his candidate, one must admit. Times certainly have changed. Nowadays it's the great man who signs his name to the work of some clever reporter.

"The Silence of Colonel Bramble," by Andre Maurois, extremely popular in France when it appeared there a year or so ago, has been translated into English and published in this country by John Lane. It is a collection of amusing sketches of life at the front, and an especially deft characterization of the English. Books about active service, however, leave one rather cold these days. The war is like a giant accouchement. The whole world held its breath while the shrieks of Europe resounded through the corridors. But when it was over and Europe had recovered her health, if not her strength, every one, including the sufferer, almost miraculously forgot.

A few months ago a friend of Marjorie Benton Cooke met her on Fifth avenue, was shocked at her obvious lack of health, and tried to dissuade her from taking the long trip that she had planned through the orient. "It'll do me good. I'm tired of everything here. I'm not going to die, but if I do I don't want it to be here." She took the trip, as she had planned, and in Manila pneumonia found in her ill health an easy victim. And she died in the new surroundings that she craved.

"A Frenchwoman's Impression of America" [Century], by Comtesse Madeleine de Bryas and her sister, Mlle. Jacqueline de Bryas, is a record of a speaking tour which two charming and beautiful young French women made for Miss Morgan's "Devastated France" and a cataloguing of the pleasant observations which they made of American life. They loathed Pullman cars, found cocktails ravishing, admired the svelte and refined lines of American shoes, ate too much and too rich food, adored Americans for their open heartedness and their hospitality, and didn't lose their tempers and their digestion on a coast to coast jaunt, with appearances twice a day and all of the attending social duties of visiting dignitaries.

"Born of the Crucible," by Charles Cleveland Cohan, is a first novel, earmarked from the first page as such—the story of a young and eager reformer who works in the mines of Butte and eventually marries the sister of the owner, after averting arson and other tragedies. It is, like most first novels, full of promise, because it was obviously written with a passionate belief in the truth, but, also like most first novels, it is amateurish to a degree. The prize first novel of a decade is F. Scott Fitzgerald's "This Side of Paradise." There is a book which is the living, palpitant being of the youth of the hour, a book which, I haven't a doubt in the world, will have a serious and far reaching effect on American literature.

Dr. William Beebe, curator of birds of the New York Zoölogical park, director of the tropical research station of the New York Zoölogical society, and author of that delightful book "Jungle Peace" [Holt], has just gone to the South American jungle for the society. It is his third trip to the tropics on the same mission. With him went seven specialists who are only a vanguard of the small army of men of science who are to join Dr. Beebe later.

POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

THE OLD FAMILIAR FACES.

By Charles Lamb.

I have had playmates, I have had companions,
In my days of childhood, in my joyful school days—
All, all are gone, the old familiar faces.

I have been laughing, I have been carousing,
Drinking late, sitting late, with my bosom cronies—
All, all are gone, the old familiar faces.

I loved a love once, fairest among women;
Closed are her doors on me, I must not see her—
All, all are gone, the old familiar faces.

I have a friend, a kinder friend has no man;
Left him to muse on the old familiar faces.

Ghostlike I pace round the haunts of my childhood,
Earth seemed a desert I was bound to traverse,
Seeking to find the old familiar faces.

Friend of my bosom, thou more than a brother,
Why wert not thou born in my father's dwelling?
So might we talk of the old familiar faces—

How some have died, and some they have left me,
And some are taken from me; all are departed—
All, all are gone, the old familiar faces.

E-ELECT HAYS; START WORK FOR G. O. P. VICTORY

rder 5,000,000 Pictures of Candidate.

Henry M. Daugherty, campaign anager for Senator Harding, re- uested "prompt, snappy and ener- etic action at once." He asked that e preconvention campaign be con- nued as nearly without interruption possible.

Before Mr. Daugherty arrived, Chair- an Hays had ordered 5,000,000 litho- aphs of the nominee and ordered the ffices of the committee fitted up. They ill be ready for occupancy Monday orning. The paper for the litho- aphs had ben obtained in advance, s well as a picture and autograph of ll af the candidates. The contract ad been awarded, and only the selec- on of the picture remained to be done. our years ago lithographs were not vailable until well up in August.

Upham Made Treasurer.

Henry B. McCoy, temporary chair- an, introduced Chairman Hays after is reëlection, as the "only lacking art to insure a tremendous victory in ovember."

Other of the present officers were so reëlected as follows: Fred Up- am of Illinois, treasurer; John T. dams of Iowa, vice-chairman; Clar- nce B. Miller of Minnesota, secretary, nd Edward P. Thayer of Indiana, ser- eant-at-arms.

The assistant officers will be select- d by the executive committee after conference with Senator Harding. To onfer with the nominee the follow- g committee was selected in addi- ion to Chairman Hays: Charles D. illis of New York, A. T. Hert of Ken- ucky, John W. Weeks of Massachu- etts, Jake E. Hammon of Oklahoma, nd Ralph E. Williams of Oregon.

Will Name Eight Women.

The assistant secretary of the gen- ral committee will be a woman. That vas announced officially last night. he vice chairman and seven of the fteen members of the executive com- ittee will also be women, according o the present plan.

All of the members of the committee vere present except the committeemen rom Illinois, California, Maryland, ichigan, and Nevada. Eighteen new aces apeared at the first session.

COUNTRY LUCKY TO GET HARDING, PENROSE STATES

Philadelphia, Pa., June 12.—[Spe- ial.]—"Senator Harding as president ill know how to control affairs at me as well as command the respect foreign nations," said Senator Boies enrose late tonight, when confirma- on of the nomination of Harding by e Republican convention at Chicago as received.

"I say advisedly that the country s fortunate, and the situation is fully et."

After a day replete with conflicting umors and marked by hourly confer- nces over his private phone to the ongress hotel in Chicago, Senator enrose voiced his pleasure at the arty's choice.

G. O. P. Praises Garrity for Convention Policing

Chief of Police Garrity, having been omplimented by members of the Re- ublican national committee for the efficient policing of the Coliseum dur- g the convention," issued an order st night giving two days off to the olicemen who had been detailed there nce Monday and one day off to those etailed since Friday.

HENRY G. LAMBERT.
[White Photo.]

Henry George Lambert of Maywood will graduate from West Point Wednesday as an honor man—"for high achievement in all studies, particularly mathematics."

Lambert will be 21 years old Oct. 23. He was born in Chicago, attended St. James school in Maywood, then the Proviso Township high school, and took a year's course at Lewis institute.

He entered West Point in July, 1918. His mother, Mrs. George H. Lambert, and his sister, Elizabeth, have been spending the week at West Point.

CAMPAIGN FUND INQUIRY TO BE RESUMED JULY 7

Senators Will Sit in Chicago.

The senate investigation of campaign funds will be resumed in Chicago on July 7. Senator Kenyon, chairman of the investigators, applied yesterday to the federal building custodian for space in which to hold the hearings.

Among the prominent witnesses to be heard is William Loeb, former secretary to President Roosevelt. He was the Wood campaign manager in the east. He will be asked to come to Chicago.

Most of the other witnesses desired are located in the west, and perhaps the committee thought that Chicago will be a cooler place for the work than Washington during July and August.

To Go Into Records.

In addition to witnesses, the committee will here devote much of its time to financial books and statements by candidate and their managers, according to the program.

"Most of the members of the committee are in Chicago at present," said Senator Kenyon, "and we thought that it would be more convenient for the witnesses to have the sessions of the committee in Chicago. We desire to go along as rapidly as the task will permit."

To Vacation in Maine.

The senator has obtained a cottage in the Maine woods, and he plans to take Mrs. Kenyon there for a month.

About two minutes before the senate adjourned the task of the committee was greatly enlarged, so that it now includes investigation of campaign funds until the election is held in November. No plans to comply with this instruction have been made, and that subject will probably be discussed as soon as all of the members of the committee arrive in town.

To Call Treasurers.

It has been suggested that the committee will call upon the treasurers—perhaps chairman—of the national parties to disclose the source and use of their campaign funds. This idea came from Washington.

Senator Kenyon said there has not even been a tentative decision on the future work of the committee on election funds.

Some of the senators may not desire a task so long and tedious for all summer and autumn.

FATALITY IN EXPLOSION.

Park Falls, Wis., June 12.—[Special.]—In an explosion of a gasoline tank in the machine shop of the Flambeau Paper company today William Jenson was killed, B. A. Nordel fatally injured, and three others seriously hurt.

BIG SHOW ENDED, CROWDS MAKE RUSH FOR HOME

"Goodbye and good luck—and come again four years from now."

It was Chicago bidding good-by to the delegates to the Republican national convention—men of all the states in the Union, and of Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippines, who were packing up and in too much of a hurry to catch the train for home to heed or care for Chicago's farewell.

The Republican candidate and his wife, Senator and Mrs. Warren G. Harding, took the 11:30 train for Ohio, and rest. Mrs. Harding feels that after the strenuous week in Chicago, and the excitement of the last few days especially, the senator needs a rest.

The business of getting out of Chicago started as soon as the convention was adjourned. It began with the rush to get out of the Coliseum.

Crowds of shirtsleeved, red-faced, and perspiring men pushed their way through the doors. Some were shouting. Some were singing. Some were bawling for taxicabs.

The fleet of taxicabs outside the big gray building went scurrying off to railroad ticket offices, to hotels, to boarding houses, to private homes rented by some of the delegates.

The hotel clerks had a busy night. Everybody, it seemed, was "checking out." The porters went about with happy smiles. There were hundreds of grips to carry out to taxicabs—and each grip meaning anywhere from a dime to a dollar.

The headquarters of the various candidates for nomination, a few hours before crowded and buzzing, were empty and desolate. Here and there a man in overalls, or a hotel maid or two, might be seen putting the "headquarters" in order.

Buttons and badges, pennants, fans, gay colored feathers, and other objects used by various champions to further their ambitions went back into boxes whence they had come.

TERMS OF BIDS FOR LEVIATHAN ARE ANNOUNCED

Washington, D. C., June 12.—Terms of the former German passenger liner Leviathan, bids on which will be opened June 30, were announced today by the shipping board. Each bid must be accompanied by a certified check for $100,000 and the purchaser will be required to pay 20 per cent of his bid in cash and the remainder in installments extending over ten years. Details of these installments remain to be worked out.

The International Mercantile Marine corporation offered $3,500,000 for the liner at the auction sale in February which was halted by the injunction obtained by William Randolph Hearst. Officials of the board confidently expect even higher offers in the private bids.

Estimates received by the board for reconditioning the liner for passenger service call for the expenditure of between $8,000,000 and $10,000,000. From a year to a year and a half will be required to complete the work, it is said.

You forget

As you listen to the enchanting voice of some great singer, the soulful playing of a celebrated violinist, the wondrous symphony rendered by a famous orchestra, or the stirring martial melodies of a military band—you forget—entirely—that the Steger Phonograph is before you, so lifelike is its reproduction of the artists' work, and because there is no mechanical sound.

Exclusive and unique Steger improvements are responsible. For the Steger, without change of parts, plays all disc records correctly. Play it yourself.

BRIDE-TO-BE GOES SPEEDING; HALT! 'BROKE!'—FREED

Judge Can't Be Harsh on Wedding Eve.

CATHERINE WOODMAN.

"O dear!" exclaimed Miss Catherine Woodman of 1111 Hinman avenue, Evanston, "I was hurrying to get my bridesmaids. Now I'll be late!"

"O dear!" agreed her mother, Mrs. Andrew W. Woodman, "this is most annoying!"

What Justice of the Peace Arthur S. McKenna of Kenilworth wanted to know was why they were traveling at a rate of thirty miles an hour when Motorcycle Policeman C. C. Ley stopped them yesterday.

"Why, I'm to be married on Monday," explained Miss Woodman, "and I was hurrying to the Moraine hotel in Highland Park to get my bridesmaids for the rehearsal. It's a shame they have different speed limits in these towns. I'm in favor of a national speed law."

Alas, the Pocketbook's Bare.

"Five dollars and costs," replied the judge.

"O dear!" said Miss Woodman. "We haven't $5 between us. What shall we do? I have this wrist watch and these other pieces of jewelry. They are my wedding presents, but I'll leave them as security."

The judge relented and allowed Miss Woodman to proceed to the rehearsal of her marriage tomorrow to her childhood playmate, Walter Stockton, son of John Stockton, head of the Stocktons are next door neighbors at Stocktons are next doo neighbors at 1109 Hinman avenue. Miss Woodman promised to appear before the justice on her wedding day.

A Baby in Distress.

The justice was just mopping his fevered brow when up stepped another young woman with Policeman Ley as complaining witness.

MRS. W. V. KELLEY JR.
Copyright: Moffett.]

"But this case is against William Valandingham Kelley, Jr.," remarked the justice.

"I'm Mrs. Kelley," explained the woman. "My husband couldn't come."

"He is charged with going thirty-five miles an hour south in Sheridan road," said McKenna.

"I know," agreed Mrs. Kelley. "He was hurrying to Chicago to get some rubber stoppers for my baby's nursing bottle. Our baby is under the care of a physician and must be fed regularly. It was twenty minutes past feeding time."

The Records Against Him.

"Hm-m-m," mused the justice. "Let me see the records. The name Kelley sounds familiar."

The justice found that William Valandingham Kelley Jr. was in an automobile with Miss Helen Hoyne when it turned turtle in the summer of 1913. He was arrested for speeding in 1914. Then in February, 1919, just after he had been discharged as a lieutenant in the tank service, his car figured in an automobile accident in North State street. But what most interested the justice concerning the son of the millionaire president of the Miehle Printing Press and Manufacturing company was that he was arrested for speeding in Kenilworth just a year ago.

"I know my husband speeds dreadfully," said Mrs. Kelley, "but I just can't break him of it."

"Twenty and costs," said the justice.

Thinks He's at Indianapolis.

Two other defendants were James W. Stevens, 18 years old, son of R. W. Stevens of Highland Park, vice president of the Illinois Life Inssurance company, and R. W. Sears of 4144 Sheridan road. They were racing their cars fifty-five miles an hour through Winnetka early yesterday morning.

"Just trying out our boats," explained Stevens.

"Forty and costs for you and thirty and costs for Sears," said the court.

Stevens paid the fine, leaped into his car and sped away. A few minutes later the machine collided with the automobile of Mrs. N. J. Wilcox, 80 Sheridan road, and was demolished.

ELWELL, SLAIN WHIST EXPERT, KING OF HEARTS

Gallery of Beauties Is Found in Home.

New York, June 12.—A picture gallery of beautiful women found in the west side residence of Joseph B. Elwell, wealthy sportsman and authority on whist, tonight was being investigated by the police for a clew to his mysterious murder yesterday morning. Detectives, who today expressed belief that Elwell had been shot to death by a man—possibly one provoked to jealousy—turned to this picture gallery for the original whose intimacy with the dead sportsman may have aroused this blood lust.

Includes Russian Beauty.

The gallery is said to include pictures of many women widely known in society. Rumor has even included the name of a Russian beauty, who, in the reign of the czar, bore the title of princess.

The report of the medical examiner, made today, that Elwell met his death from a .45 caliber revolver inclined the police to believe that a man had fired the shot. They pointed out that it would have been difficult for a woman to handle effectively so heavy a weapon.

Mrs. Helen Derby Elwell, widow of the murdered man, said of him: "He had a peculiar idea of women. He thought that every woman above 30 ought to be chloroformed.

Spirit of the Chase.

"His was the spirit of the chase. But any woman above 30 wasn't worth chasing, he thought. He could make himself very attractive to strangers, especially women.

"I am the one who suffered because of his peculiar ideas about women. We lived together happily for a while, but it was impossible to continue doing so as long as he tried to put his notion of women into effect."

Aman killed Elwell because of a woman. Beyond that basic conclusion police inquiry only darkens his death at his home at 244 West Seventieth street Friday morning.

CAPTAIN DENIES SUICIDES ABOARD ARMY TRANSPORT

Washington, D. C., June 12.—Arrival at Norfolk of the army transport Mount Vernon carrying 4,000 Czecho-Slovak troops, 900 German war prisoners, and 250 women and children, was reported today to the war department by Capt. Ferguson, commander of the vessel.

Capt. Ferguson denied reports, received yesterday, that several suicides had occurred aboard the transport.

The loss of one propeller, Capt. Ferguson, said, caused him to abandon the direct route to Europe and head into Hampton Roads.

The transport probably will be in dry dock at Norfolk for several days, he added, and in the meantime the returning troops, war prisoners, and passengers will be cared for by representatives of the Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., and Y. W. C. A.

Young Craftsmen

The exhibition of handcraft held at Seward Park under the auspices of the Lower North Community council closed last night. Among the seventeen organizations exhibiting were the Chicago Latin school, Frances Parker school, Chicago Kindergarten institute, Chicago Boys' clubs, Olivet institute, and ten public schools in the Twenty-first and Twenty-second wards.

The boys and girls whose work was represented had labored industriously for several months getting ready for the exhibition of household furniture, dresses, preserved fruits, vegetables, toys, airplanes, yachts, pottery, tinware, drawings, and posters.

Special Grand Jury Will Probe Bergdoll Escape

Philadelphia, Pa., June 12.—A special federal grand jury to investigate the escape of Grover Cleveland Bergdoll from his mother's home here on May 21, and to consider the cases of all who had a hand in the escape, was impaneled by Judge J. Whitaker Thompson in the United States District court. The grand jury was drawn at the request of United States District Attorney McAvoy. The investigation will begin June 21.

CHICAGO WAKES UP WITH ADDED DAYLIGHT HOUR

Clocks Pushed Ahead at 2 O'Clock.

Did you miss church this morning? Did you find the congregation streaming out of the doors as you were about to enter? Ah, you forgot to turn your clock ahead an hour.

Chicago clocks and watches were pushed ahead one hour last night in compliance with the daylight saving ordinance, which became a law Friday afternoon with the signing of the document of Mayor Thompson. The law became effective at 2 o'clock this morning. Suburban cities and villages generally followed Chicago's lead.

Churches, theaters, offices and manufacturing establishments are complying with the ordinance. All departments of the city, including the schools, are automatically required to observe the advancing of the hour.

Association of Commerce Acts.

In order that confusion may be avoided, the Association of Commerce, through its president, Wyllys W. Baird, issued a statement yesterday calling upon all residents of Chicago to observe the change in time. It read:

"To the People of Chicago: The daylight saving ordinance passed by the city council and approved by Mayor Thompson becomes effective Sunday, June 13, 1920, at 2 o'clock a. m. That we may all enjoy the added daylight hour, let us turn our clocks ahead one hour tonight and Chicago will wake up on Sunday morning with daylight saving accomplished."

Courts Adopt Plan.

Coöperation in the plan was given yesterday by the executive committee of the Superior and Circuit courts when an order was passed pushing ahead the clocks in the county building. The County, Probate, and Criminal courts took similar action. The announcement that the churches will push ahead their clocks was made by Walter R. Mas in behalf of the Chicago Church Federation.

Local weather data will be compiled by the weather bureau on the new summer time, it was stated yesterday by Henry J. Cox, forecaster. The old time, which is government standard time, will be observed in issuing the daily morning predictions, which are dependent upon telegraphic observations throughout the nation.

Change Train Schedules.

It was announced by the Chicago Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad tha. the schedules of local trains between Chicago and Elgin and Chicago, Deerfield, Libertyville and Fox Lake will be changed today. The time tables will be printed according to central railroad time, with a note to the public to add one hour to make the readings compare with the daylight saving time

FUND FOR MOTHER OF WIEBECK GIRL NOW REACHES $1,117

THE fund for Mrs. Mary Wiebeck, mother of Bertha Wiebeck, the little Kansas girl who was lured to a resort by Dorsey Chambliss, a Negro policeman, and who was taken from there dying, passed the $1,100 mark yesterday. The money was contributed to aid the mother in paying off a mortgage she was compelled to negotiate in order that she might attend and testify at the trial of Chambliss who was convicted. Contributions received yesterday follow:

'BOY' WHO KICKED OVER JUG IN RUM CASE, MAN OF 30

Landis Discovers It as He Fines 3.

Constant reference to the "boy" who kicked over a jug of evidence, and the "boy" who later furnished valuable evidence against three dry law violators who appeared before Judge Landis for sentence yesterday aroused the judge's curiosity.

"Let's see this boy," he demanded. "He must be some youngster."

A bailiff rushed to obey the judge's order. Witnesses testified that beside possessing whisky, the charge on which the three defendants, Martin Towalazyk, Joseph Dollman, and Peter Sarnecki had been convicted, they had sold some liquor. Detectives were explaining how the "boy" had pointed out Sarnecki's bakery shop at 1479 West Erie street as the place where the whisky had been sold, when a tall, broad shouldered man entered the courtroom.

"Boy" Is 30 Years Old.

"That's him," said a detective.

"What," shouted the judge, leaping to his feet, "you the boy? Why, I was looking for a little fellow about waste paper basket size.

"How old are you?"

"Thirty years," was the answer.

Judge Landis mopped his brow. "Take him away," he said.

Wife Says She Made Sales.

Sarnecki's wife was called to the stand.

"What do you know about the sale of whisky," she was asked.

"I sold it," she answered. "I was afraid my husband would drink it if I kept it in the bakery."

The three defendants were fined $500 each and ordered to return Monday for further investigation on the charges of selling whisky.

ARMED, GET $5,000 "HOOTCH."

Iron Mountain, Mich., June 12.—[Special.]—Three men in an auto, posing as federal agents, visited Joe De Concin's store at Florence, Wis., near here. They searched it for liquor, pointed a revolver at him. They made him take them to his home, where they seized whisky valued at $5,000 and drove away with it.

CHAMBLISS AND MRS. ROSS GET ONE TO 5 YEARS

Prison Terms to Avenge Wiebeck Girl's Death.

Within thirty days Dorsey Chambliss and Mrs. Emma Ross will change their residence from the county jail to the penitentiary.

Judge Harry Lewis yesterday denied a motion for a new trial on behalf of the former policeman and the rooming house keeper, both of whom are colored, and gave them sentences of from one to five years. This is the maximum penalty for luring a minor female into an immoral life.

Chambliss and the Ross woman had been found guilty by a jury of leading 17 year old Bertha Wiebeck, the yellow-haired white girl who came from Kansas to recoup the family's humble fortune, into evil ways. She died in the county hospital as a result of her experiences.

Defense Makes Plea.

In asking a new trial Attorney Francis Walker claimed the state had not offered a "scientilla of evidence" against Chambliss and that the court "had erred in instructing the jury." He indicated racial prejudice had been a factor in the trial.

"The atmosphere of the courtroom was played up by the state's attorney in order to convict Chambliss," he said. "The dead girl's mother was detained in the courtroom day after day to play upon the emotions of the jury. Her presence was necessary for only a few moments, for the purpose of identification. Yet, despite my protests, she was allowed to remain there weeping."

State Scouts Pleas.

Assistant State's Attorneys James McShane and Grover Neimeyer declared all of Walker's points had been raised during the trial and passed upon by the court. Nothing new had been brought up, they said.

In passing sentence Judge Lewis granted a thirty day stay of mittimus and a ninety day stay to allow the filing of a bill of exceptions.

A Friend of Yours in Europe

IN a strange city there is no more welcome sight than that of a familiar face. In a strange country, could anything be more welcome than the presence of an old friend? In a foreign land, with a strange language, strange habits, different customs, wouldn't you be glad to find an old friend who had been there for years and who knew all there was to be known about the country and the people?

In thirty European cities the American Express Company is an old friend of yours. Those in charge of the offices know the things you wish to find out; know the shops and the places of interest, how to get from one place to another and all the other little things that make a stranger feel at home.

These offices were the friends of the soldiers and sailors, the army nurses and Red Cross nurses, the Y. M. C. A. and Knights of Columbus forces. They have been the friends of travelers for over 25 years. In 1914, when Europe went to war and the extended bank holidays left travelers in actual distress for money, food and lodgings, these offices were perhaps of greater financial assistance than any other agency in London or Paris.

All the services which these offices have been rendering to others are at your disposal when you make your trip to Europe. All the experience and knowledge gained by years of residence abroad is available for you. And in these offices you will find also, the courteous, prompt, efficient service and the hospitable welcome that will mean much to you in a foreign land.

HOPES FOR FLIGHT 7 1-2 MILES HIGH IN OXYGEN BELL

Frenchman Tests Device to Smash Records.

[Chicago Tribune-New York Times Cable.]
[Copyright: 1920.]

PARIS, June 12.—Shut in an airtight bell, Jean Casale, French airman, has been experimenting with oxygen-breathing apparatus which he hopes will enable him to fly seven a half miles above the earth.

When he made his height record he used electrified clothes to keep him warm, but the effect of the rarefied air compelled him to come down sooner than he had intended.

At eight thousand meters [a meter is about 39 inches] he found it difficult to raise his arms. When he moved them to control his machine it seemed like lifting a hundred pounds.

Spirit Seems to Leave.

Higher up he became completely indifferent to everything and felt that death and life meant nothing. His spirit, he declares, seemed already detached from his body. When he neared 10,000 meters his memory began to fail and it was only with great will effort that he could pull himself together and begin to descend.

His experience, however, convinced him that if he could get enough oxygen to breathe there was no reason why he should not reach 12,000 meters, at which height his engine would still function. To discover how best to arrange an effective breathing apparatus the aerotechnic institute at Saint Cyr had an airtight bell set up from which the air could be gradually exhausted.

Makes Mock Record Flight.

The airman took a seat inside with a barometer in his hand which showed the rate of air exhaustion and also of the height theoretically reached. Two tanks of compressed oxygen were also placed inside and the airman was fitted with a mask through which to breathe.

In the wall of the bell were two windows through which those outside could see if he made any signs. When the pressure inside the bell reached the equivalent of that at 4,000 meters Casale began to use oxygen. At the equivalent of 6,000 meters he felt cold and strengthened the oxygen doses.

At 9,000 he signaled that everything was going well, but those outside noticed that he moved his hands slowly as if his muscles did not respond to his will, in the same way as he had found when actually flying at that height.

Flyer Closes His Eyes.

At 11,000 meters he was seen to close his eyes as if overcome by the rarefied atmosphere in which he was sitting. Whenever the barometer showed that he was in an atmosphere corresponding to that at 12,000 meters altitude he signaled to begin pumping in air again and when released he declared that he was perfectly satisfied with the experiment and hoped soon with the apparatus to attempt a flight at 12,000 meters. In all he spent sixty-seven minutes in the bell.

WAR OFFICERS NOW MAY JOIN REGULAR ARMY

Washington, D. C., June 12.—[Special.]—The war department today announced that 200,000 officers, who served in the war and have returned to civil life, may take the examination for regular army commissions if they apply before June 23. There are now 17,000 applications on file. The examinations will begin July 7. Examining boards have been directed to make allowance for the lack of opportunity of discharged officers for keeping informed of military matters.

The physical examination will conform to the standard required by recruits. Exemptions from any and all parts of the educational examination are authorized when the candidate's personal history shows him of proper qualifications.

THE POLISH FRONT

Infantry fighting is in progress along the whole front. A Red division has crossed the Dnieper north of Kiev.

The Polish forces are yielding ground.

U. S. DELEGATION SAILS TO ATTEND JEWISH SESSION

New York, June 12.—The first group of American delegates to the international Zionist conference which convenes in London July 4 left here today for England on the steamer Lapland. In all there were thirty-nine American delegates to this conference, considered by American Zionists a most momentous gathering. The others will leave for England next Saturday.

In the party going today are Justice Louis D. Brandeis of the United States Supreme court, honorary president of the Zionist Organization of America; Judge Julian W. Mack of the United States District court, president of the organization; Nathan Straus, Mrs. Mary Fels, Jacob de Haas, Zionist executive secretary; Louis Lusky, organization secretary; Prof. Felix Frankfurter of Harvard, Capt. Abraham Tulin and David Rosenbloom.

The first world Zionist conference held in six years, since the outbreak of the war, the forthcoming convention is considered of importance, because it will deal with the practical problem of the establishment of the Jewish national homeland.

London Denies Story of British-Japanese Treaty

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[By Special Cable.]

LONDON, June 12.—Downing street denies the New York story that Britain and Japan have agreed to a renewal of the treaty. The matter has not even been discussed, and the dominions must be consulted. It is unlikely there will be any discussion for months.

Tokio Sees Treaty Near.

TOKIO, June 10.—A general understanding relative to a continuation of the Anglo-Japanese alliance already has been reached between the Japanese and British governments, according to the Jiji Shimpo.

REDS' CAVALRY CUTS RAILWAY ON POLISH FRONT

Heavy Infantry Fighting Along Whole Line.

BULLETIN.

LONDON, June 13, 3 a. m.—The Polish army, the Sunday Observer says it understands, evacuated Kiev on Friday, owing to the continued menacing advance of the bolshevik army, which threatened to cut off the Polish line of retreat. The source of this information is not given by the newspaper.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

WARSAW, June 12.—Russian bolshevik cavalry engaged in the drive southwest of Kiev designed to encircle that city has cut the railroad between Kiev and Berditchev at several places and has pierced the Polish front lines at various points, according to news from the front.

The soviet forces are reported to number from 30,000 to 40,000. One body of their cavalry numbers 9,000 men.

This leaves the Poles with only a single line of railroad into Kiev. In addition the Kiev-Korosten line is threatened by a division of bolsheviki which has crossed the Dnieper river north of Kiev.

Heavy fighting continues on both sides of the city, and infantry is in action all alone the front.

Driving Back Poles.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LONDON, June 12.—The Polish lines north and south of Kiev on the west bank of the Dnieper are being driven in by the bolsheviki, who are cutting Polish railway communication with the city, according to Friday's official statement from Moscow.

Pressing Reds in Crimea.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 11.—[By the Associated Press.]—The first considerable offensive by the forces of Gen. Wrangel, anti-bolshevik leader on the Crimean front, is reported to have been successful.

On June 4 large detachments of Wrangel's troops left Theodosia by sea and landed June 6 at Berdiansk and Marioupol, ports on the Sea of Azov. The forces of Gen. Wrangel were not attacked while passing through the strait of Kertch. They landed with slight opposition and captured both ports easily.

FRIENDS URGING SULTAN TO QUIT FUTILE THRONE

May Oust Him as Religious Chief.

BY LARRY RUE.

[By Special Cable.]

[Copyright: 1920: By The Chicago Tribune.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, via Paris, June 12.—It is whispered in official Turkish circles that intimate friends of the sultan are advising his abdication. Also, that Moslem manifesto will declare praying invalid on the grounds that the sultan is under Christian control. In this way the Moslems themselves are contemplating working hardship on Islam as a whole, blaming allies. This course, it is suggested, would be a whip over the people, turning them more than ever against the allies.

Would Mitigate Treaty.

This is aall in the hope of obtaining better peace treaty terms. The sultan is not unenthusiastic over the project.

Millerand's reported characterization of the Tewfik Pasha delagtion as not being representative of the Turks, is regarded here as showing a tendency on the part of the allies to open negotiations with the Nationalists.

The Armenian patriarchs in the interior, possibly under pressure, are issuing denials for publication in Constantinople papers. They say the Turks are not deporting or massacreing Armenians. Admittedly the instinct of self-preservation is compelling the Armenians throughout Anatolia to support the Nationalists.

Grand Vizier Ferid Pasha attempted to resign today following the telegram from Tewfik Pasha at Paris saying that Millerand in an interview intimated that the Tukish govenment does not represent the people.

Sultan Retains Ferid Pasha.

The sultan refused to accept the resignation, but admitted that his hands are tied. The Nationalists announce the French evacuated Adana and will leave Mersina soon. The armistice terms provide for complete French evacuation of Anatolia as far as the Alexandretta line, but leaving Aintab in French hands.

It is reported from Angora that Kemal is calling four additional classes to the colors, thus increasing forces in Anatolia by 100,000.

Seventeen naval aviators have joined Kemal recently, and an effective air squadron is reported under organization. At the present time Kemal has given his troops leave for the Ramadan holiday.

RED GERMS BREED MUTINY IN BLACK FRENCH TROOPS

Senegalese Rebel When Ordered to Asia.

[Chicago Tribune-New York Times Cable.]
[Copyright: 1920.]

PARIS, June 12.—A brigade if Senegalese—the black soldiers who, up to a few days ago formed a part of the French army of occupation and who helped to occupy Frankfort—has refused to embark at Marseilles for duty in the French zone in Syria. When ordered to board the transports yesterday these soldiers refused to obey. A French general who came to remonstrate had to be protected by his guard with drawn sabers. The French war office has ordered an immediate investigation. Meanwhile no further efforts will be made to send the troops to Asia Minor.

Bolshevik Propaganda Blamed.

At Paris action of the black troops is blamed on bolshevik propaganda sown among them while they were on the Rhine.

When the Senegalese reached Marseilles they were placed in two camps at Oddo and Covington, near the port city, with the Senegalese of the 150th regiment on its way home to be demobilized.

The effect of association with their brothers about to regain native Africa appears to have had a very demoralizing effect upon the brigade bound for duty against the Turk nationals. Thursday afternoon officers observed that the habitual discipline of their troops seemed very much affected. There was an unwonted excitement.

General Defended by Guards.

When the men were lined up and the order was given to shoulder their knapsacks preparatory to marching on board, they crossed their arms and did not budge. When the order was repeated by the officers the men scattered about the camps. Gen. Murros in command, was summoned and found the troops in disorder.

Last night officers of the brigade abandoned the effort to embark their men and reported to Paris. There appears to have been some sort of organization among the men.

Telegrams from Marseilles this afternoon says perfect order has been restored among the black troops. They salute their officers and obey all orders except the order to go to Asia Minor.

OUTLAWS MADE PAY ROLL HOLDUP AN INDOOR SPORT

Trap Cashier in Plant and Escape.

The usual Saturday morning payroll robbery occurred yesterday at the plant of the Stromberg Electric company, 223 West Erie street, the loss being about $500.

R. E. Cornelison, 4506 Oakenwald avenue, the cashier, had finished paying the shop hands, distributing about $5,000, and was returning to the first floor to pay the office help, when, on the stairway between the first and second floors, two armed bandits appeared.

Threatening to shoot if he made an outcry, they took the money box, stuffed the envelopes in their pockets and made their escape.

An alarm was given, and an attempt made to give chase, but the bandits separated and were soon out of sight. The police were unable to get trace of them.

Auto Thief Is Captured.

One man was captured and another is believed to have been wounded when the Warren avenue police surprised five men attempting to steal an automobile from the garage of James T. Brakey, 2052 West Jackson boulevard.

Brakey, whose home adjoins the garage, heard the men breaking in and notified the police. As the patrol arrived the men ran out of the garage and scattered. A score of shots were fired at them.

Takes Refuge in Shed.

Joseph Gleason, 26 years old, of 2207 West Thirteenth street was captured after a siege of an empty shed a block away, where he had sought refuge. He refused to give the names of the others.

A trail of blood leading from the garage door indicated that at least one of the bandits had been shot. A search of all hospitals for him proved fruitless.

CHOOSES CHILD; QUITS HUSBAND.

"Choose between me and the child," said Donald Valentine to his wife. She did. Yesterday she divorced him. She and the child live at 2721 North Halsted street. The child, Theresa, is 4 years old.

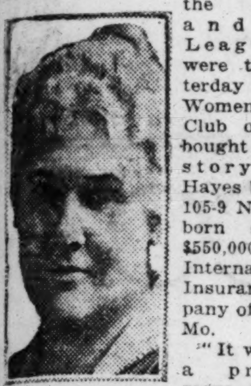
WOMEN'S LEAGUE CLUB BUYS LOOP BUILDING 'HOME'

Will Erect Structure Like University's.

BY AL CHASE.



MRS. J. B. SHIRRA.

First steps toward a big loop clubhouse for women, similar in type to the University and Union League clubs, were taken yesterday when the Women's League Club of Chicago bought the twelve story Daniel Hayes building at 105-9 North Dearborn street for $550,000 from the International Life Insurance company of St. Louis, Mo.

"It was merely a preliminary move towards a club home which we expect to build in the loop as soon as building conditions change," said Mrs. Mary Black Richter, a director. "Our temporary home in the Hayes building, which we are going to rechristen the Women's League Club building, will occupy only one floor. The rest of the building is rented.

Members May Live There.

"But in our new building we'll have a gymnasium, a swimming pool, a restaurant, and everything else the loop business man has in his downtown club, including living quarters for transients and for Chicago club members.

According to Mrs. Jennette Rodgers Shirra, president of the club, the organization will be for business, professional and all other women who have made good in various lines of endeavor, and who can afford a high class club.

"So far we've only admitted life or founder members," said Mrs. Shirra, "and we're making no campaign for either money or members. We wanted to get a good foundation laid for our organization by owning our own home, and we've done that.

For Advancement of Women.

"The objects for which the club is formed are for the advancement of womankind; to encourage physical culture and women's athletic sports; to aid and encourage worthy movements for the betterment of social conditions; to commemorate the Chicago women's part in winning the world's war, and to cultivate friendly and cordial relations among its members."

The Hayes building fronts 105 feet on Dearborn street, and is 109 feet deep. The failure of the Hayes organization opened the way to the purchase of the property, and leaves the second floor vacant for club purposes.

The directors of the club are Miss Josephine Conger, Mrs. Maud N. Rea, Mrs. Richter, Mrs. M. H. Patterson, Miss Sally Wilson, Mrs. Harriet Martin Snow and Miss Essalee Wallace, managing director. Mrs. Potter Palmer is a life member.

The club was organized in May, 1919. The membership is limited to 3,500. Life memberships cost $250.

8 OIL TANKERS OF GERMANY GO TO UNCLE SAM

PARIS, June 12.—Eight oil tankers belonging to a German subsidiary of the Standard Oil company finally have been allotted to the United States for the transport of petrol and oil to Europe, according to an official communication issued this evenng by the reparation commission.

These vessels had been the subject of controversy since January, 1919. The rights of nations, among them France, Italy, and Great Britain, were involved.

Question of ownership of the tankers has been reserved and will be examined into later by an arbitration tribunal.

TRAPPED

Ex-Marine Confesses Theft of $50,000 in Bonds from Millionaire.

HENRY H. SIRLES.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Henry H. Sirles, former marine, confessed yesterday that on June 4 he had rifled the safe of John J. McKay, millionaire tailor, in Detroit, of stock certificates.

Detroit police appraise the loot at $50,000.

Sirles disposed of some of it to Lester, Carter & Co. in the Rookery building for $360; and some in Detroit. He was arrested by Detective Nagle, Flaherty, Ryan and Paladini yesterday at the Planters hotel, when he called for a letter. The letter was a decoy sent by the brokerage firm.

"I was working as a mechanic in Detroit," said Sirles, who was staying at 4518 North Racine avenue. "I went into the McKay shop to have a suit pressed. I was alone in the office for a time. I saw the safe door open, and helped myself.

"I put some of the stocks in a couple of suits that were hanging up."

FRANCO-BELGIAN MILITARY PACT IS AGREED UPON

[Chicago Tribune-New York Times Cable.]
[Copyright: 1920.]

PARIS, June 12.—It is announced that France and Belgium have agreed upon the principles of the military alliance. Gen. Maglinez left Paris for Brussels this afternoon, bearing with him a preliminary draft of the agreement drawn up by Marshal Foch and himself.

The French and Belgian experts will begin next week to work out details. The general lines of the alliance are given as follows:

Aviation, engineering, artillery, cavalry, infantry and staffs will appoint one delegate each for each country. The alliance will be strictly an alliance for defense. It will not be a political alliance and cannot involve Belgium in any colonial war. Its purpose is the defense of the Belgian and French frontiers.

The treaty will have a duration of from five to fifteen years. Belgium will conserve her absolute independence and will have to respond to no outside call for men, arms, or material. Belgium promises to maintain under arms an army of a size somewhat superior to that which she had before the war.

175 Graduate at Golden Jubilee of Loyola "U"

Exercises commemorating the golden jubilee of Loyola university were held on the campus yesterday afternoon. The event marked the graduation of 175 students, among them twelve nuns. James Graham of Springfield, president of the state board of education, delivered the commencement address. Tomorrow a solemn pontifical high mass will be celebrated at the Holy Family church by Archbishop Bonzano, the apostolic delegate. Archbishop Mundelein will be present and Bishop Edmund Dunne of Peoria will preach.

JITNEY RIVAL BUMPED BY CAR; 40 PERSONS HURT

Crowd Fleeing from Heat Caught in Crash.

The hot weather indirectly brought injuries to about forty persons last night when a street car crashed into a truck at Grand avenue and Fairbanks court.

Because of the heat thousands of people went to the municipal pier. The Grand avenue cars were crowded and many people waiting for the cars were "passed up" by the motormen.

Starts a Jitney.

Samuel Geraci, 935 West Grand avenue, got out his father's truck and turned it into a jitney bus, collecting about fifty passengers along the way.

He was going east and turning out of the car tracks when the car struck the truck, throwing men and women to the street. The police say forty or more were hurt.

Taken to Hospitals.

The following were taken to hospitals:

SAMUEL ALVAREZ, 1741 Washington boulevard, internal injuries.
MRS. CLARA ALVAREZ, wife of Samuel, left wrist broken.
ABE MALINA, 1306 West Hastings street.
ANNA AND HARRY ZEBOVITZ, 1306 Hastings street, brother and sister.
MAX RATTMAN, 1306 Hastings street.
DANIEL REGILLO, 4160 Oakdale avenue.
THOMAS SEDILE, 1038 West Grand avenue.
LESLIE BLOOM, 1228 West Fifteenth street.
ANGELO GERACI, brother of the truck driver.
RALPH ROSENTHAL, 1256 Roosevelt road.

The police made no arrests.

RAIL PAY AWARD WILL CARRY BACK WAGES TO MAY 1

The United States railroad labor board announced yesterday that its wage decision, when made, will date back to May 1, and workers will receive the difference between the former wage and the wage authorized by the board for the time intervening between May 1 and the date the new award is made.

The award will apply, according to the time served, to all employés who were in the service May 1, and who remained in service, or who have come into the service since and remained.

The board added that the decision will cover only the employés of the roads represented by the executives' committee, and of such other roads as are properly before the board. "The decision, however, will cover approximately 93 per cent of the railroad employés of the United States," said the statement, "and the board will as soon as practicable give a hearing to the representatives of the Short Line and other carriers not represented at the recent hearings, and as soon afterward as possible a decision for the employés of these carriers will also be made."

Autoist Ordered Held as Unknown Woman's Slayer

6,854 Suits
In Our Great
Subway Sale

HERE'S the simple explanation of our ability to offer you such radical reductions—in the face of the present market.

In the last few days we've received thousands of Suits from eastern manufacturers—mostly New York. Some shipments were en route since March 3. Obviously we could not use them to advantage at this late date.

We wired the makers asking if they would make concessions that would dispose of these excellent garments quickly—or if we should return them.

With one exception, they instructed us to dispose of the suits here, so we combined all these goods in our great Subway Store at a single price.

Values Up to $45

'L' OUSTS WEDDED WOMEN TO GIVE JOBS TO GIRLS

Old Rule Revived as War Emergency Ends.

Married women employés keep the good jobs away from the single girls. That is the opinion expressed yesterday by Britton I. Budd, president of the Chicago Elevated Railways. Consequently all married women employed by the elevated lines have been discharged.

The rule against the employment of married women is an old one, which was relaxed during the war by the elevated companies, John H. Mallen, general superintendent, explained. A bulletin requesting the resignations of women employés who have husbands was sent out to enforce the rule, so unmarried women employés may have an opportunity for advancement.

"False Income" Created.

"If we continued to keep the married women, extra girls would be extra girls all their lives," said Mr. Mallen. "During the war many married women needed jobs because their husbands went into the service. We did our best to help them out. The war is over now and we wish to do what we can for the single girls.

"Besides, the employment of married women whose husbands are able to work has created a sort of false income. Later, when these women have to leave their jobs because of illness or children, the family income is cut nearly in two. It makes it all the harder for them to get along.

Where Extra Girls Lose Out.

"We employ approximately the same number of persons all the time. With the married women hanging on to their jobs, the extra girls are forced to work different shifts of hours. Naturally they look forward to a time when they can have a regular shift."

The notice calling for the resignations of married women was sent out on May 1, giving the women a month's time. Many resignations followed. About a dozen discharges have occurred since June 1.

U. S. Suffrage Leader Makes Farewell Talk to World Organization.

MRS. CARRIE CHAPMAN CATT.

GENEVA, June 12.—A farewell speech by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, as president of the International Suffrage Alliance, officially ended the organization's congress which has been in progress here for the last week. She called on the women of America to aid the alliance, politically, morally, and economically during the many years of hard work ahead.

Several resolutions were adopted at the final session, among them one thanking the press of the world for its sympathy and aid, and another congratulating the twenty-one countries which, since the last congress was held, had given the vote to women.

One of the resolutions felicitates woman on the fact that the league of nations admits women to all its activities; another calls on the women of the world to use their utmosts power to prevent future wars, and educate their children to a better international undestanding.

New Reichstag to Convene June 28, President Says

BERLIN, June 11.—Konstantine Fehrenbach, president of the German national assembly, intends to convoke the new reichstag on June 24, according to a statement made today to the Lokal Anzeiger. Twenty-two woman members will hold seats, thirty-eight having been members of the national assembly.

King Alexander and Venizelos Meet in Paris

PARIS, June 12.—Premier Venizelos of Greece, arrived in Paris today to sign the Turkish treaty. He saw King Alexander and it was announced the king would return to Greece, probably within a week.

M. Venizelos will leave for London Monday, on a private visit, returning to Paris Wednesday.

Philadelphia to Be Easy Third.

The three chief cities whose population remains to be announced are Philadelphia, Detroit, and Cleveland. Philadelphia will continue to rank third among American cities, being eclipsed in size by New York and Chicago only. Its population in the 1910 census was 1,549,008, which probably has been increased to approximately 1,750,000.

Detroit, which ten years ago was the ninth city in the United States, with a population of 465,766, has grown so rapidly that the new census is expected to show at least a doubling of its population. This will move Detroit up to fourth place ahead of St. Louis, Boston, Cleveland, Baltimore, and Pittsburgh, all of which had a larger population in 1910.

Cleveland was sixth with a population of 560,663 in 1910, ranking just below Boston. It remains to be determined whether Cleveland will hold this position or be outdistanced by Baltimore.

About the only other cities with a population of more than 300,000 for which totals have not been announced are Jersey City and Kansas City, both of which were below the 300,000 mark ten years ago.

Chicago Fourth in World.

Chicago probably continues to maintain its position as fourth among the cities of the world. The latest total on Paris, the third city, whose population may have been subject to violent fluctuations on account of the war, was compiled in 1911. The eight largest cities in the world, according to the latest available figures, are the following:

London	1917	6,726,753
New York City	1920	5,621,151
Paris	1911	2,888,110
Chicago	1920	2,701,212
Tokio	1917	2,349,880
Petrograd	1915	2,318,645
Vienna	1914	2,149,800
Berlin	1910	2,071,257

Additional Census Returns.

The census bureau today announced the following additional population statistics:

"SLUMP" AFTER A "SCOOP."

The official figures of Chicago's population are 183,615 less than the Chicago "census figures" printed as accurate several weeks ago in the Herald and Examiner and widely exploited as a "newspaper scoop."

Eighty-seven years have elapsed since a few score of pioneer settlers incorporated Chicago as a town with an area of two and one-half square miles. Since that eventful day in 1833 Chicago has grown like magic. The Indian trail that wound around the lake has become Michigan boulevard and the Lake Shore drive. The canoe routes over the river have been turned into channels for great ships. The two and a half miles of territory have expanded into 191 square miles.

The steady expansion could not even be checked by the great Chicago fire of 1871, which wiped out more than two-thirds of the city. In the decade following the fire the city increased in size four times.

The valuation of Chicago in 1910 was placed at $2,446,983,608. Postoffice receipts for the year 1910 were $18,502,854. The internal revenue collections that year were $11,652,567.87. The bank clearings were $13,939,689,984.43.

A. F. OF L. SAYS G. O. P. TURNS BACK ON LABOR

Looks to Golden Gate for Consolation.

Montreal, Que., June 12.—Organized labor today threw down the gantlet to the Republican party, and now will appeal to the Democrats for recognition of its platform demands.

This decision came when the American Federation of Labor, in annual convention here, unanimously condemned the Republican platform adopted in Chicago as a document "defiant in its defense of the enemies of labor and one that proposes an industrial enslavement and an abrogation of rights as precious as life itself."

Declaring the Republican party had "turned its back upon labor," the convention instructed Samuel Gompers and Matthew Woll, president and vice president of the federation, to submit in "identical form" to the Democratic party convention at San Francisco the proposals of labor which were presented by them to the Republicans in Chicago.

G. O. P. Planks Assailed.

In a lengthy report bitterly assailing and condemning the various planks of the Republican platform President Gompers and Mr. Woll brought the matter before the delegates. The labor leaders' indictment of the party was greeted with enthusiastic cheers and applause, while hisses and "boos" interrupted the reading of several of the Republican planks.

Without debate the report was approved and the federation went on record as condemning the Republican platform on the grounds that it:

Denies labor the right to strike against the government.

Remains silent on the right of wage earners to organize trade unions and obtain justice by collective bargaining.

Offers no remedy for the high cost of living and denies the importance of profiteering.

Repudiates Labor's Plea.

Denies right of workers to cease rking in its plank on peaceful arbi-tion of wage disputes.

Aims to undermine sovereignty of the Mexican people and "fulfill the hopes and aims of those whose sole object is the exploitation of the people and boundless resources of Mexico."

Fails to urge congressional legislation to prevent federal courts from usurpation of authority in declaring unconstitutional acts passed by congress.

Fails to favor federal compensation and election of federal judges by the people for six year terms.

Threatens the right of the people to bring about "a change in the administration and laws of the government by peaceful means as is guaranteed by the constitution."

Heritage of Lincoln.

"The heritage left to the Republican party by Abraham Lincoln," declared the report, "is abandoned in the platform, which embraces every opportunity to strengthen the concept of repression and coercion of the working people."

Before adjourning until Monday the convention accepted the invitation of Secretary of Labor Wilson to recommend a representative of the federation for the coming meeting of the international labor commission, which was established under the league of nations. The United States will be represented at the commission's conference by labor, industry, and government, but the delegates will have no voting power until this country joins the league.

FIRELESS FOURTH OF JULY? TRY TO BAR SPARKLERS

It's going to be a fireless Fourth of July this year, kids, unless you are good at the game of political lobbying. Plans to take the last vestige of fireworks out of the annual celebration in observance of the declaration of independence are being made by the council buildings committee and the fire prevention bureau.

In recent years, sparklers and colored lights have been permitted. An amendment to the fire prevention ordinance barring even these is now in the hands of Ald. Kostner, chairman of the committee. He will try to have the council pass the amendment before Independence day.

A number of other proposed changes in the ordinance are also to be considered by the committee. One would enact comprehensive regulations regarding the storage and compression of oxygen and hydrogen. Another would regulate the storage and use of fuel oils.

MURDER THEORY SCOUTED IN LAKE DEATH MYSTERY

Investigation of the death of Mrs. [illegible] Kraus, whose body was found in the lake in Jackson park, led the police yesterday to abandon the theory that Mrs. Kraus was murdered.

Coroner's Physician Dr. Joseph Springer said Mrs. Kraus was drowned and that the bruise on her temple might have been made when the waves threw the body against rocks.

Detectives at the home of Mrs. A. O. [illegible], 111 South Seeley avenue, where Mrs. Kraus had been rooming, found her wedding ring in a trunk which had been reported as missing. The detectives announced they also expect to find the watch and the other ring Mrs. Kraus is believed to have worn when she disappeared.

Mrs. A. H. Vaudell, 2909 West Lake street, a sister, said she knew no reason why Mrs. Kraus should end her life. Her husband has been dead three years and she had no children.

San Diego, June 12.—Lieut. Louis T. Barin, U. S. N., one of the pilots of the NC-1 in its transatlantic flight, was killed when an airplane he was piloting collided with an army airplane piloted by Cadet Joseph L. Walker of Rockwell field.

MOVIE DIRECTOR SUES TO KEEP HIS 'HERO, MR. BRYAN

Fears Commoner Will Star for Rival.

To be or not to be a movie star—that's the question agitating William Jennings Bryan. Mr. Bryan is willing. So is Edward F. Goltra of St. Louis.

The hitch in the proceeding (or the fly in the ointment) is George R. Dalton, who filed suit for an injunction in the Superior court yesterday to restrain the prohibition lecturer and exsecretary of state from infringing on his copyright and appropriating the result of his labor.

According to Dalton, he originated the idea to produce a motion picture as an argument for prohibition. The picture was to be a dramatization of certain lectures in which Mr. Bryan was to appear as hero.

Demand for More Cash.

Dalton claims an agreement was made whereby he was to devote all his time to promoting and producing the picture and was to set aside 10 per cent of the net proceeds to further the cause of prohibition under the direction of a commission to be appointed by Mr. Bryan.

Later, he asserts, Mr. Bryan refused to carry out the pact, demanding a modification under which he was to be paid for his services as an actor and was to receive 20 per cent of the net proceeds. The clause about the commission and the 10 per cent for prohibition propaganda was abrogated.

Then, according to Mr. Dalton, another hitch arose. On March 17, 1919, Mr. Bryan, he says, demanded 37 per cent of the proceeds and proposed that the financing was to be done by Edward F. Goltra of St. Louis.

A Bitter Denouement.

Before Dalton agreed to this change in the contract, he declares, he learned from Goltra that the financing was very uncertain.

It was contingent upon Goltra being able to recover from the government $160,000 penalty imposed upon the Hostetter's Bitters company for an alleged violation of the internal revenue laws.

When Dalton refused further to modify his agreement with Mr. Bryan the latter obtained a copyright on the idea of using his lectures for scenario purposes, it is alleged.

According to the bill, Dalton expended $12,000 on the proposed movie and time and effort, which he values at $25,000.

"Defendant Bryan is a man of peculiar attainments," the bill reads, "possessing especial ability as an actor. The complainant is unable to obtain any other person of such ability."

Mr. Bryan was served with the notice by Deputy Sheriff J. E. Olis, who called him from the press platform at the Coliseum.

"Have you got something for me?" inquired the commoner.

"Yes, colonel, I've got a summons."

Thereupon Mr. Olis proceeded to read the document. When he had concluded, Mr. Bryan asseverated: "Well, they're not going to have it all their own way."

"He seemed kind of taken back," observed Mr. Olis later.

AUTOS KILL TWO MEN; ONE, OF 70, FROM OAK FOREST

Frank Peterson, 70 years old, a patient at the Cook county infirmary in Oak Fores, died yesterday at the infirmary shortly after he had been struck by an automobile owned and driven by W. J. Fulton of Oak Forest. Fulton took the man to the infirmary, where he was given medical aid. The accident took place at One Hundred and Fifty-eighth street and Cicero avenue. Peterson had left the infirmary to take a walk.

Harry Carson of 4224 North Harding avenue died at Montrose hospital from injuries received when he was struck by an automobile driven by George F. Carpenter, 677 North Michigan avenue.

Carson was walking from behind a street car when he was struck. He was taken to the hospital by Carpenter, who then reported the accident to the police.

Judge Scanlan's Uncle Is Ill of Pneumonia

John F. Scanlan, 4333 Indiana avenue, founder of the Catholic Order of Foresters and an uncle of Judge Kickham Scanlan, is dangerously ill with pneumonia. For years a friend of James G. Blaine, he stumped the country for him during Blaine's campaign for the presidency. Mr. Scanlan also was one of the late President McKinley's trusted aids, his friends say. He is a veteran of the civil war and has written two books on the tariff question.

"Whereas, Monday, June 14, 1920, is the one hundred and forty-third anniversary of the adoption of our national emblem consisting of alternate stripes of red and white, representing the colonies or thirteen original states of the union, and the arrangement of a number of stars on a blue field, representing the total number of states, and,

"Whereas, Our national emblem typifies the sovereignty of our federal government as established in our wonderful constitution, and is the symbol of a free government conducted under laws which should be administered impartially and before which all men should be equal, thus preserving the rights of the humble against the aggressions of the rich and powerful:

"Therefore, I, William Hale Thompson, mayor of the city of Chicago, do hereby proclaim Monday, June 14, as Flag day, and recommend to our citizens that we rededicate our lives to the maintenance and perpetuation of those blessings of liberty which have been purchased so dearly by the suffering and sacrifice of our people, living and dead, and earnestly request sincere observance of the day by an appropriate display of the American flag and by patriotic demonstrations suitable to the day and the occasion."

BANKERS TO AID WOOL GROWERS WITH BIG LOAN

Washington, D. C., June 12.—[Special.]—Establishment of a fund of $100,000,000 or more to extend financial aid to western wool growers, awaiting the reëstablishment of the wool market, will be considered at a conference of bankers and the wool producers to be held in Chicago on Thursday, June 17.

The call of the conference was made today by western senators remaining at the capital, after a conference with Gov. W. P. G. Harding of the federal reserve board.

Plans for stimulating the wool market, which the senators say has declined until current prices are below the cost of production, also will be discussed at the Chicago meeting.

Conditions in the wool market at present, senators said, are similar to those prevailing with cotton in 1914, there being neither actual or speculative demand, with the wool growers unable to obtain loans to finance them awaiting a profitable market.

950 TO RECEIVE U. OF I. DIPLOMAS ON WEDNESDAY

Urbana, Ill., June 12.—[Special.]—Nine hundred and fifty students will be graduated from the University of Illinois next Wednesday morning. The commencement address will be delivered by President Vinton of the University of Texas, and the baccalaureate address will be given by the Rev. John Timothy Stone, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church of Chicago, tomorrow afternoon.

Senior students of the college of medicine, dentistry, and pharmacy of the University of Illinois held commencement exercises in the Studebaker theater yesterday. One hundred and thirty-four degrees and certificates were conferred by Dr. David Kinley, president.

OBITUARY.

Keith School Principal Dies; 35 Years in Service

Mary A. McNarney, principal of the Keith school, died at her home, 1409 North Dearborn street, yesterday, after a short illness. Cerebral hemorrhages are believed to have been the cause. Miss McNarney was born in Chicago fifty-eight years ago, and had been connected with the public schools as teacher and principal for thirty-five years. For twenty years she was principal of the Hardigan school, and upon the tearing down of that building was assigned to the Keith school.

You Can Still Get In On This Season's Planting

RESERVE YOUR ALMOND TRACT BEFORE JULY 1ST

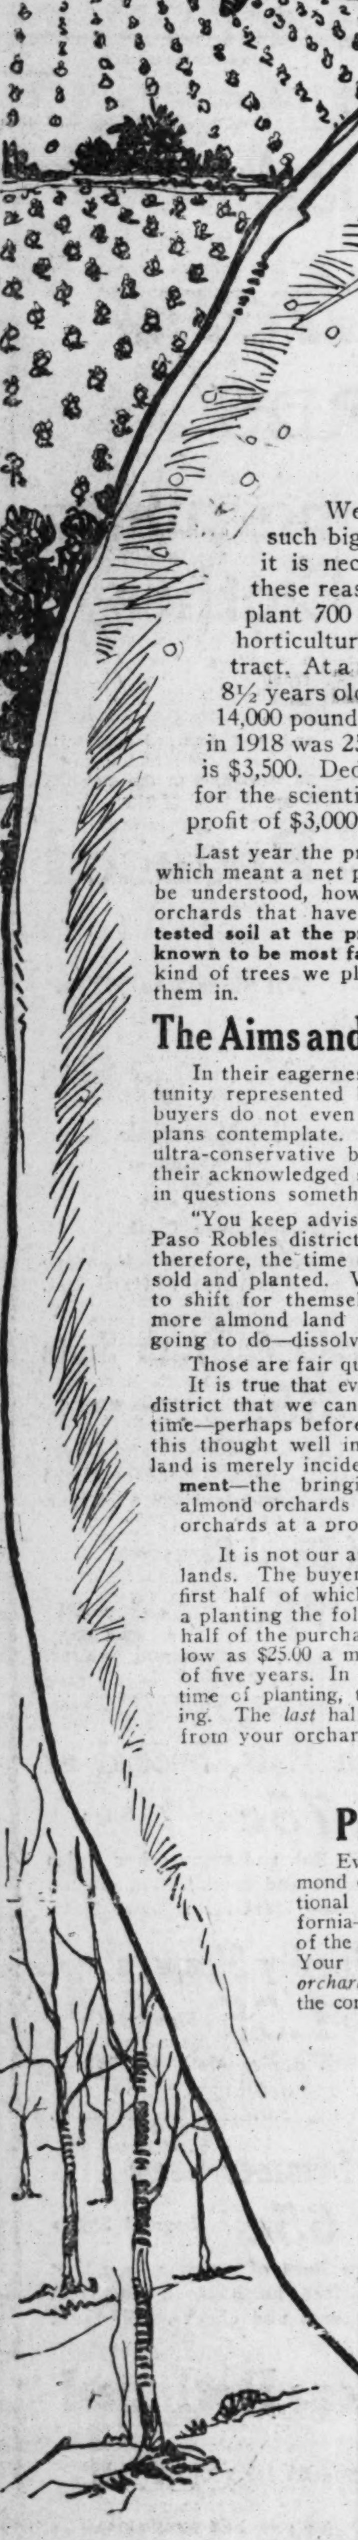
When an automobile manufacturer finds that the demand for his cars is running ahead of his output he announces the fact to the public and advises all prospective buyers to place their orders far enough in advance to insure delivery by a certain date.

We are in the same position. Within the past six months the demand for our almond orchard tracts in the Paso Robles district of California has been so great that a shortage of pedigreed, nursery grown almond trees available for this coming season's planting is already in sight. This means a strict limitation of the number of acres we can plant—because under no circumstances will we plant any trees except those grown under the direct supervision of our horticultural expert, Mr. G. A. Nehrhood, who is the acknowledged almond authority of the United States.

In justice to the many prospective buyers who have seriously been considering the matter for several weeks, we say that you have no further time to lose. We have just one word of good advice to offer you—HURRY!

Up until July 1st we can definitely promise you a planting this season. After that date there may still be left a few tracts—but the strong probabilities are that there will not be a single 10-acre tract available for planting this season.

In view of these conditions—which are now beyond our control—the vital necessity for prompt action needs no comment. If you are wise you will buy now—before July 1st.



$2,500 to $3,000 a Year from Only 10 Acres

We have so many times explained in detail why such big profits are possible that we do not believe it is necessary to go into a lengthy discussion of these reasons here. Briefly summarized they are: we plant 700 of the finest pedigreed almond trees that horticultural skill has ever produced, to each 10-acre tract. At a most conservative estimate these trees when 8½ years old will produce 20 pounds of almonds a year—14,000 pounds from 700 trees. The price paid to growers in 1918 was 25c per pound. On this basis the gross income is $3,500. Deducting $50.00 an acre, or a total of $500.00 for the scientific care of a 10-acre orchard, leaves a net profit of $3,000.

Last year the price paid to growers was 30c to 32½c per pound, which meant a net profit of from $415.00 to $460.00 an acre. It should be understood, however, that these figures apply only to almond orchards that have been planted to pedigreed stock on properly tested soil at the proper elevation where conditions are absolutely known to be most favorable for almond culture. Those are the only kind of trees we plant and that is the only kind of soil we plant them in.

The Aims and Purposes of Our Organization

In their eagerness to grasp the remarkable money making opportunity represented by the ownership of an almond orchard many buyers do not even stop to ask who we are or what our ultimate plans contemplate. On the other hand others as, for example, the ultra-conservative business-man type of investor, frequently frame their acknowledged skepticism as to the soundness of our proposition in questions something like this:

"You keep advising the public that desirable almond land in the Paso Robles district is scarce. According to your own statements, therefore, the time cannot be far off when all of your land will be sold and planted. What, then, are your buyers to do? To be left to shift for themselves the best way they can? And, having no more almond land to sell and develop, what is your Association going to do—dissolve into nothingness?"

Those are fair questions. They deserve straightforward answers. It is true that every acre of good almond land in the Paso Robles district that we can buy will be sold within a comparatively short time—perhaps before this year comes to an end. But you must keep this thought well in mind; that the buying and selling of almond land is merely incidental to our main purpose, which is the development—the bringing into full bearing thousands of acres of almond orchards and delivering to the market the crops of those orchards at a profit.

It is not our aim to make a profit out of the direct sale of these lands. The buyer pays only half the purchase price in cash, the first half of which must be paid in by July 1st, to make sure of a planting the following planting season. The balance of the first half of the purchase price may be spread out in small payments as low as $25.00 a month on a 10-acre orchard throughout a period of five years. In the meantime, at the age of 4½ years from the time of planting, the orchard will have come into commercial bearing. The last half of the purchase price is taken out of the crops from your orchard.

How Your Interests Are Protected by Trust Agreement

Every dollar that you pay for the purchase of an almond orchard from us is held in trust by the County National Bank and Trust Company of Santa Barbara, California—one of the most conservative financial institutions of the Pacific Coast, with assets of approximately $3,000,000. Your money is used for the development of your own orchard and for the fixed overhead expense incidental to the conduct of the business of our Association.

It is within this Trust Company's power to determine what sums shall be appropriated to cover every item of expense incidental to the furtherance of your—the purchaser's—best interests.

One of the leading Agricultural and Horticultural experts of California, whose efforts have gone far toward making California the wonderfully productive state that it now is, and who has watched closely the numberless land development projects of one kind or another which have been launched in that state during the past dozen years or so, recently stated that the Trust Agreement under which our Association operates offers the largest measure of protection to the buyer that has ever been known in the horticultural history of the state and that, moreover, the Associated Almond Growers of Paso Robles are today conducting the greatest constructive work along horticultural lines that he has ever witnessed. He declares that our proposition is 100% throughout—that there is not a single objectionable feature to it.

A Permanent Organization for Your Continued Benefit

We have built up an organization of cool, level-headed, far-seeing business men who from the start anticipated the day when there would be no more desirable almond land to be sold.

Our organization was founded with this thought and belief in mind: that only a very small percentage of the buyers of our almond tracts would ever care to give their almond orchards, even when fully paid for, their personal care and attention. We have laid our plans accordingly and are prepared to look after every buyer's interests so long as he wishes us to do so. We already have under successful cultivation for our buyers and ourselves more than 5,500 acres of almonds. This means that the Associated Almond Growers is a permanent organization. It necessarily must be to protect our own interests if for no other reason. Our future profits will be derived not merely from the percentage of the crops to apply on the last half of the purchase price of each orchard, but also from the future care, upkeep and marketing of the crops for the orchard owners after the orchards are fully paid for. We are specialists in this work. Of course, we do not insist that this work be turned over to us, but we can assure each buyer that we can do it for him better than he could do it for himself and far more advantageously than he could hire it done by anyone else. We will enter into a contract with any buyer to perform this work for him at a nominal cost per acre—a contract which he may terminate at any time by giving us thirty days' notice, but which is perpetually binding upon us. Already a sufficient number of these contracts have been made with buyers to insure the permanency of our organization for many years to come.

What Is Your Idea of a Life Income?

The 3% or 4% interest from a few thousand dollars in a savings bank? The 5%, 6% or, at the outside, 7% interest returns from a few conservative bond, stock or mortgage investments? A stock and bond investment yields a sure and steady income—true. But have you ever stopped to consider how large a principal is required to yield you a livable income? If you have $40,000, $50,000 or more to set aside for such an investment, well and good; but even so, it would pay you infinitely better to invest a part of that capital in one or more of our 10-acre almond orchard tracts. Because we say to you—and our declaration has the endorsement of conservative business men, bankers, and the leading horticulturists of California—that your investment of only $3,000 in cash should easily yield you a life income of from $2,500 to $3,000 a year.

Is it worth your while to make a temporary sacrifice—to deny yourself a few luxuries—to obtain such an income? To open the way to you for a home in the wonderful state of California? Your best judgment will tell you that it is a thousand times worth your while—that here is an opportunity for an investment of such an unusual character that it is being eagerly grasped by those who can foresee its tremendous money making possibilities.

Also see the detailed figures which we have here on the profits of almond raising. You will be interested in reading letters which have come from men who have gone to Paso Robles to investigate our proposition and to get all the facts at first hand. Let us tell you how the local almond association and the State Almond Growers' Exchange fix the market prices so that every grower is assured of a profit. Then let us explain how we select the trees, plant and care for them, relieving you of any anxiety or personal attention. All these facts and much more will be given if you will call at our offices any day. This information is open to anyone who is interested in putting his surplus savings where they will bring the largest returns and be safe. We can show that nothing in the world is safer than almond soil in California planted with an orchard. We will show how this is proved by the experience of the planting there. Call or make an appointment by telephone.

PEP PUT IN PREPS BY ASSURANCE OF INTERCITY GAME

Chicago Champions to Be Decided This Week.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

COACH MOORE.
[Lane Tech.]

Since assurance came from the New York high school authorities that the champion team of Gotham will invade Chicago to take on the local prep champs, all players on the three teams still in the race here have renewed interest in their play and the games this week that will determine the title and decide which one will battle the New Yorkers, promise to be as high spirited combats as the professionals ever played.

Parker, champions of the southern section, having lost to Lane and Harrison in the final round, are out of it. Lane, Harrison and Englewood will fight it out for the honor. Lane and Harrison each have a victory to their credit, each having beaten Parker. Englewood and Lane fought to a tie and will have to play again.

Englewood-Harrison Tomorrow.

The Englewood boys will take on Harrison tomorrow morning at Riverview park; Wednesday they will play Parker. Lane will play Harrison Wednesday and then Lane and Englewood will meet, possibly next Saturday, the game not yet being scheduled.

The big contest against the New Yorkers is booked for Saturday, June 26, at the Cubs park, and these final and deciding games should serve to put all three of the Chicago teams in good form for such a game. Whichever one lands the honor should be in better form than ever when the test comes for supremacy between the two cities. Along with these games of the final round, the coaches are giving the players long periods of batting drill and fielding practice each day besides blackboard lectures on the inside things of the game.

Incentive to Prep Players.

There is no doubt that the intercity contest and the prospect of a Chicago team going to New York next year has given the prep players more incentive than they ever were able to get from the coaching. Many of them are just beginning to grasp the fine points of baseball. In another year the high school teams of the city should be 25 per cent more efficient in the game because of their added interest and effort.

As would be expected from boys of little experience, many mistakes are made on the ball field. One reason for this may be that outsiders, who know little about the game, are apparently permitted to take part in the coaching. For instance, at the Lane-Englewood game, I noticed one man, who may have been a teacher, taking quite an active part in instructing the Englewood boys what to do and what not to do, though Coach Peacable was there for that purpose.

A Sample Misplay.

During the game a Lane batter bunted one down the third base line. The ball rolled slowly, not more than four inches foul. The Englewood third baseman stood away down near the bag, and, seeing it was a foul, waited for it to roll to him. Meanwhile the batter ran clear to first base.

Had that ball hit a pebble or something and bounded over on the fair side of the line it would have been a fair ball and no chance for a play, because the batter was already at first base. Of course, the Englewood third baseman should have dashed in and picked up the ball or at least touched it while it was foul, thus spoiling any chance for it to be a hit. Fortunately no pebble caused it to carom back into fair ground and the batter had to return.

The Outsider's Idea.

"That third baseman would look pretty bad if that ball had hit something and gone fair," was remarked to the "outsider."

"It would have been a foul ball anyway," was his positive reply.

"O, no, not if it had rolled fair before getting to third," was offered.

"Sure it would have been a foul ball. That wouldn't make it a fair one. It was rolling down on foul ground, wasn't it?"

That was the man advising the Englewood boys how to play, and they respectfully were listening to him.

LONDON PAPERS PRAISE GARDNER FOR TITLE MATCH

LONDON, June 12.—Cyril Tolley's victory over Robert Gardner of Chicago for the British amateur golf championship yesterday is received with natural gratification by London newspapers, but there is no extravagant note of triumph in their comments. Full credit is given Gardner's skill and pluck, and occasional betrayals of nervousness at critical moments have been noted as impartially in Tolley's as in that of the American.

Pride in the young Oxonian, which is none the less because he won the military cross as an officer in the tank corps during the war, does not prevent whole-hearted admiration of Gardner, who, the Times says, "possesses the temperament of which champions are made."

HIGH SCHOOL WORLD'S SERIES.

CHAMPIONSHIP high school teams of Chicago and New York will meet in a game in this city June 26 to determine supremacy. This game, made possible by the interest of THE TRIBUNE and New York News, with the coöperation of the high school athletic authorities, is underwritten by twenty public spirited firms and individuals. That is, if the gate receipts do not meet the expenses, the schools are guaranteed against loss, as they have no fund for this purpose. If there is a profit, the schools will get it.

The significance of the game, which probably will become an annual fixture with next year's contest in New York, lies not alone in which team is victorious, although, of course, we hope Chicago will win, but in the incentive it gives high school baseball players to learn and play the best baseball possible.

With a climax game at the end of each season, there is a stimulus all through the practice season and regular league schedule. It is a constructive move for raising the standard of high school baseball.

Some Triple Play.

W. S. calls attention to the report of an unusual triple play described in the St. Joseph, Mo., News-Press as follows:

>
> A St. Mary's batter hit the ball into the air above short and was called out on an infield fly. The wind blew the ball toward second, and as it fell it hit the runner there, who was standing just off the bag, and he was called out for being hit by a batted ball.
>
> Then the ball caromed toward first base, where the runner, disgusted at the luck of his teammates, grabbed the ball and threw it out of the lot, and was called out for interference.

FIFTY-FIFTY.

[Ballad of the Bullivard.]

I met her only yesterday, upon the bull-i-vard,
With languid eyes she looked my way, and I fell for her quite hard.
I steered her toward a swell hotel; you know the place—it's where
They even have the nerve to charge for ozone in the air.

Then, while eating swell confections and cooling beverage there,
She conversed of swell connections away down east somewhere.
I listened quite attentively, then spoke about my pelf,
My clubs, my horses, limousines—I shoot the bull myself.

Today, I took my other shirt, to the laundry 'cross the way,
And there, behind the counter, found—my queen of yesterday.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Leading from start to finish and crossing the line with a great burst of speed despite the extreme heat, Oswald Larsen, the long distance runner of the Illinois A. C., yesterday won the thirteenth annual five mile road race of the Sleipner A. C. over the streets of the northwest side. Larsen covered the distance in 28:28 4-5.

Honors in the three mile novice race went to W. J. Ross of the Swedish American A. A., who came from behind in the last half of the contest. George Olsen of the Sleipner A. C. set the pace for the first mile and a half and then dropped out because of the heat. Ross then took the lead and although closely pressed by G. Gustafson of the Swedish American A. A., won by five yards. The winner's time was 17:33 4-5.

Large Fields Start.

Despite the heat large fields entered both races. Twenty-nine runners were sent away by Julian T. Fitzgerald in the five mile run and Larsen and Hankel immediately went out in the lead. Hankel tried to hold to the fast pace set by the tri-color club runner, but was compelled to drop back at the half way mark.

In the meantime Shou Christensen of the Logan Square A. C. came up and ran on even terms with Hankel during the fourth mile. In the dash to the tape in the last quarter mile, Christensen had more reserve and won second place by five yards. The other runners were strung out along the course.

Prize Winners.

Following are the prize winners in the three mile novice and the order in which they finished: W. J. Ross, Swedish American A. A.; G. Gustafson, Swedish American A. A.; C. H. Blum, C. H. I.; W. Perkins, un.; Ollie Ostergren, Swedish American A. A.; H. Baum, C. H. I., and Arthur Santchi, Sleipner A. C.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

Today's Question.

The Answers.

H. J. THOMPSON, 3709 Gladys avenue, a clerk—Of course, I have never seen Anson play ball, but I know he couldn't have been of as much value as Ruth. The game is harder today; it is more scientific. I don't believe Anson was worth as much as Ruth.

STEVEN SAWALSKI, 1928 North Hoyne avenue, an engraver—No. Babe Ruth is more valuable because the game pays more today than it did, and because the fans flock to the ball yard when they know Ruth is going to play. He is a greater drawing card.

W. A. KENDALL, Chattanooga, Tenn., business manager of a newspaper—Why, no. Babe Ruth is more valuable. The game was a different proposition in Anson's day. It is a much harder game now. And Ruth is the big star of a higher class of ball players.

HENRY H. EVANS, 4622 Calumet avenue, a jewelry salesman—I think so. Anson was the master. He played in hundreds of games. Babe Ruth is a flash, a mighty brilliant flash, I'll admit, but Anson was the consistent player.

G. B. HEGNEY, 4216 Adams street, an adjustor—Old "Pop" certainly was. He was the one big attraction of his day and he played just as good ball and more of it than Ruth plays today.

DIRECTOR STAGG NAMED REFEREE

Athletic Director A. A. Stagg of the University of Chicago has been chosen referee of the midwest Olympic track and field trials to be held on Stagg field June 26. Announcement of the selection was made yesterday by Everett C. Brown, Olympic committeeman in this district who will be in charge of the tests.

With the college athletic season over, Director Stagg has turned over his athletic field to the athletes who will compete in the trials. Last week the stars of both athletic clubs and the university were out in large numbers, while the squad will be increased this week with the arrival of out of town college performers who intend to compete in the central trials.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Boston, Mass., June 12.—[Special.]—Sergeant Grover Alexander and the Cubs broke their losing streak simultaneously today by scalping the Braves 8 to 1 in their opening game here. The sergeant had three two legged outfielders behind him and the Cubs were a much improved ball team.

MAX FLACK.

By bunching a flock of four swats with a couple of walks and a balk in the second inning, the Mitchells bagged four runs and the sergeant was on easy street thereafter. The Braves tagged him for seven hits altogether and two of them, with the help of an outfield fly, saved Boston from a shutout in the second inning.

Sub Outfielders Help.

Boss Mitchell used both Twombly and Friberg in the outfield, as Passkert was too lame after yesterday's efforts to go in again. Twombly delivered two hits in five chances and both of them figured in the run column. Friberg pulled off a safe and timely bunt which helped upset McQuillan in the glad second round.

Flack was the hitting kid, ripping off two singles and a home run of the geuine brand into deep right field. Flack also drew a pass and not until the ninth inning did the Braves retire him before he got to first.

Merkle Starts Trouble.

Merkle started the winning rally in the second with a single. Deal was hit on the leg. O'Farrell failed in bunting, then flied out. Friberg dumped a bunt toward third and beat it easily, filling the bases. Alexander struck out, but Flack whaled a single over Maranville's head, good for two runs. McQuillan made a balk and passed Hollocher, filling the bases again. Terry hit a nasty bounder which shot over Maranville's head and scored two more tallies.

Flack's home run came with two out and nobody on in the fourth. Singles by Twombly and Merkle and a wild chuck from the outfield let in a run in the fifth and that was all off McQuillan, who gave way to pinch hitter in the seventh.

NOTES OF THE CUBS

Boston, Mass., June 12.—[Special.]—The Cubs have three more games here, Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday.

Tomorrow, instead of being an off day for the crippled Cubs, brings an all day trip to Rocky Point and back to play an exhibition game against a team managed by Dave Shean. Manager Mitchell tried to call off the game, but Shean refused to cancel it.

Two youngsters from Brookline were in Cub uniform in case of more accidents to the Mitchells. They were a catcher named Mahoney and a shortstop named Palmer. Both have been tried out before by Boston teams.

Word came from Chicago that Bill Killefer is the happy father of a young lady who has not yet been christened.

HURLER SALLEE SUSPENDED FOR RULE INFRACTION

New York, June 12.—Harry Sallee, the Cincinnati pitcher, was suspended for ten days by President Heydler today for violating the new pitching rules during yesterday's game at the Polo grounds. The National league president also announced that the indefinite suspension of Outfielder Roush would be lifted tomorrow so that he could play in Sunday's game with Cincinnati against Brooklyn.

Baseball Will Run Out Players Who Hurt Game

Cincinnati, O., June 12.—[Special.]—Both Magee and Chase are out of organized baseball forever, said President Ban Johnson of the American league yesterday. So, too, are twenty or thirty players who have jumped their contracts in order to play in outlaw leagues. The big league clubs, just like the newspapers and the public, are working for clean baseball, and just such an occurrence as the Magee case gave them the opportunity to prove it.

The matinée was a slugging affair from start to finish. Walter Johnson was on the mound for the visitors and was bumped quite consistently, but even then had a big edge until he weakened in the eighth and ninth. A grand total of eleven blows resulted from the Sox attack, where as the Senators peeled off fifteen safe clouts off Roy Wilkinson and Dick Kerr, who took up the hurling task in the midst of a base hit shower in the fifth frame.

Hap Felsch Hits Homer.

Among the notable swats of the afternoon was a homer by Hap Felsch. Jackson singled with one down in the sixth, and a moment later Hap pushed the pill into the left field seats. This brace of runs was sorely needed, as the Senators were leading by 5 to 4 at the time. Gleason's men couldn't hold the advantage, however, the visitors picking up two in the seventh and another in the eighth, only to be nosed out by the unexpected splurge of the South Siders.

The first happening of the ninth round was an easy infield out by McMullin. Murphy is known for his ability to hit Johnson's speed, so Gleason delegated him to bat for Schalk, who had fanned twice. Murphy responded with a bounding single over the pitcher's dome. Jourdan was sent forth to swing for Kerr and he shocked the multitude with a safe hit to right, Murphy going to third. McClellan ran for Jourdan, who has an ailing ankle.

Weaver's Single Wins Game.

Leibold socked a healthy line drive to right center and Rice managed to get it, but Murphy made home after the catch, tying the score. McClellan then stole second, and Johnson refused to give E. Collins a good ball to hit, so the latter walked. Weaver came up and slammed a clean liner to center, McClellan carrying the winning tally over the pan.

WHITE SOX NOTES

Griff's team is in bad shape. Milan sprained an ankle at St. Louis and Judge hasn't recovered from a spike wound received from Babe Ruth at New York.

Eddie Collins' speed gave him a base hit on an infield roller in the eighth. He went to third on a single by Weaver and scored when Felsch sent a long fly to Roth.

A fan who acted as though he had been drinking ether and brown sugar water started a fist fight in the grand stand in the ninth inning. He couldn't be suppressed until a bluecoat arrived and dragged him off the landscape.

SOX GAMES OPEN AT 3:30 O'CLOCK

Starting this afternoon, all games at Comiskey park will be called at 3:30 p. m., instead of 3 o'clock, as has been the custom for several years. Secretary Grabiner announced the change yesterday, claiming that many patrons, particularly those from the stockyards offices, had complained for some time about the 3 o'clock start. With daylight saving in effect there will be no fear of darkness under the new starting time but the fans probably will eat on Chicago time, hence there will be an epidemic of late dinners.

INDIANS DEFEAT YANKEES, 5 TO 4, IN TIGHT BATTLE

Caldwell Outpitches Quinn in Mound Duel.

Cleveland, O., June 12.—Cleveland won the first game of the series with New York, 5 to 4. It was hotly contested, with Caldwell outpitching Quinn, who had won eight straight games prior to today. But for an error by Wambsganss, New York would have scored only two runs, his misplay allowing New York to tie the count in the sixth inning. Score:

VISITORS SCORE AT SOUTH SHORE CLUB HORSE SHOW

Majority of Awards Goes to Outside Entries.

[Photo (C) U. & U.]

Entries from other cities carried off a majority of the laurels in Chicago's most interesting horse show, which came to a brilliant close at South Shore Country club yesterday. In the morning the club staged a special exhibition for children and the seats were crowded with gleeful youngsters from charitable institutions. William E. Dee's boxing ponies received a great hand.

The championships in the various divisions were decided in the afternoon and evening, with keen speculation over the awards. There was a lively competition in the women's harness horse class, which was won by Miss Isabella Wanamaker of Philadelphia with Netherhall's Pride and Eve. Mrs. Loula Long Combs of Kansas City was second.

Mrs. Peabody Wins.

Great Heart, the jumper of Mrs. F. S. Peabody of Chicago, brought one trophy to this city, taking the high jump honors by clearing the bars at 6 feet 9 inches. Guy C. Woodin's Bateman won the hunters and jumpers' championship of the show. Mrs. J. K. Dering and George H. Heyl were heavy scorers in the pony events.

Among other winners in the principal classes were Miss Janice Liggett, Boston, whose Bohemian Actress was first among the three gaited saddle horses; Mrs. Combs, whose Animation won the blue ribbon for harness horses; R. E. Moreland of Lexington, Ky., whose Col. Stroller was victor in the single harness championship; W. L. Lewis, Tulso, Okla., whose Mass of Gold scored highest in the five gait saddle horse event; and Mrs. F. P. Garvan of New York, consistent scorer in the pony events.

The Prize Winners.

Results in the principal classes:

Three gaited saddle horses, championship—Bohemian Actress, Miss Janice Ligget,t champion; Lavender Lady, E. J. Lehmann, reserve.

Five gaited saddle horses, championship—Mass of Gold, W. L. Lewis, champion; Sinbad, F. W. Matthiesson, reserve.

Three gaited saddle horses, Chicago-owned, ridden by amateur—Homestead Choice, Mrs. J. M. Harris, first; Lady Mary, F. M. Flynn, second; Watchful, J. K. Dering, third; Miss Dignity, W. P. Saunders, fourth.

Harness horse championship—Animation, Miss Loula Long Combs, champion; Eve, Miss Isabella Wanamaker, reserve.

Hagen and Barnes Have Impressed Critics Abroad with Their Skill, bnt Meet a Notable Galaxy of the World's Best Golf Talent.

WALTER C. HAGEN ©International News Service. JIM BARNES.

The draws for the open golf championship at Deal have been made. There are 168 professional and twenty-two amateur entries, which is only four less than for the open championship in 1914.

The qualifying competitions will be played at Walton and Weybridge June 23 and 24, and the championship games on the Deal links on June 30, and July 1.

The big men are divided remarkably well. The qualifying games will be played in two sections—A and B. Somewhat unfortunately, the two Americans, Walter Hagen, and Jim Barnes, will play in the same section—in which Harry Vardon, holder, Arnaud Massey, Abe Mitchell, Jack White and Angel Dela Torre, the Spanish champion, are playing.

Section B includes four ex-champions—James Braid, Ted Ray, J. L. Taylor and Alec Herd, besides two famous Frenchmen, Maurice Dauge and Jean Gassiat.

LATONIA DERBY PRIZE TO UPSET; GLADIATOR NEXT

Big Crowd Sees Race; Paul Jones Scratched.

Latonia, Ky., June 12.—Upset won the Latonia Derby today. Gladiator was second and Ethel Gray third. The time for the mile and a half was 2:32. Rouleau, Capt. Mac, Peace Pennant, Prince Pal, and Makeup ran.

The track was fast and the weather ideal for racing. The attendance is said to have broken all records for this track.

Paul Jones, winner of the Suburban handicap and the Kentucky Derby, entered as a starter, was withdrawn on account of lameness. Sterling also was scratched.

The record time for the Latonia Derby is 2:30 2-5, held by Gov. Gray and John Gund.

MAN O' WAR SETS NEW RECORD IN BELMONT STAKE

New York, June 12.—Man o' War, the sensational 3 year old, made his second world's record in the Belmont stake at Belmont park today when he ran a mile and three furlongs in the remarkable time of 2:14 1-5. He won the event with ease against only one other starter, Donnacona.

Thirty thousand spectators went out, not to see him win, for the honors had been awarded to him in advance, but to watch him make a run against time.

Lincoln Park Amateur Shoot Won by Fessler

D. F. Fessler, local amateur, won the trophy for contestants shooting at seventy-five targets from twenty yards yesterday at the Lincoln Park Gun club. Fessler and J. H. May tied for first place with totals of 70. In the first shootoff they tied at 22, but in the second attempt to settle the trophy Fessler broke 25 against 22 for his opponent. W. Entries close tomorrow for the first annual bicycle derby of the Alverno A. A., to be held over the two and one-half mile course in Humboldt park next Sunday morning. The best of the local riders, including Ernest Kockler, who won the Olympic test from Milwaukee to Chicago, have entered. The main event will be a handicap twenty mile race. In addition to this contest there will be a two mile race for girls and a four mile event for boys under 16 years.

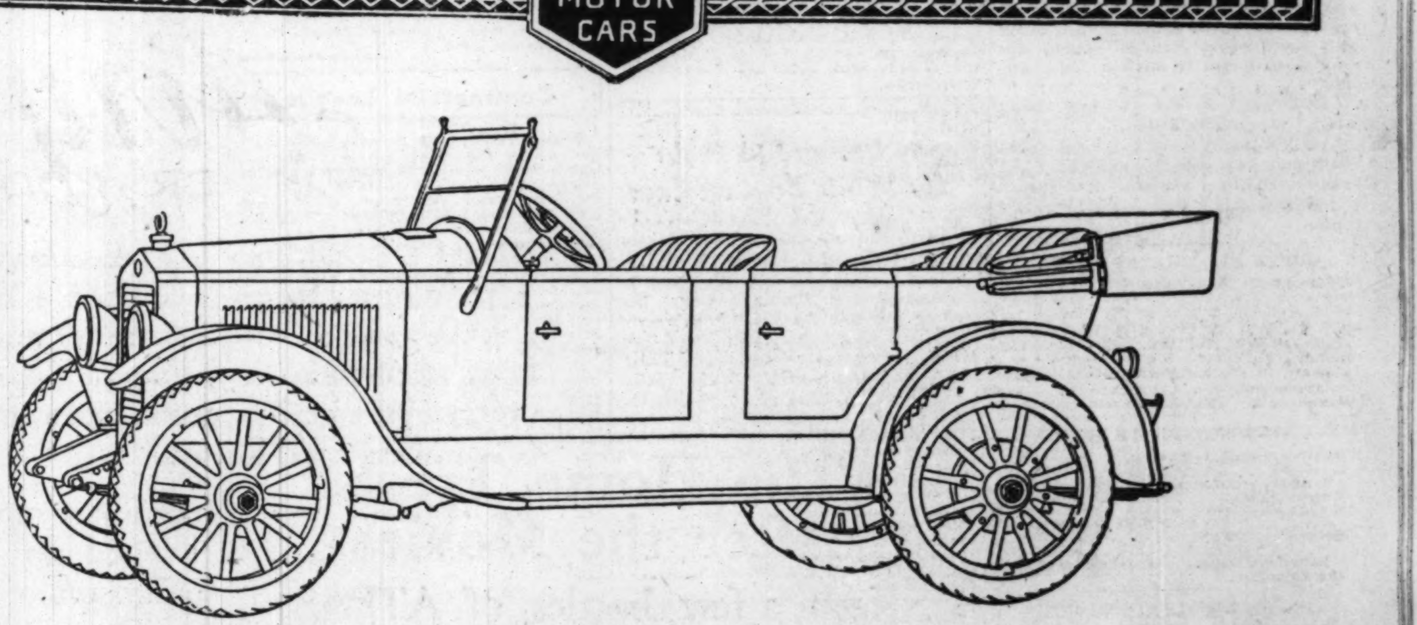
ESSEX MOTOR CARS



Essex Reveals True Economy

Not Limited to But One Advantage

The question of motor car economy is not limited to gasoline mileage.

It includes oil, tires and particularly repair costs.

The Essex consumes no more gasoline than other cars of similar capacity. And it is a common remark of all owners that it requires hardly any oil.

As for its tire economy, many reports are so remarkable that we repeat them only with the explanation that they are exceptional rather than average. One owner has a record of 29,600 miles on one set of tires that appear good for several thousand more miles of use.

The repair requirements are so slight that it has given Essex a distinctive position among all cars.

WHAT'S BEST WAY TO BEAT SOU'PAW IN GLOVE SPORT?

One Boxer Thinks He's Found Proper System.

BY RAY PEARSON.

Everybody who knows anything about the game of pugilism knows that these sou'paw boxers, especially when they happen to have class, as in the case of Johnny Panica, which is the honest to goodness name of Johnny Wilson, middleweight champion, and Lew Tendler, the Philadelphia lightweight, are mighty tough fellows to handle. It isn't because they wallop harder or possess greater skill, but because they don't do things in the stereotyped way. They're an awkward class, any right handed scrapper will say.

Having watched this Tendler person engage in a ten rounder with Pinkie Mitchell and beat him by a margin that could not be disputed, and also having watched Richie Mitchell, Pinkie's brother, scrap the Philadelphia sou'paw more than ever convinces us that sou'paws are tough 'uns.

Here's a Question.

Having come to this conclusion, the writer has quizzed several boxers, the principal question asked being:

Now, as a rule, boxers don't do any considerable amount of studying out these things unless they happen to be matched to scrap one of the fellows who jab with the right hand, but as these matches come so rarely because sou'paws seldom get very far in the glove game, we found little success in getting a solution to the problem. Most of those with whom we talked didn't know of any way to beat a classy left hander and simply shook their heads, indicating the question was a bit too deep for them.

Solution Offered.

But we did manage to find one fellow, and a lightweight, too, who offered something in the way of a solution. He didn't care to have his name mentioned, but the way he would beat a sou'paw is interesting. Perhaps his system may be O. K.; perhaps no good at all, but at any rate there seems to be some logic in the way he has figured it out. Here's the way he puts it:

"I've never had a battle with a sou'paw opponent, but it seems to me a right hander should be able to find a way to beat these awkward fellows who jab with the right hand and cross or hook with the left. Now I think that the thing to do when meeting this type is to let him jab with his right, I mean not to try to stop him from landing his jab, for jabs don't do any damage. It's pretty nearly a cinch that after he has found that he can plant his right where and when he wants to he will quickly follow the right with his left cross or hook. Then is the time for the right handed fellow to bring into play the stuff that does the work.

Make Sou'paw Miss.

"He should take the jab, but always keep his eyes watching for the left and when it comes over make the sou'paw miss with it. Then after missing the sou'paw would have shot all he had and the chances are he would be off his balance which should give a quick and alert right handed person the chance to speed in with a hard wollop."

"But what if the sou'paw didn't miss?" we timidly asked.

"Oh, he might not always miss, but some time he's going to and that's the time to send over the stuff that makes the birdies sing," was our informant's reply.

WOMEN IN ATHLETICS TODAY.

Three events for women will feature the west zone tryouts of the city wide track and field championships at the Chicago Hebrew institute athletic field today. The events are fifty and 100 yard dashes and running broad jump. Fourteen contests will be staged in the big meet, which is under the supervision of Clayton Everett of the Alverno A. A. The contests will start at 2 o'clock.

CITY HIGH SCHOOLS QUALIFY BOYS IN PRELIMS TO MEET

PRELIMINARIES in nine of the senior and seven of the junior events of the Chicago high school league track and field meet, which will be held at Riverview park tomorrow afternoon, were run off yesterday at Douglas park playground. With fourteen schools entering a total of 252 athletes—a new entry record for the league—it was necessary to run preliminaries in all but four of the senior and three of the junior events.

Benny Leonard to Train for White Bout on Coast

Los Angeles, Cal., June 12.—Benny Leonard will condition himself here for his fight with Charlie White at Benton Harbor, instead of going to Chicago or the Michigan city. His reasons are that he can reduce weight easier and that the mountains of California afford better training. Leonard, who scales over 150 pounds, must come to 135 pounds at 10 o'clock the morning of the fight, July 5.

TENNIS MATCHES TO SOUTH SIDERS BY 8 TO 1 SCORE

Victory Over South Parks Proves a Surprise.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

South Side Tennis club started the 1920 team race for the city association championship with a signal triumph of eight individual contests to one against South Park in the division A competition on the south side courts yesterday. The heavy margin was a surprise, as South Park had been the annual unbeaten winner in the south section for several seasons.

One of the best fights was the singles match in which George O'Connell upset Harold Forster, 3—6, 6—1, 6—2. Every one of the three doubles encounters was bitterly contested. That in which O'Connell and Harry Vories won from E. E. Wiley and Perry Segal, 6—4, 7—5, was featured by spirited sallies. Summaries:

Singles—A. P. Hubbell, South Side, beat Perry Segal, S. Park, 6—1, 6—4; Harry Vories, S. Side, beat E. E. Wiley, S. Park, 6—1, 6—3; Thomas Cochrane, S. Side, beat Harry Holbrook, S. Park, 6—4, 6—3; George O'Connell, S. Side, beat Harold Forster, S. Park, 3—6, 6—1, 6—2; Harold Ingersol, S. Side, beat Stanley Drake, S. Park, 6—3, 6—2; Benny Evans, S. Side, beat J. Pinney, S. Park, 6—4, 1—6, 6—2.

Doubles—Hubbell and Ingersol, S. Side, beat W. M. Kinsel and Holbrook, 6—1, 4—6, 6—3; O'Connell and Vories beat Wiley and Segal, 6—4, 7—5; L. Huber and F. Pierson, S. Park, beat B. Evans and E. Wilson, S. Side, 6—3, 8—6.

Hamilton [0] at Sherwood [9].

Sherwood made a clean sweep of all nine matches against Hamilton Park on Sherwood's courts. J. F. Day and Harry Fox of the winners were pressed hard to win in singles and L. B. Walton and C. E. Spencer got a scare in doubles before conquering C. L. Thayer and S. Wright, 7—5, 9—7. Summaries:

Singles—R. F. Woods beat R. Brown, 6—4, 6—3; J. F. Day beat Glenn Holbrook, 7—5, 7—5; Harold McLaughlin beat S. Wright, 6—4, 6—1; Harry Fox beat R. Billings, 8—6, 6—4; L. B. Walton beat C. L. Thayer, 6—3, 6—2; C. E. Spencer beat S. Lawrence, 6—0, 6—4.

Doubles—Day and MsLaughlin beat H. Parmalee and D. Hunt, 6—3, 7—5; Woods and Fox beat Holbrook and Brown, 6—1, 6—3; Walton and Spencer beat Thayer and Wright, 7—5, 9—7.

Division B

The Division B match between Sherwood club's second team and Riverside, on the latter club's courts, was called off yesterday because of condition of the Riverside courts, and will be played off this afternoon at Sherwood.

Division C

Albany Park swept all five matches against Berwyn on the former's courts in opening games of the Division C team race. Summaries:

Singles—J. A. Robinson, A. P., beat N. S. Cone, B., 6—1, 6—1; C. R. Scheunemann, A. P., beat A. L. Ludolph, B., 6—1, 6—4; J. M. Loxley, A. P., beat W. K. Palmer, B., 6—2, 6—2.

Doubles—Robinson and Loxley, A. P., beat Cone and Palmer, 6—2, 6—1. Second doubles match was forfeited to Albany Park.

NORTH OAK PARK VICTORS.

North Oak Park started its division C schedule at a winning clip, defeating Hawthorne, 4 to 1, at the latter's courts. Summaries:

Singles—George Preucil, Oak Park, beat R. D. Berry, Hawthorne, 6—0, 6—0. John Van der Kloot, O. P., beat W. M. Bond, H., 6—1, 6—0; P. C. Ioas, H., beat J. Preucil, O. P., 6—3, 5—7, 7—5.

Doubles—L. L. Bailey and N. C. Coombs, O. P., beat Berry and S. D. Saunders, H., 5—7, 6—2, 6—4. J. and G. Preucil, O. P., beat Ioas and Bond, 9—7, 6—3.

Commercial League

Western Electric won five matches to three, one going unfinished, in its Commercial league tussle against Commonwealth-Edison players on the latters' courts at Elston and California avenue. Hutchinson of the Westerns was victor in a tough singles duel against Benson when the latter weakened in the third set, 6—4, 5—7, 6—1. Summaries:

Singles—Latane, W. E., beat Kollman, Ed., 6—3, 6—1; Hutchinson, W. E., beat Benson, Ed., 6—4, 5—7, 6—1; Biggar, W. E., beat Heitman, Ed., 1—6, 6—3, 7—5; Howland, Ed., beat Jones, W. E., 6—2, 6—0.; Kupjshas, Ed., beat Hess, W. E., 6—2, 6—1; Cook, W. E., and Moran, Ed., 7—9, unfinished.

Doubles—Hutchinson and Biggar, W. E., beat Benson and Moran, Ed., 12—10, 6—3; Jones and Latane, W. E., beat Heitman and Kollman, Ed., 8—6, 6—4; Clark and Howland, Ed., beat Hass and Cook, W. E., 6—1, 7—5.

WOODS AND WATERS

BY LARRY ST. JOHN

SOME SOUTHERN MICHIGAN WATERS.

IN spite of being well settled, southern Michigan still offers excellent black bass fishing. Lakes most of them small and good for casting, are found in almost every county and some of the Michigan rivers are not only well stocked with bass but are of surprising scenic beauty as well. Varying conditions offer both small and large mouthed bass fishing, the former being more common in the rivers while the big mouths are most often taken in the lakes.

There is no particular secret to successful fishing in Michigan nor is special tackle needed. Good strings are taken there by still fishing, trolling, bait casting, skittering or fly fishing. Pickerel and the common pan fishes also abound in most Michigan waters.

* *

Along the coast of Lake Michigan are some lakes that are much fished but still yield mighty fine catches. Take White lake. It used to be used for lumbering and old docks, rollways, piers and booms abound where casters, trollers and still fishers catch bass and pickerel.

In the summer months white bass are numerous, the best lure being a small minnow or a number 10 trout fly. This lake connects with Lake Michigan by a short channel and on the White lake end of the channel many big bass are taken with minnows.

BULLETIN—Season on Large and Small Mouthed Black Bass in Michigan opens June 16.

Duck lake, a smaller piece of water, is near by and is a fine lake for black bass. Coming down the lake a few miles you find Muskegon lake. It has as large a variety of fish as any lake we know. Everything from muskellunge, sturgeon and big lake cats down to minnows are caught here; lots of bass and pickerel. The lake is about six miles long and relics of the old lumbering days make excellent casting spots. Bear lake, fine bass waters, connects with Muskegon lake by a channel. Some trout creeks in the vicinity.

* *

Another drop to the south along Lake Michigan and you come to Spring lake, at Grand Haven. It is a cut up, spread out affair and although a resort place, the fishing is better than you would expect. The same may be said of Black lake at Holland. Nothing to speak of but white bass in the main lake but Waukazoo and Pine creek bayous offer good bass casting. Kalamazoo lake, at Saugatuck, is a widening of the Kalamazoo river with many channels and backwaters; the bass fishing is good and pan fishes are more than common.

Do not overlook the rivers that flow into Lake Michigan. The White, Muskegon, Grand, Kalamazoo and St. Joe are all good bass streams and good canoeing rivers, flowing, for the most part, through prettily wooded country.

Going inland a ways you will find a whole nest of lakes north of Kalamazoo and reached by interurban from that city. Gun lake is a fine piece of casting water; then there are Gull, Crooked, Pine, Long and Wall lakes. South of Kalamazoo you will find Austin, Indian, another Long lake and the Portage river.

Near Dowagiac are Keeler, Indian, Whip, Magician, and Sister lakes; near Lawton are Bankston and Cedar lakes; in the vicinity of Cassopolis are Diamond, Birch, Eagle, Juno and a number of smaller lakes. Going eastward you will find good bass lakes near Fabius, the famous Corey chain and others, while the vicinity of Coldwater and Hillsdale offer some topnotch bass waters.

At three Rivers the Portage and Rock join the upper St. Joe. From here to Constantine the water is backed up by the Constantine power dam and good casting is found in the weedy water, the favorite lure being a river chub; from Constantine to Bristol, Ind., the St. Joe is a fine stretch of fast water, good for either bait or fly. Near Bristol, but in Michigan, are Baldwin and Long lakes, both of them good bass waters.

Jumping eastward again you will find fine groups of bass lakes north of Ann Arbor, west of Fenton and west of Pontiac. In fact you can place your hand on a map of southern Michigan and it will cover a number of good bass lakes and at least one good stream.

For the angler who wants a variety of fishing but who must keep in too close touch with other affairs to permit a trip to the wilderness, surely southern Michigan, with its numerous lakes and rivers and good roads, offers many advantages.

VANITIE WINNER IN SEVENTH RACE OF YACHT SERIES

Newport, R. I., June 12.—Vanitie outsailed Resolute on every leg of a triangular race of thirty miles today, winning by 4 minutes and 2 seconds corrected time, and 5 minutes 44 seconds elapsed time. It was the seventh race of the series to select the defenders of the America's cup and Vanitie's third success.

Resolute allowed Vanitie an initial advantage by permitting the Gardner boat to cross the starting line 1 minute and 30 seconds ahead of it, anticipating that it would be able to get better wind and draw up on its rival during the reach to the first mark.

After three miles the wind hauled around from northeast to southeast, making the leg a beat instead of a reach. Vanitie picked up the new wind first, beating Resolute 3 minutes 2 seconds elapsed time on the first leg.

On the second leg Vanitie gained 23 seconds more in reaching, and on the third leg, a run down the wind on which both yachts tacked to leeward, Vanitie added 2 minutes and 19 seconds. Summary:

	Start.	Finish.	Elapsed. time.	Corrected time.
Resol'e	11:01:52	3:17:07	4:15:15	4:13:33
Vanitie	11:00:22	3:09:53	4:09:31	4:09:31

THE CAR THAT MADE GOOD IN A DAY
STUTZ

There is Only One STUTZ Car

We are proud of the STUTZ. It is a thoroughbred, born and reared on the race courses of America. It never shuns a brush with the best.

In the field of motordom, the name STUTZ spells leadership.

Back of STUTZ leadership stands an immense institution.

This institution is the builder of but one product—the STUTZ car—and is devoting all of its skill, all of its energy and resources, to the manufacture of that car.

Only the STUTZ car, manufactured by the Stutz Motor Car Co. of America, can measure up the reputation of the STUTZ institution.

Stutz reputation is the accumulation of years of experience on the race track, of immense manufacturing facilities, of thousands of miles of performance in the hands of owners.

We are proud of the STUTZ reputation on the race track, but STUTZ racing successes were instrumental only in perfecting the design.

The STUTZ car itself is the real achievement into which is built the prestige of mechanical perfection, of user satisfaction, of unusual dignity and class.

Without its many trials in racing, without its efficient manufacturing organization, without the big capable institution behind it, there could be no STUTZ car.

The STUTZ car is a combination of all these things—impossible of duplication in a day, a month or a year, but only after years of experimenting, years of careful preparation, years of actually "making good."

The largest retail clothing business in the world—

No other business in the world can show these statements

—has sold and is selling all-wool clothes at an average profit of 56c per garment.

—has never raised its standard prices of $25 to $40.

—has never held a "sale" or offered "price reductions."

—and by turning customary business methods inside-out (see our 5 business principles) is now selling $10,000,000 worth of clothing yearly at savings which men find they cannot equal under ANY circumstances, elsewhere.

Our Own Clothing Factories Are An Industry in Themselves

The cost of production in any one of our tailor shops would make the average clothing manufacturer weep! Up near the banks of the Hudson, our largest factory is located. There skilled tailors in sunny quarters make Foreman & Clark clothing for YOU. Close enough to New York to feel the pulse of style—far enough away to work in wholesome air, cleaner surroundings, and under less expense.

But that is only one of the striking features of this nation-wide business. It is only one of the reasons why your Foreman & Clark suit is made better, from finer woolens, with greater skill and more hand-workmanship! Read the other reasons why Foreman & Clark clothes, at F. & C. prices, ALWAYS offer greater VALUE than the lowest "special" prices elsewhere!

BIG LONGS SELL CORN AND OATS; CLOSE IS LOWER

BY CHARLES D. MICHAELS.

Heavy selling by the leading longs in corn and oats more than offset the effect of hot and dry weather over the belt, and while prices were higher early, the close was at net losses of ¾@2½c, while oats were 1@2¾c lower, rye unchanged to 1⅛c higher, and barley 1c higher.

While corn prices were sharply higher early in the week, the close Saturday was irregular as compared with a week ago, July being 1⅜c lower and September 2c higher. Oats showed great strength and closed 5⅜@6¾c higher, rye 5¼@8¼c higher, and barley 3c higher.

Local traders were bullish on corn at the start, due to the upturn in oats and the continued light receipts. The best recent buyers, however, were heavy and persistent sellers, and July dropped sharply to $1.70½, or 4c under the early top. Week end evening up and buying on resting orders checked the decline.

Cash corn was weak and 2@4c lower. Part of the receipts was grain that had been out for some time. The car situation was reporter as better, and consignment notices were larger, one firm having 125 cars in transit. Actual receipts were materially under the estimates. The latter was the basis for considerable selling, preliminary returns indicating 210 cars.

New High on Oats.

Leading bulls in September oats took advantage of a bulge of 2½c early to a new high on the crop to start to unload. Dry and hot weather prevailed over the belt, and damage reports were received, but the selling persistent and prices yielded gradually with huge trade on. At the inside figure, September was off 3¾c from the top, with the close on a moderate rally. Strong commission houses sold July frely. Premiums in the sample market weakened after being firm early.

Champaign, Ill., reported 20,000 bu new grain bought for August-September shipment at 80c, track loading stations.

Rye showed considerable strength and closed firm. Houses with seaboard connections bought July, and Sold September at 20@20½c difference. An outside market reported 15,000 bu sold to Baltimore at 29c over July, prompt shipment guaranteed.

Lard Offered Freely.

The feature in provisions was the selling of around 2,000,000 lbs July lard at $20.80 by Armour, which was taken by Wagner and Harris-Winthrop. At the close prices were 5c lower for the day. Ribs were sold more freely by carriers, with the buying scattered and the close 2½c lower to unchanged, while pork was slow and unchanged to 5c lower. Cash trade was moderate. Shipments of lard and meats for the week increased 2,516,000 lbs, being 20,959,000 lbs, against 39,027,000 last year. Packing here since March 1 aggregates 1,638,000 hogs, or 536,000 less than last year's.

ADDRESS B O 476, TRIBUNE

WORLD'S·GRAIN MARKET·NEWS

Corn and oat traders were very bearish at the close Saturday, in expectation of lower prices on Monday. They based their predictions on prospects of larger receipts. The inspection sheet, however, showed only 153 cars corn and 53 cars oats. More than 200 cars were estimated early. It was understood the inspectors on the leading roads will not work Sunday. The receipts on Monday, however, may show as high as 400 cars. The future course of prices is largely a question of cars and receipts, as a majority of traders see it.

It is said the big local and eastern traders who have been largely responsible for the sharp upturn in prices of late were the largest sellers of both corn and oats yesterday. A big local trader was a heavy seller of September oats at 84c late in the day, while others were equally heavy buyers. One house that has been on the selling side off and on of late took a big line at 84c. The top price of the day, 87½c, was the highest on record for September delivery, and the close was 3½c under the top of the morning.

A lot of selling of September oats was on late in the day, based on the favorable weekly weather forecast, which was decidedly different from early expectations.

Dressed beef prices are up 1½@3c a pound within the last two weeks as a result of an advance of $3.50 to $4 in the price of live cattle. Hog prices at $15.30 yesterday were the highest of the month.

High temperatures over the leading grain states should force the crops along rapidly. As yet there has been no deterioration from climatic conditions.

The month of June, says an old trader, is not generally a good time to get too bullish on grain, especially around the present level. It is also well to use caution in selling on the extreme break.

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

Shipping sales of cash grain at Chicago yesterday were 14,000 bu corn and 18,000 bu oats.

A good demand for wheat was reported at the seaboard with light offerings, but aside from sales of 200,000 to 500,000 bu to Holland at $3.12@3.14, f. o. b. Baltimore, no business was claimed. There were 20,000 bu sold c. i. f. Georgian Bay, at $2.90.

Bids on new No. 2 hard or red winter to arrive advanced 5c to the basis of $2.70 for August and $2.70 for September shipment, track Chicago. Receipts, 3 cars, with No. 4 northern sold at $2.80. Minneapolis unchanged to 5c lower.

While receipts of cash corn were not as large as expected the demand was rather slow and prices declined 2@5c, closing at the bottom with the leading industry the best buyer. Arrivals, 153 cars. Sample grade averaged 10@20c lower. A car of corn testing 13 per cent moisture arrived in a heating condition. Oats, 1@4c lower, with premiums off 4c, with No. 2 white down to 12c and No. 3 white 8c over July.

With half the number of hogs expected, Saturday's market advanced 10@20c, best selling at $15.35, or 90c above a week ago, and the highest since May 10. Shippers purchased freely, while the big packers were indifferent buyers. Day's average price was $14.65, against $13.80 a week ago and $21.03 a year ago.

Week's hog receipts at 150,300 were the smallest in six weeks, with the estimated average weight at 228 lbs, second lightest in five months, against 234 lbs previous week and 231 lbs a year ago.

Closing cattle trade was strong, with the week's average price of good beef steers, $2, above previous week and highest since last December, at $15.05, against $13.50 a year ago. Last August the record average of $17.30 was established.

There were no sheep on sale Saturday, the 5,000 received going direct to packers. Closing lamb values were 50c@$1.00 higher than a week ago.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 17,000 cattle, 40,000 hogs and 11,000 sheep, against 13,904 catle, 37,425 hogs and 8,068 sheep corresponding Monday a year ago.

Next Week's receipts are estimated at 53,000 cattle, 150,000 hogs and 45,000 sheep, against 48,818 cattle, 189,240 hogs, and 74,769 sheep a year ago.

Probable receipts of hogs for Monday are estimated from 30,000 to 45,000. Edward Morris and F. W. Waddell marked 45,000; E. R. Gentry and W. H. Overman, 43,000; G. M. Nicoll and F. R. Burrows, 41,000; J. M. Waters, 39,000, and Felix Gehrmann, 30,000.

CORN RECEIPTS LARGER

Corn receipts at Chicago last week of 1,655,000 bushels exceeded the previous week by 553,000 bushels, but were 623,000 bushels short of last year and the smallest at this time in over four years. The movement of oats is also the smallest in four years or more. While there is a wider distribution of box cars at interior loading points in Iowa and Illinois, there is an acute shortage in the aggregate supply. Loadings west of the Mississippi river have increased, but east of it show no particular enlargement.

More grain, particularly, is being loaded out of Missouri river terminals for shipment eastward and strenuous efforts are being made to furnish cars to country elevator interests so that the grain can be moved before it gives out of condition, as the germinating season is at hand and keeping qualities are poor.

Eastern roads are taking more grain and their loadings increased 315,000 bushels last week and flour shipments increased materially, being the largest at this time in five years, while of provisions there was a good average.

We summarize from a letter of Mr. Alfred H. Shotwell, President of the Company, as follows:

ORGANIZATION

The Shotwell Manufacturing Company was incorporated under the laws of Illinois in 1903 for the purpose of manufacturing Popcorn and Candy Specialties.

BUSINESS

The Company is one of the two largest buyers of Popcorn in the world; sales of its trademarked confection "Checkers" last year amounting to 30,000,000 packages. The Company also manufactures Candy Specialties. In addition to a considerable foreign business the Company has over 7.000 active wholesale accounts in this country.

PROPERTIES

The Company owns Candy Factories in Chicago and Brooklyn, Grain Elevators at Arthur, Iowa, and Ord, Nebraska, and a warehouse at Odebolt, Iowa. The factories are equipped with special automatic machinery and the elevator at Arthur is the largest in the world handling Popcorn exclusively.

ASSETS

Net tangible assets are over $1,360,000, which is equal to over $30.00 per share for this Preferred Stock, and net quick assets are approximately $800,000, which is equivalent to $17.70 per share.

EARNINGS

The Company has averaged over $65,000 per year for five years, and during the six months ended December 31, 1919, net earnings were over $120,000, or at the rate of over 240,000 per year. This is sufficient to pay the regular 8% dividend and in addition an extra dividend of 8% more, making a total of 16% each on both the Preferred and Common Stocks. These earnings include no return from the investment in the new factory now under construction.

SAFEGUARDS

No mortgage or other encumbrances (except purchase-money-mortgages on newly acquired property) may be issued without the consent of three-fourths of the Stock, each share of both classes having equal voting power.

PURPOSE OF THIS ISSUE

The proceeds of this Preferred Stock will be used partly to pay for the additional candy factory now under construction, which is needed to take care of an immense existing demand which the Company is at present unable to handle.

PRICE—subject to allotment, we offer the unsold balance of our purchase of the 8% Cumulative Participating Preferred Stock (Class "A" shares) at $10.00 per share. The telegraph may be used at our expense.

RESERVE BANKS IMPOSE HALT ON INFLATED CREDIT

The Chicago clearing house banks will open at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning and will close at 2 p. m. The Chicago stock exchange will open at 9 o'clock and will close at 2 p. m., an hour later in both cases than heretofore.

The improvement in the transportation situation, coupled with the extraordinary efforts to force a deflation of credit, is reflected in the weekly statements of the federal reserve banks. The freer liquidation of commodities and the restrictions imposed on borrowing by advancing rediscount rates or imposing graduated rates resulted in a general decrease in loans and an improvement in reserves.

The action of the New York and Chicago institutions in advancing the rediscount rate on loans on commercial bills to 7 per cent produced marked results last week, although in the previous week it appeared to be ineffective in checking borrowing. Other and various restrictions put into effect by the other federal reserve banks showed their effect in a considerable decrease in loans, as indicated in the combined statement of the twelve federal reserve institutions.

New York Loans Cut.

The New York federal reserve bank showed a decrease in total loans of $17,444,000, this recession being entirely the result of a drop in loans on commercial bills, which declined $17,920,000, whereas loans on government securities increased $476,000. The borrowings of member banks remained about the same, but other federal reserve banks contracted their borrowings by $18,352,000. Total bills on hand decreased $12,464,000.

Probably the most important change was a contraction of $10,865,129 in outstanding federal reserve note circulation. Gold reserves increased $5,928,939. Total deposits decreased $13,734,808. The ratio of reserves to deposit and note liabilities combined rose to 40.6 from 40.1 per cent in the preceding week, and the ratio of reserves to net deposits, after deducting 40 per cent gold reserve against note circulation, rose to 41.2 from 40.2 per cent in the preceding week.

Chicago Improvement Marked.

The statement of the Chicago federal reserve bank showed more marked improvement.

Total loans declined $11,722,917, the decrease being represented entirely by commercial bills, which receded $17,319,216, whereas loans on government securities increased $5,596,299. Total bills on hand declined $13,412,957. The decrease in loans was accompanied by a decline of $2,307,717 in the member banks' reserve account. Total gold reserves gained $1,75,158. Note circulation decreased $5,940,764. Total gross deposits declined $11,561,037.

As a result of these changes the bank was able to reduce its indebtedness to other federal reserve banks by $5,600,000, this item now standing at $13,400,000, and at the same time improve its reserve position. The ratio of reserves to net deposit and note liabilities combined rose to 40.54 from 39.69 per cent in the preceding week, and the ratio of reserves to note circulation, after setting aside 35 per cent against net deposit liabilities, rose to 43 from 41.8 per cent in the preceding week.

New York Also Improves.

The statement of the New York associated banks also showed further improvement, the chief factor being a reduction in loans, which receded $15,264,000. Net demand deposits declined $9,610,000 and time deposits decreased $1,544,000. Cash declined $2,599,000 and note circulation was $165,000 lower.

The excess reserve increased $9,531,510, now standing at $38,098,910. The member banks increased their reserve accounts at the federal reserve bank by $8,422,000. Aggregate reserve increased $8,202,000. Government deposits increased slightly.

Consolidated Statement.

The consolidated statement of the twelve federal reserve banks showed a decrease in total loans of $41,308,000, and here again the decline is represented entirely by commercial loans, which receded $48,824,000, whereas loans secured by war paper increased $7,516,000. Total bills on hand decreased $48,100,000. Federal reserve note circulation showed a decline of $15,086,000. Deposits declined $43,755,000, government deposits dropping $15,283,000. The member banks increased their reserve accounts $11,466,000. Holdings of treasury certificates increased $5,292,000.

Total gold reserves increased $4,205,000, while total reserves increased $3,651,000. The ratio of total reserves to net deposit and note liabilities combined rose to 43 from 42.5 per cent in the preceding week, and the ratio of gold reserves to note circulation, after setting aside 35 per cent against net deposit liabilities, rose to 47.5 from 46.9 per cent in the preceding week.

METAL MARKETS.

NEW YORK, June 12.—No fresh feature has developed in the copper market during the last week. Producing interests have maintained their asking price of about 19 cents for electrolytic for June, July, and August delivery, but the quotation was more or less nominal in the absence of any important business. Iron was unchanged.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—LEAD—Unchanged at 8.60c. ZINC—Slab, weaker, at 7.65c.

DRY GOODS MARKETS.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Cotton goods today were quiet, yarns easy, burlaps firmer, linens quiet, and knit goods dull. Textile production continues to decline owing to the closing of mills, many of which find themselves without orders due to cancellations in silks and woolens.

The New York Times.

New York, June 12.—[Special.]—The overnight news from the convention at Chicago again pleased the stock market, and with no outstanding events of disconcerting nature to offset this the opening was firm.

Business was not unusually heavy, but there was enough to give the list the appearance of activity, especially among the recently favored industrial specialties.

Stocks in the steel, motor and oil groups attracted a good deal of attention during the first hour, and Crucible Steel, the sensation of the day before, was run up more than 6 points, while Mexican Petroleum, another present favorite, also was in brisk demand.

Market Is Variable.

At about the close of the first hour, however, the character of the market changed, there was a pause and trading went absolutely flat, followed by profit taking and then by quite a little free selling. At this time it looked as if the activity of the first hour had been more or less artificial, and when the support was withdrawn a good many stop orders were uncovered and prices eased off.

A sharp drive in the railroad list developed, too, with Great Northern preferred and Northern Pacific feeling the weight most heavily. These two stocks fell off rapidly, going down 3 or 4 points. The occurrence upset the whole market and at the close of the day the tone was distinctly weak.

G. O. P. "Scare" Is Factor.

At the beginning of the second hour a story got around on the floor of the stock exchange that a snag of some sort had been encountered at Chicago, and the confidence that no radical victory would be scored there was shaken for a little while. This probably had something to do with the change in market sentiment, but before the session came to an end the report was contradicted and it was then said the delegates were closer to a decision that at any time previously and that the decision would favor a candidate entirely acceptable to business.

But this assurance came too late to do the market much good.

Cause for Gratitude

We have a lot of things to be grateful for..

There never was a time in the history of the country when bankers and business men in general displayed as much intelligence and confidence, and so little corresponding fear and panic relative to the business situation, as they are showing today.

The result is that while the country is beset with many difficulties and unanswered questions, it is experiencing a readjustment to more normal conditions without the serious setbacks which characterized similar periods.

This is real cause for gratitude.

THE KEYSTONE FACTOR
of Integrity in Investments

Three factors enter into the purchase of investment securities—Safety—Income—Integrity. But the greatest of these is Integrity.

Integrity alone stands sponsor for the character of your investment, and bulwarks the factors of Safety and Income, to make them more than mere meaningless terms.

For this reason we call Integrity the Keystone Factor.

For a third of a century H. O. Stone & Co. has builded its business upon the foundation of conservatism that keystones the arch of investment. That this great organization has builded wisely its very growth attests.

From the man with but a hundred dollars to invest to the single client who has intrusted more than twelve millions of dollars to the investment judgment of H. O. Stone & Co., not one has ever had cause to regret the confidence placed in us.

Today, in times when many former "investments" have become speculative, the 6% securities offered by H. O. Stone & Co., aside from government bonds, are one of the few classes of securities that have stood the acid test of safety. Why? Because these securities are backed by improved real estate of known value.

He who prefers to consider first Integrity, then Safety and Income, will find in H. O. Stone & Co. securities the maximum protected return on his investment.

We invite inquiries from investors who appreciate the bed-rock strength of the Keystone Factor of Integrity in Investments.

Our several departments covering the branches of real estate, mortgage loans and investment bonds are equipped to furnish experienced, courteous, personal service, no matter how small or how large the transaction may be.

"Why don't you scold me?" George-Hiram asked Helen, as they watched the graying shores. "It's an extravagant thing for me to be taking this undeserved holiday. Don't you know that I may have to sponge on my stepdaddy till I get a job?"

"Somehow," murmured Helen, "I don't believe I shall ever scold you again."

"I bet you will," prophesied George-Hiram.

For two months they enjoyed a leisurely courtship in England and France. Then they had to go home, because George-Hiram's teaching began in mid-September. On the voyage homeward he mentioned casually that they'd better be married in his mother's house as soon as it could be brought to a state of perfection fit for a wedding. That was as near as George-Hiram ever got to a proposal.

They reached town at night, George-Hiram's mother meeting them, weeping and loving and reproaching. The next morning George-Hiram leaped the fence separating his stepfather's place and the Severance estate, and went to call on the patriarch. The patriarch was sitting on the porch, his three sisters behind him, a squad of nephews and nieces on the steps. He rose and shook his cane at George-Hiram.

"Get out!" he called. "I've changed my will, do you hear? You'll never get a penny. Ungrateful whelp! Get out!"

"I don't want your money," George-Hiram said, "but I do want your friendship——"

"That means my money," yelled the patriarch. "Get out!"

George-Hiram got out, aware that the spectators of the scene were reasonably content. When he returned to his mother her weeping added to his discomfort, and he said, crossly: "I'm not going to be called George-Hiram any more. You can call me George. I liked the old guy; it wasn't all his money."

George-Hiram's relatives kept the patriarch aware of all that George-Hiram was doing. He knew that George-Hiram was now called George; that the wedding had been too expensive; that the little house the young couple had was too extravagant for people with only $2,000 between them. He was not told that George-Hiram kept chickens, and meant to have a garden the next year. Perhaps the relatives did not know that Helen was giving her young political economist much needed training in personal and household economy. The patriarch sometimes met them on the street, but he always passed them by without a look. George-Hiram invariably spoke.

In a year there was a baby. George-Hiram's mother told Helen hopefully that though the patriarch had pretended not to listen to his sisters talking about it, he had listened, and snorted with disgust. So if only dear Helen could have a boy, perhaps—

A year and a half later there was another girl. This time Helen was very ill. Her hair had to be cut off, and it came in a beautiful chestnut color. George-Hiram's mother told Helen that she had mentioned this to the patriarch, calling the hair brown, and speaking of Helen as "Ellie," and he had listened, though he had pretended not to. Meanwhile George-Hiram was working hard, not only at teaching, but at such pot boiling as only hard pressed teachers have knowledge of. He was happy and he did not mind working hard, but he knew his margin was small.

He had been married six years when, on the patriarch's birthday, his son was born. Helen was a long time getting well. On the day the baby was 3 months old she opened her mind to her husband.

"George-Hiram," she said, "we were spiteful and cruel to begin calling you George. That poor old man loves you."

"Yes, he does," jeered George-Hiram.

"Take this baby in your arms," she said.

George-Hiram held the little boy against his breast, and presently he looked up at his wife.

"Everything has two sides," she said, gently. "Think of a bitter old man, unable to change his disposition, unable to give his money with grace, unable to show his love for his namesake. George-Hiram, dear, he did love you. He needn't have sent you to Yale; he needn't have given you five thousand a year. Think if baby disappointed you."

George-Hiram looked down at the mite on his breast.

"Maybe the old geezer did like me," he murmured.

"I do truly feel sorry for him," Helen said, "and all I want is for you to call the baby after him and invite him to the christening."

"He'll think I want his money."

"I've seen his old face. He's crazy for a chance of reconciliation. You go up there this morning when that gang of aunts are off at the Dorcas society. Cut across from your mother's house and slip in the library window, and tell him."

Half an hour later the patriarch looked up to see his nephew entering laboriously through the window.

"Excuse my informality, uncle," George-Hiram said. "We're going to christen the boy George-Hiram next Sunday. Like to have you present."

The patriarch and he looked fixedly at each other. Then the patriarch handed him a key.

"Unlock my safe and bring my deed box," he directed.

George-Hiram obeyed. The patriarch took out his will and tore it into little bits.

"Not one penny shall you ever have," he shouted. "That I've said, and that I'll stick to. But I won't punish little George-Hiram, or the little girls. You tell Ellie to bring them up next Sunday. The christening will be here."

"All right, sir," George-Hiram said; "shake hands?"

"No, sir," said the patriarch; "but you all come to dinner on Sunday."

George-Hiram walked out with a heart singularly light. His goose had been irrevocably cooked—but there was the hope for his children. A man's children—they called for all kinds of sacrifice. They made a man ready to think a mixed motive was pure, ready to compromise.

"Thank the Lord for them," said George-Hiram, hurrying home to correct students' exercises; "and, above all, thank the Lord for a red haired wife."

The SUPERB STRANGER by Oney Fred Sweet

His Presence Could Lift Any Household Out of the Commonplace

THE stranger at the door had a manner that aroused Humison Melton's curiosity. The man had the air of being some one of importance; his bearing was superb. He explained that he had arrived in the neighborhood in search of a sister believed to be living in the vicinity, and that he was seeking information that might throw light on the relative's exact place of residence.

"The name?" asked Humison Melton.

"Dobbs, sir."

"Well, come inside," invited Melton. "I am rather new hereabouts myself. Mr. McGrew, the boss, is away just now, but I expect him tomorrow. He probably knows your folks. What's your line?"

"I am a butler, sir, when employed," replied the pompous visitor as the two left the cold entry for a cheerier part of the house. "The Chicago family, in whose service I have been for many years, recently suffered through a whim of the stock market, and I am, at the present time, what might be termed disengaged."

"A butler!" gasped Melton. "You're a long ways from home—farther away than you have any idea. I venture to say that you are the only butler within ten counties. What else can you do? I am given pretty much of a free rein here when it comes to employing farmhands, but I am afraid we have no place for a butler."

"I had hoped, sir—I had expected to find my sister in the vicinity." There was a sigh of disappointment in the visitor's tone. "I should dislike very much to find myself stranded in a section that, if you will pardon me, sir, strikes me as most uncouth. Is there no wealth here, whatever?"

"Well," said Melton, lifting his eyebrows, "I have been doing accounting for Mr. McGrew the last few weeks here, and I find that at the present price of farmlands he is worth close to a million."

The languid visitor for the first time displayed an interest in his surroundings.

"And I am not so sure," continued Melton, meditatively, "but that if Mr. McGrew saw fit he could afford a butler. You have started me on a new train of thought. It occurs to me that what is really needed in these rural sections of the middle west is a little more class. It was all very well for Mr. McGrew's father in his day to consider himself merely a producer. But times have changed. We really should go in for society more hereabouts. With a little effort we could, no doubt, establish a country aristocracy. I guess you could call a twelve hundred acre farm an 'estate,' couldn't you? I don't know what McGrew would think about it, but it's time that he should realize there is something more to life than raising corn and hogs. Pending the location of your sister, you are employed here."

"Very well; I have my luggage outside, sir."

Thus, on the spur of the moment, and in the absence of the boss, Humison Melton started something that caused the fan at the top of the windmill out by the big red barn to creak critically, and the prairie breeze in the willow windbreak to mockingly mourn. When the help came in for dinner there were mutterings when they were told that henceforth they must eat in the back kitchen, but when they caught a glimpse of the new arrival in short breeches and silk stockings their amazement was so much greater than their chagrin that for the nonce they were startled into submission.

Mr. Melton, alone, dined in state, the butler directly back of his chair, anticipating his wants. The meal finished, Mr. Melton strolled to the parlor, the chill of which had been removed by the placing of a log on the long unused grate. His cigar was lighted for him and he stretched himself before the fire.

"McGrew ought to fall for this stuff," mused Melton. "It is bound to prove an innovation in the farming section of the middle west. The idea of McGrew, almost a millionaire, living alone here after the fashion of his pioneer ancestors is preposterous. This fellow certainly lends atmosphere to a place—I never saw anything like it."

Mr. Melton, during the remainder of the afternoon, found himself in no mood for dull figures. He had already discovered through his figuring that Hod McGrew was worth close to a million, and that was enough. After all, the scheme growing in his mind was in the interest of his employer, he told himself. He stepped to the telephone against the wall and called up several of the neighbors. The nearest of them, Mrs. Jergens, lived less than a mile away.

"I am inviting a selected few down tonight," cadenced Melton over the phone. "I wish to take up a matter which I feel is of vital importance to us all."

Every light in the house was going when the neighbors drove up that night. There had been no gathering of any sort at the place since the elder McGrew's funeral, and gossip concerning the strange household had created a desire to peep behind the drawn shades. Having many of the qualities of a good showman, Melton kept Dobbs, the new butler, in the background until he had finished with less dramatic preliminaries.

"Neighbors and social equals," began Melton in the tone of a sideshow barker, when the visitors had shyly seated themselves in the living room, "it seems to me that we have reached the point where we should lift ourselves from the common and everyday. We are no longer pioneers in a hard country. We are no longer struggling under mortgages and low prices for our products. In the past it has been the custom for you farmers, once you have acquired a competence, to move to the county seat town and retire there. In this way our rural sections in these parts have been impoverished of what is termed 'society.' It is my intention to make this night memorable as the occasion on which a new régime was founded. Henceforth, we shall bring style to our doors, not seek for it elsewhere. We shall now take up the matter of establishing a class line." Mr. Melton cleared his throat. "Our 'set' shall only include those who own 160 acres of land. This is subject for debate, of course. Any questions?"

Several of the ladies stiffened in their chairs and glanced about as if to emphasize that the dividing line suggested suited them most satisfactorily, but Sam Jergens, weather beaten and querulous, arose.

"You're coming a little fast, pardner," drawled Sam, after blowing his nose, "but I guess I get the idee. Accordin' to your arrangement, the Steensons would be the only folks around here we couldn't speak to."

"Renters, I suppose," smiled Mr. Melton, benevolently.

"Yes," responded Sam, "and they've been in hard luck the last year or two. You see, the oldest boy couldn't help out for quite a spell there because he was called away to help make the world safe for democracy."

Mr. Melton listened indulgently. "The war touched all of us, of course, Mr. Jergens," he smiled. "While I wish to remain modest on the subject, I was myself a heavy purchaser of thrift stamps. But the war is over now. We are in a new era. We have it in our grasp to make those luxury hounds of ancient Rome look like cheap skates."

"Suppose," suggested Mrs. Jergens, "that we let the make of our cars decide our social line. Sam and I have just bought a—"

"The Steensons are the only family in the neighborhood who are still running an old model and you know it," interrupted Sam. "Sittin' here, I can see old man McGrew's picture there on the wall, and I wonder what he'd think of this talk. I bet if he—"

"We are in a new era, Mr. Jergens," soothed Melton in a perfectly modulated voice. "I feel sorry for the Steensons, but if we are to have social distinctions and establish a 'set,' we must have some one who falls beneath the line. Otherwise there is no satisfaction in the thing at all. Now listen and watch!"

Mr. Melton touched a tiny bell on the table before him and Dobbs, the new butler, his head erect, glancing neither to left nor right, entered the room.

"Refreshments, Dobbs." And the pompous and stately figure bowed itself out.

You could have heard a pin drop. A ghost from the spirit world could have produced no wider bulgings to eyes nor gapes to mouths.

"My friends," purred Melton out of the suspense, "you have just seen a butler in operation. And I assure you that there is nothing this wonder does not know concerning the finer points of etiquette. His very presence has the power to lift a household out of the commonplace, as you have seen. He knows everything there is to know about how to tuck a napkin and the proper angle for shaking hands. I have given you a taste of what is in store for us all under the new régime. Dobbs is——"

There was an interruption. The Steensons, father, mother, and three young offspring, muffled and overshoed, had informally entered by way of the back door.

"Hello, Jergens," greeted Steenson, his voice smothered by the collar of his fur coat, "we was just drivin' by and we see all the machines out in front and the house all lit up. Thought maybe somebody was sick. What's going on?"

Humison Melton was assuming the attitude of a disgusted host. He shrugged his shoulders and tapped loudly on the bell three times.

"Dobbs," he ordered, severely, "when guests do not come properly to the front door and send in their cards, I presume that methods of ejection——"

But Mrs. Steenson had rushed forward and thrown her arms about the dignified butler's neck.

"Bill," she gasped. And then, "Come here, children, it's your uncle Bill, that I haven't seen since we came over on the boat together ten years ago. This is luck. You've got to come right down to the house with us, Bill. We'd been expecting you."

Uncle Bill was taking each of the children in his arms, in turns, when a heavy voice from the vicinity of the folding doors sounded above all other confused chatter. It was the voice of Hod McGrew, suddenly returned.

"Get a pair of my overalls for him, Melton, so he won't spoil those vaudeville clothes, and you can lend him one of my fur coats to keep him warm on the way over." "Sam," he said, turning to Jergens and likewise turning the conversation into familiar channels, "from what I hear about the market, I'd ship those hogs of yours tomorrow if I was you."

When they had all gone, and Humison Melton and Hod McGrew sat alone, Melton said with a long sigh:

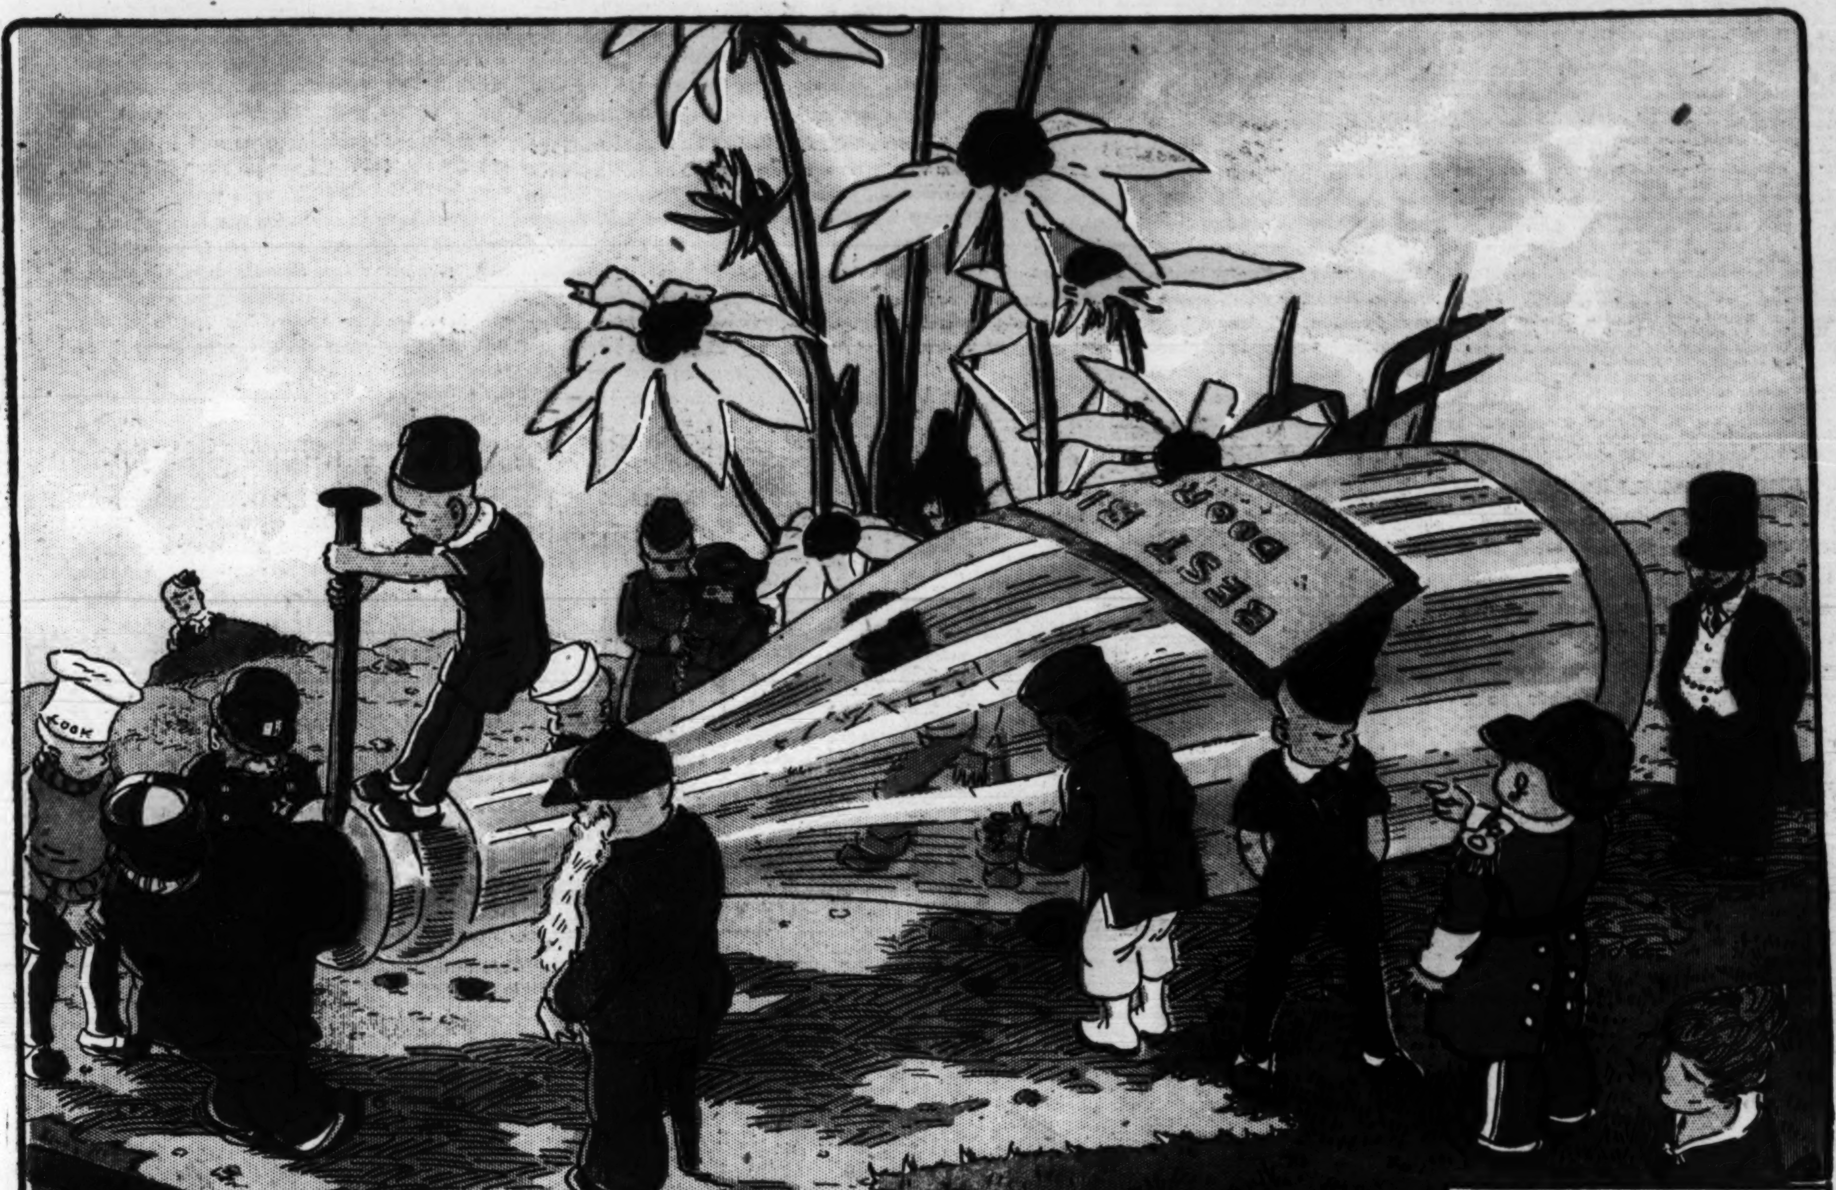
"I guess it's no use. Looks to me as if the people around here were doomed to stay ordinary, every day kind of folks."

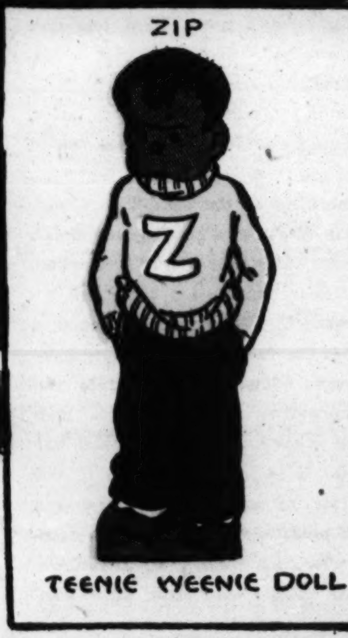
"Does look that way, don't it?" enthus[illegible] Hod McGrew.

THE TEENIE WEENIES

THE DUNCE HAS A POOR MEMORY AND THE GENERAL SUGGESTS A REMEDY.

BY WM. DONAHEY.





TEENIE WEENIE DOLL

THERE was one thing the Teenie Weenie Cook was very particular about—he served the Teenie Weenie meals at regular hours and he expected every one to be ready to sit down as soon as the food was placed on the table. Mrs. Lover cooked the meals for her family and the Chinaman prepared the food for himself and Zip, while all the rest of the little folks ate at the shoe house.

"If you're not here when the food is put on the table, you can wait until the rest have finished," the Cook had warned the Teenie Weenies, and you can well believe that most of the little folks were on hand at the regular hour.

The evening meal was served at 6 o'clock, and one Saturday evening the Dunce dashed up to the kitchen door just a few seconds before the tiny clock struck 6. He rubbed some water on his face, quickly wiped it away with a towel, leaving a ring of dirt around his face and neck, and dashed into the dining room just as the little folks were sitting down to the table.

"Dunce!" exclaimed the General as he noticed the ring of dirt about his face. "What do you mean by coming to the table with a dirty face?"

"W-W-W-Why, I w-w-w-washed," gasped the Dunce.

"Well, you made a pretty poor job of it," said the General. "Now you go out and wash thoroughly, and when the rest of us have finished you can eat your supper."

The Dunce slowly shuffled out onto the back porch, where he filled a wash basin from a thimble of rainwater and washed his tiny face until it fairly shone. He then sat down and grumbled loudly while he waited for the rest of the little folks to finish their supper.

The Teenie Weenies were just finishing their dessert when the Chinaman came running in the front door with a most anxious look on his face.

"Well, Chuck," said the General, as he folded his tiny napkin, "what can I do for you?"

"Allie same me muchie worried," cried the Chinaman. "Zip he goie way long time agoie and he no comie home for slupper. Me gottie rice all ready and me wait long time, but he no comie. Me think somethin' happen."

"Have you been out to look for him?" asked the General.

"Yes, me lookie and callie like everything," answered the Chinaman.

"Well, we'll go out and see if we can't find him," said the General, and, rising from the table, he ordered the rest of the Teenie Weenies to follow.

The Dunce, having waited for a long time, decided that the Teenie Weenies must have finished their supper and, tiptoeing into the dining room, he found it quite deserted.

After eating his fill the Dunce hurried out in search of the rest of the little folks, whom he soon found searching a neighboring ash heap for the lost Zip.

"What are you lookin' for?" asked the Dunce.

"We're looking for Zip," answered the Lady of Fashion. "He's lost."

"Oh, j-j-jimminie f-f-fishhooks!" exclaimed the Dunce, looking around in alarm. "I forgot all about him. He's b-b-b-bottled up!"

"Bottled up!" gasped the General, who was standing near. "What in the name of goodness do you mean?"

"Why, we were playin' over in the big field this afternoon and Zip crawled into a bottle and I-I-I thought it would be fun to bottle him up and I s-s-s-stuck the c-c-c-cork in the bottle and hammered it in tight with a post. Jinks, I forgot all about it," and the Dunce looked quite frightened.

The Dunce quickly led the Teenie Weenies to the field, where they found the bottle, and poor Zip was walking up and down inside like a caged lion. After much pulling and prying the Teenie Weenies finally freed Zip, who was quite angry at the Dunce.

"You bad mans, to make me tight in bottle," growled the angry Zip.

"Honest, Zip," cried the Dunce, "I didn't mean to go away and leave you there, but I forgot all about you."

"That memory of yours is pretty bad," said the General, sternly. "And I think it needs a little exercise."

"How's that? What do you mean?" asked the startled Dunce.

"It means that you need a little time every now and then to think about that bad memory of yours," answered the General. "So for two weeks, every night right after supper, you shall go to bed and maybe that will help you remember to remember."

(Copyright: 1920: By William Donahey.)

There was a moment's dead silence at the long table. Then a babble of sounds broke forth. Loudest of all, of course, was the patriarch's voice, exploding, exclaiming, forbidding. Then, still louder, rose George Hiram's voice.

"I've had so much trouble, sir, in getting mother to agree!" he shouted. "I told her that if she did not I would not go to New York on that new job."

George-Hiram shouted his remark several times, until he was sure that it had quite reached his uncle's understanding. Then, in the pause that followed, he added, with a gay laugh:

"How excited we all seem! Natural, too, when it's the first wedding in the family."

The eyes of the patriarch and George-Hiram met like rapiers. The old man saw to his anger that George-Hiram was a man and unafraid—not afraid of his uncle, or of poverty, or of work. For a moment old Severance was tempted to pitch him out in the world and let him see how courage would dwindle and fear would come. But he knew that he would be hurt as well as George-Hiram. Yet, for the first time in his life, he had been defied, and twice, twice in one morning; first by that red-haired minx who had set the example of defiance to George-Hiram. Well, she'd see. Aloud he growled:

"Mary can marry if she wants to, of course. This place has too many housekeepers, anyhow. If any of my other sisters can get a chance, they can come to me for a blessing."

This was an un-Christian dig at Mary's elder sisters, whose attractiveness had faded under his harrowing patronage. They colored painfully, and the vicarious pleasure they were taking in Mary's future died in pangs of jealousy; and this was exactly what the patriarch had counted on. He ate his luncheon quiet contentedly, while George-Hiram's girl cousins chattered about the wedding and wondered how George-Hiram had ever had the courage to announce the engagement.

That night a big masquerade ball was held for the benefit of the fire brigade. George-Hiram went as a viking, Adam as a cardinal. The first person they met in the big dancing room of the town hall was Helen Bray, dressed as a lady of the court of Louis XV. She was so beautiful that George-Hiram stared at her without words.

"And still," he thought, "I like her red hair better than this powdered hair. And still again, beautiful as she is, I don't like her, for no woman ought to have such a tongue."

She courtesied to him sardonically.

"Well," she said, "has your uncle forbidden you to speak to me? You may tell him I haven't left town yet."

"Good evening," said George-Hiram stiffly.

Evidently she took no account of the fact that he had disobeyed his uncle to escort her off the Severance grounds. She was obviously a person without gratitude. He vowed that he would not speak to her again. He did not even mean to look at her, but occasionally, in the dancing, her eye caught his. He could not help seeing that she and Adam danced together several times. Certainly, George-Hiram thought, she must be fond of Adam.

Toward midnight he was walking alone in the grounds surrounding the city hall, when he came upon Helen sitting alone on a bench and evidently crying. He sat down beside her.

"Now, don't tell me to go away," he said; "your remarks to me are rather of a monotonous character, and I'm getting tired of it. If I don't sit here, some one else will come along and see that you are crying."

"I'm not," she said.

"You forgot to stamp your foot," he reminded her.

"O—I—I hate all your family!" she cried.

"Where's Adam?" he asked. "Isn't it about time for him to take you in to supper? They're going to feed when this waltz is over."

"He—I—I—don't know—I—O, why don't you go away?" she cried.

"O, I see," said George-Hiram slowly. "Uncle is coming to look on, I remember, and Adam's afraid——"

"That's a nice way for you to talk about him," said Helen hotly. "Why don't you attend to the beams in your own eye?"

"My beams!" replied George-Hiram; "I haven't any."

"O, haven't you?" she jeered. "An elastic rubber man like you, to be pulled any way your uncle likes! I've got my opinion of a man who gives up the work he had chosen because his rich uncle orders him to do it. It's bad enough to defer now and then to a rich old man for the sake of future benefits, but it's worse to have so little manhood as to let that old man dictate one's whole course of life. That stamps a man as a weakling, as utterly without the one spark of self-respect that every one crawling on the earth should have. A man without it is negligible; he's a thing."

George-Hiram sat dumfounded and enraged. As soon as his mind got under way again he reflected that she must be mad. He was rising to go when she spoke again.

"It's different with poor Adam," she said, her voice breaking. "You've only yourself and your mother to think of, but Adam has his mother and his three sisters. If your uncle turned them out, poor Adam could never support them."

George-Hiram restrained a whistle. Adam's three sisters were all engaged and to be married within the year, and if such had not been the case Adam's salary as manager of the Weston Electric Light company would have supported the four women and himself in decency. Adam, he saw, had talked to her very freely about family affairs, including George-Hiram's future, and had been careful to give his talk a slant very favorable to himself.

"Besides which," pursued Helen, "Adam's uncle could take away his position, since he owns most of the stock. Adam's problem is a difficult one. But you——"

George-Hiram nodded, but not to Helen—to himself. He understood; she was unhappy over what at the bottom of her heart she knew was Adam's cowardice, but she cared too much about him to blame him. She wanted a row with George-Hiram to get the rage out of her system, after which she could deceive herself more easily about Adam. George-Hiram was so pleased at himself for understanding her psychology that he would have been willing to let her scold him a long time. He did not continue his reflections to the point of seeing that her psychology in regard to him was much like the patriarch's in regard to her. The patriarch was angry that George-Hiram had disregarded him and escorted Helen Bray to the front gate; unable safely to bring down a storm upon George-Hiram, he had turned his rancor against the girl.

"Here's Adam now," George-Hiram said, suddenly peering up a path dimly lit by Chinese lanterns. "He's coming along piled up with plates like a waiter, and with a shawl or something on his arm."

"I don't want to eat in the dark, like a sneak thief," said Helen; and the pain in her voice made George-Hiram sorry, much as he disliked her.

"Look here," he said gravely; "we seem to have got to a point where we are speaking frankly to each other. So let me give you this advice: go back where you came from. Don't have anything more to do with any of us. Fate is against it; and by fate I mean the kind of human character you have to deal with if you deal with any of us. Go away where you'll never think of us again."

"I hope I'll never see you again, anyway," said Helen viciously.

"Amen," George-Hiram returned.

He gave place to Adam and went back to the dancing hall, his Viking helmet slightly awry, his face rather flushed, again silently congratulating his uncle upon not having married Helen Bray's mother. He told himself that he would be very glad indeed if he never had to see Helen Bray again; certainly he would never hold a conversation with her, not as long as he had the power of his legs.

For the next few weeks events moved so rapidly for George-Hiram that he scarcely would have had time to think of the red haired girl, even if he had wanted to. His New York friends, Shore and Van Tyne, came to visit him, and he was caught up with them in what they called a whirl of country gayety. Then came his mother's wedding. After that, before the summer was quite over, the patriarch packed him off to New York to learn his life business.

At first, in New York, George-Hiram felt like a college boy. Van Tyne and Shore got him high up on the waiting list of two good clubs, gave him visitor's cards to others, and saw that he met such of their men friends as were in town. George-Hiram settled down to learn the brokerage business much as he had gone at his lessons. But gradually his mood changed. Shore and Van Tyne might have any attitude they chose, he saw, because they were rich, and the world was made to amuse them. The people who surrounded them had mostly a bearing on their social existence. But the people who surrounded George-Hiram had mostly a bearing on his business existence. He either had to be driven by them or to compete with them. The instinctive liking people had for him, which he had always used disinterestedly and unconsciously, he now saw was a business asset. His employers considered it as so much capital, on which they paid him his salary-interest.

The patriarch had told him that he must go out socially as much as he could, among the "right people." His employers also expected it. George-Hiram himself desired it, for he was a sociable soul. But though he was received by the friends of Shore and Van Tyne for their sakes, he was made to feel that he was an outsider. He was ineligible. The careful mothers of pretty girls shepherded them away from him, for, of course, it was supposed that he would try to marry money. At dinners he was always placed between the least important of the married women present. He fared better with the men, especially in the clubs, to which his friends took him.

His employers made it plain to George-Hiram that he must frequent these clubs as much as possible, and keep in touch with rich young idlers who might be subtly led into stock exchange investment. George-Hiram's skill in golf and tennis, handball and billiards, were all of indirect use in getting business. He worked at play as he never had in college. Moreover, he found that he could not, as he had intended, put aside all of the generous allowance his uncle gave him, because in order to keep up with his game he spent more than his salary on board, clothes, and personal expenses, which included some return for the entertainment he received.

But, as was his temperament, George-Hiram went ahead cheerfully on the path prepared for him. He had been in New York something over a year before he took stock of himself. In that time he had had three flying visits home, once at Christmas, once at Easter, and once in July to a cousin's wedding. The patriarch had directed that he spend such vacations as were allowed him with his high placed friends, to the furtherance of his career. Weston seemed very far away, and as to red haired Helen, she scarcely ever crossed his mind. He simply went through his day's work smiling.

One crisp autumn day he woke before dawn with that curious sense which comes to all of us, now and then, of being in an audience chamber with ourselves, where only the naked truth may pass. George-Hiram realized that he did not like his work, or his general situation. He hated being considered, by moneyed people, as a hanger-on who must be wanting something from them. He hated using his personality to attract a business that he did not believe in. That was the difficulty; he did not think the business was honest. He saw that if ever he made the money his uncle expected him to make, he must do it by taking it away from some one else. The more he read political economy—and it was a subject he could not keep away from—the more he wished he had not been pushed into his business. In the smoky red dawn he suddenly thought of red haired Helen Bray, and her indictment of him. She had said that because he had let another dictate his course of life he was without manhood, a weakling, negligible, a thing. George-Hiram swore, miserably, as he recollected her exact phrases.

Then he made a resolution to take the money he had saved from his allowance, invest it shrewdly, keep it turning over, and as soon as he had enough saved to barely live on, give up the brokerage business and take a job in which he could keep his self-respect. The resolution became a part of his daily thoughts and acts, and always with it the red haired girl came into his mind. Yet he never wondered where she was; he simply remembered her as she had expressed her opinion of him.

Months later, on a hot day in July, he saw her. She was sitting on a bench in Central park, in the shade, when he wandered past, walking in the sun, without a hat, his face set, his eyes roving glassily. He looked at her without seeing her. At that, without any hesitation, she rose and ran after him. She put her hand on his arm and swung him around.

"I believe you've got a sunstroke," she said.

"What nonsense!" he answered irritably.

"Well, come and sit in the shade, or you will have," she said.

She led him to her bench in the shade.

"Why, it's you!" cried George-Hiram. "This isn't Weston."

"Look here," Helen said, briskly; "what's the matter with you?"

"Me? O, I'm just ruined," answered George-Hiram.

"Well, so was I last week," Helen said, "and this week I'm not. Just give your luck a chance."

They sat in silence for a time, while George-Hiram tried to recollect her last name.

"I beg your pardon, Miss Bray," he said at last. "I think I must have been walking around in the heat and got dizzy. When did you leave Weston? And how's Adam?"

"I don't know how Adam is," she said, coldly, "and I don't care."

"You've said as much before——"

"O, you impertinent thing," Helen said, stamping her foot, "can't you see that one says things and doesn't mean them, and then says them and does mean them?"

"I feel quite at home when you stamp your foot," George-Hiram said, his voice languid.

"What's the trouble?" Helen asked him softly.

"Why, you look sort of pale and sick yourself," George Hiram said; "what's the trouble with you?"

"Nothing now, but I'll tell you if you'll tell me," Helen offered.

George-Hiram kicked a little pit in the gravel path.

"All right," he said. "I've been nursing my money along with stock exchange speculation, taking little safe fliers, because I wanted to get enough so I could chuck the business. Yesterday I had thirty thousand dollars. I had what seemed like a perfectly good chance to make it sixty. So I took it, and my money went higher than a kite."

"Well, when a broker himself doesn't know!" marveled Helen.

"I'll have to stick it out two or three years more to make anything, and maybe my nerve's gone, and I'll be afraid to buy even little safe things——"

"Never mind," she said, "if once you do the thing your heart is in, you'll be safe and happy."

"Somehow I didn't believe you could ever say anything gentle," remarked George-Hiram stupidly.

"You've never seen me under propitious circumstances," Helen reminded him.

"You say you were ruined last week?" hinted George-Hiram.

"Here's my story," Helen said; "your uncle was determined to drive me from Weston. I think he was afraid Adam or you——"

"Me?" cried George-Hiram, amazed.

"Well, you needn't be rude! Anyway, your uncle used every bit of influence he had to keep me from getting pupils. He paid other music teachers to teach for less than I could afford to. O, he was inconceivably petty and malicious!"

"I didn't know it," George-Hiram said.

"And—and he starved me out."

"And Adam?"

"Adam—disappointed me. Then I came to New York, and I was starved out here. I couldn't get any kind of work to do. So last week I thought I'd end it."

"Die?" cried George-Hiram, horrified.

"Yes; plenty of people do. I just thought there wasn't any God or any hereafter, and I had no relatives, and no friends I cared about."

Helen spoke in a dreamy way, as of one looking back upon an infinitely remote past.

"So I bought a lot of rubber tubing and went to a hotel I know of that still burns gas, and shut the windows and pulled down the blinds and adjusted the tubing and turned on the gas, and wrapped my head in a quilt, and put the tubing in my mouth—and, psychologically, I died."

George-Hiram was gazing at her in fascinated horror. He had forgotten all about his own affairs; the color had come back in his face and he looked himself again.

"When I got back to consciousness," Helen said, "I saw four green, wavering walls, and guessed I was in a room. And I thought, 'Well, I've been wrong! There is a hereafter!' And then a big white face with a skinny beard framing it poked itself before my eyes, and a voice said: 'O, my child, why did you do this wicked thing?' So then I knew I was alive, being preached to by the doctor. They bundled me off to a hospital and the hotel hushed it up, and somehow I was glad I was still here. And then I got a letter saying that my father's cousin had died, leaving me a thousand a year. So I don't have to starve, you see. And tomorrow I'm sailing on the Adrenia, second class, to see a little of London and Paris."

The next afternoon two young people stood side by side on a second class deck, watching New York recede. George-Hiram had cooked his own goose. He had resigned from his brokerage firm, written his uncle and his mother of his action, and had also written to the head of the department of economics in Weston college asking for the

MICE AND MEN

THE STORY THUS FAR—Merrial Houlton's normally sunny outlook on life is clouded by two regrets. First, the estrangement between her dead mother's English family and her father, with whom Merrial's relatives have had nothing to do since her mother was married and went to live on a western ranch. And, second, the hurt she has inflicted on Tripp Hart, an old time playmate from the west, whom she has sorrowfully rejected as a suitor. When her father tells her he has failed in business Merrial announces that she is going to England to visit her mother's people while he is getting on his feet again, and to carry out certain plans about which she will tell no one. The family in England—Alice and Winifred Beaufort, their mother, and Hubert, an invalid brother—receive her with mixed emotions, but she proceeds blithely to make friends in her own way. Things, she finds, are rather at sixes and sevens. Her own brother, Dick, who has been in England at school, turns out to be a hopeless expatriate, ashamed of his American origin, which he has kept a secret. Alice Beaufort has met him, without knowing that he is her first cousin, and has fallen in love with him. Winifred is unhappy over an affair with Kenneth Stanton, a young man who appears to be neglecting her. The pitiful plight of Hubert, the invalid, arouses Merrial to prompt action, and she enlists her father's aid in sending over an American specialist to examine the boy. Then she astonishes the Beauforts by moving, bag and baggage, over to the home of Aunt Jane Coke, another of the English relatives, poor, but proud as Lucifer, and to Miss Coke's consternation calmly makes her kitchen the center of a flourishing neighborhood trade in quince preserve. While this venture is under way Kenneth Stanton's neglect of Winifred is explained by a letter from Gertrude Hart, Tripp's sister and a notorious flirt, telling of her engagement to Kenneth, whom she has met in Paris. Then Merrial encounters Lord Rivington, who comes to Miss Coke's seeking to buy a fine old chest, her most treasured possession, and is ludicrously mistaken by Merrial for an agent Tripp Hart is sending to buy the quince preserve recipe.

EIGHTH INSTALLMENT.

Plots and Problems.

MISS COKE came in upon them, and seemed not altogether pleased that her guest should be entertained in the kitchen.

"This is Lady Rivington's son, Merrial," she said. "You have heard the girls speak of their Aunt Ellen. Henry, this is my American niece, Merrial Houlton.

Henry shook hands with the American niece and, at the same time, he wondered if she could be the "favorite" as he followed Miss Coke into the sitting room. And the chest seemed to him suddenly the most imperatively necessary object in the universe.

"I have been enjoying some of Miss Houlton's preserves. But, of course, you know what I have come to say to you," said Henry, when Merrial had left them. Miss Coke's eyes turned to the chest.

"It's only too easy to guess, Henry. My one claim to wealth has its one follower. Perhaps if other collectors knew of its existence I might have more than one call from you annually."

Henry colored.

"I was clumsy," said he. "You know, Miss Coke, that I should come to see you in any case."

"I know nothing of the kind."

Then, sitting down, she faced him grimly.

"What's your offer this year?" she asked. Henry named an absurd sum, and, with secret heightening of heart beat, watched a flush come into the faded cheeks. Miss Coke turned her eyes slowly from him to the chest, and there they rested, and the flush increased and stayed. Henry watched her and wondered. Was her attachment to the chest a matter of sentiment beyond the mere pride of possession? Were there associations? It was almost shocking to connect sentiment with Miss Coke. But, of course, Henry reasoned, no woman could live at her age without some pretext for tenderness. Suddenly, as he looked down at her, she raised her lids to him, and he saw, for the first time, full into her fine, deep gray eyes. There was a strange little glimmer in them.

"I am considering your offer, Lord Rivington," said she, and her tone had lost its flatness. Some of its young fire had come back.

Henry's correct face was incapable of expressing the full measure of his amazement. The Rivington eyebrows rose to the occasion, however, actually as well as figuratively. They did their exquisite best to show forth his state of mind. Miss Coke's sudden use of his title was probably intended to give weight to her admission. It was evidently most seriously meant. Beyond his eyebrows Henry did not move a muscle. The bird of certainty had lighted on his little bough of hope. He would not imperil his collection by a breath.

"If some one had come to me in my youth," went on Miss Coke slowly, still with her extraordinary eyes fixed on him, "with such an offer, I should have accepted it."

Here her eyes fell, but a more desperate fire crept into her voice.

"It would have saved me much then—so very much! I remember praying for it—for half the sum."

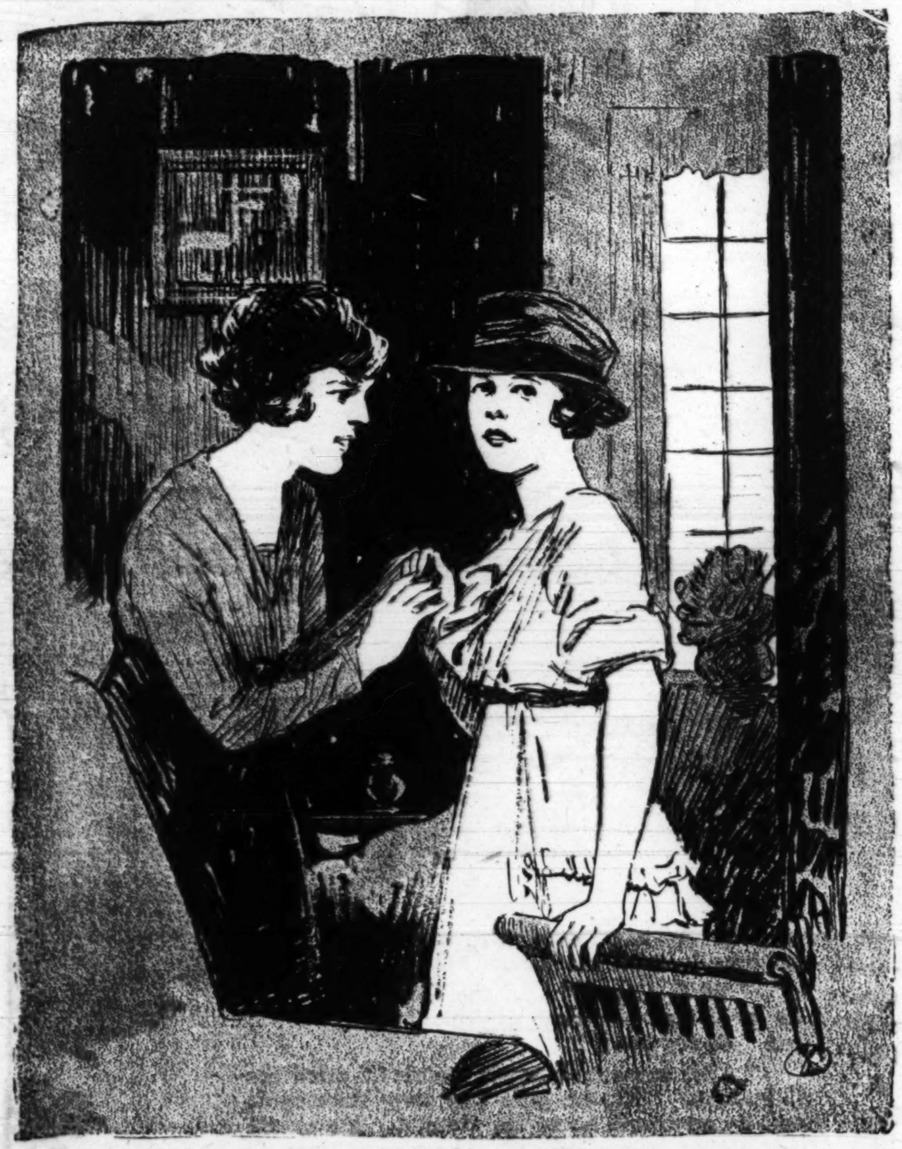
She looked down at her locked hands, and Henry saw the bitter quivering of her lips.

"It doesn't mean much to me now," she went on presently; "I am content to go on this way to the end. But——" Almost fiercely she brought out the resolution: "I will not allow another child to suffer what I suffered."

She rose and rustled to the door, where she stood an instant with her face set in profile, thinking and biting her lip.

"I shall go upstairs, Henry," she said at last, in her ordinary tone, "and think it over. When I come down you shall have my decision. I know," with all her old grimness, "that the chest is your real hostess, and will be ample entertainment for you while I am gone."

And then she really was gone, and Henry stood staring after her.



"Oh, let me get away, can't I?" whispered Winifred, now white faced.

"What has happened to the old lady?" This was the gist of his thought. Had he really been a bat not to see what there was in the woman? And she had eyes, too. They must have been like stars once. Why, they felt, they suffered, they sympathized, they renounced. Who was "the child" for whose sake this strange woman, suddenly revealed to him, could endure parting with her one possession? It couldn't be Merrial Houlton. Pooh! The girl was as light-hearted as a lark. There was evidently no shadow on her life. Besides, poor girls have not just that air, somehow. And yet, Miss Coke had often spoken with him of Alice and Winifred, and never with any particular warmth. And he had noticed, now that he thought of it, a certain glimmer in the old woman's eyes when she had presented to him her "American niece."

"She's evidently touched by the little witch. Perhaps Miss Houlton is poor in spite of the air. Perhaps the jam——" Here Henry's eyes, hitherto preoccupied, fell upon the chest, and all speculation vanished before the collector's joy. He caressed it and examined it, pulling it out from the wall, opening its drawers as he had never dared to do before. It was all but his now. Miss Coke had not called him "Lord Rivington" for nothing. Bless her old heart! Now his collection was, without doubt, unique—the best private thing of the kind.

"You've no idea how burglarious you look," said Merrial, slipping in noiselessly.

He got to his feet. He had been examining the lock of the middle drawer, and did indeed suggest a very gentlemanly Raffles.

"It may be my own property in a few moments," said he coolly, noting with approval her change of costume. "Poor girls don't wear such plain, fine frocks," he thought. "Perhaps she has lost her money lately. Americans sometimes do."

Merrial sauntered to the window.

"Your own property?" she asked absently.

"I collect old furniture," he began, wishing she would turn round again and not have so tantalizingly remote an air. As an agent, Henry was forced to admit, she had found him more interesting.

"There's money in it," she murmured; "at least," coming back a trifle from her mental wanderings, "if you do it for money, there is."

"I don't," said Henry, smiling at the straight, slim back; "that is, I haven't had to yet, but—one never can tell."

"No. One never can tell. It's well to be provided," said Merrial wisely. "Sometimes people lost all their money suddenly." And, after a little pause, she added tenderly: "Like my father."

"Aha!" thought Henry, "then she is poor. And she bought her frock before the crash." He gave, aloud, a rather embarrassed murmur of sympathy.

"And is—er—quince preserve—your provision, may I ask, Miss Houlton?"

"I am looking for the agent now," said Merrial, and Henry, for almost the first time since his coming of age, felt snubbed. The sensation amused him. He came to stand at the snubber's elbow.

"Let me look, too," he said.

She made room for him, and together they watched a plump young man in chocolate brown clothes with a magenta tie and tan shoes pick his way along the muddy village street.

"I've an idea he's your man," said Henry Rivington.

"I know he is," said Merrial; "his clothes shout 'agent.'"

"Did mine?" asked Henry.

Merrial's cool, clear eyes ran rapidly up and down him, to rest at last mischievously on his clean cut face.

"What would you think if I said 'yes'?"

"One of three things," Henry replied.

"Let me guess them. One, that I was more teasing than truthful; or two, that I had very poor powers of observation; or, three, that I had the least educated taste in all the world."

"Every one of them right," laughed Henry. And then he heard Miss Coke's footstep and whirled eagerly about.

The door of the sitting room was at right angles with Merrial's agent observatory. She stood between the curtains, and Miss Coke, although the young girl also had turned, did not observe her. Miss Coke came straight up to Henry, between him and the window, and, with her back to Merrial, she spoke.

"I have thought it over and I have decided," she said. "I accept your offer. You may have the chest."

It was easy to see from her face what the decision had cost—even easier, perhaps, to hear it in her voice. Nevertheless, though he was sorry for her, Henry's eyes shone, triumphant, and he opened his lips to rejoice. But as they opened, his eyes, over Miss Coke's head, fell upon Merrial. And Henry deliberately closed his lips. The young girl's face was pink with suppressed excitement, and she was mutely signaling to him. "Don't, don't," pleaded the long lashed eyes; and "You must, you must withdraw your offer," commanded the delicate, tight lips. There was something so vivid and desperate both in the pleading and in the command that Henry wavered. His eyes fell from Merrial's.

"I have reconsidered the matter," said he slowly, wondering at himself. "And I find I—er—I would like to withdraw my offer."

There was an uncomfortable silence of several minutes, during which Henry grew furious with Merrial and with himself.

"As you please, of course," said Miss Coke dryly, at last, and turned toward Merrial.

But the curtain space was empty and the curtains stirred. The "American niece" had dropped out of the window.

"Can you explain to me this rather sudden change of mind?" asked Miss Coke, facing Henry again.

"No," admitted Rivington, "not yet. But later, perhaps."

"I have never been mysterious before," said Henry. "I don't find it particularly pleasant. Don't think very badly of me, please, Miss Coke."

"I don't know you, Henry."

"Perhaps I don't altogether know myself," murmured the young man.

It did not lessen his confusion that Miss Coke should move over to the chest, push it back into its place, and arrange the drawers that he had disarranged.

"Who's Merrial got there now?" suddenly demanded Miss Coke.

The distraction was welcome. Henry refitted his glass, and his face resumed its usual Rivington serenity.

"I fancy it's the—er—young man your niece expected from London. The—er—taster, you know."

"Taster?"

"Of the quince preserve."

"You don't mean to say——" Miss Coke broke off, and started for the kitchen.

But in the hall she stopped, with Henry just behind her.

"It's too late," she said; "the tasting has begun."

"What is it, may I ask, Miss Coke?"

"O!" cried the exasperated lady, "it's a mad American scheme for making dollars. Where it will end I don't quite know. If you had told me that such a thing could develop under my very nose, and entirely against my own wishes, and that I should feel so helpless——"

She paused.

"Let us go back to the sitting room, Henry," she said; "that, at least, I can still call my own."

. . . .

When Merrial reappeared a quarter of an hour later, she found Lord Rivington alone, awaiting her with an air of magisterial dignity.

"My mother commanded me to be back at Rivington House, five miles from here, at 5 o'clock. House party, and all that," said Lord Rivington. "It's past 5 now, but I've waited for your agent to be gone, in the hope of"—he lowered his voice a trifle—"an explanation."

nieces and nephews with the strict understanding that he was never to see red hair or to hear the name "Helen"; they were to regulate their circle of friends accordingly. George-Hiram had never been disturbed by the restriction, for he did not happen to be particularly attracted by the Helens and the red haired girls of Weston.

"How do you do?" said the red haired girl mechanically. Then she added abruptly to Adam: "I—I should like to speak to you for a moment."

George-Hiram passed on, his mouth whimsically twisted. Not thus was he usually treated by ladies to whom he had asked to be introduced.

The red haired girl looked at Adam and then turned aside her head.

"I don't think I've anything to say to you after all," she said.

"You might have, you know," Adam replied in a tone that was bitter and gentle, too—bitter for himself and gentle for her. "You might say that I've acted like a pretty poor sort of fellow. 'When you were sick in my town of Royal this spring in my boarding house,' you might say, 'I was kind to you, and we became friends. And when I told you that I had already made plans to come to Weston to teach music——'"

"Well?" she questioned, as he paused.

"I was glad you were coming," Adam said.

"And now?" she persisted.

"Helen, I feel toward you exactly as I did, but—but I guess I'm not worthy of any girl's trust."

"Cryptic, aren't you?" she said, tossing her head, her lips quivering.

Adam made no reply.

"Please don't think I hoped you would help me get music pupils," Helen went on.

"But I will——"

"I think not. All the same, I need them. I'm going to your uncle for help."

"My uncle! Good heavens, Helen——"

"Why not?" she flashed. "He's the richest and most influential man in the whole country. He must be a good man, or he would not have educated all you half orphans. A man like that can't be without sentiment for old times, old loves. If I go to him and tell him I am the daughter of Helen Ross, the girl he loved so long ago——"

She stopped abruptly, transfigured by Adam's struggle for breath.

"He's—he's a dreadful old man!" Adam said at last. "Don't go near him; he doesn't know what manners are. He—he's a fiend!"

"I don't know that you've given me any especial reason to trust your judgment," Helen said coldly; "I'm going."

Meanwhile George-Hiram had proceeded briskly up the street, calling out occasionally to acquaintances, but not stopping, for he knew that his uncle could tell to a fraction just how much time it would take him to walk from the station homeward. When he reached the back of the ample grounds that inclosed the Severance house he leaped the fence and made a short cut along a narrow path that ran beside the kitchen garden.

Here he paused abruptly. On the path stood his mother. That was nothing; she always came to meet him along this way upon his homecomings. But now she stood with her back to him, and beside her was the doctor who lived next door. His hand was on her arm and she was shaking her head—but listening. A queer homesick pang smote George-Hiram; he felt as he had once long ago, when Adam had sat on his mother's knee, usurping his own rightful throne. He also for a moment had the conviction that his mother had no right to have any man's arm near her except her son's. Then George-Hiram grew up again, realized that his mother was only a year or two past 40 and had the right to anything she wanted. And if she could, even for a moment, forget that he was coming home and stand giving the doctor an inning like that!

George-Hiram's feet on the path betrayed him. His mother gave a cry of joy and ran toward him. She embraced him; the doctor waved his hat and disappeared; then soft Mary Severance wept a little and said: "Come, we mustn't stay here; your uncle will be expecting you, Georgie."

Now and then she called her son in a whisper "Georgie," for she hated his double barreled name.

"All right, dear. But I want to know, first, if the doctor is spoons on you?"

"Georgie!"

"Well, of course he is," said George-Hiram, walking her houseward, his arm about her; "but are you spoons on him? For if you are, I'm willing."

"Well—he's very silly," she said, blushing, "and the house is so lonely when you're gone and at the same time so full of people! And if your uncle's new plans for you are carried out you'll be away again—but he will speak to you of them. Only, of course, I couldn't dream of marrying Dr. Hale. Your uncle would never forgive me, and it would ruin your prospects. No, dear, I shall not marry again. My child comes first."

"I've got a sweet nature," said George-Hiram truthfully, "but I get a little fed up now and then hearing about how you can't call your soul your own for fear of injuring my prospects. So I'm going right straight to uncle, and I'm going to say, 'Look here, you well meaning but devilish old geezer——'"

"O—O! George-Hiram, don't!" moaned his mother, whose sense of humor, under her brother's bullying, had long retired into limbo.

"Kindly remember," George-Hiram admonished, "that I am almost 23 and just on the point of earning my own living."

"O, the confidence of young men who have never earned a penny! You are very young, Georgie," she sighed.

"I'm not young enough to be in love like one I could name," he retorted.

His mother blushed, and at that moment they rounded the house and came upon the patriarch. He was sitting on the front porch, the morning sun beating on his white, bitter face. He did not rise as George-Hiram bounded up the steps, and there was nothing in his greeting to show that for weeks he had been looking forward to his nephew's home coming.

"Heh! you're back!" he said.

"Yes, sir; here I am," said George-Hiram shaking hands. "And glad to be here."

"Well, well, that's as it ought to be. Home's home, I suppose. Well, go on, why don't you? Tell me what you've been doing. Tell me about those New York fellows, young Shore and Van Tyne. Going to visit here, ain't they?"

Although George-Hiram had never guessed it, his uncle was, through him, realizing vicariously a socially ambitious dream. When old Severance had been at Yale he had not been popular. But George-Hiram was so lovable that the young Brahmins of Yale had forgiven him for being "only a rich western nobody" and had taken him unto themselves, and, for the same reason, hoi polloi, among whom he made democratic friendships, had pardoned his fashionable affiliations.

George-Hiram sat down beside his uncle, mentioning the Brahmins who had promised to visit him, passing lightly over his social triumphs, and perhaps emphasizing the praise his professors had given him. His mother hovered proudly in the background, ignored completely by her brother, who resented her manner of acting as if George-Hiram belonged to her.

"Yes, yes," said the patriarch, when George-Hiram's agreeable voice ceased, "and now for your future. I mean you to be a stock broker. It's time you began to think about your future. Can't keep you in college forever, you know. Think about your future.

"Why—I have been thinking of it a little, sir," George-Hiram answered. "I thought maybe I'd teach political economy here in Weston college. The head of the department——"

Old Severance uttered a sound that was between a howl and a groan.

"Why do you suppose I told you to take as many political economy courses as you could? Why did I make you read the Journal of Commerce? Why did I make you read the stock reports every day? Why did you do all that, I ask you?"

"Because you told me to, sir," said George-Hiram, moving his feet uneasily; "but I hadn't thought——"

"You're going to be a stock broker in New York. Don't you like New York? What have you against being a broker? Now, see here, boy, I want you to make a big career for yourself, something you couldn't do teaching. I know a young and strong Jewish firm of brokers in New York who would be glad to take you in. No very old firm, of course, would accept a youngster like you. But these Jews would jump at you because of your connection with Shore and Van Tyne, through whom you could get the class of clients they want."

George-Hiram flushed.

"Don't want to use my friends that way," he said.

"It's because you don't want to that you can," said the patriarch, cynically. "How much would you get teaching?"

"Eight hundred—maybe a thousand."

"Humph! This firm will start you at twenty-five hundred. You go and think it over."

The patriarch smiled grimly. Telling George-Hiram to think it over merely meant giving him a little rope to run around with. George-Hiram, like all the nephews and nieces and the four aunts, always did precisely what old Severance ordered.

George-Hiram got up, and went into the house with his mother.

"Do what he says, Georgie," she whispered; "you mustn't annoy him, dear."

George-Hiram's frown disappeared.

"Honestly, I don't care much which job I take, mother," he said. "The trouble with me is that everything comes too easily."

"Living on eight hundred a year wouldn't, when you've been spending five thousand at Yale," his mother said. "But if you take this New York position your uncle will continue your allowance——"

"If he does I'll bank it for you," George-Hiram stated. "Hereafter I'm going to live on what I make."

"The idea of my baby making anything," she said, with the loving maternal contempt which a young man finds it so hard to forgive. "Shall we run upstairs, dearie, and see if your room is just as you want it?"

A quarter of an hour later George-Hiram heard his uncle's voice raised in the loud, strangling tones which advertised that the patriarch was having what his kin called "a tantrum." George-Hiram knew by the sounds that this one was particularly fierce, and he ran downstairs, followed by his trembling mother, to help assuage the head of the family.

The patriarch stood on the porch, grasping the back of his chair and pointing a tense arm at red haired Helen Bray, who faced him with her head thrown back, her brown eyes unwavering. When George-Hiram and his mother reached the front door she was saying:

"Don't yell at me, you horrid, wicked old man. I am not afraid of you! I'm not one of your relations."

"You're worse!" shouted the patriarch. "You're a sneaking sentimentalist, coming to me to get influence you haven't earned. A dead beat, that's what you are, wanting me to get you pupils, not because you know how to teach, but because, for a few weeks, I made a fool of myself over your mother. Get out of my house, and before I'm through I'll drive you out of town."

"I'm going," the girl said, "not, as I say, because I'm afraid of you, but because I hate to be near ill bred boors. My mother jilted you because you were a boor and a tyrant, and I'm glad she did! And don't you think you can drive me out of this town. You don't own it all."

She turned and walked down the steps. George-Hiram shot after her, for, despite her defiant words he had seen that her lips and her hands were trembling. His mother stretched a detaining arm after him in vain.

"George-Hiram, sir," boomed the patriarch, "come back here!"

George-Hiram walked on beside Helen.

"Yes, go back!" said Helen, in a trembling voice. "Can't you hear your master calling you? Go back!"

"Allow me to escort you to the gate," said George-Hiram. "I can't tell you how sorry——"

Helen paused long enough to stamp her foot.

"Go back!" she said. "Can't you see that I want to be alone?"

"I know that," said George-Hiram, helplessly, "but somehow I've got to take you as far as the gate."

They walked a few paces in silence, and then Helen said: "Miserable old devil!"

"Old, you know," George-Hiram said; "we have to excuse old people, because, think of the bad luck they're in because they're not young."

"O, yes," she jeered, "I wonder how long you'd excuse him if he wasn't rich? If he had no money, that old man would be peeling potatoes in your mother's kitchen, with no one to snap at but the cat, whereas now he's got twelve cowardly nephews and nieces and four scared-to-death sisters."

George-Hiram colored. This red headed Helen certainly had a shrewish tongue. He made no answer, calculating, with relief, the few paces that remained between themselves and the front gate.

"If I thought she was a peach a while ago," he thought, "I take it back. She may be a peach, but she's a pickled one."

At the gate Adam appeared.

"Well, Adam," said Helen, in a nasty tone, "been skulking in the shrubbery?"

"I told you not to go to him," Adam almost wailed. "I told you——"

"O, Adam," she said, sadly, "what you didn't tell me was that you were a coward."

"You don't understand," said Adam, hurriedly.

Helen evidently wanted to understand, for she turned to George-Hiram and, stamping her foot for the second time, she shrilled, "Go away!"

George-Hiram went, rapidly. As he hurried toward the house he reflected:

"Gosh, she must be fond of Adam! And gosh! What a temper! I guess uncle was well out of it that he didn't marry her mother. He's had a pleasanter time with us—bullying us, she'd say!"

Half way down the walk his mother met him.

"O, Georgie," she whispered; "he's terribly angry! You must go to him at once and apologize. I don't know what you'll say, I'm sure——"

George-Hiram stood stock still in the path. He was of a very easy temper. But Helen's remarks had irritated him, and the scene in which she had taken part had made him obscurely ashamed of himself and his family."

"I won't apologize," he said.

"O—O, Georgie!" she gasped; "think of your prospects!"

"All right," snarled George-Hiram, "I'm thinking of them. What's the worst he can do? Disinherit me, and turn us both out. Very well; then you can marry Dr. Hale and I'll either take the teaching job here or the brokerage job in New York."

"O—O, Georgie!" she moaned, half terrified, half admiring.

He caught the note of admiration.

"Listen here," he said; "unless you marry the doctor, I won't take the brokerage job. Then uncle will disinherit me, sure!"

"Georgie!"

"Isn't it nicer to be bossed by your son than your brother?" George-Hiram asked, his good nature restored. "I'm going to jump the doctor's wall now and go tell him I accept him as a step-father."

"O, please George-Hiram, don't. O, please go to your uncle and apologize."

George-Hiram put his hands on her shoulders and looked steadily in her eyes.

"Mother, dear," he said, "I've changed this morning toward our esteemed relative and the family life here. Maybe it's because I've left college and am going on my own. Maybe it's because I heard a young girl stand up to uncle and tell him just what he and the rest of us are like. Anyhow, I'm going to act like a man to him now, not like a little boy that must be in the wrong because he's little, and that has to be agreeable and, when necessary, apologetic. I won't eat any more crow."

"O, but, George-Hiram, he's supported us both for years; he's educated you——"

"Yes, and because of all I owe him, I'm going to take the job he wants me to, and, by Jove! I'm going to make a career, and make money, and give him back before I die all he's ever spent on us!"

She shook her head sadly and lovingly.

"O, Georgie, dear, you're so young, and money is so hard to get. I think you're wonderful, of course—only, when you get into the money making world there'll be so many other wonderful sons of mothers, and they'll have less conscience and kindness than you, Georgie, and they'll be the ones to make the money."

"Lots of faith you've got in me!"

"No; but I think I'd rather have you defer to your uncle——"

"Crawl, you mean."

"Defer to your uncle and inherit the money he's come by honestly, than cut people's throats in the business world."

"Uncle come by his money honestly!" cried George-Hiram; "wait till I talk to you about unearned increment."

"Georgie, dear, your uncle is waiting for you to apologize——"

"He can wait. I'm going to give Dr. Hale my blessing. Then I'm going to behave to uncle as if nothing had happened. Lord, mother, don't you know he's more afraid to quarrel with me than I am to quarrel with him? He's set his heart on this job for me."

"He's set his heart on you, dear," his mother said. "He loves you, Georgie."

"Love! O, mother, save that word for the doctor," jeered George-Hiram.

He leaped the fence that separated the Severance place from the doctor's, and his mother skulked fearfully among the trees, afraid to face her brother without George-Hiram.

When the luncheon bell rang, George-Hiram appeared promptly, nodded brightly to his uncle, kissed the aunts and girl cousins he had not yet greeted, and took his place at the table.

The patriarch was purple with indignation, which had been, for the first time in his life, kept waiting.

"George-Hiram," he shouted, "what have you to say for yourself, sir?"

"O, you mean where have I been?" said George-Hiram innocently. "I've been over to Dr. Hale's, talking over his plan for marrying mother."

By Katherine Newlin Burt

Merrial stood beside him on the bare, little porch and looked up at him gratefully.

"You were wonderful," she said in a tone of ardent conviction. "So clever to guess just what I wanted and so ad-o-rably kind to give in!"

Rivington had never been called "ad-o-rably kind" before. He had also never been accused of "giving in."

He flushed and drew his eyebrows together.

"I've wanted that chest for years now," said he, "so, in the collector's interest, I shall require a very sufficient explanation. I didn't want to give in, I assure you. But when a girl looks at a man as you did, there's no help for it, you know."

Merrial gravely regarded him.

"Of course," she said, "you must have seen how Aunt Jane felt about giving up the chest."

Henry shrugged his shoulders a trifle.

"I know she's loath to part with it. I've been fighting her for years. But—I offered a staggering sum. There was something to be gained on her side, you must in justice remember, Miss Houlton."

Merrial shook her head.

"She would never, for herself, have parted with it, I know," said she. "I know!" she added a moment later, as though propping a conviction. "That chest means ever so much to her, Lord Rivington."

"You think it's sentiment with her?"

"Sentiment!" He was startled at the fiery glance with which she punished him for the word. "Sentiment! It's something stronger than sentiment! No. She's doing it for some one else—just breaking her heart to help some one; and, Lord Rivington, I've a notion who that some one is, and I believe—O, I do hope—that Aunt Jane may soon be able to help any one she chooses, with no need for any sacrifice whatever."

"Really!" exclaimed Henry, and his tone, though interested, was vaguely skeptical.

Merrial's pupils widened at him.

"I don't really know it yet," she admitted slowly, "but I'm hoping it, and, on the hope I was willing to risk——"

"To risk Miss Coke's chance of making her old age more comfortable; and to risk my hope of possessing the best collection of old furniture in England! You are a gambler born, Miss Houlton."

"Well, you know," said Merrial, in a funny tone of apology, "I don't care two cents about your collection, and Miss Coke's old age would not be helped if she lost the chest and gave away the money too—now, would it?"

Rivington was forced to admit that it would not.

"You might still help me get the chest," he smiled, "and without molting one feather of your loyalty to Miss Coke. She has always told me that the chest would be inherited by her favorite niece. Now if only I knew— -"

Merrial shook her head and smiled back at him with mischievous merriment. "If only we knew!" she sighed.

Rivington laughed, and held out his hand to say goodby.

"By the way, was the second agent satisfactory?" he asked. Merrial's face gleamed hope, shadowed by keen anxiety.

"I can't tell. He was so contradictory. He seemed quite staggered by the flavor; but he wouldn't say much. He didn't take half so long tasting as you did, and no one could have suspected him of an abnormal sense of taste. But perhaps he was overwhelmed; I really think he was."

"Was he?" put in Rivington. "But so was I."

"I'd like to see you overwhelmed by anything!" said Merrial ironically. "This agent——"

"I was not one, Miss Houlton."

"This agent," she went on firmly, "asked lots of questions and took down lots of notes, and he's going to lay the matter before the company, and in a few days I'll have my answer. O, I do hope——"

Hoping made her face the sweetest, most wistful face Henry Rivington had ever seen.

"I do hope, too," said he, wondering as he rode off to entertain his mother's guests at Rivington House, that a matter of "dollars" should so spiritually beautify a girl's expression.

"O, Tripp, you are indeed the best of bestest pals," Merrial whispered westward, as she reviewed the doings of the day. "You were quite right not to come yourself, though!"

. . . .

How to stave off her brother Dick's seemingly inevitable fiasco by his masquerading before Alice Beaufort as an Englishman, Merrial had been quite unable to see. The only way that occurred to her was, if possible, to prevent his return to the neighborhood of "Lady Rivington's nieces" in the hope that his embryo "affair" with Alice might fade out, and leave both her and Dick heart whole.

Merrial realized that the summer term at Oxford was about to end, and "long vacation" to begin. Elfrida Rivington would be returning from Oxford to Rivington house, and it was more than likely that, sooner or later, Dick would be included in one of their house parties.

Meanwhile, thanks to Dick's utter ignorance of his sister's plans and doings, he remained unaware that she had been staying for some weeks under the very roof of "Lady Rivington's nieces"—a state of innocence in which Merrial decided it was best to leave him. But when she went to visit Aunt Jane, she had written Dick, and (knowing that, to him, the name of Miss Jane Coke would not "connect" with the Rivingtons or Beauforts) had given him that address, mildly suggesting that he might let her know his plans for the vacation, in case they could join forces in London or elsewhere for a week or two. "I'd like to meet you in London directly your term ends, and before you start visiting your friends the dukes and duchesses. I promise to dowdy myself to the queen's taste," wrote Merrial, mischievously—"but the Dundreary drawl is beyond me! You'll have to do all the talking, if the disguise is to be maintained!"

To this letter now arrived Dick's reply; and Merrial's ejaculation of dismay as she read it, reached Aunt Jane across the breakfast table—though this was quite unintentional. "Dick's coming to stay with the Rivingtons. He arrives there today! Whatever shall I do with him now?" she exclaimed in dismay.

"I was not aware that Mr. Richard Houlton was acquainted with the Rivingtons, Merrial. But I don't quite understand your objections?" questioned Aunt Jane, stiffly.

"O, it's not that, exactly," Merrial replied in vague confusion. "What a bother men are!" she added in exasperation. "He got to know them through Elfrida Rivington, at Oxford," she explained.

She held up above her coffee cup a square of heavy cream paper, covered by a careless scrawl.

"I need scarcely say that you are at liberty to ask Mr. Houlton to come and see you here, though I assume he proposes to do so, in any case."

"No—he doesn't know that I'm anywhere near the Rivingtons." She was not a little awed by her aunt's frigid "Mr. Houlton."

"Doesn't know! Haven't you told him where you are?"

"I wrote and gave him my address here, but it probably didn't mean anything to him. You see, Aunt Jane, Dick hasn't been told much about his English relatives; dad didn't say very much to us."

"I understand that, Merrial. But you surely told Richard that you were making your home with your English relatives. Your father's son would surely wish to know where his father's daughter was planning to live!"

Merrial found no reply in explanation. Her mind reverted to those early letters of Aunt Jane to her mother, with their queer disaffection of tone in her references to "the little boy," and Aunt Margaret's to "Poor little Dick." Aunt Jane seemed to maintain an ineradicable animosity to the male side of her family, while perhaps tempering it somewhat as regards her niece.

"How old is Richard?" asked Aunt Jane.

"Two years older than I—25. He's really clever, but he's a fearful faddist. When he takes a notion in his head he runs it to death."

"A Houlton characteristic," said Aunt Jane coolly.

"He's been through all sorts of phases. But he really is frightfully clever, and a dear sort of goose when you understand him."

"I still cannot understand why he hasn't been to see you before," said Aunt Jane, "either here or at your cousins, the Beauforts."

Aunt Jane turned her entire attention to bacon and toast.

"He doesn't know he has any Beaufort cousins, Aunt Jane. You see, we weren't kept up on the subject. That is, Dick wasn't. I kept myself up. I was always morbidly interested in you people. I got father to give me mother's old letters. Dick didn't seem to care."

Aunt Jane critically examined the small, pale face across the table. Merrial reminded her of a white sweet pea that morning. She had looked at her niece very often, but she was always making new discoveries. She discovered this time that the "child" looked delicate.

"Don't work today, Merrial," commanded Aunt Jane harshly.

"I think I shan't," and Merrial rose to bring some fresh toast. "I feel tired."

"I don't want your brother to think I've worked you to a ghost."

"O, Dick knows me. If I look like a ghost it's because I've worked myself. Nobody every worked me."

And, indeed, there was a tantalizing air of self-ownership about the slim thing that made Aunt Jane almost wish to play the tyrant and, for once, coerce her.

"I hope you'll marry a big man with a stick," she said, with her grim humored smile. "No one can entirely escape discipline."

"Well," said Merrial, "maybe I will marry an Englishman."

"Necessarily synonymous with my description?"

Aunt Jane, having pushed back her chair, condescended to carry on the subject.

"We say, on our side the water, that Englishmen bully their wives. And of course you say that we American women bully our husbands," said Merrial. "O, I wish you could meet Tripp!"

And then the white sweet pea turned vividly pink, and murmuring something about "letters" hurried away from Aunt Jane's inquiring eyebrows. Merrial cooled her cheeks in her own bedroom.

"I should like to take a look at Rivington house," she thought dreamily. "What an awful young man he is—Lord Rivington!"

Merrial spent five or ten minutes with her chin in her hand, contemplating her memory of the "awful young man," and twinkles played hide and seek with gravity in her cool eyes. He was certainly very, very different from Tripp Hart; different in many ways from any young man she had ever known.

"He is delightful and he is charming, and I can see that no one has ever 'worked' him, either. I wonder if he would be a big man with a stick. His manner is much more subdued than Tripp's, but I've a notion——"

And after "notioning" to her heart's content, she fixed her eyes once more upon her brother's letter and furrowed her brows seriously.

"I see no way out of it, except to scare Dick out of this whole neighborhood. If he stays, it's got to come out that he's been masquerading like a fool, and Alice won't look at him again. If I meet him with any of the Beauforts or the Rivingtons, he'll have to drop his nonsense and run up the Stars and Stripes. And I'm not going to expose him myself—that would be too awful."

Her eyes strayed across her little writing table to a copy of the local paper containing her advertisement of quince preserve.

"That will do it if anything will," she decided. "I'll send him a copy of it and tell him I'm doing a roaring trade with the Rivingtons and all their friends and relatives—who take me for just what I am, a plain American, out for the dollars! Yes, that will send the poor boy off the scene, or I miss my guess. I must 'be cruel, only to be kind,'" she quoted, judicially. "And I must get this over to him pronto, or there'll be complications yet!"

"Dear Dick," she wrote, "you don't seem to realize that I'm staying with Aunt Jane Coke, only five miles from the Rivingtons. As you'll see from the inclosed advertisement, I'm running a great business in quince preserve, and count upon your influence to get me large orders from all your friends in the neighborhood. They evidently haven't associated so distingué a Houlton as you with so grossly American a jam drummer as yours truly. But you can correct that little oversight—in fact, I count upon you to do so. Aunt Jane will be delighted to have you visit us here—if you can spare the time from Lady Rivington's nieces. They've already tasted my preserve, though, who knows but you may induce them to increase their order.

"Yours for prosperity,

"Merrial Houlton."

"P. S.—If you can't get over to see us I'll meet you later in London; only let me know when and where."

Merrial read it over carefully, decided it could be effective, and enclosing the newspaper advertisement, sealed it up. "Now how to get it there quickly," she pondered. "Lord Rivington is sure sooner or later to ask him awkward questions about a certain American girl, of the same name, a cousin of the Beauforts—though he'll probably leave out the quince preserve adventure; men are so cautious with each other! The thing is to get this to Dick before he is asked any questions at all."

"I'll bribe him with a jar of preserve to be my messenger," she said.

And having perpetrated this "bargain," Merrial breathed more freely and returned to her room to obey Aunt Jane's instructions, and rest.

However, it was but a few minutes later that our archplotter was aroused by a familiar call from downstairs; Winifred Beaufort had driven over in the dog cart. She made her way up to her cousin's room and Merrial found herself face to face there and then with the problem she hoped she had just solved so effectively.

"Alice wants you to come back to lunch with me, if you can. Mr. Houlton is coming over from the Rivingtons. He arrived with Elfrida from Oxford and asked if he might come to lunch. Alice wants you so much to meet him, you know."

"I'd love to come, but I can't possibly today. I'm engaged for lunch, Win. Some other time I'll meet Alice's English Mr. Houlton, if she'll let me." ("Will my note get to Dick at the Rivingtons in time?" Merrial wondered.)

She noticed Win's woebegone face, sad and drawn, and shook a mental fist at Gertrude Hart's flirtatious ways, and Kenneth Stanton's blindly stolid "sense of honor."

"Stay and chat a bit, Win; I'm having an 'off' day till lunch; too much quince preserve maketh the head buzz. You still don't look so tremendously spry yourself, young lady!"

"I'm all right," she replied, languidly. "Hubert's always asking why you don't come to see us," she changed the subject. "Come over tomorrow; there'll be some people in for tennis. Come early and give me a good fight before the rest arrive. I need a shaking up and you're so good at that," she smiled.

"I'll be there, and tell Hubert I'll prepare a whole volume of stories for him. Heavens, who's that?"

Winifred's face flushed as they listened to Kenneth Stanton's voice downstairs, asking Miss Coke if Miss Houlton was at home; wouldn't she come for a ride with him. He had brought over a horse for her.

"Oh, let me get away, can't I?" whispered Winifred, now white faced. "I just can't bear to meet him, Merrial. Let me stay here while you go down. He'll have seen the dog cart outside, but he may think it's Alice calling."

Merrial whisked out to the stairway.

"I'd love to come, Mr. Stanton. I heard your invitation. Thank you so much. I'll be ready in half a second."

And dashing back to Winifred, with finger on lips, she was in a riding skirt in a twinkling, and tripping down to her cavalier, whip in hand.

"You have really come just to take me out riding, Mr. Stanton; how kind of you!" she said, smiling up at him.

"I have come for that purpose and for no other," said he.

"Which is not altogether true, man-in-a-hole," commented Merrial, mentally. "You have come to talk to me about yourself and your predicament, and why you didn't come long ago I can't imagine. The plot thickens!"

She looked taller than usual in her dark riding dress and more like a gracefully stiff quill than ever. She gave her ungloved right hand to Stanton and looked him in the eyes.

"I am glad you have come to me—at last," she said, gravely.

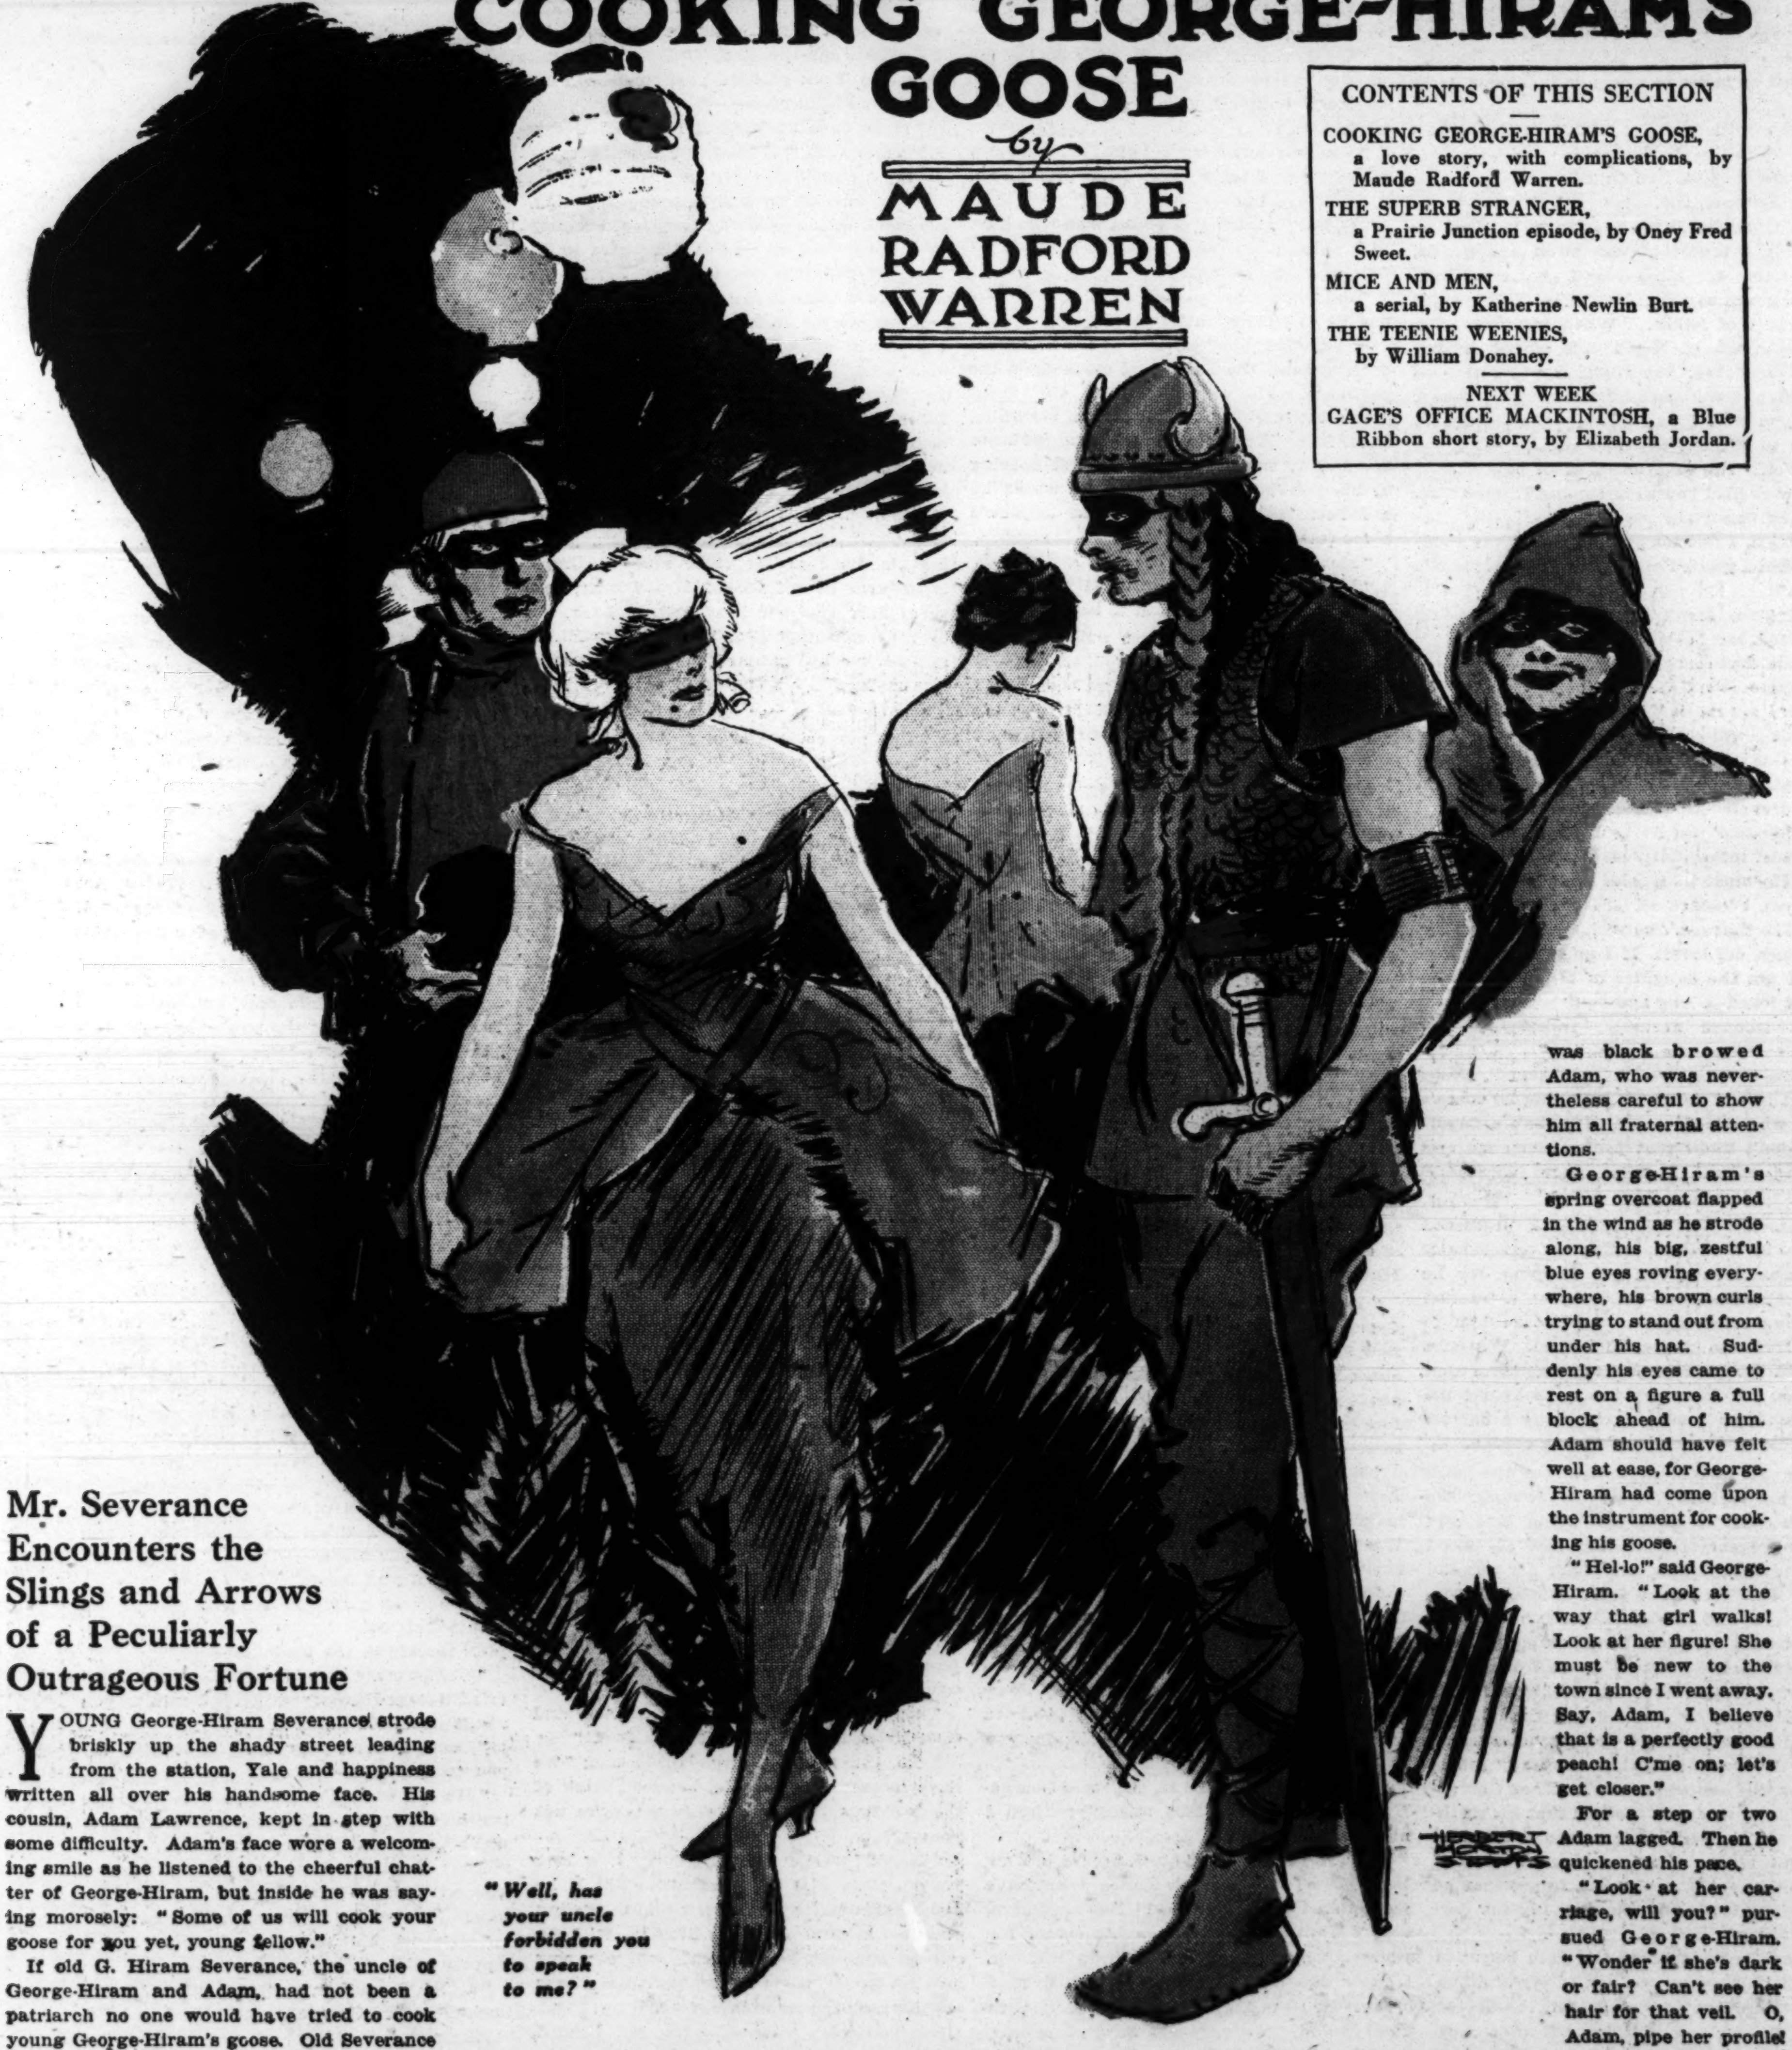
GAGE'S OFFICE MACKINTOSH, a Blue Ribbon short story, by Elizabeth Jordan.



"Well, has your uncle forbidden you to speak to me?"

Mr. Severance Encounters the Slings and Arrows of a Peculiarly Outrageous Fortune

YOUNG George-Hiram Severance strode briskly up the shady street leading from the station, Yale and happiness written all over his handsome face. His cousin, Adam Lawrence, kept in step with some difficulty. Adam's face wore a welcoming smile as he listened to the cheerful chatter of George-Hiram, but inside he was saying morosely: "Some of us will cook your goose for you yet, young fellow."

If old G. Hiram Severance, the uncle of George-Hiram and Adam, had not been a patriarch no one would have tried to cook young George-Hiram's goose. Old Severance was not a patriarch of the usual sort. The conventional patriarch has a halo of silvery hair and a flowing, dignified beard, serene eyes, a benign forehead, and hospitable knees around which the little children love to cluster, while in the background hovers, worshipfully, the family of elders of whom the patriarch is the revered and adored head.

Old Severance varied from type. If any little children got within cane reach of his knees it was because they were congenital idiots or else strangers in the town of Weston. The nearest approach Weston youngsters made to him was to dent his front door with stones, flung from a safe distance, or, when he had the gout, stand in front of his library windows and make derisive gestures at his bald old head (no silvery halo here), ready to fly when the stern, keen eyes glanced upon them.

Severance had begun patriarching at the age of 24, when his father and stepmother had died, leaving four little half sisters to be brought up on the ample fortune the young man had inherited from his own mother. At the same time his fiancée, a certain red haired Helen Ross, had jilted him. So G.-Hiram brought the little girls up sternly and cloistrally, meaning them not to marry. The natural result was that all four eloped ill advisedly. In a few years death and misfortune had thrown them back on Severance's hands with a brood of some dozen children.

George-Hiram being a posthumous baby, old Severance had had him christened at the age of two days after himself (using a cracked crockery basin, which was the first vessel he found, though, as the baby's mother moaned afterward, he might just as well have taken the punch bowl). He did not adopt the boy legally, but he showed him sufficient favor to make all the other children and their mothers miserably jealous. Old Severance was malicious enough to enjoy the havoc he wrought.

Young George-Hiram was unaware of it. He was a generous, humble minded, thoroughly lovable child, and as he grew up he kept his beautiful spirit. He knew he was his uncle's favorite, but he assumed that old Severance would ultimately divide his fortune fairly. Meanwhile he wanted his cousins to like him. The one he could never win was black browed Adam, who was nevertheless careful to show him all fraternal attentions.

George-Hiram's spring overcoat flapped in the wind as he strode along, his big, zestful blue eyes roving everywhere, his brown curls trying to stand out from under his hat. Suddenly his eyes came to rest on a figure a full block ahead of him. Adam should have felt well at ease, for George-Hiram had come upon the instrument for cooking his goose.

"Hel-lo!" said George-Hiram. "Look at the way that girl walks! Look at her figure! She must be new to the town since I went away. Say, Adam, I believe that is a perfectly good peach! C'me on; let's get closer."

For a step or two Adam lagged. Then he quickened his pace.

"Look at her carriage, will you?" pursued George-Hiram. "Wonder if she's dark or fair? Can't see her hair for that veil. O, Adam, pipe her profile! She can have me! Do you know who she is?"

"She is a Miss Bray," Adam replied. "She is a music teacher, and, I believe, hopes to get some pupils here. She has been in town only a day or two. Yes, I've met her."

"Introduce me, quick!" implored George-Hiram.

They overtook the girl. Adam lifted his hat rather awkwardly.

"Good morning, Miss Bray," he said. "This is—may I present my cousin, Mr. Severance?"

The girl's color had come in a rush. She gave her hand to George-Hiram. George-Hiram dug at Adam's ankle with his heel.

"Why didn't you tell me she had red hair?" the kick meant.

For old Severance had brought up his Special Furniture by John A. Colby & Sons.

Charm in the re-creation of a period room is a quality much to be sought. The combination of this exquisite dressing table with the beautiful French chairs is an arrangement that unites refreshing novelty with perfect good taste.

Although the furnishing and decorating of your home is an artistic undertaking, it should also be a business-like transaction. The very nature of the work demands that it be entrusted to a responsible business institution that has the resources to carry out its guarantee.

Silver Blonde

—the Poet's type. Thin delicate skin, flaxen hair, blue eyes limpid and wide apart.

Formula: Delicately shade Djer-Kiss Duchesse Marie Rouge. Finish with touch of Djer-Kiss Blanche Face Powder. If a rose glow is desired, finish lightly with Djer-Kiss Rose Face Powder.

Golden Blonde

Golden Hair. The skin of warmer tint than the Silver Blonde. Rosy color in cheeks and blue eyes.

Formula: Use Djer-Kiss Charlotte Corday Rouge shading carefully into the coloring of the skin. Finish with Djer-Kiss Chair Face Powder.

Titian Type

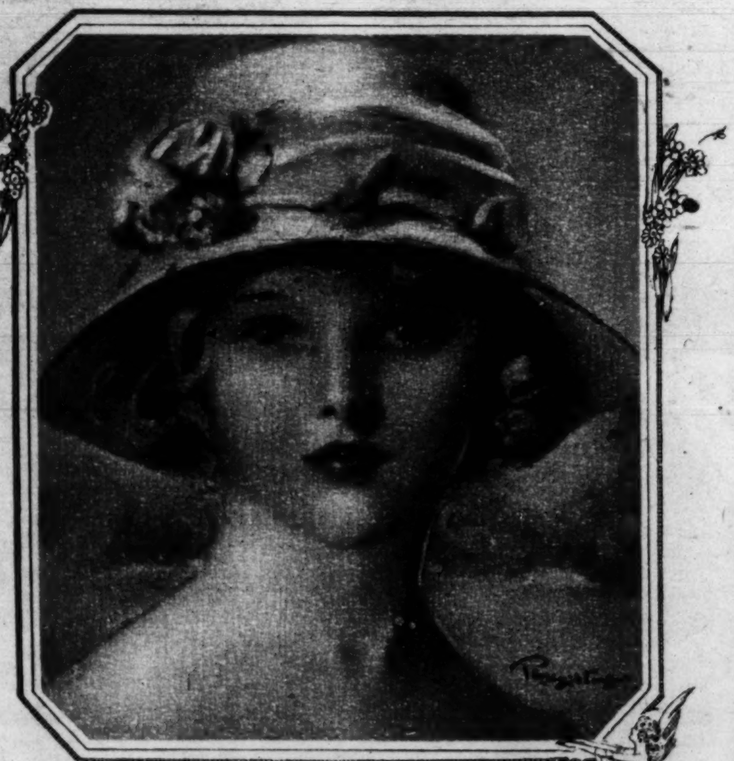
—the Painter's type—with hair of wonderful shades of burnished gold and reddish tints.

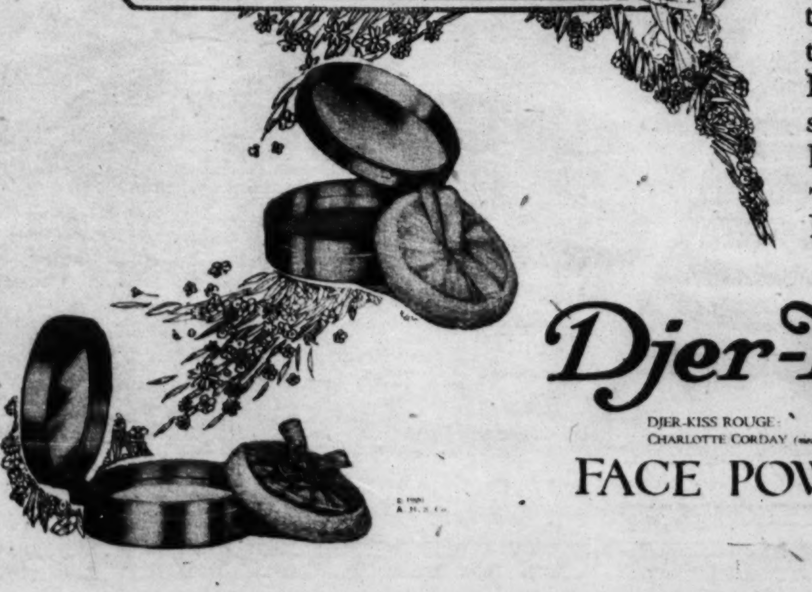
Formula: Daintily apply Djer-Kiss Charlotte Corday Rouge. Finish with Djer-Kiss Chair Face Powder.

Ash Blonde

Grayish Blue Eyes. A skin less colorful than the Golden Blonde. Brownish glints and gleams in hair.

Formula: Brighten the cheeks skilfully with Djer-Kiss Charlotte Corday Rouge. Soften with final touch of Djer-Kiss Chair Face Powder. Or if a deeper rose glow is desired, finish with Djer-Kiss Rose Face Powder.





Send for these color cards today!

Why his downcast eyes spoiled her evening

Has this ever happened to you?

WHAT a good time she was having! Every minute she was growing more elated by her success. Her partner was absorbed in her conversation, charmed by her beauty.

Little by little she grew conscious of other eyes. She glanced to the right. The man at her other side was gazing intently at her hand.

Quickly she doubled up her fingers. How long had he been staring at those nails? Every eye seemed fastened on her rough cuticle — on that one wretched little hangnail. What a horrid evening!

Every day, often when you least suspect it, you are being judged by your fingernails. People no longer excuse ill-kept nails. They know that nowadays it is very easy to keep your nails lovely. Fifteen minutes' care once or twice a week will keep your nails looking always well groomed.

But do not cut your cuticle. The more it is cut, the thicker and tougher it grows—the more sore and unsightly it becomes.

You can keep your cuticle smooth and firm if you manicure the right way. With a bit of cotton wrapped around an orange stick and dipped in Cutex, work around the base of the nail. Then wash the hands, pressing back the cuticle when drying them. For snowy white nail tips apply Cutex Nail White underneath the nails. Finish your manicure with Cutex Nail Polish. It gives a brilliant, lasting gloss.

To keep the cuticle soft and pliable so that you do not have to manicure as often, apply Cutex Cold Cream at night.

Get Cutex at any drug or department store. Cutex, the cuticle remover, comes in 35c and 65c bottles. Cutex Nail White, Nail Polish and Cold Cream are each 35c.

"Convertible in a moment into a kitchen, a dining or a bed room"

Photograph reproduced by courtesy of Motor Age

STANLEY
FERROSTAT
IT WILL NOT BREAK

Noted sportsman builds land yacht equipped with the vacuum bottle that will not break

A WELL-KNOWN Philadelphia sportsman has just purchased a new kind of automobile—especially designed and constructed to his order.

This machine is more than a touring car. It is actually a house on wheels—convertible in a moment into a kitchen, a dining or a bed room.

Four persons can travel in it—can live in it for weeks at a time as comfortably as in the cabin of a luxurious yacht. Not a detail has been overlooked to prepare this cruising automobile to meet every emergency of travel and camping.

The actual photograph reproduced above shows the care and completeness with which these details have been worked out. In the racks—in the corners of the interior—are arranged four one-quart and two two-quart vacuum bottles. These vacuum bottles can stand every jolt and jar—are proof against every accident.

Each one is a Stanley Ferrostat Vacuum Bottle. Made of steel, it cannot break.

How the Stanley Vacuum Bottle is made

The Stanley Bottle consists of two shells made from high quality steel. These two are connected by welded joints to form a single steel unit of great strength. A specially insulated vacuum space separates the inner shell from the outer shell.

No glass or fragile material whatsoever enters the construction of the bottle.

Naturally, the initial cost of the Stanley is higher than the glass vacuum bottle, but it is more economical in the end, because there are no expenses for repairs and replacements. With the Stanley the first cost is the last cost.

The Stanley Bottle is made in one and two-quart sizes. It is the only vacuum bottle which is made in the large size.

Sold at all the better department, drug, sporting, hardware, jewelry and automobile accessory stores. Prices east of the Rocky Mountains, quart size, black standard finish—$10.00; two quart size, black standard finish—$15.00. Get a Stanley Vacuum Bottle from your dealer today.

You use some of the Twink colors like Lux. Others require boiling water and salt. Read directions both outside and inside the package before using.

DAINTIER pinks and blues—clearer greens—softer lavender—for your faded veils, or collars, or blouses.

Twink is made by a wonderful new method for producing colors that makes it possible to get more exquisite shades than have ever before been obtained.

The Twink flakes dissolve instantly in boiling water. You swish your faded collar about in the rich lather. In a twinkling it has as lovely a color as when you bought it.

The Twink colors are so fast you can wash a garment several times before you need Twink it again. Twink will not harm any fabric that water alone will not harm.

Get two or three packages of Twink today. Your druggist, the department stores and the 5 and 10 cent stores have Twink. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

First* — To release the SEALED-IN flavor, place unopened can in boiling water for ten minutes.

Next* — Open in usual way, placing cloth around hot can to protect hand and strengthen grip.

Then* — Serve piping hot and you'll notice their wonderful SEALED-IN flavor and exceptional goodness.

Try These Beans with the Sealed-in Flavor

They are sealed-in the can before the final cooking—and all their natural flavor imprisoned.

None of their essential values can escape through the steam or evaporation of ordinary cooking. All their aroma and goodness are sealed in and cooked into the food. That's the Dyer process that makes them so good.

When you get them, they have that wonder taste of beans rich in protein food values and delicious through fullness of that sealed-in flavor.

Just selected, hand picked beans—sauce made from finest, sun-ripened tomatoes—a slice of tender pork and the flavor all there. Try them and you'll buy them again. Ask your grocer for Dyer's Pork and Beans.

MRS. SIDNEY DREW recently received a most successful gown from the dressmaker. She didn't exactly need any new pictures of herself, but something about that dress just shrieked for a visit to the photographer. So here she is, prettier than ever, and, she wishes you to know, thinner.

You knew, didn't you, that Mrs. Drew has leased the Essanay studio in Chicago for the production of "The Unconventional Maida Greenwood," which is the third installment of her Julian Street series, in which John Cumberland is featured.

Mrs. Drew certainly used the brains God gave her when, after her husband's death, she quietly assumed minor roles herself, devoting most of her time to the producing end of the business. Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew made a wonderful team. Mrs. Drew, co-starring with any one else, would somehow or other have destroyed an illusion.

KATHERINE MAC DONALD is a one best bet that Universal let get away from them. A little more than a year ago she was just not doing anything at all, but spent considerable idle time around the Universal studios, helping her sister, Mary MacLaren, dress, fix her hair, etc.

All of a sudden Paramount discovered in her a beauty and an actress. She appeared in a number of Hart productions, among which was "Shark Monroe," "Riddle Gawne," and "The Squaw Man." She did some work for the Betzwood Film company and now heads her own corporation. (Pretty good for Katherine!)

Miss MacDonald was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., and educated at Blairsville college, Blairsville, Pa. She's 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighs 134 pounds, and is a natural blonde. She was at one time married to Malcolm Strauss, a New York artist. Two years ago, however, she was divorced from him.

Wit came to England with the coffee house

IT has been said that the writers of England were wittier, cleverer, more imaginative after coffee was introduced. Certainly nothing clears a dull brain, and quickens a slumbering fancy like a cup of rich black coffee.

Yuban has the flavor that satisfies your deepest longing for coffee.

When the world seems dull and unprofitable, a cup of Yuban will fire your spirit with the joy of life.

OPENED! America's First Parisian Exhibit of Dress Fashion for Fall

The Crown
Parisian Showing features
DRESSES
of Tricotine, Poiret Twill, Serge, Satin and Knitted Fabrics of Wool and Fibre Silk

TO those representatives of shops of fashion-importance in America who have already seen it at our New York showrooms, this exhibit has delivered not only the first authentic message about the Fall dress mode, but, in a larger sense, a deeper consciousness of what the Crown idea has meant for fashion in America.

Maintaining designing headquarters in Paris, having its fingers on the very heart-pulse of the mode, Crown can evolve, as in this showing, a brilliant and authoritative version of the Parisian dress vogue for American needs, at a speed that permits American presentation often before Paris itself has glimpsed a mode.

With a widened price-range, the inclusion of all smart fabrics, the arrival of more new models speeded over to mirror the further development of the mode, this First Exhibit is an essential consideration in the Fall plans of those better stores, to the clientele of which the dictates of Paris are of paramount importance in the choice of Fall wardrobes.

The Place de la Concorde, on which is situated one of Paris' most fashionable hotels, the Crillon, is also the gateway to the Champs Elysées.

O! My Dear!

What a Treat There Is in Store for You!

Some day you will get tired of smeary, sticky creams and will try the LIQUID COLD CREAM, FRESCA BEAUTY LOTION.

This snow white, delicately perfumed, creamy liquid combines the merits of a cold cream with the healing, soothing qualities of a lotion.

You have never used anything else half so delightful for face, hands, arms and bust. It is the perfect foundation for face powder or talcum.

THE COUPON WILL BRING A TRIAL.

Sold in 50 cent bottles by druggists and toilet counters. Ask for FRESCA.

Another treat is found in the new and "different" FRESCA HAIR REMOVER.

This is a liquid, DELIGHTFULLY PERFUMED, and it is only necessary to touch any undesirable hair growth with FRESCA HAIR REMOVER to see it dissolve at once.

No matter how thick or bristly, it melts away, leaving NO REDNESS, NO IRRITATION.

Comes to you ready for instant use and will last for an indefinite time. Sold at drug and toilet counters for $1.00. Ask for FRESCA.

Mail orders filled direct, postage paid.

A face powder free from lead, starch, rice powder or any harmful or blackhead forming ingredient will be found in FRESCA BEAUTY POWDER. This powder will enhance the beauty of ANY SKIN.

Smooth, delicate and delightful to use, it has the "never rub off" quality so essential in an altogether satisfactory face powder.

And you never tested a powder more refreshingly perfumed.

Sold at drug and toilet counters for 50 cents. Ask for FRESCA.

Women say La-may stays on better than any other face powder.

UP TO the present time it has been almost impossible to get a face powder to stay on longer than it takes to put it on. You powder your nose nicely and the first gust of wind or the first puff of your handkerchief and away goes the powder, leaving your nose shiny and conspicuous, probably just when you would give anything to appear at your best. A specialist has perfected a pure powder that really stays on; that stays on until you wash it off. It does not contain white lead or rice powder to make it stay on. This improved formula contains a medicinal powder doctors prescribe to improve the complexion. In fact, this powder helps to prevent and reduce enlarged pores and irritations. This unusual powder is called La-may (French, Poudre L'Ame). Because La-may is so pure and because it stays on so well, it is already used by over a million American women. All dealers carry the large sixty-cent box and many dealers also carry the generous thirty-cent size. When you use this harmless powder and see how beautifully it improves your complexion you will understand why La-may so quickly became the most popular beauty powder sold in New York. Women who have tried all kinds of face powder say they cannot buy a better powder anywhere at any price. Herbert Roystone, 16 East 18th St., N. Y.

At last! A New Idea in Talcum Powder!

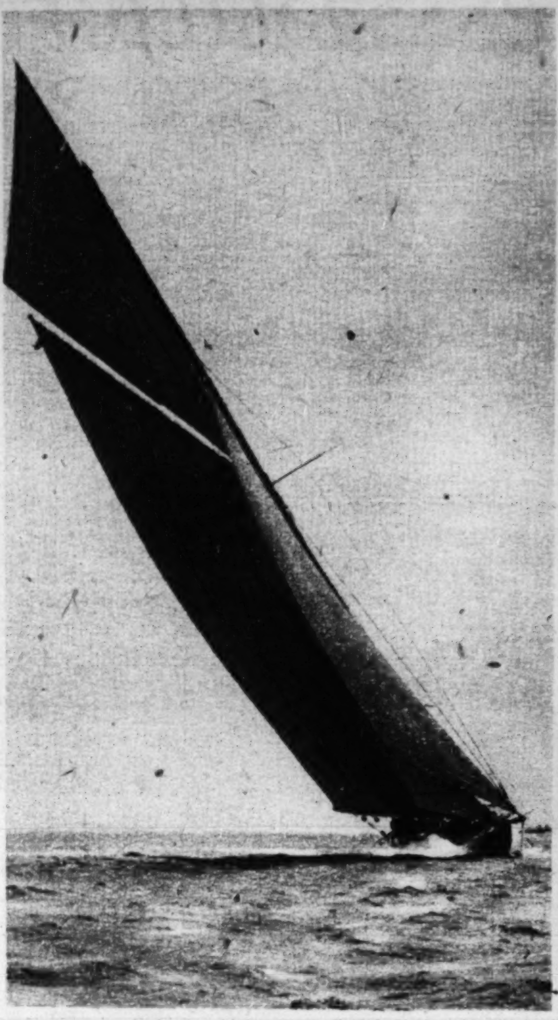
Women Everywhere Are Talking About a Wonderful New, Improved Kind of Talcum Powder

The specialist who created the popular La-may Face Powder has perfected a new kind of talcum. This new invention is two articles in one. It can be used for everything for which talcum is now used and it has double value in preventing the souring of perspiration. It is the souring of perspiration that people who perspire freely find so objectionable. Women who use this new talcum say it is wonderful for this purpose and that it is also an excellent, high grade toilet talcum. It is healing, soothing and delightfully fragrant. Of course, it is called La-may. It sells in the stores for only thirty cents. The package is also new. The box is so attractive that it makes a beautiful dressing table ornament. When you use this new La-may Talcum you will understand why it is almost impossible to get enough boxes to supply the great demand. If your local druggist has not got it yet he will cheerfully order it for you.

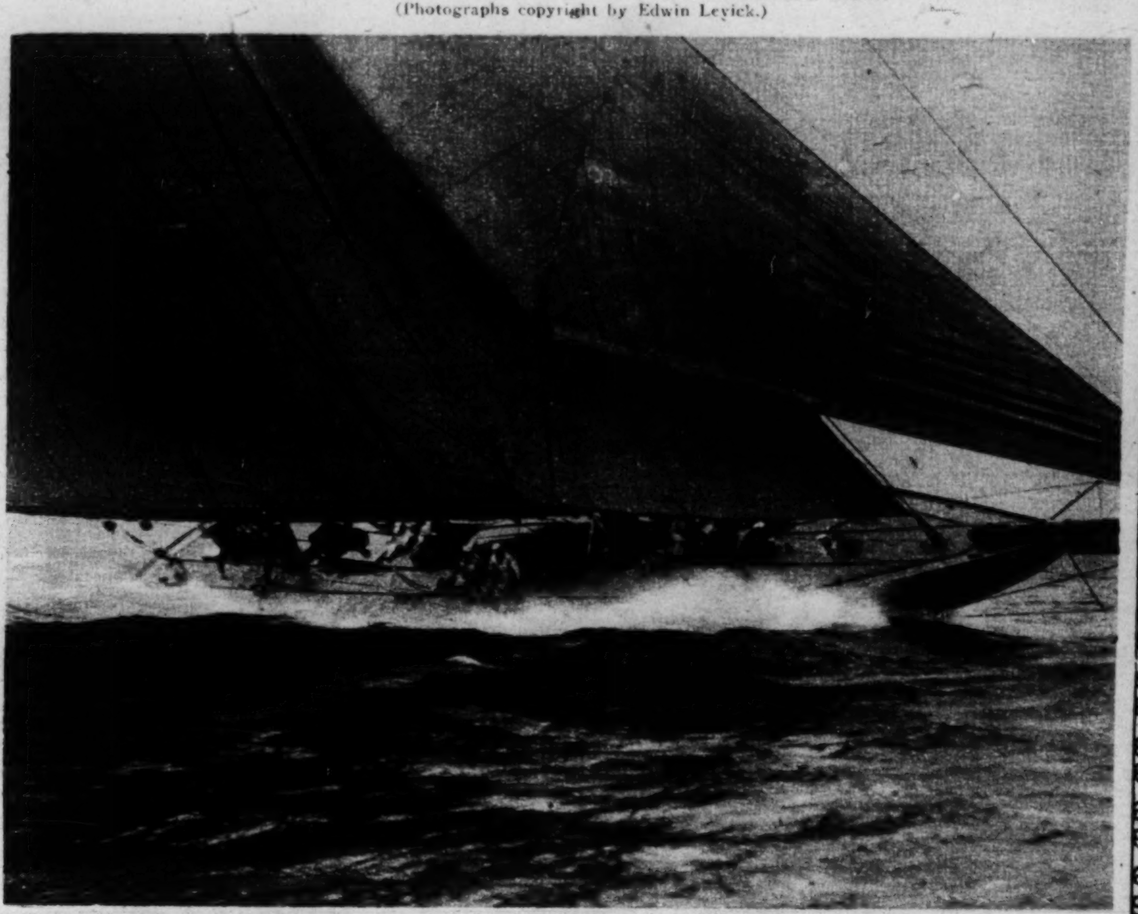
The WRECK of the RESOLUTE

What a Would-Be Cup Defender Looks Like When It Indulges in a Bit of Marine Melodrama with a Camera Man Off the Starboard Bow.

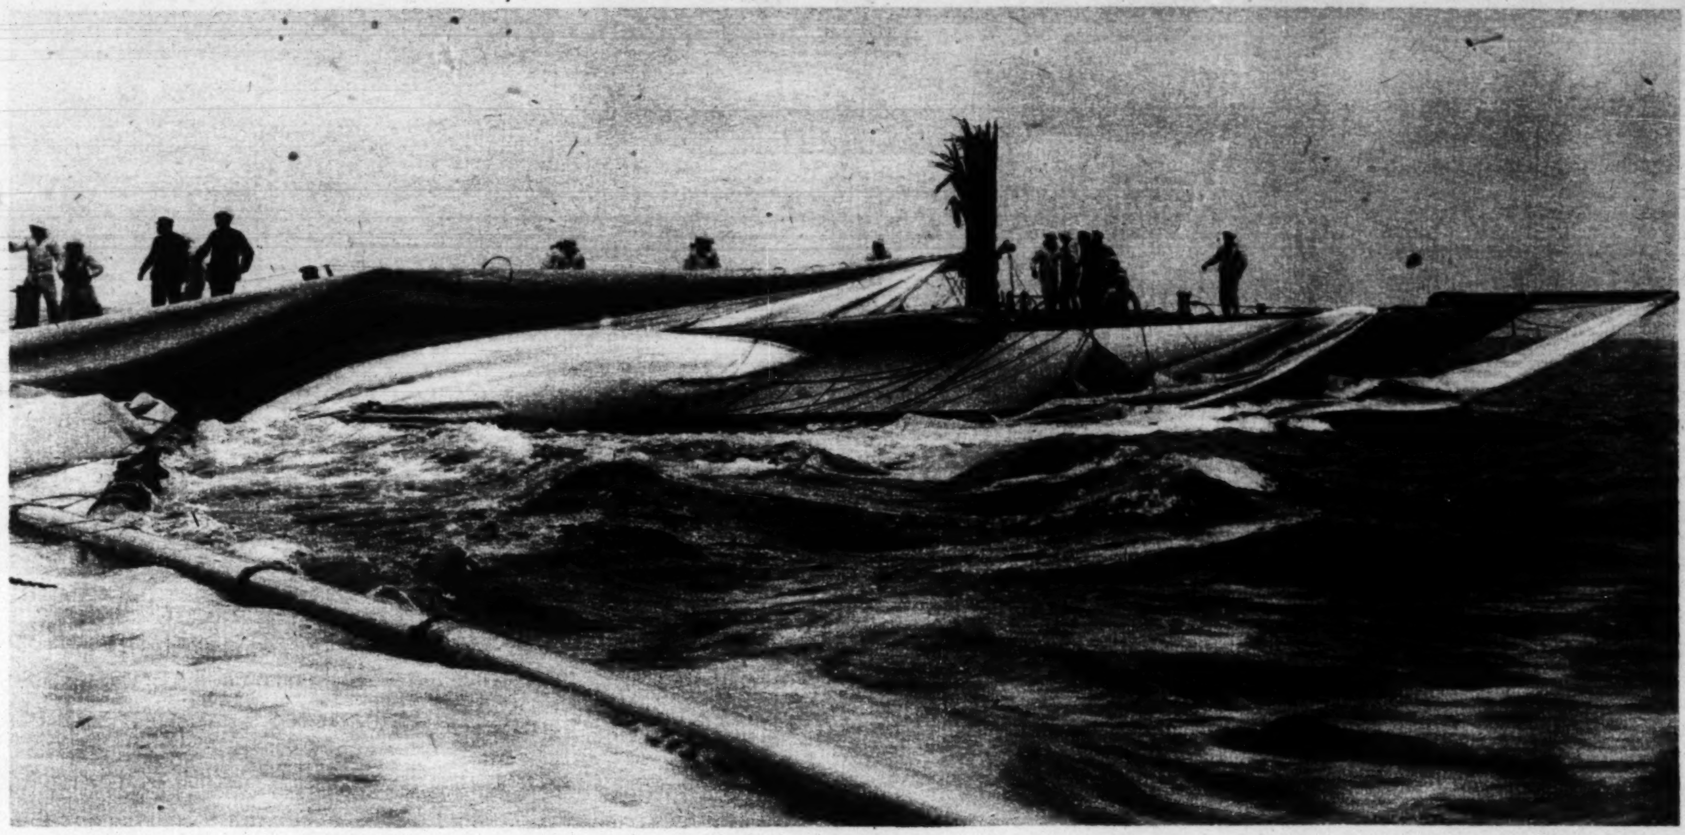
(Photographs copyright by Edwin Levick.)



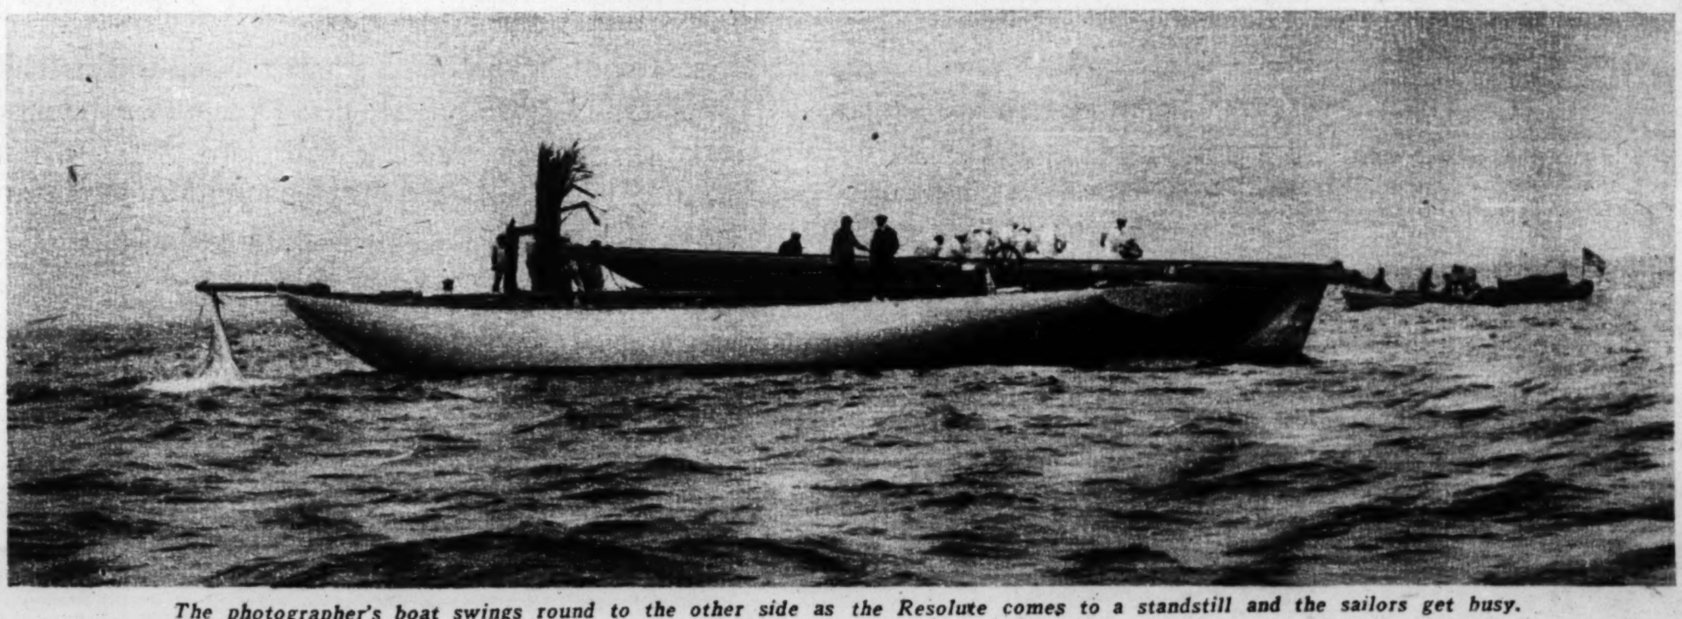
The Resolute heeling to the squall.



Bowling along with decks awash ten seconds before the catastrophe.



Then, zowie! The mast snaps off and the towering spread of canvas is over the side, the sloop still under way and the crew (note their astonished attitudes) evidently still wondering what struck them.



The photographer's boat swings round to the other side as the Resolute comes to a standstill and the sailors get busy.

This interesting series of photographs was taken during the first trial race off New Haven, Conn., for the honor of defending the America's cup against Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock IV. The Resolute was leading the Vanitie by one minute when the mast gave way under a heavy gust of wind and crashed into the sea, carrying two men with it. The men were rescued and the Resolute was promptly fitted out with a new steel mast, but the incident was a painful one while it lasted.

End Gray Hair
Let Science Show You How

A Scientific Product

Until now women have suffered their hair to become gray simply because they found old-time, crude dyes distasteful.

For years science has sought a way for scientifically restoring hair to its natural color.

Now that way has been found. And it is offered to women in Mary T. Goldman's Scientific Hair Color Restorer.

No treatments are required. You apply it yourself, easily, quickly and surely. It will not fade or wash off.

Just comb this pure, dainty, colorless liquid through your hair. In from 4 to 8 days every gray hair will be restored to its natural color.

A Free Test

Women use this scientific hair color restorer with the same freedom they do powder.

However, we want you first to know its wonderful results. What we urge is a trial test. It will cost you nothing.

Mary T. Goldman's
Scientific Hair Color Restorer

Cut out the coupon. Mark on it the exact color of your hair. Mail it to us, and we will send you free a trial bottle of Mary T. Goldman's and one of our special combs.

Try it on a single lock of your hair. Note the results. Then you will know why thousands of women have already used this scientific hair color restorer.

The Reason

"Two Years Old and Looks Like a New Top"

ARE your top and side curtains gray, dusty and leaky? Here's a preparation with which you yourself can easily and quickly make them look like new. Johnson's Black-Lac gives perfect satisfaction on any kind of a top—leather, imitation leather or mohair. One coat imparts a rich black surface just like new.

Johnson's Black-Lac is easy to apply—dries in fifteen minutes—does not rub off on the hands or clothing—is permanent, waterproof and inexpensive.

Do not hesitate to use Johnson's Black-Lac on the finest leather—it acts as a preservative and renders the leather soft and flexible. It requires no experience to apply Johnson's Black-Lac—all you need is a brush and an hour's time.

JOHNSON'S BLACK-LAC TOP DRESSING

Start today to reduce the depreciation of your automobile. An hour or two a month and JOHNSON'S CAR SAVERS will prove their value in dollars and cents when you come to sell or turn in your car. There's a JOHNSON CAR SAVER for every purpose. No experience is necessary for their use—any motorist can successfully apply them.

Johnson's Carbon Remover—the easiest, cleanest, safest and most satisfactory remedy for carbon. Will save you $3.00 to $5.00 over other methods and without laying up your car. You can do it yourself in 10 minutes—without even soiling your hands—and the cost is trifling. Half-pints, 75c.

Johnson's Radiator Cement—mends leaky radiators. Comes in liquid form—easy to use. Will ordinarily seal leaks in from two to ten minutes. Half-pints, 75c.

Johnson's Stop-Squeak Oil—penetrates between the spring leaves, thoroughly lubricating them. Simply paint it on with a brush or squirt it on with an oil can. Half-pints, 35c.

Johnson's Cleaner—is just the thing for removing spots, stains, tar, alkali, etc., from body, hood and fenders. Half-pound cans, 45c.

Johnson's Prepared Wax Liquid—the dustless polish. Imparts a hard, dry, glasslike polish. Preserves the varnish and protects it from the weather. Half-pints, 50c.

Johnson's Auto-Lak—an automobile body varnish that amateurs can use successfully. You can finish your car one day and drive it the next. Pints, $1.00.

Insist upon your dealer supplying you with JOHNSON'S CAR SAVERS. Don't stock or use unknown substitutes. Write for our booklet on Keeping Cars Young—it's free.

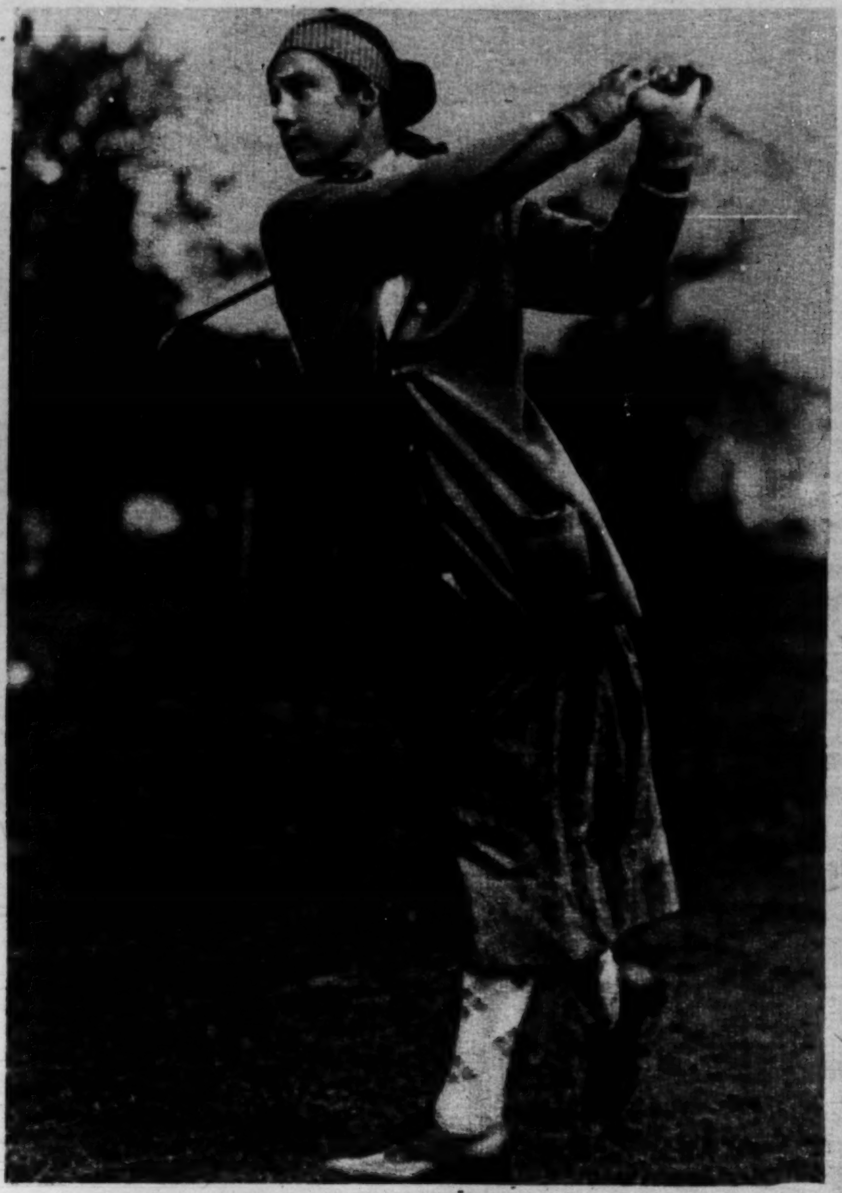
"DEMONESS OF THE TENNIS COURTS" is the sobriquet given in England to Miss E. Colyer, perhaps the most strenuous young player of her sex the British isles have produced. This remarkable photograph shows her in action in a match at Hurlingham. And some people call tennis a "quiet game!"

(Photograph from International.)



"THE MOST MARVELOUS WOMAN GOLFER"—Miss Cecil Leitch established her claim to this title at the tournament in Ireland last month, retaining the women's championship of Great Britain, which she won in 1914, and defeating two of the American aspirants, Miss Rosamond Sherwood and Miss Marion Hollins.

SHIPWRECK? NOT AT ALL—Merely some of Uncle Sam's sailors at the routine job of getting a target ready for the fleet's gun practice in southern waters. The weather makes no difference when it's a question of marksmanship, and the men must be good swimmers, for they frequently get a ducking.

Fashions Beauty Contests

FROCKS FOR THE SUMMER MORNING By Corinne Lowe

This department appears every day in The Chicago Tribune.

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—If you want to see style you do not look at the shop windows. Those alluring frocks are merely modes. And a mode is not a style until some one really wears it.

The some one who can make a style is the woman whom you will see on upper Fifth avenue one of these early summer mornings. This woman has been detained in town longer than usual because of the weather. And even if she has consented to put up with the beauty of the June country she has a habit of running into town once or twice a week for shopping and lunch.

And what does she wear on Fifth avenue—this woman who does so much to set the style for Chehalis, Wash., and Green Castle, Pa.? Being interested in this vibrant theme, I stood the other day and took careful note of what she of New York and Newport selected for summer street wear. Here was the answer:

Nearly every smart woman I knew by sight had on a navy tricotine suit with fur piece and a frill of white blouse—hand made, French in origin, and exquisite in every thread. With this she put, as a rule, brown shoes and stockings, and two out of every three women selected for their millinery broad brimmed sailor hats adorned with wreaths of field flowers.

The last item deserves at least a paragraph of separate mention. Never in the world have I seen so many broad brimmed hats trimmed with wreaths of flowers as I have this spring. The prevalence of these bonnets chills one with doubt. Are we becoming like our English sisters, who always have gone in for hats, rather than for huts, wigwams, and the various chic atrocities which we have always committed? Can it be true that our harried spirits have at last taken refuge in the benighted theory that a hat is something to shelter the eyes and not to smother the eyebrows? Horrors! Are we going in for mere becomingness?

Be that as it may, the broad brimmed, wreath adorned hat is with us for street wear. Often it comes in natural colored rough straw, against which the favorite field flowers rest in their best tonal manner. One of such hats I saw the other day was trimmed, not with these flowers, but with a Caesar-like chaplet of red leaves, and binding about the brim edge repeated the red. Very becoming to the petite brunette who wore it and in excellent taste with her blue tricotine suit!

When the fashionable woman who sets the style departs for her country house on the Hudson and later on when she goes to Newport she will select for early morning wear the sort of simple little frock which we have pictured here today. This is the type of frock which is really the backbone of the summer wardrobe, and even the business woman who in winter will consent to nothing more capricious than tweed suit, silk shirt, and four in hand reverts to type at the first warm day.

Organdy is the first choice for the summer morning, and in organdy you may have any choice of color from black or navy blue to cherry and flame color. The first model—that at the left of the page—which we show here is of reseda green, and to this quilled bands of gray taffeta present a charming contrast of color. Speaking of ribbon, its use on every kind of frock and blouse is too familiar to need further emphasis. Newer than ribbon even is the habit of placing strips of taffeta upon your summery cotton. Thus, one of the most delightful evening wear organdies which I have seen set strips of yellow orange taffeta at intervals of skirt and fichu. The wide sash of this was orange taffeta ribbon faced with black and, to further carry out the color scheme, clusters of black eyed Susans were crocheted here and there upon skirt and bodice.

Indeed, to embellish our summer wardrobes Aunt Jessie may revive not only her talent for painting, but her other one of crocheting. No longer, however, will the tidy and the lambrequin get it. Crocheted flowers are appearing in every shape and on every kind of summer gown. The second model from the left illustrates this tendency in the big roses of brown wool, which are attached to a girdle of brown ribbon on a yellow organdy dress. Tunic, neck, and line, and short sleeves are banded in self material. And, by the way, the combination of brown and yellow is so persistent in these summery creations that one sometimes forgets that there are other color things to do.

Yet gray has come in for a tremendous amount of attention, and certainly for the girl with the sea shell skin and golden hair nothing could be lovelier. For such a girl we prescribe the frock at the right—a dotted swiss in soft gray with triple flounces scalloped and bound in rose colored organdy. The same rose color appears in fichu, belts, and as a finish for the sleeves.

For our sterner summer hours gingham is meeting with all the success of previous seasons and the model second from the right shows you a smart gingham manner. The material here is black and white check and the straight line is broken by pockets bound in white organdy. The latter fabric appears also in the hemstitched collar, the plaited frill down the front, and the binding of the short sleeves.

To trim up the piazza of the country house these June mornings there are some delightful new wool jersey suits with brushed wool collars in check or stripe. These suits are most stunning in white and one that I saw the other day came off successfully from a tuxedo collar of purple and white striped wool of the brushed variety. The skirts of such suits are generally plain and instead of the plaits of which we have had such a plethora mere buttons are used.

Meanwhile for afternoon wear georgette continues to be just about the most favored material. Often these georgettes are heavily beaded and sometimes one sees a model stunningly combined with point d'esprit. An example of this latter occurred in a frock I reviewed the other day. Here a navy georgette printed in high colors was veiled in navy point d'esprit made with a full skirt dropping several inches below the georgette foundation. The corsage was trimmed with inch wide navy ribbons, applied also to give the proper hip fullness.

A Complete, Exclusive Specialty Shop for Women

An Exhibit of Summer Modes
Starting Tomorrow

THE introduction of new ideas in sports apparel, which has become the prevailing mode of the season—a varied presentation of dainty Summer frocks that are utterly feminine—these will be a few of the reasons why this exclusive shop for women will be so interesting this week.

The Wrap of the Hour: Knitted Wool or French Jersey

ONE of the smartest innovations in outer wear, appropriate for town, country, mountain or beach, are these Capes fashioned of French Jersey or knitted of soft wool. They also make an ideal auto wrap. The large variety of plain and combination colors and distinctive styles adds interest to choosing.

Moderately priced, $15.00 to $65.00

The Specialized Department of Sports Apparel
Features Riding Togs
Both Linen and Woolen Habits
$25.00 to $95.00

New Sports Skirts Arrive

THE most important feature, almost, of one's Summer wardrobe is the Sports Skirt. Really new and different are these which have just come in—ranging from the beautiful pleated crepe de chines which are being received with such favor by Fashion, through various silken fabrics to the smart, trim, practical Sport Skirt of French Jersey.

$10.00 to $65.00

The New Taffeta Hats

THE styles represented in these Taffeta Hats, fresh from our private workroom, emphasize the distinction which characterizes Stevens millinery modes. A white facing makes a lovely frame for the face on some of the black and navy hats, while white flowers give a charming piquancy to others.

$15.00 to $40.00

The Sports Suit

WHETHER it is of Men's Wear Pongee, French Jersey or Silk Tricolette, the Sports Suit holds an enviable position this Summer in the fashionable woman's wardrobe. The mannish trim lines of these Suits and their brilliant colorings epitomize the trend of the season's mode.

Prices $45.00 to $75.00

The Blouse to Match

A SPORTS BLOUSE either is or it isn't, which means that if a blouse is to be a success it must have that indefinable "chic" that is the result of perfect tailoring.

Our heavy Wash Silk Tailored Blouses for sports wear and Silk Shirts for riding habits assure a costume success.

$13.50 to $22.50

All-Silk Tuxedo Sweaters

WHEN Sweaters such as these are spun of fine silk thread in plain weaves they show a finesse of tailoring that wins the sports enthusiast's warmest approval. They come in vivid shades as well as unique color combinations. While the styles are versatile, the tuxedo front mode predominates.

$55.00 to $85.00

Summer Furs to Lend Charm

IT'S queer how much the small choker adds to the street frock or suit—but it does give an air of distinction. The Fur Coatees serve an extra purpose these cool evenings—they're warm as well as becoming. In Jap Mink, Sable, Stone and Baum Marten, Kolinsky and Squirrel.

$35.00 and up

Individualized Versions of The Summer Modes in Frocks

NEVER were Frocks more lovely. They appeal instantly to those who demand something "different"—such a delightful degree of elegance is achieved by their engaging simplicity and charm.

A surprisingly complete collection is shown and though prices are very moderate the high quality of material and finesse of detail is never overlooked.

$20.00 to $85.00

5,000 Yards Sport Skirtings, $3.85

THIS lot contains the season's best weaves in white and colors. The price is as low as if not lower than they have ever sold for. Very special, $3.85.

CHILDHOOD ADVENTURES

HARDLY a grownup can look back upon childhood days without amusing memories of his or her own childish adventures, e'en though the incident brought the sting of the old hickory to a tender young anatomy. What was the most amusing thing you did as a youngster? You must have been up to some tricks. We'd like to hear about it. Address Funniest Childhood Adventures, Chicago Tribune. Don't get this contest mixed with Bright Sayings. It's deeds we want to hear about. The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published.

For and By BUSINESS GIRLS

By Loretta King.

Miss King will be glad to help business girls solve their problems. If you want a personal answer send a stamped, addressed envelope. Address Miss Loretta King, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago.

FIND CONGENIAL WORK.

A BUSINESS girl who feels that she is out of her element, dislikes the work she is doing, and is dissatisfied with her job has little chance for success and is in danger of losing her natural ambition and pleasant disposition. Her only salvation is to change to more congenial work as quickly as possible.

I have known several bright girls who allowed themselves to struggle along at work they despised and who grew irritable and unhappy because they lacked the courage and initiative to try for a more congenial occupation.

A friend of mine, after four years of drudgery and discontent at work that she disliked, decided to try her hand at something new. The new work had an especial appeal for her, and in less than two years after her venture she was known in the new field as one of the most successful women in the business.

Her experience may be an inspiration to other business girls who are beginning to realize that they are not happy in their present occupations and are in need of a change.

Nearly six years ago Mary R., at the suggestion of her employer, brought her young sister Alice into the office to help her with the bookkeeping. Alice was friendly and good-natured and immediately worked herself into the good graces of every one in and about the office.

She didn't like the work even from the beginning, but as she was anxious not to fail her sister, she worked hard for the first year, and established herself as a permanent member of the force.

During the second year Alice's lovely disposition vanished and with it went her friendly association with the other people in the office. She grew cranky and moody, and besides being miserable herself she made her sister unhappy.

She complained continually about the work to Mary, but the older sister listened sympathetically and refrained from scolding, as she realized that while the work was intensely interesting to her, it was nothing but drudgery to Alice.

One day a young woman came into the office to see the proprietor in regard to the site of a new building that he contemplated erecting. In his absence Alice talked to the young woman, who represented the real estate firm.

Alice developed a keen interest in the real estate agent, who became a frequent caller at the office. Mary noticed her animation whenever the new friend was there, and the eagerness with which she listened to the agent's business chatter.

Finally Mary suggested that Alice try for a job with the real estate firm where her friend worked, and promised that if she didn't make a success of buying and selling real estate she could have her old job back.

Alice acted on her sister's suggestion, secured the desired position, and has never hinted that she'd like to return. I met her not long ago and, while I had heard of her success and the big commissions she was drawing on her sales, I wasn't prepared for the great change that had taken place in her. Alice is her old self once more; happy of disposition, friendly, and full of animation. The cross and moody Alice is no more.

A change in occupation may do for other discontented business girls what it has done for Alice.

No Sugar

Required for Jiffy-Jell Desserts

They come ready-sweetened.

They come acidulated with pure fruit acid, made from lemons or from grapes.

A bottle of liquid fruit flavor comes in each package. We crush the fruit, condense the juice and seal it in a bottle. So Jiffy-Jell is a real-fruit dainty, rich in fruit.

Simply add boiling water as directed on package, then the fruit essence from the bottle, and let cool.

If you used fresh fruit, plus a lot of sugar, you could make nothing more delicious.

Serves six—at trifling cost

One package of Jiffy-Jell serves six in mold form, or twelve if you whip the jell. And the fruit alone which we use in it would cost you more than the whole dessert.

Milk—Nature's Perfect Food

A bulletin on the subject of "Milk" recently issued under the co-operation of the Department of Agriculture at Washington, says:

"Milk contains all the things that the body needs in better proportion than any other food. It is milk not medicine that children often need.

"Milk, the child's best friend, is also of value in the diet of grown persons. It is the safeguard which insures the things necessary to keep the body vigorous and the health good. Milk is a food as well as a drink. It is a food to be compared with meat, bread and potatoes."

Nothing Better than Danish Pride Milk for Cereals of All Kinds

Use Danish Pride Milk to Season the Dish of Fruit or Berries

Danish Pride Milk Adds a Fine, Creamy Flavor to Coffee, Cocoa or Tea

An Evaporated Milk of Rare Purity and Richness

When you open a can of Danish Pride Evaporated Milk you may be positively sure of several things. One is that it is pure; Another is that it is rich in cream quality, unsurpassed by any milk in the world; Another feature is its splendid, natural flavor. A case or a can of Danish Pride in your pantry makes you safe in any cooking emergency, because it can be used in scores of different ways and is always sweet and ready for instant use.

Used by Thousands Every Day

You can find no food that can be used for as many different purposes in preparing the meal, as Danish Pride Milk. In these days of high prices it is your most economical food, for it is rich in protein—that most essential, strength-giving property. No part of the food value of the milk is wasted. Nothing is added and nothing taken away except water.

Danish Pride Their Choice

In a public test of over a dozen different kinds of evaporated milk, 93 Chicago women out of 106 chose Danish Pride. They found it ranked 100% in natural flavor, absence of any burnt taste, in richness, color and creaminess. They tested it in all its various uses for cooking, cereals, fruit, coffee, etc. They recommend it to anyone wishing a pure, wholesome milk.

A Good Reason for Danish Pride Superiority

Danish Pride Milk is the pride of the North Shore Country, that famous dairying section of America. It comes from hand-fed cows and is the "cream of the country." It is treated in most modern condenseries by the widely known Enz process of canning and sterilization. A milk superior to Danish Pride does not exist.

TWO young teeners, 17 and 18, were discussing their mammas confidentially one day recently. "My mother," said the 17 year old, "is awfully old. She doesn't want to go anywhere or do anything. Just wants to sit around in a comfortable gown and be waited on."

"Mine," said the 18 year old, "is just the opposite. She's in for everything. The boys are all crazy about her. They call her the best looking girl in our crowd. And I'm so proud of her."

Both mammas were born in the same month of the same year. But one looks as if she were born at least twenty years before the other. You know which one it is, don't you?

Trite as it may seem to talk of the youthfulness of 40 year old women in these days, there remain enough of them who fail on the youthful figure and the youthful spirit to make one wonder why.

The great mass of people do not remain young as long as they are entitled to. The death rate at 40 is about three times as great as at 20. And, more than that, most folk who live longer than 40 are subject to degenerative diseases such as paralysis, failing heart, hardening of the arteries, diseases of the kidneys, and cancer. In the United States there are annually between the ages of 30 and 60 about 130,000 deaths from degenerative diseases, not including cancer. These figures are presented in a recent issue of the Life Extension Institute Journal, along with some pithy rules for keeping young.

"We believe too much in age and the slow encroachment of disease," the editor writes. "We sit shivering in anticipation of our fate. If we had a vision of the power of youth, a conviction of its triumphant overcoming of difficulties, we would rise up in our might and shout defiance to old age and decay. We would keep hard and fit, lean and stripped of all fat, of all bad living habits, and of all the soft vices of civilization.

"This is no idle dream," continues the editor. "The youngest women I know are two gentlewomen of admittedly middle age who rise at 6:30 and take cold plunges all through the winter. With servants in the house they prefer to prepare their own breakfasts and at an hour when New York still blinks its sleepy eyes they are setting about the management of their business. They love living strenuously. This fall they decorated their house, painting walls and floors with their own hands. Last summer they ran a farm. They will never be old."

These seven rules to keep young apply to every woman and every man as well and are guaranteed to do the work:

1. Do not eat too much, especially of meat and of rich, highly seasoned foods.

2. Eat plenty of fruit and bulky or green vegetables.

3. Take daily exercise — not half heartedly. Get heated! Use your muscles!

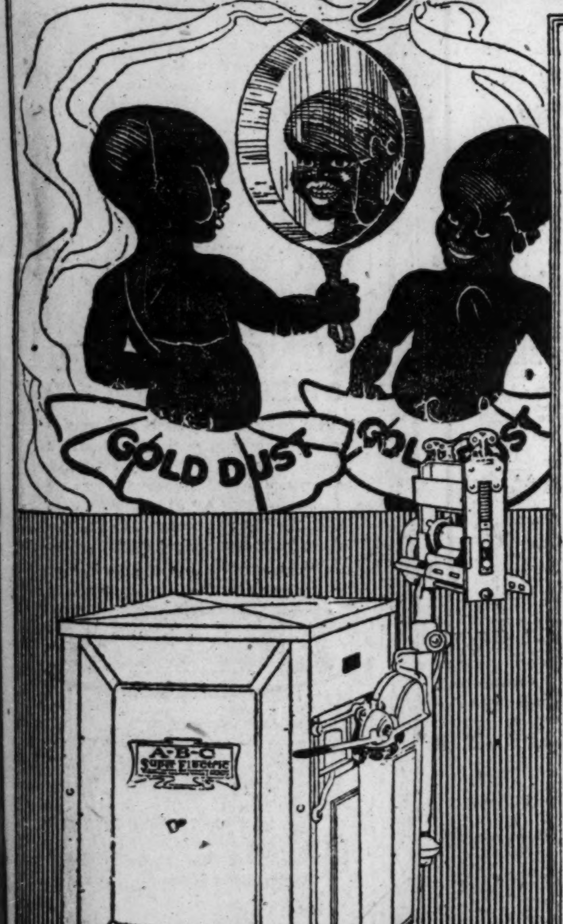
4. Rest and relax. Few people know how really to relax. Study the cat and see how she gives herself up and lets go every muscle.

5. Live cleanly. Live your best and you will not be a victim of vice. Many degenerative diseases are due to infections from bacteria. Exercise, care of the teeth and gums, the prevention of constipation by proper food are greater helpers to avoiding disease.

6.—Keep serene. Live simply.

7. These are not rules for playing safe. We must always dare and do; strive, work, play, love, learn intensely. Vivid enjoyment of each day, giving up everything and relaxing each night. That is the way to keep young.

"Let the A-B-C do your work"



The industrious little Gold Dust twins, and the product they represent, have long endeared themselves to the housewife for their ability to lighten household cares and banish dirt. And now we find them—still smiling—applying the same identical principle to the peer of electric washers.

Just ask the woman who owns one. She takes keen satisfaction in the possession of her A-B-C Super Electric Washer, because it does the work better, more cheaply, washes the clothes cleaner and renders an all around perfect satisfaction.

More than 60 electrical appliance dealers in and near Chicago are equipped to give you an A-B-C demonstration on your next wash day. We will send the name of the nearest one to you. Or call at our convenient loop store for a demonstration.

Let the A-B-C do your work and forget that you ever had a wash-day care.

Real Love Stories

Do you know a real love story—one that is stranger than fiction? It is the idea that is wanted. No attention will be paid to literary style. The Tribune will pay $5 for every story published. No manuscripts returned. Address Doris Blake, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago.

IN SEARCH OF A PRINCE.

IN the summer of 1913 a young friend of mine living in Chicago was invited by her aunt in Boston to accompany her on a trip through Europe, which she gladly accepted.

Having a keen sense of humor, a jovial and sunny disposition, my friend jokingly informed all who bade her bon voyage that she would not return ere she had captured a prince, count, duke or what not of the nobility.

Two trunks containing her wardrobe were shipped on to New York, where my friend's aunt joined her. To my friend's consternation upon making arrangements to have her steamer trunk brought to her state room it as well as the other could not be located. The hour for sailing came and still the trunks were not found and my friend had to leave without them.

For the first two days she remained close to her state room, then through an acquaintanceship formed with a woman of similar stature to my friend to whom she confided her predicament, she was enabled to borrow sufficient clothes to permit of her enjoying the balance of the trip to her heart's content.

Contrary to their expectations, the trunks failed to arrive on subsequent steamers, so my friend purchased a new wardrobe in London, together with a couple of suitcases, and finished her tour of Europe in this fashion.

But the elusive prince was conspicuous by his absence; in fact they were not even aware of having seen any of the nobility, and after visiting the principal points of interest the return trip was made.

Upon landing in New York my friend telegraphed her parents the hour of her arrival in Chicago, requesting that they meet her at the station. For some reason quite as mysterious as the nonarrival of the trunks at the steamer dock, her parents failed to receive the telegram in time and upon reaching Chicago was quite dismayed not to find any one awaiting her.

Living as she did within a stone's throw of the "L" station, and being able to board the "L" at the door of the railroad station, she decided to use that method of locomotion, rather than resort to a taxi, notwithstanding she carried the two suit cases with which she toured Europe.

In climbing the "L" stairs she elicited the sympathy of a well dressed young man who noted her predicament and inquired whether or not he might assist her. For a moment she hesitated, but consented, and a short conversation ensued. He boarded the same train and, taking the liberty which such acquaintanceships often permit, seated himself at her side. He proved most interesting to my friend and asked if he might not assist her to her home, to which she acquiesced. A request was made to call the following evening, which request was granted, as were innumerable subsequent ones.

In the spring of the following year they were married. So her European trip netted her her fairy prince, but she captured him in Chicago and on the "L" stairway.

Foot suffering is so needless!

No, no, no, you don't have to endure any foot suffering. Science has made your escape so easy, so simple that you needn't endure it another day—not one

Do your feet tire easily—lose their "spring"—ache when you've walked a short distance?

Are there pains in your insteps—tender spots on your heels? Do the soles of your feet burn?

Do your feet perspire? Do your toes feel pinched in your shoes—your nerves seem to be tied in a knot so that you must hurry home just to relax—to rest your aching feet and body?

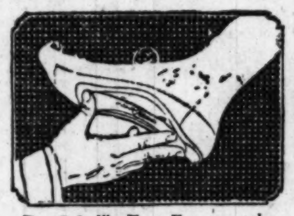
Watch out! It may be that the arches in your feet are weak, are sagging from their normal positions, the muscles and ligaments being strained from carrying your body's weight.

In that event, the distressing condition known as "flat foot" is almost certainly ahead of you.

To avert that, physicians and orthopedic specialists agree there's just one thing you can do wisely. Give your arches some gentle mechanical support. Nature must have this help.

How to make sure of the correct support

For weak or strained arches—arches that are breaking down—there's one support that has proved successful through years of use—Dr. Scholl's Foot-Eazer, invented by the internationally-known foot specialist, Dr. Wm. M. Scholl. It has brought relief to millions of men, women and children foot sufferers—wonderful relief—restoring their feet to perfect usefulness.



Dr. Scholl's Foot-Eazer gently holds the weak, falling longitudinal arch in its correct position. It eases tired muscles and nerves, puts the spring back into your step—gives you grace and poise

Go today to the store in your community that sells Dr. Scholl's Appliances and Remedies (shoe and department stores everywhere have them).

A graduate Practipedist's service free

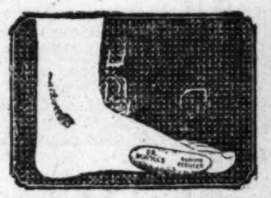
There you will find a graduate Practipedist—a foot expert—trained in Dr. Scholl's own methods of giving foot comfort. He will gladly—without charge—demonstrate Dr. Scholl's Foot-Eazer over your stocking, then fit it invisibly inside your shoe. One step—and you will feel your strained foot muscles relax in perfect comfort.

And for any minor foot trouble you can get a Dr. Scholl appliance or remedy that will soon correct it. With quick relief and permanent correction so easy, so inexpensive to obtain, don't, don't go on suffering from foot troubles.

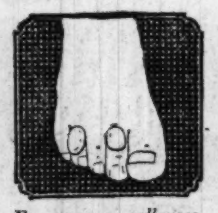
Distorted toes (bunions) are soon restored to normal action by Dr. Scholl's Toe Flex. Price, 75c each

The Scholl Mfg. Co., 213 W. Schiller St., Chicago, Illinois; 339 Broadway, New York City.

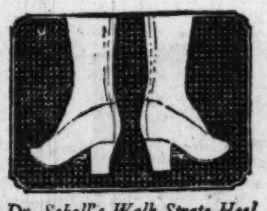
Branches in Toronto, London and Paris.



Dr. Scholl's Bunion Reducer protects the tender bunion from pressure and preserves the shape of the shoe. Price, 75c each



For corns, callouses, enlarged or tender joints and blisters, Dr. Scholl's Zin-Ox Corn, Bunion and Callous Pads give quick and lasting relief. Price, 35c box



Dr. Scholl's Walk-Strate Heel Pads in your shoes equalize the body's weight, overcoming the tendency to run over the heels. Price, 40c pair

PRUNES A SUGARY FRUIT.

THE dried fruits rank in sweet taste as follows: Dates, raisins, figs, prunes. This is a general statement, not universally true. In average carbohydrates they rank: Dates, 78.4 per cent; raisins, 76.1 per cent; figs, 74.2 per cent; prunes, 73.3 per cent.

Now if this carbohydrate was all sugar these dried fruits would be, as one can see, practically three-fourths sugar. But the pulp of the fruits is also carbohydrate. How much of this high per cent of the fruit is sugar and how much pulp is not fixed, but here is the way one of the prune advertisers describes his fruit, which he calls "natural sweetmeats":

"They contain more digestible natural fruit sugar than any other fruit. They are rich in tonic iron. And not only are they tasteful and nutritious in themselves, but they help to keep the entire diet on an even keel."

Dried Fruit Sweet.

In one of the agricultural papers of California, giving a history of prune culture in California since their introduction in 1856 to the time when that state produced almost the entire world's supply of French prunes, I found one species described thus:

"Particularly well adapted for dried prune production on account of the rich, aromatic texture of its fruits, the dense, fine texture of its flesh, which gives the cured fruit tenderness both when used as a confection and when slightly cooked, and the smallness of the pits, together with their thinness and smoothness. The dried fruit frequently contains more than 50 per cent of fruit sugars. Correlated with this sugar content is a high degree of spicy prune flavor."

There are a number of worth while comments on prunes in general suggested by this statement—that is, cooking suggestions. A dense, tender, firm textured dried prune of spicy flavor may have its tenderness destroyed, its sweetness lost, and its spiciness obliterated by poor or wrong method of cooking, or these qualities may be highly developed by the right sort of cooking. One way to make fine textured prunes coarse of pulp, tough of skin, and flat of flavor is to pour boiling water over them when they are put to soak.

Soak in Cold Water.

Because prunes seem to swell more if boiling water is poured over them, when they are put to soak, some women use that method. But it stiffens the pulp, and since sugar will dissolve more readily in boiling water than in cold it takes out more of the sugar seemingly than does the method of soaking prunes in cold water and then cooking them slowly as in a fireless cooker, which will cause them to swell more than when cooked any other way and in a smaller amount of water.

The nut in the pit of a fruit if chopped will make one of the most satisfactory of flavors for prune puddings and cakes. The sugar of the fruit if dissolved in too much soaking and cooking water is as flat as a little sugar with a few drops of lemon juice and a cup of water will be, and for the same reason.

Cooking counts in preparing prunes quite immeasurably. That is why stuffed prunes or fancy boxed prunes sell for $1.50 a pound and up. And, from a negative standpoint, that is why a common dish of prunes has such a bad name, or nickname, of opprobrious meaning.

There are endless ways of using cooked prunes. A young man sometime since said rather explosively, "I do not see why people should not eat cream with prunes." I said, "They should." In these sugar scant times a prune puree with whipped cream makes a quite delicious dessert. By mingling the cream with the puree any harsh quality in it is modified much as ice cream modifies the strong apple in apple pie a la mode, and sugar is not missed.

Milk Substitute in Prune Cake.

Some recipes follow:

Prune Puree — Wash thoroughly, once in tepid water, and cook prunes until skins are tender. Pit the fruit by using knife and fork and put through strainer without liquid in which prunes are cooked. The liquid, as well as the puree, may be used in making prunecake. Let it replace the milk.

Prune whip, puff, or soufflé—One egg white, plus a tiny pinch of salt before it is whisked; two tablespoons of sugar two tablespoons of prune puree, a few drops of vanilla. This will make enough for two, if it is baked in the smallest of the individual glass dishes, or may be extended for three by adding whipped cream when serving it. Multiply quantities by two, three, four, etc., according to need, and bake in pudding dish or in individual portions. Method: Beat egg white or whites to snow, add sugar and prune puree, and put into buttered pudding dish to bake in medium oven till it puffs.

Prune pudding (two portion)—One-half cup of prune puree, one-eighth teaspoon of salt, add to one cup of milk cooked with two or three teaspoons of flour, and cook until well blended. Flavor with the meats from the number of pits used, chopped fine, and pour into molds. Serve with whipped cream. An egg white or two may be folded into this, sugar added, or a few chopped raisins will make it sweeter. It may be made stiff enough to mold well, or just medium to taste. Some chopped walnuts will give it chewing qualities—in fact. the number of variations on this theme are many. It is better not to add any rival in flavor, like ginger

Prune cake—A prune cake may be made like any apple sauce cake without eggs, but this requires sugar, or as follows: Cream from four to eight tablespoons of butter, preferably unsalted; work into this by degrees one cup of corn sirup; add yolks of two eggs, to which has been added a half cup of milk or prune juice or a mixture of the two; add a cup of prune puree, and then fold into the whole two scant cups of flour, in which have been sifted two teaspoons of baking powder; finally fold in the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs and flavor with a scant teaspoon of almond extract. Bake in sheet and serve with hard sauce made of some white table corn sirup or of cane sirup; or bake in small loaves, which may be steamed and served like any fruit pudding with a hard sauce. Four tablespoons of unsalted butter creamed will take a cup of white table corn sirup added to it gradually. Flavor and put on ice to harden. If cane sirup, which is sweeter, is used, beat up the hard sauce just before serving, since this may separate from the butter with standing.

Glazed prunes—Soak prunes in water to cover and cook until the liquid cooks away a half, or until it is of sirup consistency. This brings out the acid in the prunes, which may then be stuffed with a marshmallow or chopped up and served with nuts and whipped cream for a dessert.

Marmalade, Poached, and Pickled.

Prune marmalade—Prunes glazed by cooking away the liquid in soaked prunes, put through a sieve, the cooked sirup added, make a marmalade of the type of the French conserves which are used as thin layers over pastry, etc.

Poached prunes—When the liquid in which prunes have soaked for twenty-four hours is wanted for beverages, prepare the following or a multiple of it, according to need, and poach or just simmer the prunes in it: Mix one-half cup of water with one-half cup of white table corn sirup and cook until well blended, add one teaspoon of vanilla and a cup of prunes.

Sweet pickled prunes—Prepare in the same way as poached prunes, but instead of vanilla use two tablespoons of vinegar, a teaspoon of cinnamon, and half a teaspoon of ground clove or spices to taste. These may be served with meats like any other swet pickle. They are no more objectionable dietetically than any other sweet pickle.

Prune breads—A rather dry prune purée may be substituted for raisins, or part raisins, in any raisin bread recipe.

Majesty

When there comes into your home a Grand Piano, the majesty of the instrument lifts you, and has its affect on you mentally and spiritually.

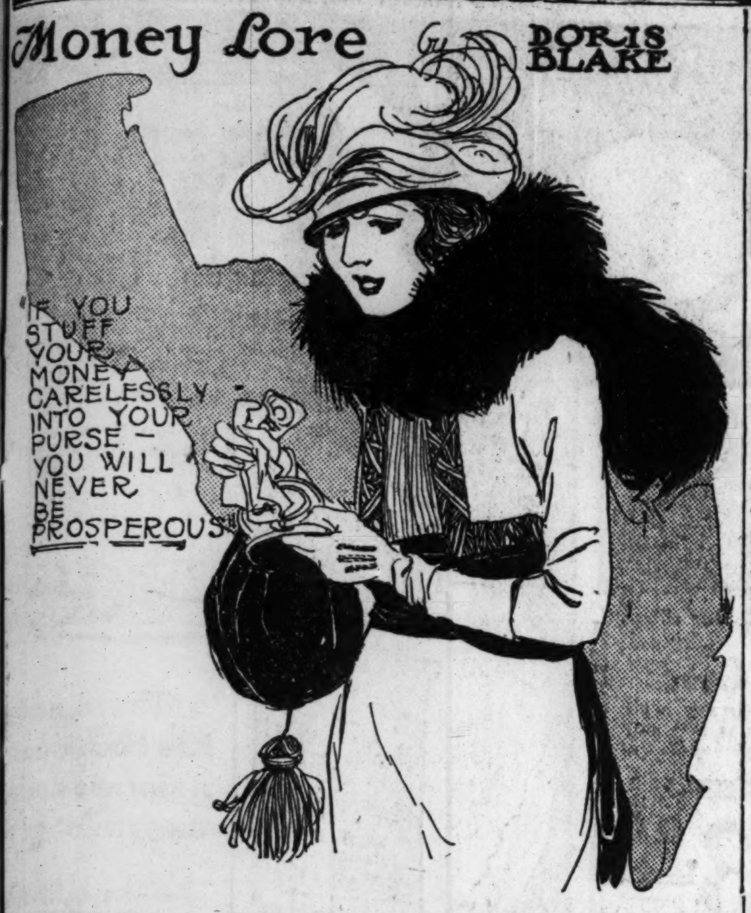
Money Lore

by DORIS BLAKE



"IF YOU STUFF YOUR MONEY CARELESSLY INTO YOUR PURSE—YOU WILL NEVER BE PROSPEROUS"

WHEN you were a child and the proud possessor of a new dress or suit did your kind parent not put a coin in the pocket thereof and tell you confidentially that as long as you had that you would always have money?

"Easy come, easy go," is another familiar bit of money lore.

From time immemorial the superstition, "ill gotten goods never prosper," has been translated into "ill gotten money carries disaster with it and works harm to the family." Shakespeare referred to this in Henry IV., when he said: "Clifford, tell me, didst thou never hear that things ill got had ever bad success?"

To lose money signifies that you will make a discovery, but too late.

When a person is lucky in money affairs, people say he was born with a silver spoon in his mouth.

Stolen money is unlucky. "Who steals my purse, steals thrash."

To plan what you will do with money before you get it is a sign of disappointment.

Don't let any one else pick up money you drop.

There's an old Roman saying, "Touch the purse, test the heart."

Put the first piece of money you get in the morning into your stocking and you will get more to add to it before night.

There is another old saying, "Blood money poisons all innocent mouths and breaks out for generations."

Money dropped when one is passing it to another is a sign that more money will pass between them.

You will not be prosperous if you cram bills "any which way" into your pocketbook.

If paper money is folded lengthwise first, it will insure the possession of money. But if folded the short way, it will not remain in the pocket.

You will never be rich if you keep your paper money smoothed out.

It is a bad omen to lose a purse, empty or full.

If you are out of money, mind that the new moon does not peep into your empty purse or you will be short of money the whole month.

Line your pocketbook with calfskin and it will never be empty.

Rub your purse when you see the new moon and say,

"What I rub and what I see,
Both alike increase for me."

To find an empty purse, you will soon kiss a stranger.

Jay Gould is credited with a saying: "Buy stocks in the morning and bonds in the afternoon."

Stock taken as a gift brings bad luck unless a trifle is paid for it.

Doris Blake's Answers to Love Problems

Have you a perplexing love affair in which you need the counsel of a friend? Write to Doris Blake, care the Sunday Tribune. If you wish a personal reply please send a stamped, addressed envelope.

Generally Means Nothing.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have heard some people talk about 'vamps' and I do not know for sure what it means. I would thank you very much if you would explain to me the word vamp.

"C. T."

I cannot do it, C. T. It is the most abused word in the language and generally means nothing. It may mean a pair of long lashes or it may mean a pair of green eyes. Or it may mean a tricky combination of both. But you learn the definition of innocence and modesty and such virtues and they'll serve you better on the man trail.

* *

No Gleam of Hope.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am very much in love with a girl of my town. Her name is Margie. Now Margie is very pretty, and if you could see her you wouldn't blame me for loving her. But she does not like me even. I have tried by making a lot over her and making her like me by leaving her alone, but none of them work. Do you think you could help me, if so please give me your advice I will be very glad to get the least bit. I believe in try, try again. Don't you?

"A. P. L."

I suppose I would not blame you for loving Margie, A. P. L. No one is to blame for loving another. But he is to blame for gathering more heartaches for himself when he pursues where there is no gleam of hope, don't you think so?

Redfern Corsets

Front Lace

A Redfern front lace corset is designed to fit as well—and to give as beautiful lines—when the wearer is sitting, as when she is standing. This is because a Redfern front-lace never pushes up under the bust, no matter what the wearer's posture may be.

And a Redfern front-lace—once fitted to your figure—will always fit, because it is so designed that the lines remain just as long as you wear the corset.

"Oh! —the torment of this wretched foot"

Such suffering is needless—today there is almost certain relief for every foot ailment

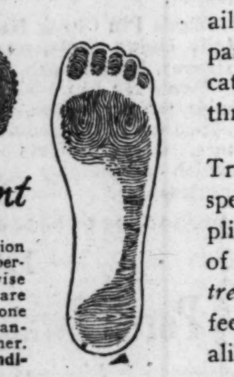
Foot treatment is now a highly developed science. The war has advanced the methods by at least ten years. Just don't neglect your case when it needs attention. Even if you have a seemingly insignificant foot ailment, heed it as a warning. A slight pain, a callous, or discomfort might indicate that a far more serious condition threatens.

Treat your case at once—but treat with specialists. The WILMS SYSTEM exemplifies in every respect the new methods of treating foot ailments—one factor being *treat each case individually. No two feet being alike—no two ailments being alike, ready made cure-alls can't fit your case. Under the Wilms System even deformities of the most peculiar type are frequently corrected.

Most foot trouble is traceable to bone dislocation, outwardly indicated by painful and labored walking—soreness—weakness—stiffening—swelling—offensive perspiration—ingrowing nails—nervousness.

No matter how insignificant your ailment may seem, it is too serious to neglect. It is safest and most economical in the end to consult with us on any foot trouble. Frequently a suggestion, at the proper time, may remedy a condition that, neglected, would develop into a serious and painful ailment.

Appointments may be made personally, by letter or telephone. Men, women and children accepted for treatment. Special attendants for women. Our fees are reasonable.



The Thumbprint

That little impression proves that no two persons are alike—likewise that no two feet are alike. Treatment for one ailing foot therefore cannot apply to any other. All cases must be individually treated.

Chiropodist work under personal supervision of a specialist.

MY MOST EMBARRASSING MOMENT

The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published on "The Most Embarrassing Moment of My Life." Address Embarrassing Moments, Chicago Sunday Tribune. Please write on one side of the paper. No manuscripts returned.

With the Second Choice.

One evening a young man invited me to the show. I refused, using as an excuse that I was too tired. A little later another fellow gave me the same invitation, which I accepted. I felt rather cheap when meeting the first fellow at the show. I. E.

* *

In Glaring Gold.

My brother, who is employed by a packing house, sure is some lil' goat grabber. One night I went up to the drug store and noticed people seemed rather amused at something or other. And when a friend of mine pulled a blue silk badge pinned on the back of my coat with the words "Prize Beef" printed in glaring gold I'll say I felt unnecessary. H. G.

* *

An Impassioned Plea.

When, at a late hour, with flickering shadows from the fireplace and soft shaded lights making the proper poetical surroundings, my lover was making a most thrilling and impassioned plea for my hand, the voice of my sister pierced the air with: "Hattie, Hattie, do hand me a towel! I forgot to bring one when I came in to take my bath." H.

* *

A Too Talkative Mute.

It was after missing the train that my chum and I decided that we would walk to the next station. On our way it was further decided that we would stop at the nearest farm house, posing as deaf mutes, and ask for food.

The boys lined up, I being at the end. The woman came to the door, and after receiving signs from the rest that they were deaf, turned to me and said, "And you are deaf, too?" Without thinking what the result would be, I replied in a polite tone, "Yes, mom."

I further state we didn't get anything to eat there. W. P. S.

* *

Squeezed His Toes.

At a movie the seats were not occupied in front of me, so I propped my feet in the bottom of one. Some one came in and sat down in that seat and squeezed my toes. I gave a howl of pain and every one in that theater looked at me. Needless to say I left immediately. C. H.

* *

Ivory, Perhaps.

I was wearing a long string of black beads, and a young man of my acquaintance asked: "Are those beads ebony?" I answered: "I don't know; I guess they're wooden," to which he said: "Well, ebony is wooden." B. D.

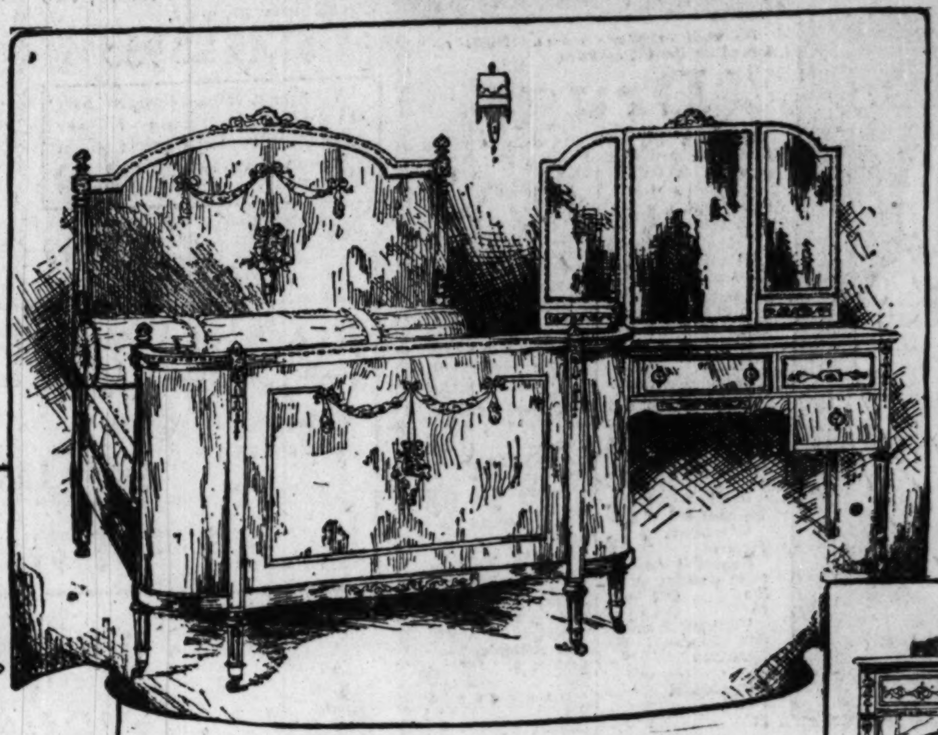
SOLID WALNUT BEDROOM SUITE

DRESSER 179.00
BED 148.00
CHEST 143.00
TABLE 119.00

Louis XVI. design, 50-inch top dresser, large plate mirror. Bed has bow end, chest has three enclosed sliding trays. Toilet table is exceptionally dainty in design. Any of these pieces can be bought separately with the assurance of being able to fill in suite later.



LOUIS XVI. DESIGN SUPERIOR CONSTRUCTION

The ornamentation on this suite is simple yet sufficient to add just that effect which places it above the ordinary bedroom suite. Finish is perfect. Cabinetwork is excellent — being dust-proof throughout, mahogany drawer bottoms. We sincerely request your inspection so that a comparison with others you may have seen can be made.

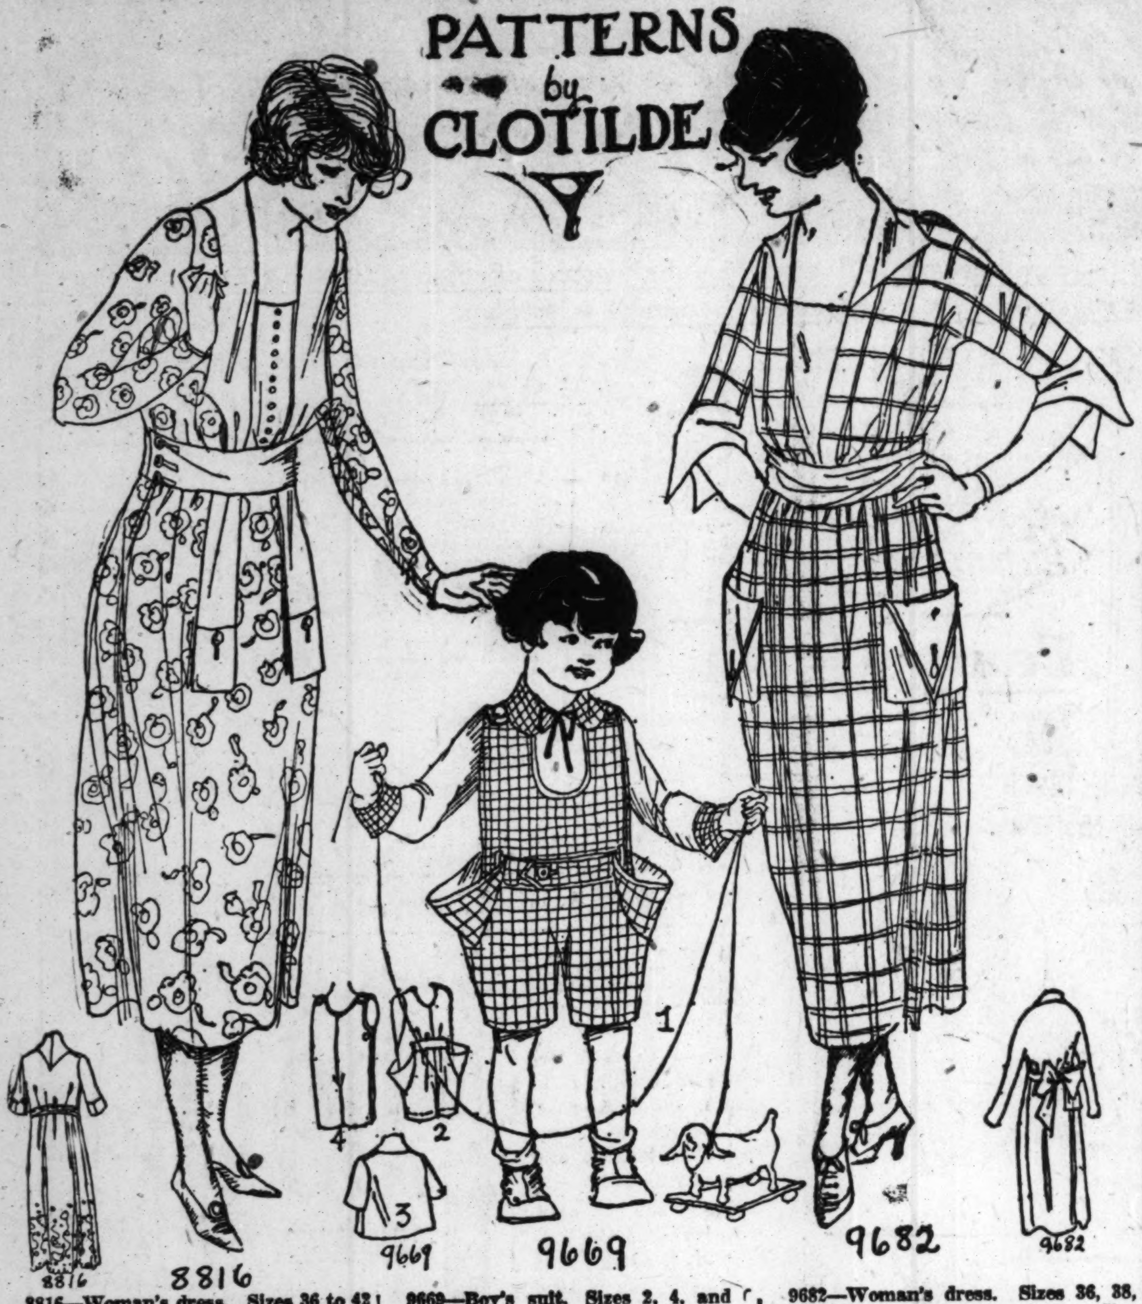
PATTERNS by CLOTILDE



8816—Woman's dress. Sizes 36 to 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅝ yards of 36 inch material with 1⅛ yards of 18 inch contrasting material.

9669—Boy's suit. Sizes 2, 4, and years. Size 6 requires 1½ yards of 3 inch material with 1 yard of 36 inch white material and 5 yards of binding.

9682—Woman's dress. Sizes 36, 38, 0, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 36 inch material with 1⅛ yards contrasting.

HOW TO USE THE PATTERNS

NO. 9669 is a dear little pattern for a suit for the small boy, and I imagine the pockets will greatly delight him. There is a separate waist and the suit is cut in overall style, buttoning on the shoulders, and the belt holds it well in place.

Striped galatea is a good material for the play hours, but gingham will be more suitable if the child is to wear it afternoons at home.

There are two slits in each side of the suit for the belt to slip through, and these should be carefully finished so they won't tear or fray easily. Mark them the exact length, then baste a piece of the suit material on the right side of the slit, having the two right sides come together. Mark the line of the slit with a basting thread and then stitch all around the slit mark, making a seam about ⅛ inch wide. Then cut the slit through both thicknesses, clip carefully at the ends, pretty close to the stitching, turn the facing to the wrong side, baste and hem down.

The pockets had better have a narrow bias strip of something light weight basted along the line where the pockets are stitched to the trousers, and when the pockets are stitched in place, the stitching will go through the bias strip also, and it will not be so easy to tear the suit if the pockets should catch on anything.

No. 9682 is a smart design for an afternoon dress, and it is suitable for any desired material. Ginghams, cotton voiles, organdies, ratine, linen, taffeta, or satin are any of them appropriate. But whichever you may decide on for the main part of the dress, you can have nothing daintier than white organdie for the collar, vest, and cuffs.

If the material is in a solid color, you may like to crochet some flowers in wool and apply—roses, daisies, or any other flower for which you can get the pattern. Ribbons also trim beautifully, used as a sash, girdle, or narrow quillings.

These straight one or two piece skirts should be perfectly straight at the bottom and after the hem has been put in, the lengths should be measured from the bottom up, measuring the middle front, side, and back lengths.

No. 8816 has a rather unusual feature in the collar extending below the waistline into small pockets. To be effective this part should be made of some decidedly contrasting material, or else the dress material embroidered.

A plain gray voile or cotton poplin would be attractive, with the embroidery done in the right shades of yellow and perhaps introducing some black also.

A pretty finish for the bottom of a skirt is to cut it in scallops and bind them with the same or some contrasting material. A facing or hem should be basted in place first and the scallops cut through the two thicknesses.

Another attractive way to treat a skirt is to mark off squares or diamonds from the top of the hem to a border depth, or to a hip depth and have these hemstitched.

If the scallops are bound, a narrow strip cut on a true bias is used, and the work must be done by hand, being particular to have the seam narrow at the corners, and the turning done so there are no puckers.

$25.00 CASH PRIZE

THE EASIEST MONEY YOU EVER EARNED ONE LINE- SEVEN WORDS OR LESS WINS THE CASH PRIZE

THE Ideal Laboratories Company, creators of LURA Toilet Requisites, will give you $25.00 in cash for one line of seven words or less on the LURA Combination Vanity!

All you have to do is to write a "headline"—a phrase, sentence or a word that will attract attention and arouse interest when placed in large type at the head of an advertisement of this size.

50c
Combination Vanity

You can't imagine anything more dainty and complete than this little Vanity. Besides compacts of powder and rouge, there are two round, soft puffs and a convenient mirror. The metal box, in orchid and black, is durable, light in weight and easy to open. The powder case slips out of the box, by gently pushing up on the mirror at bottom, so that you can put in a new powder compact any time. The rouge naturally lasts longer than the powder. A powder compact and fresh puff costs only 25c.

Quality will be the subject of the first Advertisement

On June 27 we will publish in this space an advertisement on the Quality of LURA Rose Oil Powder and LURA Waterproof Rouge, contained in the Vanity. The winning headline—any number of words from one to seven—will appear at the top of this advertisement. It may be the line that you submit. Here's a big opportunity for you to win $25.00 and also prove that you can write something to attract public attention. Duplicate prizes will be awarded to any who submit winning headlines which happen to be exactly the same. Write a headline on the subject of quality and mail it at once. Replies must be in our office before 12 noon, June 22d. Address—Advertising Department, Ideal Laboratories Company, 533 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Remember these points about LURA Quality

LURA Rose Oil Powder is the softest, finest complexion powder you ever used! The fragrant rose oil holds it on and forms a splendid base. LURA Rouge is really waterproof because it blends with the natural oils of the skin and stays until removed with cold cream. Of course you can't bring out every point in a headline, but you can easily think of a line or phrase that will call attention to LURA quality in general. You don't have to purchase a Combination Vanity to enter this contest but when you see the Vanity you may discover many facts not mentioned here.

Where you can buy LURA

The Combination Vanity is for sale at drug and department stores. If you do not find it, send us 50c in stamps or money order and we will forward the Vanity to your address.

A Great Purchase of Several Thousand Yards of Wash Goods

Sale of St. Gall Dotted Swiss, Yard $1.98

Here is one of the finest grades of imported dotted swiss in the very scarce small pin dots with navy blue and white dots, navy blue and green dots, navy blue and red dots, copenhagen blue and white dots, purple and white dots, orchid and white dots, old rose and white dots, yellow and white dots.

These goods were held up on account of the great strike in Rotterdam and only arrived in New York a week ago. Our representative happened to be on the spot and was fortunate in getting a great reduction from the importer on account of the late shipment. Instead of being sold at $3.00, they will be on sale for $1.98.

We cannot accept mail or phone orders for this Swiss.

An Extraordinary Sale of About 15,000 Yards of Printed Chiffon Voiles

They come in the season's newest designs and colorings. These fabrics were procured from one of the largest cotton converters at a price concession because of slight imperfections. We are also placing on sale about 5,000 yards of mill remnants. If sold from the bolt and perfect, these voiles would sell from 59c to $1.50 yard. They are on white and dark grounds in beautiful floral designs, small as well as large figures. Dots and checks suitable for summer dresses. Tomorrow, special, yard at

29c, 49c and 79c

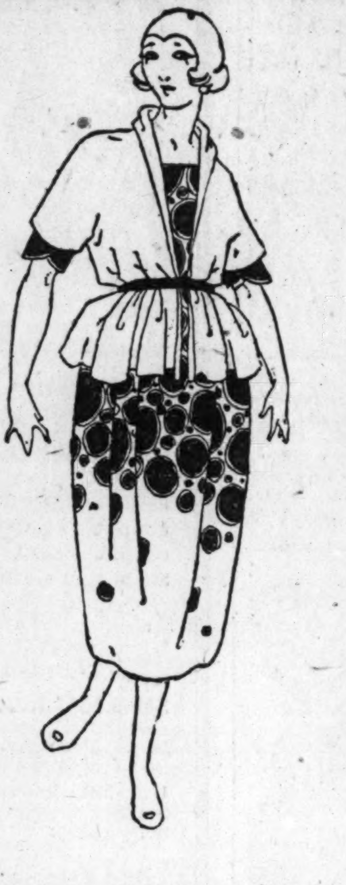
This Gown Is Made of White Lace Over Green Silk.



Blue Serge Frock Garnished with Red Leather.

Brown Tulle Gown with Ostrich Feather Decoration.

DRESS TO MATCH A COMB.

By Mary Brush Williams.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—You know those high shell combs they are wearing. Paris is crazy about them. I am acquainted with a girl who bought one, high and thin and delicately traced, in Spain. It is pale green. She carried it one day in her hand to one of the smart houses and the man whose name the house bears saw it as she held it in her lap. He took her into one of the smaller salons, asked her if he might design a dress for her that would go with it, and sent for silks and tissues to blend with its tints.

The net result was a costume something like the one of the first sketch. My friend's was the original, and this is an elaboration of the first model. It has been added to in several details. I do not know which is prettier, but the general outline is the same. A thin bodice, a wide skirt, lace, taffeta—you see it contains all of the ingredients for a French evening dress. As the old colored cook said when asked for a recipe for a particularly palatable cake: "I puts in the ingregients and I whips 'em up a little and I bakes it." This house has put in the ingredients and whipped them up a little, with the result that it has an evening dress which is very original and chic indeed.

The gown is made of fine white lace over a foundation of green silk. It is brocaded with silver and set with passementerie work of pearls. A wide fall of lace spreads over the shoulders and is held in place by bands of the pearl embroidery. The bodice is snug and pointed in the fashion of the Elizabethan period. On the outer rims of the broad skirt, midway between waist and ankles, are fastened bows of white velvet ribbon. Bands of the pearl embroidery run down either side of the front panel of the skirt. The young American woman with all of the fresh crispness of her middle western look and manner is very engaging indeed in this creation of the French.

There are such a lot of contraptions suddenly sprung to life for the garnishment of costumes! For such a length of time during the long, long period of war there was so little visible in gay, dressy Paris that was frivolous, I can scarcely get accustomed to the Paris of peace. I never knew it except in its drab frightened aspect of gloom until this year, and the acquaintance is a revelation.

Have you seen yet the pins that stab the dresses, as the diamond arrow used to do of old, sheathing itself with a plain gold scabbard which was attached to the pin proper by a tiny gold chain? It isn't smart nowadays to show such signs of caution and economy as is denoted by the safety chain on the sheath of the sword. Instead of an unornamented protection, which is itself protected, the pin of today is just as much decorated and just as sprakling and extravagant in its tail piece as its head. In other words, this new creation of Paris consists of two pins exactly alike that stab into each other in the lining of the dress and leave the materials to show in between the two heads. Black enamel or jet and diamonds are the popular combinations, and the heads are often thick and triangular. Armed with one of these pins shaded with an embroidered veil with the plain part over the face and the embroidery over the steep brim of the turban—with such accoutrements and any manner of dress so but it be French—one is equipped for any fate.

The second sketch represents an awfully effective model, very French, but, in spite of this very practical. It is of blue serge, garnished in red leather disks. If you are not up to this color scheme, try it in a combination of blue silk with white spots. But to stick to the model as it is offered the belt is of red glazed kid. The dress is in one piece and is topped by a little jacket which slips over it and is full around the hips.

The third is quaint—not to put too fine a point on it. The costume consists of a coat of gray tricotine, with a roll collar and a winglike cape, both of white suede, as are the skirt panels. The plaid insertions are of soft woolen materials in tones of gray, blue, and yellow.

The fourth costume made quite a stir at the Ritz, when it was seen one Sunday evening. People paid it the compliment which goes to distinguished costumes in Paris. They turned their heads and frankly stared and wondered who made it. The dress was of brown tulle cut in many points and piped with soft satin of the same tone. There was a light tulle scarf that went with it, falling low around the shoulders, and instead of the old fashioned "bouquet" the corsage was embellished with a long ostrich feather curling flatly across the front.

Bright Sayings of Children

The Tribune will pay $1 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledged or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

Two boys were discussing which of the parents worked the hardest. Johnny claimed that the fathers did, for they worked all day in the office and were always busy getting ready for business trips. Jack replied that the mothers worked all day, too, and couldn't stop at 6 o'clock like the fathers did, but had to keep right on working. M. B.

Our little boy, having been told that if he persisted in whining like a certain little playmate he would not be allowed to play with her again, he ran to the door and called out: "Little Mary Jane, when you talk, say it, don't cry it, or else I can't play with you any more!" I. I. B.

Margaret said to her aunt: "I bet you do not know what happened at our house."

"Why, Margaret, you must tell me then."

"Brother graduated into long pants." A. D.

On return from auto trip, boys were all seated at the table cleaning up a rack of sandwiches, when Clayton Jr. said: "Grandma, did you take domestic science when you were in college?" Grandmother replied, "No, indeed." Clayton: "Well, if you had you'd have got A+, I'll say." C. D. R.

* *

Mother, aunty, and little Etta were downtown shopping. Etta was quite tired and they still had many places to go before they had finished their purchasing. Presently they happened to pass through the restroom and the leather covered chairs looked inviting to Etta. Turning to mother, she remarked: "Couldn't you park me here while you and aunty do the rest of your shopping?" F. J.

KOVERALLS

Keep Kids Klean

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

HERE is just what every mother wants at a price any mother can afford! Koveralls—the ideal suit for boy or girl, for every day wear the whole year 'round. The suit that stands in a class by itself for convenience, style and long wear. Practical, healthful, economical.

Youngsters dressed in Koveralls can romp and play in any way that brings the most fun without fear of getting "mussed up and dirty." Call them in at "dress-up" time and slip off the Koveralls! See the underneath togs dainty and clean—the little bodies white and unhurt—no bruised or infected skin. Koveralls keep out the dirt thoroughly and protect the stockings and underclothes.

They cut laundry bills in two, save mother's work and worry and keep the child healthy and happy.

Koveralls will not rip, no matter how rough and tumble the play. Made in one piece, with drop back; easily slipped on or off. No buttons in front to hurt tender bodies or scratch furniture. Easily washed. No tight elastic bands to stop circulation or retard freedom of motion. Long or elbow sleeves; round or Dutch neck. Two weights in a variety of durable fabrics and colors, trimmed with bands and pipings in contrasting fast colors. Ages 1 to 8 yrs.

Koveralls, unlike rompers, are cut the full length of the leg, protecting the stockings; or you can let the child go without stockings in perfect confidence that the little legs will be free from scratches and dirt.

PRACTICAL AND FANCY NEEDLEWORK

BY CLOTILDE

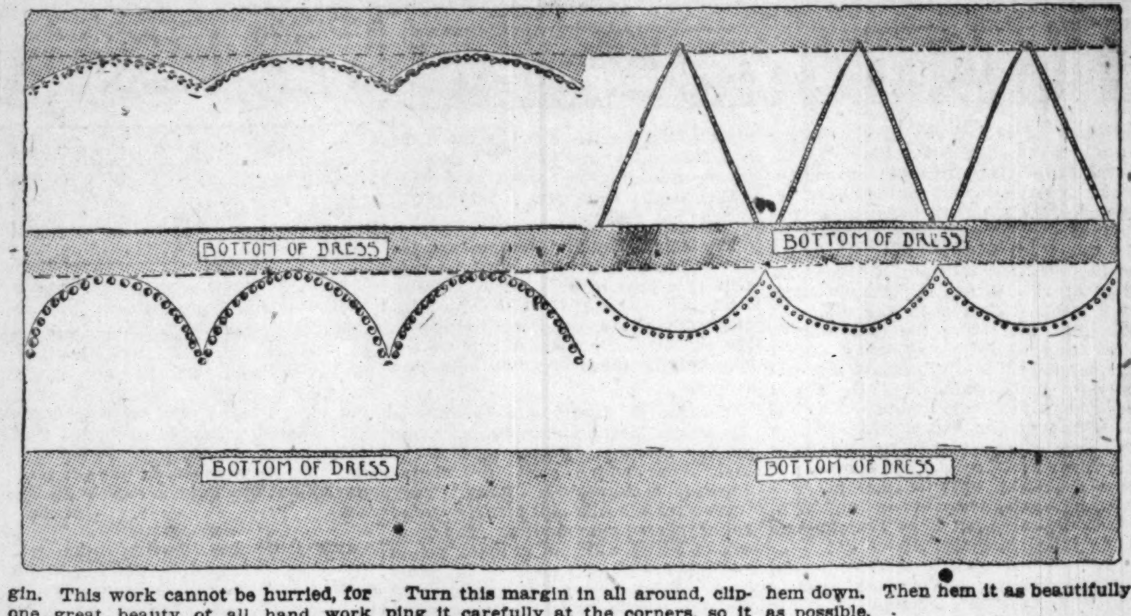
Questions on sewing will be answered if a stamped, addressed envelope is inclosed. Address Clotilde, Chicago Sunday Tribune.

FANCY HEMS FINE HAND WORK.

If one enjoys doing fine hand work, fancy hems may prove of interest. They are particularly appropriate for the bottoms of a baby's first dresses, as well as the little short ones that follow.

A four or five inch hem is perfectly laid, as is usual when it is to be a plain hem, then, turning to the wrong side of the hem, mark it off into equal spaces at the top. Plain or fancy scallops, points, or any desired outline may be chosen, and a rather soft, well sharpened pencil is used to draw these outlines. If one is careful this can be done without soiling or mussing the material.

Cut the shape you have decided on out of rather heavy note paper, and be sure you have figured so that the design will be the same size everywhere.



After the marking is finished take the basting out and cut around the outline, leaving a one-eighth inch margin. This work cannot be hurried, for one great beauty of all hand work is in its being perfectly done.

Turn this margin in all around, clipping it carefully at the corners so it will not draw, and baste this shaped hem down. Then hem it as beautifully as possible.

Take the bastings out and turn the dress to the right side. Following the fancy outline of the hem, work a single, double, or triple featherstitch all the way around, or use any other stitch you may prefer. A fine chain stitch is pretty, or a split chain stitch, or small dots, or the daisy stitch.

To be effective, these scallops, etc., should not be too shallow—about one-third of the depth of the hem is usually a safe guide.

How many women, I wonder, keep a good supply of holders on hand for use at the range? If one once "gets the habit" of having them, kitchen towels will not be used for that purpose. Pieces of cretonne, ticking, outing flannel, denim, and similar materials are just the thing. Three thicknesses of cloth make them a good weight, and they will launder easily.

Cut the middle piece just the size of the finished holder, and then baste it in position on one of the pieces and turn the edges down, first on the length on both sides, then across the ends. In making the turnings cut away the under side of the turned in edge at each of the corners almost to the edge. This will prevent a clumsily thick place at the corners. Baste the edges carefully together and overhand around each corner to keep all edges where they belong. Stitch once around close to the edge and a second time three-eighths of an inch inside. Fasten the threads carefully and sew a ring to one corner, and have a hook or nail in the baseboard near the range where you can keep several hanging at a time.

FOR SUN ROOMS AND PORCHES

MODERN WICKER FURNITURE.

ESPECIALLY adapted to sun rooms, porches, and informal living rooms is the modern wicker furniture that has won a rightful place in the esteem of the economical buyer. It is so vastly superior in form, color, and comfort to ornate furniture of the same low price. As wicker is hand made, it has a certain artistic merit. It is light and easily handled, and it is durable and may be gayly trimmed and tinted.

Willow wicker, reed, rattan, bamboo, and cane all are included in the wicker family. The majority of these types are domestic, though the hour glass and the flaring fan backed chairs, so well beloved for studios, are still being imported from China.

Closely woven reed furniture is the most expensive of the group, and lovely sets are to be had in especially designed forms. Long chairs, with arms, reclining backs, comfortable pads, and cushions rival the day beds.

Painted wicker, which was something of a novelty several years ago, seems to have become permanently popular. Stained with a walnut or antique mahogany stain, and fitted with suitable cushions, a few wicker chairs may be used in rather pretentious apartments. Painted in light color they are delightful combined with painted cottage furniture for bedroom use. The tones most likable are the pastel tints. Decorators who approve the "modern" school waive the softer shades in favor of clear, brilliant colors, even combining two bright hues. The body of chairs, for example, may be royal blue and the edges emerald green, or the body plum and the edges saffron.

Accessories are varied and abundant. A cunning little muffin stand is among the new comers, and a little tea table with detachable tray, and bird cages galore, and writing tables (which I do not like, as they never seem sound enough to write on), and nice flower stands and flower boxes, and cute little foot stools, and enchanting flower baskets—and so many more things that I can't remember them all.

Among the season's favorites is the swinging day bed for sun room use. Notice the illustration. Doesn't it look alluring? It is upholstered in block linen in mauve, turqouise, and green. One cushion is in mauve rep, another in lemon, orange, and black stripe, while the remainder of the furniture is cushioned in mauve and turquoise, on a deep blue plum ground. The flooring is slate and the rug gun metal gray, striped with blue. The curtains are of mauve gauze, and the small window panes are of light amber glass.

MRS. I. D. C.: A lovely color scheme that will work in with those colors already chosen by you is peacock blue, smoke gray, rich red, and bone yellow. Curtain windows with pale yellow silk gauze and hang with overcurtains of rich red velour. Add a touch of peacock blue and bone yellow in the smaller decorative objects about the room. The leading decorators are furnishing quite informally, so it would be quite good form to use some frosted brown wicker with your heavier pieces of furniture.

The Forest Primeval

By Anita Allison

Now that summer is well upon us and every sporting-goods store is displaying the latest impedimenta of Izaak Walton, one may as well face the facts and prepare for a trek to the land of the fragrant balsam and the haunts of the elusive rainbow. For the male of the species is still frightfully primitive and, if his womenfolk refuse to accompany him on his annual piscatorial hegira, he will perforce take up his creel and waders and sally forth alone.

But a fortnight or so in the north woods need not intimidate even the most timid little lady of the Loop. For the plumber has invaded the most inaccessible reaches of the forest primeval, there is a Victrola in every camp and one can always find an attentive young man who strums a seductive mandolin and prefers the fox trot to the hike.

What with swimming, an occasional rubber at auction and a few marshmallow roasts, the time passes quickly enough and one is back at her matinees before she is aware.

And after all half of the success of roughing it is a matter of proper clothes. The men may grumble, bless them, but they always have an appreciative eye for a bathing suit that dare not brave the water and sport clothes that were never meant to leave the board walk.

Just a word, however, about undergarments. And a bit of advice in this regard may not come amiss from one who has fought the Wisconsin mosquito in his native heath and waded the swiftest trout stream in all of Canada: by all means wear Futurist.

No matter whether you play golf, tennis, or ply the paddle—even if you never stir off the dock—wear Futurist. For pure, unalloyed comfort there is nothing to compare with that garment. Not bulky or coarse, like so much of the so-called athletic underwear, it gives perfect freedom to the body when walking, rowing, dancing or wielding the driver or brassie.

At the same time it is so daintily fashioned one can wear it and still feel civilized. I know any number of women who first wore Futurist as an outing garment and have since espoused it for all time. But even if you have your doubts about that, be sure to include a plentiful supply when you go vacation shopping.

In addition to the regular Futurist garment, you can also get Futurist knickers and vests. Mothers will also be glad to know they can secure Futurist for little boys and girls. Futurist comes in a host of materials: lingerie batiste, marquisette, nainsook, crepe and silk soft and sheer.

You can see these garments on display at any of the better stores and shops. Field's, Mandel's and Stevens' have them in the Loop for instance.

But if you should have the slightest difficulty in finding just what you want, write to me at 310 West Erie Street.

FUTURIST

WOMAN'S MODERN UNDERGARMENT

What "Upkeep" Means to Your Watch

WHENEVER an intelligent man or woman wishes to buy anything it is a natural desire to purchase the best of its kind.

We all want fine furniture in our homes, fine china, silverware, clothes; we desire a fine automobile or to own a fine watch, or whatever we have set our hearts upon possessing.

We are never really satisfied with a lower standard than we have conceived. When the time comes that we can afford it, we invariably see to it that what we have desired becomes ours.

THIS worthy ambition is particularly true of a watch. When we go to our dealer's to make what should be an eventful, life-time purchase we are not going to jeopardize our investment for the sake of a few dollars. Especially if the difference between that watch at that price and this watch at this price will mean the difference between constant repair bills, uncertain time-keeping and a watch that is faithful in its day-in and year-out dependable service.

So, when we buy a watch, let us remember that it is not always what we see on the outside but the unseen things in the "works" that really count. And common sense tells us that if a watch good enough to challenge the world in the quality of its mechanism and the hidden superiorities of its exclusive inventions, costs more than a watch of so-called similar grade, we should not hesitate which watch is the one for us to own.

THE Waltham Watch is the only watch in the world that has taken the mystery out of the "works" of a watch. But the Waltham Watch has done infinitely more than that, it has proved beyond argument that this American built timepiece excels in advantages to every owner because of the advances in watch-making embraced in its construction.

Some of these inventions and practises are remarkable. But every one of them protects the owner of a Waltham Watch against big repair bills and insures those durable services for which the Waltham Watch is internationally famous.

AND the question of "Upkeep" should always be considered. The first cost of a watch has much to do with its final cost. We would need volumes if we published the record performances of Waltham Watches that have come to us in many thousands of testimonial letters from all over the world. Watches that have kept time for years save for occasional cleaning and oiling and are still faithfully ticking time for their proud owners.

We can truthfully say that no other watch in the world can show to the expert horologist the constructional superiorities contained in the mechanism of a Waltham Watch. They have amazed the foreign watch maker, as his published statements will verify.

WHAT then does the buyer of a Waltham Watch inherit? First, a watch the "works" of which guarantee horological art at its highest development. Second, a standardized watch, every part involving immediate replacement or repair and each unit of co-equal quality. Third, a watch value that is sustained by the oldest and largest institution of its kind. Fourth, the only watch in the world made under one roof. Fifth, a watch that has won the highest honors at the world's greatest Expositions. Sixth, a beautiful watch, and beauty that does not sacrifice time-keeping ability for freakish good looks. Seventh, a watch that will give maximum of service at the minimum of upkeep cost.

Last but not least, a watch that will outlive you. There are thousands upon thousands of Waltham Watches still serving the children and grandchildren of the parents, who, a long time ago, went to their dealer and came away with what the years proved to be one of the best investments of life—a Waltham.

As proof of these wonderful values, take the item at 1.19 per yard. New York City's largest wholesale silk dealer bought many thousand yards of these same silks two weeks ago and paid $1.45 per yard wholesale. They were shipped to New York from Chicago to be sold again, and naturally for a considerably higher price. The other items are equally as wonderful, if not more so. All high class, dependable qualities, suitable for every purpose. The mill ends are all lengths suitable for dresses, blouses, shirts, suits, linings, foundations, shirts, pajamas, and for misses' and children's wear.

Special Notice

On account of the extremely low prices and limited quantities, we cannot accept mail or phone orders. No exchanges or will calls.

UNCLE JIM'S STORY

KIMBO HEARS NEWS.

ONE morning Kimbo woke up early and it was raining.

"This is going to be a miserable day," he squeaked. "I can feel it in my monkey bones."

He stretched and growled and scowled.

"I wish I could stay in bed all day. I guess I will pretend I am sick," for he remembered that was what little Reddy tried to do when he was very sleepy in the morning.

So he curled his head in his two front paws, and was already to take another good sleep, and make Jerry think he was too sick to move when he came around to feed him, when he heard voices outside his cage:

"Who's that, I wonder?" he squeaked. He sat up, his ears pricked up.

"That's Jerry," he thought. "He is talking to Fatty Ellen, the world's fattest girl." Kimbo listened. "Wonder what they are talking about?"

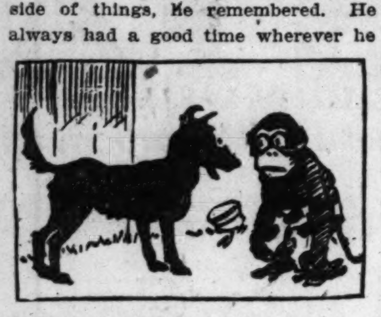
For, as I have told you, Kimbo was one of the most inquisitive monkeys in the world, and always wanted to hear and know everything that was going on.

"We sail tomorrow," Jerry was saying. "I want you all to pack today and be ready to start for the seashore by 6 tomorrow."

To sail tomorrow! Away on the ocean! In a big ship, with decks and cabins and everything! He had never been on the water in all his life, but he remembered stories his mother had told him about the trip on the ocean steamer when they brought her over from the jungle. She had not had a bit good time, he remembered.

"Never, never let any one take you on the water," she had warned him, and his brothers, Limbo and Bimbo. "You will be very sick."

But then that was all different. His mother always looked on the wrong side of things, he remembered. He always had a good time wherever he was. Besides, what could he do about it anyway?



"I certainly don't intend to run away again," he thought, for he had not forgotten the whipping Jerry had given him for running away with Tom, the grizzly bear, only last week.

Kimbo waited until Jerry and the world's fattest girl had walked on. Then he peeked around to make sure no one was looking.

"It won't hurt if I just take a run out for a little while," he wheezed to himself. His cold seemed to be getting worse, so he slipped up the latch of his cage—no one seemed to be able to make it so secure that Kimbo couldn't get out—and out to the street he scrambled.

"Oh, I don't care about the rain now," he thought. And he didn't care either about how the rain would spoil his nice green cap and trousers which Jerry had forgotten to take off the night before.

"I must find some one to tell about this news," he thought, for he was like some people I have known, always wanting to tell every single thing they hear.

But, alas, every one still seemed asleep. He stopped in front of Tom, the grizzly bear's cage, but Tom was still snoring loudly, like peals of thunder in a summer storm. And, good friends as he was with Tom, he knew better than to wake him up.

Suddenly he bumped right into Nig, the cur, who was turning a corner and did not see Kimbo at all.

"Goodness gracious, sake alive, why don't you look where you are going?" barked Nig, whose temper was never very good in the early morning before he had had his breakfast.

Kimbo did not answer right away. He was busy scrambling after his hat, which Nig had knocked into the gutter.

"Don't you know enough to stay at home on a morning like this?" scolded Nig.

"O, very well—if you are going to be so cross I won't tell you something I have just heard," wheezed Kimbo, his head fairly bursting with pride.

"Are we going to have fish for supper?" cried Nig, who liked nothing better than fish, even if the bones did sometimes catch in his throat.

"Goodness, no—nothing like that! We are going on a trip—wonderful trip—on a boat on the ocean and everything," squealed Kimbo, trying to tell everything at once and getting mixed up.

Nig's jaw dropped. He did not look a bit happy.

"Aw, that won't do me any good!"

"Why not?"

"O, I'm just a common cur. They won't ever take me anywhere. Just you watch and see them leave me behind," and Nig started to run down a side street and would not come back. He did not want Kimbo to see how badly he felt, of course.

"O, Nig; O, Nig!" squealed Kimbo after him. He felt sorry for the little cur. Why couldn't every one be happy when he was happy?

But the next minute Kimbo saw Jerry coming and he ran and jumped on his shoulder and let him carry him back to his cage. And he forgot all about Nig's troubles, so happy was he over what he had heard.

WOMAN HATERS

Won with Pictures.

While going to high school I chummed with the nicest girl that I have ever met. She had a brother who was studying to be an artist, who hated women much. He said they were all of the same type. He had once been in love with a young girl and had later found out she had been fooling him right along. He had given up women.

As I had seen him many times from a distance, but he had not seen me at all, I said to his sister, "Well, here's where I have some fun." So every month for a whole year I sent him a picture of myself in different poses. I also sent him a neck tie for his birthday. I always signed my name as "Micky."

He tried to find out from whom he was receiving all of these pictures, but in vain. Later on, his sister told me he had all of my pictures in a row on his dresser and every time she teased him about them he would get angry and take them down.

One day her brother was out and she called me up and said, "Everything safe, come on over." I had hardly been there thirty minutes when we heard some one come in. We rushed upstairs to her room and had hardly gotten the door closed behind us when he came in and there I was. He recognized me right away. Within a month we were engaged and were married a year later. I. V. N.

Seeing Her Home.

There was a crowd of us. No one boy pretended to go with any one in particular. But one young man never would take any girl home. He was liberal and everything that a young man ought to be, but he would not be left in the company of a young woman alone. We called him the woman hater.

Once we took a trip across the lake. All I remember of the trip was the storm. And it grew! One of the girls was so terribly ill that nothing on earth could have persuaded her to go back by boat. The boys withdrew to consult about the matter. They decided to draw lots who was to take her home by train.

They said afterward that the woman hater turned pale, and well he might, for the lot fell to him. How we all laughed!

But he who laughs last, laughs longest. He took home a girl every time after that and it was the same girl until he took her home altogether. R. L. P.

How Miss Sterling became a better file clerk—

She was a bright, clever girl and she was ambitious. But she had really never had a chance to make good.

She had taken the place of the regular file clerk who had left to get married. She had taken it without any special training, or in fact without any training at all. It had been hard to keep things running smoothly. Too many letters were being lost or mislaid.

One day Miss Sterling sat down to think it over. Finally, she made a decision. She was going to study filing—she was going to know more about it than anybody else in the office.

She went about it in the right way. She took a course at the Illinois School of Filing. She learned the fundamental principles that underlie all filing systems.

How the skies brightened! Miss Sterling wasn't guessing any more. She knew! There were no more lost letters—no impatient executives.

Naturally, everybody noticed the improvement in the Filing Department. Miss Sterling noticed it, too, in her Friday pay envelope.

Today she is Filing Supervisor and earning more than $30 a week.

She puts it this way:

"Every file clerk and in fact every girl who wants to better her position ought to study filing—just as a physician studies medicine or a lawyer studies law. The work is pleasant and it holds a wonderful future for bright, ambitious girls and women.

"The Illinois School of Filing is owned and managed by Library Bureau. They teach you not only the theory of filing, but also give a lot of actual practice in all kinds of filing systems.

"This school is located at 116 S. Michigan Ave., and the principal is Miss Gladys C. Bridges. Drop in to see her some day."

Books for Scouts.

"I have a few Boy Scout friends for whom I would like to secure two or three copies of 'Tom Sawyer,' 'Penrod,' and 'Treasure Island.' If anyone has any copies they do not care for I will gladly pay postage. R. M."

I think it will not be difficult to find the books desired for your Boy Scout friends.

Greatest Joy Is Books.

"I am a girl 15 years old and for four years I have been kept from school and most pleasures by ill health. My greatest joy is in reading good books. If some of your readers have Little Colonel books by Annie Fellows Johnson they want to let me have perhaps I have some books they would like or could exchange something else for them. This would give me great pleasure. I think it lovely of you to be "a friend in need" and you certainly prove the truth of the old saying. HELEN W.

Remembering the kindness shown to another little invalid, I look for the same generosity in this instance and know that young girls will consider it a privilege to share their favorite books with Helen.

Wants a Home.

"I am writing for an old lady who is in need of a home. She is a little over 70, but by no means helpless. In return for a home she can be a companion, because she is an intelligent, well read woman of wide experience in her younger days, besides helping with the housework and doing the mending, etc. Her hearing is a little deficient, but she is really a worthy, nice old lady, so, perhaps, there will be some Cornerite who will read this and be interested enough so that eventually each will be a mutual help to the other. "R. T."

I shall be happy to forward Mrs. R. T.'s address to the person interested.

He Would Help Mother.

"I wonder if any one has a boy's discarded express wagon, of fairly large size. I have been helping a young widow relative who was recently left with three small boys, ages 3, 5, and 6 years, respectively. She has had to take in washing. Her health is poor and her oldest boy has asked me several times for a wagon both to play with and to deliver and collect work for his mother. He is an industrious little fellow and I hope to be able to respond to his request. I have visited a great many places, but have repeatedly found even a wagon of small, cheap material high priced beyond my means. Should any one be willing to suply a wagon I would even be willing to pay a reasonable amount, repair, paint, and express same to the family. "R. G. W."

What a fine little fellow this 6 year old must be! And what a pleasant task to help him and his mother in their need!

Can't Play Strenuous Games.

"Is there any one who has a croquet set stored away who would give it to a boy of 14 years who has heart trouble and cannot play the strenuous games other boys play? His father has been laid up for ten months with rheumatism and cannot afford to buy him one." Mrs. C. O."

If any one has a croquet set for this little chap, it would give me great pleasure to send his address.

Will a Corset Stand It?

YOU expect much of a corset! You lace it hurriedly in the morning and keep it on till night. You lean over the oven—it must bend. You frolic with the baby—it must yield with every movement. You take violent exercise—it must withstand every lurch and twist!

Will a corset that is made to give style and comfort hold up under all this?

A Warner's Rust-Proof Corset will. It has been made to withstand every strain. The boning is double, which means that it will bend to every movement but will not remain bent. It holds the shape of the corset but adds nothing to the weight.

Your Warner's Rust-Proof need never be discolored or soiled. For you can wash it as often as you like.

Every Warner's Rust-Proof Corset is guaranteed not to rust, break or tear.

Under the comfortable firmness of a Warner's Rust-Proof, hips disappear. It is the underlying secret of many a trim tailored suit and soft, clinging gown!

Comfort, style, double wear, double life, real economy—all this you find in a Warner's Rust-Proof Corset, especially if you have it properly fitted—our corps of corsetieres is quite the best in Chicago—their services are yours, without charge, for the asking.

Warner corsets are designed right, made right; they are double-boned and doubly reinforced; they are easily washed, and are guaranteed not to rust, break or tear. That is what makes them so desirable for hot days; especially the Sports and Athletic Girdles—THEY WON'T RUST.

Warner's topless corsets for sports wear—made of flesh color material; wide elastic band all around top; riveted hook at bottom of front steel; sizes 19 to 30, at... 3.50

Warner's Ventilating corset—low bust, long skirt; will not ride up on the figure at 2.00 and.... 2.50

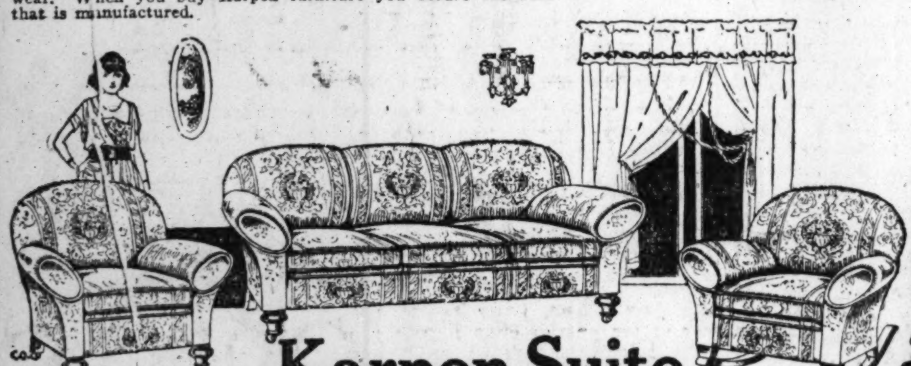
ODDS AND ENDS

Do You Know That—

the loose cushions of the handsome suite illustrated below are filled with Karpenesque springs, insuring years of satisfactory wear. When you buy Karpen furniture you secure the best that is manufactured.



Karpen Suite

Figured Velour or Art Tapestry Upholstering

We have about eight of these suites that were used for display purposes—they come in different upholsterings of excellent quality. When you see them you'll call them perfect, but they are floor samples and are ever so slightly mussed from handling. The Odds and Ends sale gives you a chance to secure the entire Karpen Suite at a most ridiculous sale price......

$329.74

Odd Assortments of Fine RUGS

In some cases we have only 2 or 3 rugs in the lot—in some lots there are as many as 14. The limited quantities cause the prices to drop, enabling you to save money.

9x12 Foot Size Axminsters

$63.45

You'll like the assortment of patterns from which you can choose—you'll like the quality of the fine rugs that we are offering at such a greatly reduced price.

9x12 Foot Size Grass Rugs

$14.68

Nothing better for the sun parlor, living room or bedroom. These rugs come in the 9x12 foot size and are really wonderful values. Come and see them tomorrow.

9x12 Ft. Seamless Velvets

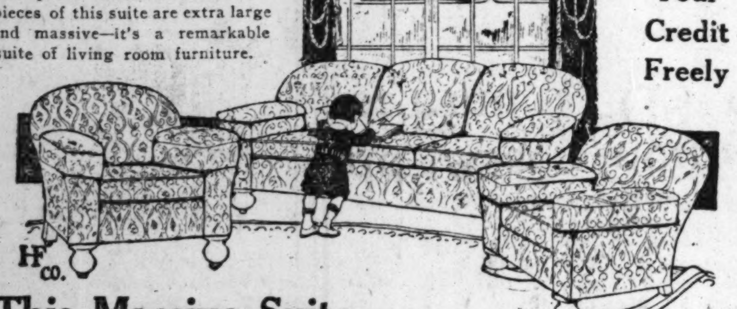
$59.45

For lasting service and permanent satisfaction we recommend this assortment of rugs to you and give you our assurance that you are saving money on your purchase.

12 Inch Pillow Arms

The pillow arms on all three pieces of this suite are extra large and massive—it's a remarkable suite of living room furniture.

Use Your Credit Freely

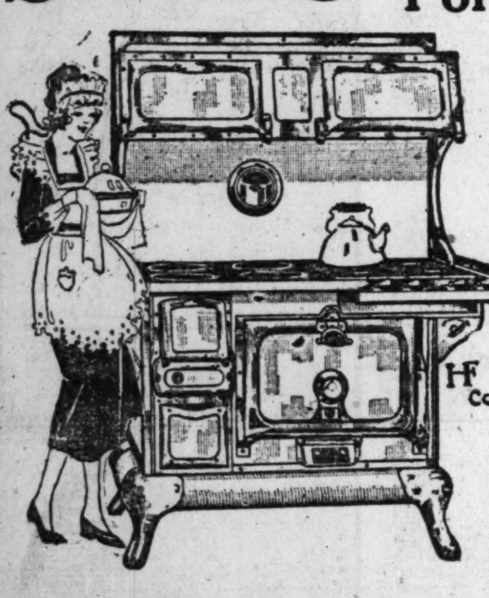


This Massive Suite

The very highest grade of figured velour was used for upholstering this splendid suite—it is a most desirable style that sells readily for many and many a dollar more than the Odds and Ends Sale Price. Seeing is believing—inspection of this suite will be a revelation to you—you will find it impossible to resist buying the entire suite at the little price of

$480.69

SANICO The Rust-Proof Porcelain Range



Built for a lifetime of satisfactory service. Constructed of Armco rust-resisting iron, coated inside and out with everlasting porcelain. Comes in Azure Blue, Snow White, Dark Blue, and Black and White. Handsome polished nickel trimmings.

Full Size Range—Roomy Oven

It's a full size range for gas, coal or wood, not skimped to cut the price. Plenty of room for big bakings—plenty of space on the top. The Sanico Range is a lifetime investment—a range that will always please you, and now you can buy the model you like best at the special price of

Remember

In Every Case the Quantity Is Limited

This is absolutely a clearance of odds and ends—each piece is marked at a price that insures its immediate purchase by some thrifty housewife.

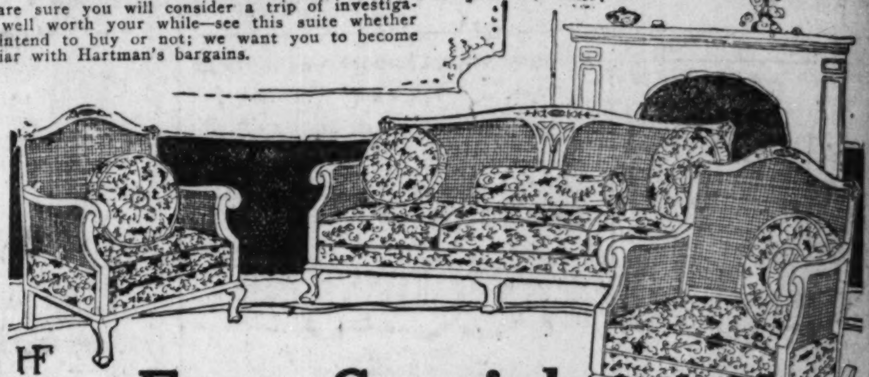
The articles illustrated in this panel are only a few of the bargains. In some cases there are only 6 or 7 of each to be sold, in some cases the quantity runs to a dozen.

Because the quantities are limited it is naturally advisable for you to come early—there'll be enough bargains to last all day, but the best values will be snapped up quickly—if saving money means anything to you, come in the morning and be sure of securing the article you most desire.

No Change In Credit Terms

See This Suite Monday

We are sure you will consider a trip of investigation well worth your while—see this suite whether you intend to buy or not; we want you to become familiar with Hartman's bargains.



Extra Special

Mahogany Frames Inlaid with Cane

Look at the picture closely—notice each detail of this suite and without a doubt you, too, will decide that it is a creation. The Theaters

FROM the Winter Garden "The Passing Show" comes tonight to stay the summer at the Garrick. Its two acts and fourteen scenes are replete, it is said, with burlesque, travesty, spectacle, ballet, and song—the invention of Harold Attridge as to literature and Jean Schwartz as to music. Among the herbs and posies ripening in this bounteous hotbed are James Barton, the Avon Comedy Four, Ralph Riggs, Katherine Witchie, Hazel Cox, Frankie Heath, John Crone, Lon Hascall, Joe Opp, and others of equal (if possible) renown. On the program is a travesty of "East Is West," a Broadway drama. There are to be three matinées each week—Wednesday, Thursday, and Saturday.

◆

Mr. Sothern and Miss Marlowe have gone back to England, taking with them all the records for Shakespearean prosperity. The season's yield was $675,000, and, as if that doesn't look big enough, the press agent adds to the figures an imposing .00—thus: $675,000.00. Holy week in Washington gave the largest receipts for seven performances—$27,287.00; Pittsburgh the greatest amount for one performance—$4,483.00; and Boston sent the most numerous single audience—3,011.00 persons. Mr. Sothern and Miss Marlowe will return in October, 1921, to get the rest of it.

◆

They are now blaming the sailors for the rudeness to Miss Laurette Taylor in London recently. On the journey over Miss Taylor, being indisposed, gave a check to the seaman's fund instead of performing at the customary concert, an action disapproved by the mariners. So they "booed" her on her first night in England.

◆

This morning's New York Times says that Miss Taylor is faring none too well with "One Night in Rome" in London, and the beginning of next season will certainly find her back in America.

◆

Lionel Barrymore's play next season, it is said, will be "Gold," by Eugene O'Neill, author of "Beyond the Horizon."

◆

Miss Maude Hannaford, recently "leading woman" for John Barrymore in "The Jest," has replaced Miss Ann Davis as the speculator's daughter in "Tomorrow's Price." The play will soon leave Chicago, because Mr. Woods, the owner, fears that W. A. Brady may precede him to New York with a similar drama—an exposure of Wall street, showing how easy it is for a boob to beat the market.

◆

Mr. Ziegfeld, having relieved the Follies of their counterfeit flesh tints, now deprives them of jokes about prohibition. They are not to be allowed, says he, this season. Georgie White permits them in the new "Scandals of 1920," however, and Lou Holz sings this, in which, the New York Tribune says, "he is at his best":

Lickery, lickery, doc!
The patients line down the block,
Having fits and conniptions,
They yell for prescriptions—
Licker me, licker me, doc!

◆

The company from the Jewish Art theater in New York will play Hirshbein's "Green Fields" in Yiddish this week at Glickman's Palace theater. In the cast are Gershon Rubin, Jacob Ben Ami, and Henrietta Schnitzler. A note from Cohan's Grand says that the venerable Jacob Adler visited "Welcome Stranger" last week and pronounced George Sidney to be "the greatest impersonator of the Jew on the American stage and an actor of the first rank." The note says also that the midweek matinées of "Welcome Stranger" will be abandoned for the summer.

◆

"Why Marry," the much overrated comedy which won prizes and large royalties for its author, Jesse Lynch Williams, is believed to be a success also in London. The newspapers pooh-pooh it.

◆

The McCormick theater is still without a permanent title. Having been advised to name it for an author, Mr. Woods says he contemplates naming it for all the authors and calling it "The Royalty."

◆

Sir James Barrie has told American managers who wish to produce "Mary Rose" that if Miss Maude Adams will consent to appear in it she and no other shall play it in America. He has sent the manuscript to her.

◆

Although Frank Bacon and "Lightnin'" are the outstanding theatrical success of many years, Sam H. Harris is trying to keep them from coming to Cohan's Grand, where they are booked this autumn. The explanation of this eccentric attitude is that the comedy will remain so long at the Grand that Mr. Harris will be prevented from producing his own plans there.

◆

"Too Many Husbands," the bright entertainment at the Princess, "went west" last night. It began weakly, strengthened suddenly, and flourished for a time. But it was too fragile to last in this clime, as indeed it was in that of New York.

◆

Another departure is announced for this week. Miss Patricia Collinge and "Golden Days" will leave the Blackstone Saturday, fearing that the effect of the hot weather on attendance will be unpropitious.

◆

Eighteen new theaters are in course of construction in New York. That city already has forty-six houses assigned to legitimate productions.

◆

◆

Miss Rachel Barton Butler, who wrote "Mama's Affair," got her dramatic education at Harvard through the McDowell Fellowship and the help of a confident friend. She lives in Cincinnati, she was once on the stage, and when she won Mr. Morosco's $500 prize she was working for the Interchurch Movement.

◆

The plans of Arthur Byron and Miss Martha Hedman for their Chicago summer engagement have been changed. Instead of Slaboda's "The She Devil" they will present "Transplanting Jean," a recent de Flers and Caillavet success in Paris. Hallam Thompson is the translator.

◆

Whitford Kane, recently here in "Tiger, Tiger," has devised a comedy about the new Irish republic entitled "Remains to Be Seen."

◆

Mr. Brady is the purchaser for the American market of John Galsworthy's "The Skin Game."

Census and Other Figures Causing a Stir in Gotham

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK—[Special Correspondence.]—The official report of Director Sam Rogers, who had charge of the fourteenth census, that a mere 5,621,151 persons are now resident in little old New York, as the phrase goes, has caused great indignation hereabouts. Since the figures were given out we have listened to the comments of something like 5,000,000 of the local citizenry, and each of them would like to be told where Director Rogers gets that stuff.

Five and a half millions, indeed? Who is this guy Rogers, anyway? Did he ever live in a regular town? Of course, we have been unable to tell them more than they already know, but we have tried to explain that probably the utmost care was taken, and it is just possible that—— But was this Rogers party ever to a ball game at which the chubby Mr. Ruth had promised to knock the hide off'n her? Or did he ever ride on an uptown Bronx express between 5 and 7 o'clock? Say, there were more than 5,000,000 people at Coney island last Sunday, without counting the chauffeurs!

Some one really should bring this Rogers person up from Washington, or Chillicothe, or wherever it is he hibernates, and show him a thing or two. Gee, we have it on the word of one irate member of the Sardine club, he would think there were at least five million a minute going over the Brooklyn bridge of an evening, to say nothing of the number simultaneously crossing towards Williamsboig.

◆

Did Mr. Rogers, or his secretary, ever count the number of motor cars passing up and down Fifth avenue on a good shopping day? There's 5,000,000 of those buses, with an average, he'll betcha, of five persons to the bus. And another 1,000,000 trying to get seats on top of the regular stages. Was he ever to a theater that let out into Times square the same time the thoity other Times square theaters let out? He'll betcha he wasn't, or he would never have pulled that 5,000,000 stuff.

But the item in Mr. Rogers' report that cut deepest was the one that indicated an actual decrease in the popu-

"MISS HOBBS."

Produced by Realart. Directed by Donald Crisp. Presented at outlying theaters.

THE CAST.

Miss Hobbs	Wanda Hawley
Wolff Kingearl	Harrison Ford
Beulah Hackett	Helen Jerome Eddy
Percy Hackett	Jack Mulhall
George Jessup	Walter Hiers

By Mae Tinée.

IF there isn't little Wanda Hawley wearing a Gloria Swanson coiffure and discarding her former kittenish blandishments for a long and sinuous stride and a cold and naughty stare. A freak is our Wanda through the greater part of her first starring venture. Or I fear she would be called by the proletariat just plain "nut." This, however, is all in the story. She comes to and is quite her own sunny and cuddlesome self in the last reel—and that's in the story, too.

"Miss Hobbs" is a comedy drama, adapted from the play of the same name, and has a number of bright moments to recommend it. It has Harrison Ford, who, opposite this blonde vis-a-vis, does the same sort of work in the same sort of way that made him so popular in the Constance Talmadge comedies. There are Walter Hiers and Helen Jerome Eddy, expert fun makers, to keep laughter agog, and it has much beautiful scenery to delight the eye.

Miss Hobs in the beginning of the story is a man hater—a moneyed man hater, it appears, for she maintains an elaborate establishment, wherein she has queer things and does queer things and dresses after a fashion that has caused her to be the subject of much excited comment among the conventional ladies of her nighborhood.

Miss Hobbs offers her home as a haven to a couple of her friends who have had difficulty with husband and fiancé respectively, and they come to abide under her roof. The deserted males call in a friend to their aid and the plot begins to thicken.

I think that "Miss Hobbs" would have been much funnier if considerably shorter. There are too many intervals of nothing at all between the laughs. Just the same, the picture furnishes clean and at times undeniably clever entertainment.

[Note the difficulty with which the lovely Wanda keeps her face straight during her dignified moments.]

Ask Me! Ask Me! Ask Me!

KATHRYN L.: I can send you a list of studios and will be glad to do so if you'll just mail me a stamped and self-addressed envelope you don't happen to be using. Put your idea in story form and don't make the story too long.

"BEE": Now that I know you read me every Sunday I sure will have to be careful what I write! Address Wallace Reid in care of Laska, Hollywood, Cal.; Earle Williams, Vitagraph, Hollywood, Cal.; Kathlyn Williams, Paramount, Hollywood, Cal., and Eugene O'Brien, Selznick, 729 Seventh avenue, New York. You haven't taken up too much of my time and I hope you'll write again some time.

KEITH T.: You might write to Clara Horton at 2660 Magnolia avenue, Los Angeles, requesting a photograph.

CLARA T.: A letter will reach Mr. D. W. Griffith as Mamaroneck, Long Island, N. Y. Glad to oblige you.

Census and Other Figures Causing a Stir in Gotham

lation of Manhattan borough, which is New York proper, of 47,439. Forty-seven thousand less people on Manhattan island today than there were ten years ago! When they've been building apartment houses ever since and today there's not a one to rent? Swell chance! And when you used to get a seat at One Hundred and Sixteenth street, while now you stand up every day, going and coming, from One Hundred and Eighty-first street? 'S silly!

There was no explanation for the reported decrease in Manhattan's residential population—at least no logical explanation—until it was discovered that thousands of names were missed on the east side after a report was spread that the census had something to do with another draft. And on the west side some one said the statistics were going to be used in helping the authorities trace the income tax liars. Now it is figured that if all those Manhattanese who do not want to go to war again were added to all those who do not believe in income taxes, and these were added to the 5,621,151 who were successfully counted, it would bring the totals well above the 8,000,000 mark, with which the average New Yorker would be satisfied.

During the spring hiatus that follows the ending of the theatrical season proper and the beginning of the supplementary summer season the only excitement in theater circles is caused by the return of local managers from their buying tours abroad. They come, as a general thing, loaded down with reports of having secured the newest and best productions of the past season in the foreign capitals. That is, each of them has secured the newest and best.

Of the returning entrepeneurs the one with the best story and the most interesting experience so far is Morris Gest. Not only did Mr. Gest offer to sail home in the steerage, seeing that he could not purchase cabin space, and did actually spend a day in the third class section until the captain of the ship heard of him and invited him to share his cabin, thus providing against the possibility of being obliged to pay the speculators' rates for tickets to the Gest shows next season; not only did Mr. Gest have this interesting anecdote to relate, but he came also with the report that Paris is wildly interested in sex problems and is doing a wonderful business in the exploitation of nude ladies on the stage posed in front of black velvet curtains for the American tourists to admire.

"JACK" OSTERMAN at the MAJESTIC

Why, reasons Mr. Gest, should it be necessary for Americans to have to go to all the trouble and expense of a European trip to enjoy these revealing and sometimes thrilling exhibitions when it would be so much easier to bring the naked figures to them? Therefore, he says, in his next season's production of "Afgar," which is to be modeled on the lines of his recent production of "Aphrodite," he will show not one but twelve beautiful ladies without a silken wrinkle to mar the perfect symmetry of their faultless figures.

As a preliminary publicity bugle the announcement has aroused the native constabulary in charge of the city's vice investigations The Rev. Dr. Straton has read Mr. Gest's announcement from the pulpit of his church and demanded that the authorities be prepared to close Mr. Gest's unholy exhibition before it is topened. Thus do the righteous advertise the works of the devil, the while their interested listeners take warning of the threatened approach of the carnal circus and make their arrangements accordingly. If, Dr. Straton suggets, the public authorities do not put a stop to the increasing degeneracy of the stage then the fathers of the city should be prepared to try "the old time remedy of tarring and feathering some of these fine gentlemen and riding them on a rail out of town." Looks like an interesting season ahead.

VAUDEVILLE WIT

MAJESTIC.

Jack Wilson:

"What do you think of prohibition?"

"When does it go into effect?"

"I have $2. I'm going to take my girl out and buy her a nice dinner."

"You said a mouthful."

"I had a nice steak last night."

"When you order a steak these days they look you up in Dun and Bradstreet's before they will serve you."

"Who are those men wearing badges?"

"Those are bootleggers. There are so many of them that they have to wear badges to keep from selling to each other."

"Why does a boiler burst?"

"It is so full of hot air."

"What keeps you together?"

PALACE.

Leon Errol:

"I may be thin, but what there is of me I'm positive of."

"Well, there's not much of me, but what there is I can highly recommend.

"Which is better, a blonde or a brunette?"

"You ought to know, you've been both."

Lew Dockstader: What would you do if you were president? One thing I wouldn't do would be to hire my secretary of state by the week. No workingman would run for the presidency—the president only gets $75,000 a year. I stayed out of the war on account of my feet, one flat one and one cold one.

McVICKER'S.

Bennington and Scott:

"Do you know the widow Jones?"

"Not to speak to."

"But I thought you called on her."

"I do—but she does all the talking."

"Have you ever met my old friend Johnson?"

"No, I don't believe I have. What does he look like?"

"If you ever see two men on a corner and one looks bored to death, the other one is Johnson."

"How did you ever come to get married?"

"Well, you see, I met a girl who was hunting for a flat."

"Well, she certainly found a flat when she landed you."

"Are you the head of the family?"

"Yes, but don't tell my wife I said so."

"What's good to put on a bald head?"

"A hat."

First of Ravinia Artists Due This Week

THE advance guard of the artists who will add to Ravinia's fame this summer will arrive in Chicago this week. Richard Hageman, concert and opera conductor of the Metropolitan in New York, who has been reëngaged for the French répertoire at Ravinia, is now in the city, spending his honeymoon.

Edith Mason, soprano, has landed in New York, having crossed the ocean for the express purpose of singing at Ravinia. Antonio Scotti, Charles Hackett, and Florence Easton, all of the Metropolitan, will arrive during the week.

Miss Mason began her European tour last autumn, when she appeared at the Theatre Lyrique in Paris. During the winter she sang at Monte Carlo, appearing in casts with Muratore, Marcoux, and Journet. She later appeared in four operas at the Grand Opera in Paris and in six performances at the Opera Comique. Her first appearance at Ravinia will be on July 27, the second performance, when she will sing the title rôle in Massenet's "Manon."

Scotti in Old Rôle.

M. Scotti, whose impersonation of Baron Scarpia in Puccini's "Tosca" will mark the opening of the season on June 26, has not appeared in the rôle in Chicago since 1915, when he electrified the audience at the Auditorium, Geraldine Farrar appearing as Tosca. By the polished finish of his acting and the idealism of his artistry, M. Scotti's Scarpia has long been a standardizing medium for the part; in fact, since the premier of the opera. His return to the part after an absence of five years is awaited with interest here.

Mr. Eckstein is to be congratulated because of his stand for Americanism in operatic music. Americans have been given the prominent places this season. That they have made their reputations in Europe cannot but reflect on the criticism of those who have not outgrown the worship of things foreign.

Concerts and Notes.

Mme. Sturkow Ryder, pianist, who is well known to Chicagoans, will give a concert at the Warrington theater, Oak Park, on Tuesday evening, assisted by Miss Anne Hathaway, violinist.

Gaetano Viviani, baritone, assisted by Mrs. Rosenthal, soprano, and Mrs. Ballard, harpist, will give a concert at Kimball hall this afternoon at 3:15 o'clock.

Absurd salaries paid many of Europe's mediocre musicians when they arrive on our "golden shores," cannot but arouse music's old foe, the "deficit." A recent example is the Philadelphia orchestra, which faces a deficit next season of $55,000, in spite of the $1,000,000 fund recently raised.

Music in New York stopped with abruptness before the end of April, barring student recitals. In Paris, however, the first of May found four opera companies, giving an average of six or seven concerts a week, well patronized.

According to Hoyle

By Guy F. Lee

If you would commit a play, my son,
  The formula's simple, but bonafide;
It's a guarantee of a six month run
  On Old Broadway. Though cut and dried,
The fundamental, and seeming guff,
  It's certain, and never fails to work;
It may look odd, but it's sure fire stuff:
  "Time the Present and Place New York."

What is the Land of the Brave and Free?
  The vicinage of Manhattan Isle.
Little else counts from sea to sea;
  All other sections, like man, are vile.
Love and Romance are centered where
  They've bottled Action and sealed the cork;
Nothing matters unless it's there:
  "Time the Present and Place New York."

Where do Beauty and Charm abound?
  Where are the Sapient and the Witty?
Who won the war? . . . Long Island Sound,
  Newport, the Bronx, and Jersey City.
Which is the true Pierian Spring?
  Who dangles the earth upon its fork?
What is the answer to everything? . . .
  "Time the Present and Place New York."

Such are the honest facts, though sad—
  Send this note to the Drama Stork
If you desire a lusty lad:
  "Time the Present and Place New York."

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

Convention Guests Depart and Their Hosts Will Follow

By Mme. X.

YOU know that day after the party feeling, don't you? Faded flowers, furniture out of place, rugs awry, servants sleepy and a stale air lurking in corners—that is Chicago today following last week's big gathering. I am writing this on Friday night while the deadlock is still on, but I assume it will be all over before you read this. Anyhow, the convention hosts and hostesses are preparing to knit up their raveled sleeves of care. Curtains are being taken down; shutters put up; summer hats and frocks are being crammed into big wardrobe trunks; last odds and ends are tucked into smartly fitted dress suit cases as their owners prepare to restore shaky nerves at seashore or mountain resort, or by venturing across the water to revisit that wreck of a world which has for six years filled our thoughts.

Weary as they are, however, Chicago's social leaders have nevertheless a sustaining satisfaction in the knowledge that they "did" their guests well, as the Britisher would say. And what a rally it was of America's rich and powerful, gathering to look on at our favorite national game, politics! Astors, Vanderbilts, Schwabs, Crockers, Pratts, Harknesses, McCormicks, Armours, Cranes, Fields, Pullmans—all the mighty tribe whose brains have played such a tremendous rôle in the last half century, in the development of this country's immeasurable resources.

Yet note the force greater than any they command, the strength of a democracy. For it would be easier for the proverbial camel to pass through the proverbial needle's eye than for one of these magnates to enter the White House as president of these United States. Any American born citizen, though he may not have a dollar to his name, yet if he have a lofty ideal to which he gives himself with passionate belief, is more powerful than a Rockerfeller or a Morgan. That is what a democracy means; and it is as true today as at any time in our history, reds, radicals, and other cavilers to the contrary notwithstanding.

* *

Convention Memories.

Several impressions remain of last week's big meeting. One was that "The Star Spangled Banner" was invariably sung with fervor—in spite of the fact that it is the most impossible piece of melody in the world for the average mortal to sing.

Another memory is of those thousands of soundlessly, slowly moving jaws, chewing, chewing, chewing the unswallowable; lips closed as a rule, yet occasionally opened revealing to the student of gumology the tongue gently pitching the pliant gray cud from one side of the mouth to the other. No, it's not pretty writing, nor pretty seeing, but it's the most utterly national of our personal habits, one that marks us whether we are penetrating African jungles or scaling polar icebergs. Stock in a gum factory is more to be desired than access to the U. S. mint.

Of course it's quite impossible to mention a twentieth part of the notabilities who were here last week, but some that stand forth the dizzy fantasmagoria may be cited. For instance, Mr. and Mrs. Crocker of California made a vivid impression. He was a Johnson delegate while she was an ardent Hoover supporter [good heavens! By the time you read this all these much talked of candidates may be completely forgotten, trodden to dust by the hoofs of a dark horse].

Mr. Crocker is of medium height, compactly built, with a close clipped, tailor made, gray moustache and beard; in short, he seemed cut from much the pattern, mental and physical, as the late Henry Frick. His expression is that of a capable, hard, resolute, clear-sighted man, one not easy to cozen or convince against his judgment.

* *

Two Interesting Women.

His wife is of another, but equally definite type. She has brilliant dark eyes, black hair lit by silver gray locks, fine features and figure, the latter of medium height and build, and a manner at once sure, sympathetic, and animated, so that one is interested immediately in talking with her. So interested, in fact, did one Chicagoan find herself that it was only after some time that a growing consciousness of something unusually glittering resolved into the realization that at that moment Mrs. Crocker was wearing a long string of diamonds of unusual size and purity, which seemed to emit sparks as they swayed against her black gown.

Mrs. Whitelaw Reid was another convention visitor who by reason of her dignified, utterly correct, and harmonious personality, stood out from the passing throng. Of such were the matrons of Rome. I'm much afraid that none of the young married women of today will develop the serene benevolence and quiet good breeding that make Mrs. Reid today the "belle idéale," the perfect example of an American great lady. I hope the new order which is evolving before our unseeing eyes will give us full measure of compensation for some of the things it is sure to destroy in its uprising.

What kind of matron will either the mother or daughter of the following incident make? Said the mother: "Gwennie, I do wish you wouldn't put on so much rouge." "Go to it, mother!" was the reply. "Put some on yourself."

Coincident with the Republican convention last week was the great combination celebration in the Roman Catholic church of Chicago, when the seventy-fifth birthday of this church in the city, Archbishop Mundelein's twenty-fifth year in the church, and the dedication of the chapel in the Quigley Memorial school on the corner of Rush and Pearson streets were all the subjects of ceremonies and church services.

The interior of this place of worship is copied from that of the famous Sainte Chapelle in Paris, which is generally considered the most exquisite Gothic chapel in the world. The Chicago version of it has the same fine proportions, though, as is to be expected, it looks new and lacks that becoming veil which only centuries of use can impart to a building. Its windows, however, deserve special mention because that mass of glowing, richly and variously tinted glass was all made in Chicago by an English artificer. Perhaps the long pointed windows in the south, east, and north walls are somewhat too vivid in hue as yet, but Chicago's grand old artist, Coal Smoke, will tone this down all too soon. On the other hand, however, the rose window high on the west end of the chapel is such a glorious splendor of graded purples, crimsons, and yellows as to induce a feeling akin to ecstasy in the beholder.

Do you remember the description of the stained glass windows in Keats' "St. Agnes Eve," "Diamonded with panes of quaint device, innumerable of stains and splendid dyes," and the shielded scutcheon that, "blushed with blood of kings and queens"?

* *

In the Chancel.

The high altar, a temporary copy in wood of that in the Sainte Chapelle,' was ablaze with lighted candles and adorned with American beauty roses. Two sacerdotal thrones, rich red in hue, stood on either side within the chancel precinct, one for the papal representative and one for Cardinal Gibbons. Archbishop Mundelein sat in a fine old high backed arm chair near the cardinal.

Part of the ceremony was investing Dennis Kelly and Edward Hines, prominent Catholics, with the order of St. Gregory, which makes them knight cavaliers and papal chamberlains.

Among those present at this high mass were Mr. and Mrs. William P. Nelson, Mrs. Edward Cudahy, Miss Mary McLaughlin, Mrs. Hines, Miss Rebecca Gallery, and E. N. Hurley, former head of the United States shipping board.

One should not mention the Quigley Memorial without ascribing full credit for its achievement to Dr. Francis Purcell, the local prelate, whose tireless efforts have made it possible.

* *

Brilliant Night at Casino.

Among the many entertainments which made last week so gay, none was more brilliant than the combination dinner dance and vaudeville supper at the Casino on Wednesday evening. The evening was the first really warm one of the season, so a large part of the company sat out on the lawn with the stars overhead, while to the west the gothic façade and cloisters of the Fourth Presbyterian church stood out against the night sky, making scenery of no mean order. The club's encircling shrubbery softened the flashing lights and roar of Michigan avenue's tremendous traffic pouring by.

The clubhouse and terrace were all alight and full of life. Artists from the "Sweet Heart Shop," Lew Dockstader, Raymond Hitchcock, and other dramatic celebrities were there, singing, dancing, and supping. Dawn was at hand before the last guest departed.

Aren't you glad, by the way, that today's dawn came an hour later than yesterday's? This waking up quite replete with sleep and finding that it is only 5 or 6 o'clock a. m. in a world whose activities only begin at 7 or 8 o'clock, is trying, to say the least.

It is curious that for a people as practical as we Chicagoans usually are, we haven't yet learned that our overcrowded sidewalks would not be so difficult to navigate if all foot passengers would observe the rule of the road and keep to the right. The habit of aimlessly wandering up or down on the wrong side needlessly complicates the traffic of the folk afoot who are hastening hither and yon. This was particularly in evidence here in last week's dense throngs. Fifth avenue crowds in New York are much more punctilious. As a rule it is only the country visitors there who mix up the foot traffic.

* *

Asks Support of Opera.

In the strenuous present the future is not overlooked. Ten days ago Harold McCormick gave a luncheon to the members of the Friends of Opera, an organization which, as you probably know, is striving to plant grand opera in our soil so that it may in time become as much at home here as are the Art institute and the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

Mr. McCormick made a brief address, as did the opera's business manager, Mr. Johnson, describing the aims, plans, and financvial condition of the organization. It seems that even if every seat at every performance were sold there would still be a deficit. This deficit the public spirited, generous citizens now guaranteeing the opera are ready to meet.

What they want from the music lovers of Chicago is proof that the Chicago grand opera—in certain ways the best of its kind in the world—is appreciated and is an indispensable part of our artistic life. To preserve this fine enterprise, valuable to the city in more ways than one, the public must give it better support than in the past.

Its managers hold out prospects that Muratore, the greatest dramatic tenor of today, may return to us next winter. So let us hope that the season of 1920-'21 may establish the Chicago Grand Opera company so firmly in our midst that it will be no longer a tentative enterprise, but one which will grow and develop for generations to come.

* *

Social World Scattering.

The air is full of good-bys now that summer has come with her usual emphatic bound—a precipitate arrival that makes Minerva look like a freight passenger. The social world is scattering.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Field and family sail for Europe this week. Mrs. Howard Linn will join Mrs. H. J. Whigham of New York in a few days, also Europe bound. These two young matrons plan to take a house together on the other side of the water, where their husbands will join them next month. Mr. and Mrs. Leverett Thompson of Lake Forest are taking their family likewise for a summer's tour of the continent.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Chalmers are seeking surcease from the past unusually strenuous fortnight in the sea breezes that blow about Watch Hill. The Orville Babcocks also have a house there to which they are taking the shortest route. Not far away at Black Point, Mr. and Mrs. Hale Holden and their three offspring will spend the next four months. In a few days those of us who are left in Chicago will feel like "one who treads alone a banquet hall deserted."

WEDDINGS

Miss Frances E. Honeywell, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. I. E. Honeywell of Oak Park, will be married to Lee Frederick on June 30.

Tomorrow evening at 8:30 o'clock at St. Luke's church in Evanston, Miss Catherine Woodman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew W. Woodman, will become the bride of Walter T. Stockton, son of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Stockton. There will be a reception following the ceremony at the Country club of Evanston.

The marriage of Miss Nina Helen Griffin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George D. Griffin of Evanston, to Ludlow J. Washburn of Evanston will take place on Saturday at the Evanston hotel.

MRS. ESTELLE BARBOUR STILLMAN —Photo Underwood & Underwood.

Mrs. Estelle Barbour Stillman of New York and Grosse Pointe, Mich., will become the bride of Hobart C. Chatfield-Taylor of Chicago and Montecito, Cal., the latter part of this month. Mrs. Stillman is the widow of George S. Stillman of New York and Detroit and is an old time friend of the first Mrs. Chatfield-Taylor, who was Rose Farwell, daughter of the late Senator C. B. Farwell of Chicago. Mr. Chatfield-Taylor has three children—Adelaide, who is the wife of Kendricks Whitman of Boston; Wayne, who married Adele Blow of La Salle and lives in Lake Forest, and Otis, who is a student at Yale university. The latter probably will attend the wedding, which will be quiet and will take place in New York City, where Mr. Chatfield-Taylor has been visiting for the last few weeks.

NEWS OF THE CHICAGO WOMEN'S CLUBS

Women to Raise Funds to Keep Gunther Relics

MRS. GEORGE A. CARPENTER

T. D. TOLOFF PHOTO

Mrs. George A. Carpenter of 945 North Dearborn street is chairman of a committee of prominent Chicago women to raise the money for keeping in Chicago, under direction of the Chicago Historical society, the notable C. F. Gunther collection. Mrs. Carpenter and her associates are deeply interested in preserving to the city and to its future generations this collection, which grows in value with every year of its existence. Of the $150,000, which is the price of the collection, $50,000 has already been paid, $20,000 of which has been raised by Mrs. Carpenter's committee. The committee will devote its energies to raising the remaining $100,000 within the next few months.

THERE is a place in Chicago to which one may go and spend an hour or two which will almost seem like an hour in the presence of Lincoln or of Washington, or of many of those who have helped to make America what it is. For in the rooms of the Chicago Historical society are personal momentoes of these great men which do for the boy or girl or man or woman who might look at them what personal associations of any absent person may do for one interested in him.

A collection of great value, that of the late C. F. Gunther of Chicago, has recently come into possession of the society, and is soon to be in such form that it may be seen by students of history or any one who pleases to visit the building at the corner of West Ontario and North Dearborn streets.

Dr. Frank W. Gunsaulus has said in commenting on a part of the collection:

"The Lincoln items are of superlative attractiveness and importance for a museum in the city of his nomination and life-long association. In connection with the documents from the hand of Grant, Lee, and the great soldiers on both sides of the Civil war, it is certain that students of the period will find a pathway to the institution possessing them, and their home will be a Mecca for all those interested in the annals of that critical time. The objects of interest from the Civil war, associated with these letters and documents rise into extraordinary value. Hardly less may be said of the Washington items, some of which are unique and beyond comparison with those which have given distinction to other museums. The whole subject of our two revolutions is so illustrated by these precious memorials that all the institutions of learning in Chicago might well unite to conserve this material in our city."

There are, among tens of thousands of interesting items in the new Gunther collection, the first patent ever issued in America; the farewell order of General Lee to his army; the letter of Grant to Pemberton proposing terms for the surrender of Vicksburg; the manuscript copy of the negotiations of the treaty of Greenville; the document transferring Louisiana from Spain to France, and the similar one transferring it from France to the United States; the pass given by Benedict Arnold to Major Andre when he was seeking to betray West Point to the British, together with its sad sequel, the report of the board of officers to Washington recommending that Major Andre be put to death. All these and hundreds of other papers rouse the envy of the collector.

Of museum objects there are the table on which Grant drafted the terms of surrender at Appomattox; the bed on which Lincoln died, and the coach in which he was wont to take the air; the compass used by Washington, his camp dishes, and some of his Mount Vernon pewter; and the compass used in laying out the streets of downtown Chicago.

This, the directors of the society declare, is of immense value to the people of the city in making American history real and in stimulating American citizenship. The existence of historical societies was vindicated by the government during the war on the ground that they strengthened the morale of the country by keeping green the memory of heroes.

In order to make permanent in the Chicago Historical society the Gunther collection, which is one of the most valuable historical collections in the country, a committee of women, under the chairmanship of Mrs. George A. Carpenter, has undertaken to raise $120,000 to complete payment for it. Of this amount, $20,000 has already been raised within a short time. In the fall the items of the collection, all of them of great interest, will be exhibited in groups, as it will be impossible on account of its size, to show it all at once.

CLUB NOTES

Iowa's capital building will be the scene of the formal opening of the fifteenth biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's clubs when it meets in Des Moines this week. The opening night, Wednesday, will be characterized by a program in which Mrs. Gardner Cowles of Des Moines, chairman of the local biennial board; Mrs. Henry W. Spaulding of Grinnell, president of the Iowa federation of women's clubs, and Gov. W. L. Harding will deliver the addresses of welcome. The response will be delivered by Mrs. Josiah Evans Cowles of Los Angeles, Cal., president of the general federation. A special train will leave Chicago for Des Moines on Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Will C. Thorbus, president of the Arché club; Mrs. Ralph T. Sollitt and Miss Nanette B. Sheffer, delegates, and Mrs. Frederick A. Dow will represent the Arché club at the general federation at Des Moines this week.

Private Secretaries Get Good Pay

The demand for women having the technical training provided by our secretarial course is greater than our enrollment.

Employers recognize Gregg training as superior in every detail. It develops the ability to think and act efficiently and thus our graduates are fitted to render a service for which the business world is in need and is willing to pay liberal compensation.

Gregg courses are comprehensive; intensive; complete; resultful; leading to positions as stenographer, secretary, court reporter, bookkeeper, accountant, and teacher of business subjects.

Day and evening sessions all the year. Students may enter any week. Illustrated yearbook may be had on request. Write for a copy to-day.

PERSONALS

There are always prominent Chicago colonies at the resorts in the White mountains of New Hampshire and many people spend the summer motoring from resort to resort. Among those who will be at Dixville Notch this season are Mr. and Mrs. John T. Pirie and Miss Margaret Pirie of Lake Forest, who will spend August and September there; Mr. and Mrs. Tracy C. Drake and family of the Blackstone, and Mrs. Robert T. Newberry and Miss Elizabeth T. Newberry of 1401 Astor street. Included in the Chicago colony at Bretton Wood will be Mr. and Mrs. Alexander H. Revell of 842 North Michigan avenue, who will go there about the middle of July; Mrs. William W. Gurley, and Miss Helen Gurley of 1416 North State parkway, and Mrs. Lyman Ware and daughters, the Misses Elizabeth and Edith Ware of 4424 Drexel boulevard. Mr. and Mark S. Willing of 630 Rush street will open their cottage, "Wyndebrae," at Jefferson early in the season. Mrs. Charles M. Henderson of 1816 Prairie avenue and Mrs. Wilbur S. Henderson of 118 East Twenty-first street will spend the summer in Jefferson.

Mr. and Mrs. Everts Wrenn and Miss Anna Wrenn of 1362 Astor street, who were called to Boston recently on account of the illness of A. Manvel Wrenn, are with Mrs. T. M. Blake in Beacon street during their stay in Boston. As soon as Manvel Wrenn is able to be moved the family will go to York Harbor, Me., for the summer, returning home in the fall.

Abram Poole of 2704 Lake View avenue left yesterday to join Mrs. Poole in New York, whence they will sail on Saturday for a three months' stay in Europe. Upon their return they will remain in New York for the winter. Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Cudahy Jr. will occupy the Poole's Chicago residence from Sept. 1 to May 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wesley Dempster of 1318 Astor street and Mrs. Dempster's mother, Mrs. James G. Gillette, left yesterday for Santa Barbara, Cal., where they will spend the summer.

A New and Distinctive Apartment Hotel—

Hotel Somerset

THIS illustrates one of our homelike three room apartments, including living room, sun parlor, dressing room, bath, breakfast room and kitchenette.

On each floor may be found both smaller and larger units—also single suites suitable for bachelor quarters.

All are completely furnished and unusually attractive, both from an artistic and a practical standpoint.

¶ The ideal dwelling place for those desiring the homelike atmosphere and privacy of an apartment combined with all the modern conveniences of a hotel.

¶ Conveniently situated at Sheridan Road and Argyle, Hotel Somerset has many unprecedented advantages, it is in an exclusive residential section, only one-half block from the lake with fine transportation, shops, churches and theatres.

¶ The highest achievement in apartment hotels, the Somerset meets every need of modern life—combining convenience and comfort, refinement and luxury.

¶ Our roof garden will always feature special entertainments. Dances will be given at regular intervals and dinner dances will be held each Wednesday and Saturday evening.

A Week's Cruise on 4 Great Lakes $72.50

Meals & Berth Included

On the Big New Cruising Ships "North American" and "South American"

Chicago to Duluth

Via Mackinac Island, The “Soo”, Saint Mary's River, Georgian Bay (30,000 Islands) and Return

Chicago to Buffalo

(Niagara Falls) via Mackinac Island Detroit, Cleveland, Georgian Bay (30,000 Islands) and Return

Think of the pleasure on a warm, sultry day of leaving the din and dust of the city behind you and gliding out into the cool, refreshing waters of Lake Michigan for a week's cruise through four great lakes—a trip of over 2,000 miles of beautiful scenery, shore line, islands, rivers and bays—care-free, you will give yourself up to a spell of enjoyment—you will eat well and sleep well, and after a too quickly ending week you will return home thoroughly refreshed and invigorated. Either of these most desirable trips will suit your tastes or you can combine them into a longer or 12 days' cruise. If you enjoy seeing places of interest, the numerous stops and short cruising distance from the shore, during the greater part of the trip, offer sights of wonder and beauty that are sure to please you. You can be quiet and excluded, if desired, or if you enjoy a real good time there is the continual round of deck games, cards, etc., during the day, and dancing, musicales and other entertainments in the evening. If you want to go fishing or take a tramp in the woods, stop-over privileges at a number of points will enable you to do so. For the children there is the open-air playgrounds and deck games with attendant in charge to relieve the parents of their care. Combined with all these pleasures, you will have conveniences and and comforts on these magnificent steamers equal to those on the best Atlantic Liners. The dining service and food is equal to that of the best hotels. All staterooms and parlor rooms are outside rooms and have windows or ports to insure perfect ventilation. Have running water, call bells and electric light—beds have the finest mattresses and springs; extra long and extra large—bath and toilet in connection with parlor rooms and close by all staterooms. Steamers equipped with wireless and every modern device for safety of passengers.

Peter Hand's Old Brew

Drink 3 Bottles FREE

WE can make this surprising offer without fear if you were formerly a lover of good beers. The U. S. Government will not permit us to call this brew a beer because in the public mind the word beer is associated with an intoxicating beverage, but Peter Hand's Old Brew is made by identically the same process which made it famous among connoisseurs for the last thirty years, save that now the alcohol content is reduced to comply with government regulations.

Famous brew masters will tell you that the alcohol content of a perfect brew has very little to do with its taste and appetizing appeal. They will tell you that many of the famous beers formerly imported were actually the lowest in alcohol content. The secret of quality, flavor and zest is in the brewing of the extract, the scientific blending of fine grains, rich malt and spicy hops.

Peter Hand's Old Brew became famous because it satisfied the palates of the most exacting connoisseurs. It has lost none of its delicious appeal today because our brew masters have solved the problem of reducing the alcohol content without impairing the flavor and body. Indeed, many tell us our present day Old Brew is more delicious, more fragrant and satisfying than ever before.

Peter Hand's Old Brew is made by a brewing process which has been the secret of generations of brew masters, who have handed it down from father to son. Fragrant Yakima Valley hops, specially malted barley, the choicest rich grains are scientifically combined in making the extract, which is then fermented with our own special Old Brew yeast. When fermentation is completed the alcohol content is reduced to comply with the law.

Before bottling, Old Brew is aged for months in wood in our ice-cold vaults, until it is sparkling, mellow and golden as autumn sunshine. It is bottled only at the brewery.

Old Brew is a fragrant, full-bodied, richly-flavored light or dark brew of delicious quality. It is more than a zestful, refreshing drink. It is an energy builder, a vigor stimulant, a soothing, rest-producing nightcap.

Order a case. Drink 3 bottles. If you don't like it, it won't have cost you a cent. If your dealer hasn't it, phone the brewery, LINCOLN 4906, and our driver will call. Case of 24 pints, $1.80.

Chicago Wins New Traffic Laurels Convention Week

Parking Troubles Bring Official Ruling for Motorists

BY J. L. JENKINS.

CHICAGO'S automotive capacity, heavier taxed last week than ever before in its traffic history, is still one lap ahead of the popular demand for rapid transit. With thousands of visiting cars in for the convention, and truck and pleasure car transportation given an added impetus by good weather and increased building activities, records of the police department traffic division under command of Lieut. John Martin not only showed the number of arrests and accidents at normal but also recorded less loop congestion than that of the corresponding week one month ago.

Hard work on the part of every traffic officer both in the loop and on the boulevards and the speeding up of north bound cars over the new Michigan avenue link and bridge resulted in what is believed to be a new national record for heavy traffic handling. Visiting motorists also took advantage of Cook county's two hundred miles of paved road system. Here, too, the systematic patrol of trunk lines by uniformed county officers relieved congestion and served to prevent accidents. But one serious accident has been reported on county highways since the patrol system was organized by County Superintendent of Highways George A. Quinlan.

◆

One irritation still remains for the loop driver. It exists in officious doormen and carriage boys employed by the bigger hotels, department stores, and theaters who insist on directing the parking of cars. Complaints from motorists sent to the traffic division last week resulted in the official announcement that doormen have no authority whatsoever over the parking of cars.

The driver, observing official parking regulations and ordinances, is safe in drawing up in any vacant space which clears the entrance way to public buildings and is not plainly marked as a loading zone or traffic reservation. Here, in compact form, are Chicago's parking regulations:

Parking for more than thirty minutes prohibited between the hours of 6 a. m. and 7 p. m. in the limited zone bounded by the north line of Lake street, south line of Harrison street, east line of Wabash avenue, and west line of Market street. Parking prohibited in the same zone where street cars are operating between 7 and 10 a. m. and 4 and 7 p. m., except long enough to load and unload.

◆

Do not park at cab stands; with motor running; with back of vehicle to curb; within fifteen feet of fire hydrant; within marked loading zones: along west curb of Michigan avenue north of Roosevelt road; more than thirty minutes in Michigan avenue; in Jackson boulevard between 7 and 10 a. m. and 4 and 7 p. m. You may park for one hour in Jackson at other times and in the center of driveway on wide boulevards thirty minutes before the close of theaters.

MY FUNNIEST MOTORING EXPERIENCE

Every one who has taken the road in a motor car has some story to tell. What is your best one? The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published in "My Funniest Motoring Experience." Write as briefly as possible, on one side of the paper only, and address Funniest Motoring Experience, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago.

A Swift Guide.

We were hopelessly lost on the road to South Bend, when he pulled up behind a creaking farm wagon pulled by a pathetic looking horse. We asked the sleepy eyed farmer for directions and he started to explain the many forks and turns. At last he gave it up as too much trouble and motioned us to fall in behind. "O, follow me along," he advised, "I'm goin' there." M. G.

◆

In Sunny France.

The commissary car that I persuaded the captain to loan me died dismally about five miles out of Dijon, France, one hour before I had to catch my early morning train for Paris leave. I started to walk, but found an old, shell torn building near, and in it a French army truck with two "Frogs" sleeping soundly in its bed. We knew better than to ask for any gas or "essence," but stealthily rounding the car, found a can containing about half a gallon which we promptly stole. That supply ran out before we reached the station and I had to run for the train, leaving the driver to search about for more. I learned later that he was arrested as a suspicious character, but that the sleepy "Frogs" never discovered the big gasoline loss sustained that morning by the French government.

◆

A Warning.

Never convert a fliver truck into a pleasure car without due care. We tried it once on my brother's car, installing a touring body but forgetting to fasten it and rode majestically down the street most of our friends lived on. When we hit the first bump the entire body bounced off the chassis, leaving us sitting in the middle of the road while the neighborhood chased the fliv and gave us helpful advice.

Road Authority.

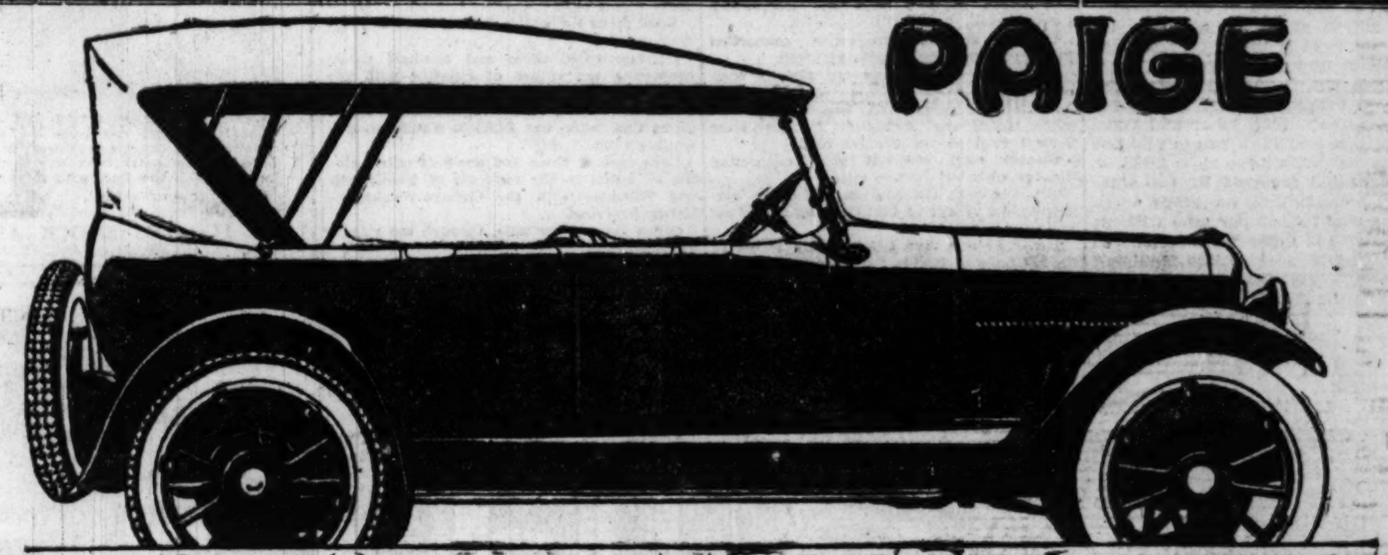
"Highways Green Book" is the title of a new book recently published by the American Automobile association containing 525 pages of text and many instructive illustrations. It is a most complete and useful book, an encyclopedia of information on national, state, and local highways legislation, development, construction, and maintenance. Many of the chapters were prepared or revised by leading highway authorities of the United States and Canada.

New Speed Ruler Seeks More Fame on Eastern Oval

GASTON CHEVROLET, winner of the international automobile races at Indianapolis, has entered his winning Monroe car for the fourth annual grand opening event at the Uniontown speedway next Saturday afternoon. The entry is greeted enthusiastically by racing fans throughout the east for Gaston drove his first big race on the Uniontown oval.

He has been a consistent driver and placer in the Uniontown races while his spectacular smashup in the autumn classic in 1917 will be long remembered. A wheel collapsed and the veering Frontenac which he was piloting at the time went crashing through the lower guard rail on the back stretch and into the field, throwing a mass of wreckage and splinters on the track in front of other cars but a few seconds behind the wrecked machine. Chevrolet miraculously escaped injury.

Gaston holds the 150 mile competitive record, which he made on the Sheepshead Bay speedway. He is also an engineer of exceptional ability and has an uncanny knowledge of the wooden saucer at the foot of the Laurel Ridge mountains.



PAIGE

THE MOST BEAUTIFUL CAR IN AMERICA

The Seven-Passenger Paige

Fundamentally the popular seven-passenger Paige is the same today as when it originally made its appearance as a member of the Paige family.

Its motor is still the same efficient six-cylinder that has been so universally commended for its power, speed and flexibility.

And its spacious body and its sturdy chassis assure the same degree of comfort and dependability that have always featured this car.

That the advantages of a car such as this are fully appreciated by the motorist of today is best shown by the fact that the demand for the Six-55 still continues far in excess of our utmost production.

If your requirements are for a car of seven-passenger size, let us suggest that you place your order without delay.

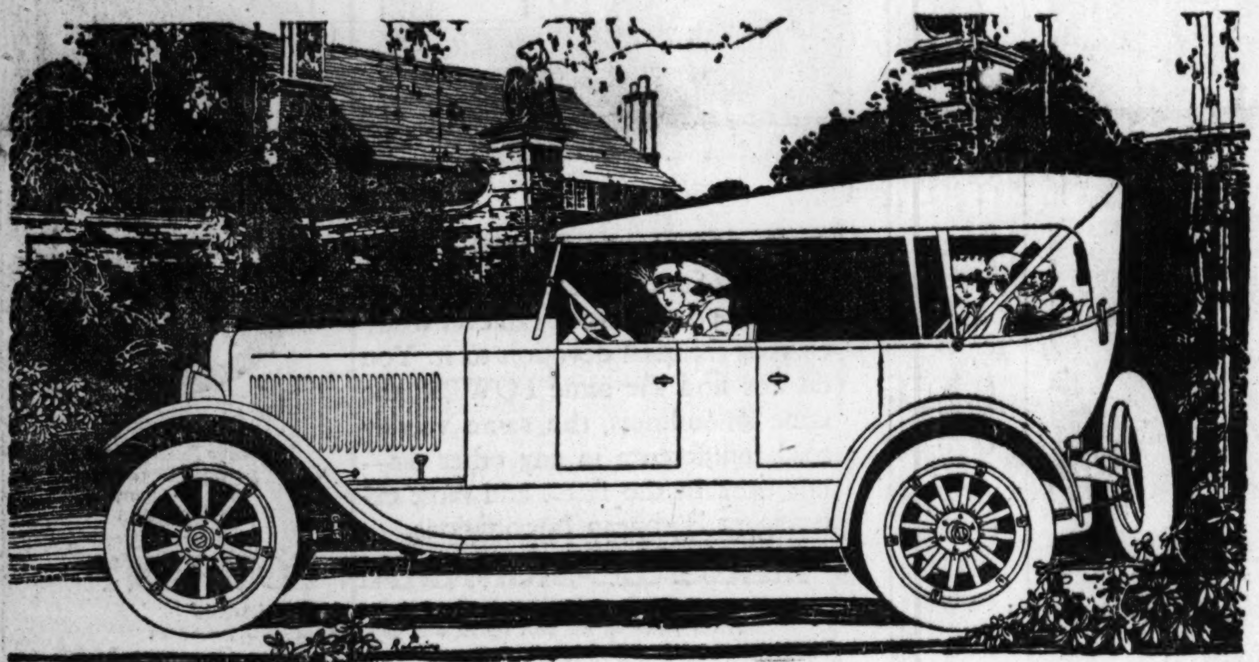
Famous For Its Marvelous Motor



The Chandler "Stands Up"

IT endures. There are many old 1913 Chandlers on the road to-day, doing good service, and thousands of the 1914's and 1915's. Their owners write us and tell us so.

The Chandler endures because it is built to endure. Dealers who have sold other popular cars say, "It costs ever-so-much less to keep a Chandler right."

The Chandler chassis, justly famous for its marvelous motor, is the development of seven years of constant application of the skill of Chandler engineers. And to-day it approximates perfection.

Six beautiful styles of body are mounted on the standard chassis, offering a wide choice from which to select.

Roads Resolution Opens Final Bids for County Work

Eleven Concrete Miles Already Contracted at $40,900

APPROXIMATELY twenty-five miles of durable concrete roads will be built this summer under the auspices of the board of Cook county commissioners. Much more work was on the original program, but the county, like other good road agencies of the country, is seriously hindered by lack of labor and material transportation facilities, high prices, and the general building tie-up.

This road undertaking will be paid for from the $5,000,000 bond issue passed by the electorate last fall. President Peter Reinberg has insisted on active work as soon as the situation will permit. County Commissioner Frank J. Wilson, chairman of the roads and bridges committee, working in accord with Mr. Reinberg, introduced a resolution last week authorizing Henry Zender, superintendent of public service, to advertise for bids for the program which is designed to connect many important roads and which will be carried out according to specifications as approved at Springfield.

The eleven miles of concrete improvement already under contract and progressing under the eye of County Superintendent Quinlan is going forward at a bedrock cost of $40,900 per mile, notwithstanding labor and material shortage and high prices and the fact that materials have to be trucked. The lowest bid received by the state highway commission on state work this year was $45,000 per mile without cement. In the difference lies part of Cook county's remarkable building achievement for 1920. Following is the final program:

List of roads for which bids have been advertised and contracts awarded:

Dundee road, four miles, connecting with Rand road.

Ogden avenue, two miles, connecting Western Springs, La Grange, and Lyons.

State street, five miles, connecting Dolton and South Holland with the Homewood-Lansing road.

Western avenue, two miles, connecting Flossmoor with the Lincoln highway.

Roads for which plans are already completed:

Glencoe road, one-half mile, connecting Glencoe with the Dundee road.

Tuohy avenue, five miles, giving access to the residents of Rogers Park through its connection with Milwaukee avenue.

River road, five miles, connecting Franklin Park, River Grove, and River Forest.

River road, one-half mile, between Harrison street and Roosevelt road.

Twenty-second street, one and one-half miles, connecting with the River road.

Indiana avenue, one and one-half miles, connecting the village of Riverdale with the State Street road.

Road plans for which are in course of preparation:

Palatine road, three and one-half miles, connecting the village of Palatine with the Rand road.

Lake avenue, three and one-half miles, giving an outlet to the residents of Kenilworth and Wilmette with the Chicago-Waukegan-Milwaukee road.

Ogden avenue, one mile, through the village of Brookfield.

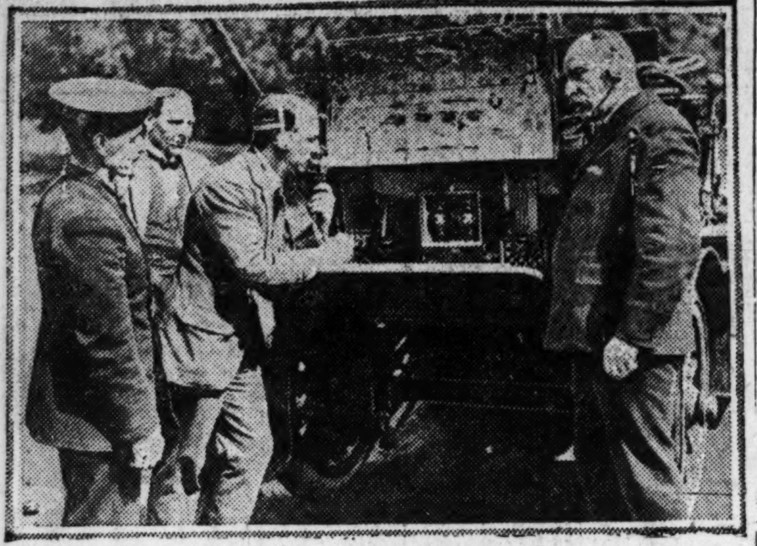
One Hundred and Eleventh street, seven and one-half miles, from Mount Greenwood to the Kean Avenue road.

Ninety-sixth Avenue and One Hundred and Twenty-third Street roads, five and one-half miles, connecting One Hundred and Nineteenth street and Palos Park and Orland.

Ridgeland Avenue and One Hundred and Forty-seventh Street roads, six and one-half miles, connecting from Cicero avenue west, then south to Tinley Park.

Halsted street and Chicago road, six miles, connecting Chicago Heights and Glenwood with the Homewood-Lansing road.

The bids will be opened and passed upon by the county board June 18.



ONE WAY TO INSURE SERVICE—In Paris the fire fighters have adopted the wireless telephone as their latest quick service device. This outfit is attached to the rear of a fire tender and the operator is in communication with the fire chief, miles distant.

No Cars, No Jobs.

Motor cops and traffic policemen shouldn't bawl out motorists. If there weren't any cars there wouldn't be traffic enough to make the police jobs necessary.

Worth Seeing.

The visitor to New York is likely to miss one of its most interesting spots, says the Automobile Blue Book, in the Brooklyn navy yard. It is the first naval station of the country. At all times there are battleships of every description in dock, and the yard is open free to visitors every day with the exception of Sunday, when admission is by pass from the captain of the yard. It covers forty-five acres surrounded by a large brick wall. Every conceivable kind of adjunct necessary to keep battleships in condition is found within its confines. Extensive dry docks, shops and ship buildings may be seen and there are thousands of civil war relics, Spanish war relics, mines and other instruments of the late and earlier wars. The famous battleship Maine which was blown up in Havana harbor is here.

National Leaders Discuss Problems of Auto Industry

Record Driveaways One Report Feature; Set Dates for Shows

Overcoming the difficulties of transportation was one of the main topics discussed at the annual meeting of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce in New York, when reports were made showing that more than 68,000 motor cars and trucks were delivered over the highways from factories to dealers. The previous record for driveaways was 61,000 in April.

The difficulties of railroad transportation during the last month or six weeks have had their effect on automobile production, the manufacturers as a whole being now on about a 75 per cent basis, owing to the transportation limitations on incoming material. Aside from the home demand, the foreigners are asking for motor vehicles in greater numbers than ever before. March exports established a new record with the shipment of 3,185 trucks, valued at $4,600,000, and 14,702 cars valued at more than $16,000,000.

In order to reciprocate with European manufacturers the American automobile industry, by a unanimous vote of 123 companies in the N. A. C. C. has petitioned congress to reduce the tariff on foreign automobiles 33 1-3 per cent from its present figure.

The annual election of officers resulted in the return to office of Col. Charles Clifton, chairman of the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car company, who has been the automobile leader for many years. Roy D. Chapin, Hudson Motor Car company, was elected vice president; C. C. Hanch, Maxwell Motor company, second vice president, passenger car division; Windsor T. White, the White Motor company, second vice president, motor truck division; A. J. Brosseau, International Motor company, secretary; H. H. Rice, General Motors Truck company, treasurer, and Alfred Reeves, general manager.

Dates selected for the 1920 shows were Jan. 8 to 15, Grand Central palace, New York, and Jan. 29 to Feb. 4 at the Coliseum, Chicago.

At a special meeting of the truck manufacturers they voted against a truck show for next winter, but have in mind the possibility of some kind of a demonstration of truck utility and service during the spring.

It was shown that the gasoline situation was one that required care and economy for a number of months at least. The present shortage in crude oil is a temporary situation, like the shortage in many other commodities, and until the increased drilling brings forth greater quantities of oil, it is not unlikely that the demand will cut into the reserve stocks.

TRIBUNE TOURS

IV.—To the Dunes, Camp Roosevelt, and Muskegon, Mich.

Thousands of Chicago high school boys are preparing to "snap into" their summer training, fun, and character building in Camp Roosevelt, the beautiful high school "war college" under command of Capt. F. L. Beals, which opens July 4 on the wooded shores of Lake Michigan, four miles south of Muskegon. Many thousand parents hope to visit the summer camp sometime during the season.

From Chicago the way lies through the heart of the greatest industrial district of the west, emerging east of Gary to border the Indiana dunes and strike north from Michigan City into scenic lake country and the West Michigan pike.

A fair option for Chicagoans leads through Valparaiso and South Bend north to find picturesque country about Paw Paw.

A City Was Manufactured, Shipped and Erected in Four Months!

A Few of Many Purchasers of Minter Homes

The city of Nitro, W. Va.—consisting of 1728 Minter Homes was manufactured, shipped and erected in four months.

The Kelly Springfield Tire Co. placed an order with us for 20 Homes for their Housing project in Cumberland, Md.

The Union Bleaching and Finishing Co., of Greenville, S. C. purchased 25 Minter Homes. This group was manufactured, shipped and erected in 90 days.

R. J. Reynolds, Winston-Salem, N. C. has bought 82 Minter Homes.

The Realty Associates, Brooklyn and New York (a subsidiary company of the the Title Guarantee and Trust Co.) ordered 30 Minter Homes and sold them before they were completed. They re ordered 38 and sold these.

August Belmont, the financier, ordered 8 Minter Homes for his project at Hempstead, L. I.—and then re-ordered.

The Mellon-Stuart Co., of Pittsburg, ordered 100 Minter Homes—and constructed them in Four Months—in the worst winter of our lifetime.

The rigid building codes of the largest cities are easily met by the permanence and stability of MINTER HOMES. Hundreds have been erected in every Borough of Greater New York.

MINTER HOMES are 90% FABRICATED at our factories, in standard, built-up units—and shipped COMPLETE—ready for quick assembling and erection. This does not include, of course, brick work or foundations.

Every necessary material is included—even plumbing, heating, electrical wiring and fixtures, when desired.

THE largest single order ever placed for Homes, was placed by the U. S. Government, for the Government Explosive Plant "C"—Nitro, W. Va.

It consisted of 1728 homes of various types—and these MINTER HOMES were "fabricated," shipped and erected in 120 days.

57,000 men-days were saved by "fabrication."

The usual wastage in building, is from 15% to 20%—but in the construction of Nitro, the MINTER FABRICATED HOMES allowed a wastage of less than one thirty fourth of one per cent.

We hold a Distinguished Service Award for our assistance to the Government during the war. We constructed one fifth of all the houses built by the Government for war work.

MINTER HOMES

THE MINTER HOME CORPORATION is the largest organization of its kind in the world! Our output is 60 HOMES EVERY DAY! We employ the foremost planning and engineering ability.

MINTER HOMES are the best frame houses that can be produced by any known method of construction. In no sense of the word are they "portable," "sectional," or "knocked-down" houses.

There are SEVENTY styles of MINTER HOMES—consisting of one and two story homes—for one or two families.

They are attractive in appearance—rigid in construction—and economical in cost.

Large Insurance Companies and other large and small Institutions throughout the country have loaned large sums on MINTER HOMES.

MINTER ENGINEERING SERVICE

Our Housing Engineers who so ably proved their ability in the planning and construction of Nitro, will give freely of their time and skill to help Industries or Developers work up their plans and building schemes to fit available appropriations. No group of men represent more sound ability, and practical experience.

Write us fully—telling us what you want to do, how many houses you need, and your estimated expenditure. Let us show you how MINTER FABRICATED HOMES can fill your requirements.

Traveling Light First Lesson in Camping Science

Wide Equipment Choice Offered for Benefit of Motor Gypsy

BY HIGH SPEED.

THIS is the time of the year when the experienced motor gypsy begins getting out his kit and preparing for a summer of delightful living in the open. To the veteran he cannot, perhaps, offer very much that is helpful, but there are thousands of new owners who will want to try the most delightful and healthful way of spending a more or less lengthy vacation camping with a car. The motor car is ideally adapted to make the camping trip an experience of unalloyed pleasure, providing you know how to do it. In this article we shall try to offer some helpful suggestions along this line.

In the first place camping equipment of all kinds must be carried in the car or on a trailer. There is, therefore, a limit to the weight that can be carried and the equipment must not be too bulky, as carrying space is definitely limited.

The first consideration will be sleeping quarters, and here the manufacturers have done well by the automobile camper. There is almost no limit to the variety of tents that are available. There are ordinary tents, made of balloon silk, khaki, and special fabrics, which occupy little space when rolled up and may be erected in a very few minutes by means of special frames of steel rods. These will range in price from $15 to as high as one cares to pay. Special automobile tents designed for attachment to one side of the raised top are on the market. In this way the tent may be erected, the car used as a dressing room, after which the tourists step down into the beds. There are a number of ingenious cots on the market designed to be stretched from the framework of the top, so that the body of the car is converted into a sleeping apartment. In special instances car owners have had the seats of the vehicle so hinged that they may be opened out to form a very comfortable bed.

Trailers are now offered so designed that a tent is erected over the body of this auxiliary vehicle and the sides let down to form single beds. This trailer equipment has many advantages for the motor camper at a cost running from less than $100 up to several hundred.

With the shelter provided for, the next thought will be where to sleep, and a number of solutions of this problem are available. There are the folding camp cots, which are so made as to fold and roll up into small compass. The pneumatic bed is an admirable thing to sleep on. It is simply a rubber mattress, which is blown up with the tire pump, and is truly more luxurious than your bed at home. The cost is, on the average, somewhat less than $25.

With living accommodations provided for, the next thought will be the method of providing food, and the first question here is cooking it. Camp kitchen kits are available in endless variety. There are stoves made of sheets of cast iron, which fold up when not in use into a thin package that takes ups little room and weighs less. Yet the most elaborate cooking may be carried out on these camp stoves, even the baking of bread and roasting of fowls.

The question of pots and pans in which to prepare the food is solved by ingeniously designed utensils that are made with removable handles, so that they may be nested to take up the smallest possible amount of space.

Having provided for the cooking of the food, the next thing is how to serve it. Camp table kits furnish the answer. These may be had in any degree of elaborateness. They include, knives, forks, spoons, plates, cups, and saucers, these latter in white enamelware, with thermos bottles, salt and pepper shakers, etc., and usually they are packed in a hamper which makes for easy packing.

The question of what to carry is one that the newcomer in camping circles finds difficulty in solving. The temptation is to load the car with provisions and supplies that could really be more advantageously bought en route. The staples, sugar, salt, pepper, coffee, tea, packed in glass, with about a pound of butter in a tight jar, are about the only supplies needed for the ordinary camping tour in thickly settled districts. The ordinary supplies, meat, vegetables, bread, and eggs, should be bought from day to day.

GOSSIP OF THE AUTO TRADE

INTEREST in the Evans powercycle, the seventy pound motorcycle with a 100 miles per gallon fuel record demonstrated and sold by Ira H. Whipple, 1227 West Jackson boulevard, has reached to police circles. Officials are considering its adoption for the patrol of the park system. The first motor bicycle tour of the season was begun last week, when Peter O'Day, aged 60, began the first lap of a 300 mile trip through Michigan.

John Morgan, formerly vice president and treasurer of the McGraw Tire and Rubber company, has been elected president of the corporation, to succeed the late Edwin C. McGraw, its founder.

H. M. Sloan, former member of the war industry board, has been made treasurer of the Buda company.

Overtime construction work resulted last week in the opening of the new Cinch Fastener corporation factory at Van Buren street and Claremont avenue. The Cinch fastener is now standard equipment on fourteen popular cars.

Motorist delegates attending the convention last week were given road information and routing service by a branch bureau of the Chicago Motor club opened in the Coliseum.

GRANT SIX

You Don't Have To Nurse It

THE Grant Six will keep tuned up with less fussing and attention than any other medium priced car you know of. Grant Six engineers have built the car to stay right. The forced feed oiling system for the power plant is the same system used on nationally known cars costing $2000 more than the Grant Six. The chassis is lubricated by the clean, quick, simple Alemite system.

The Grant Six carburetion system minimizes carbon trouble. The mechanical refinement of the entire power plant has reduced wear to the vanishing point. The car is vibrationless at all speeds and remains noiseless after thousands of miles of use.

All these things mean much to you if you demand satisfying, economical, dependable service. In the Grant Six you get a car that completely satisfies at every point. And it's one of the best looking cars on the road, regardless of price.

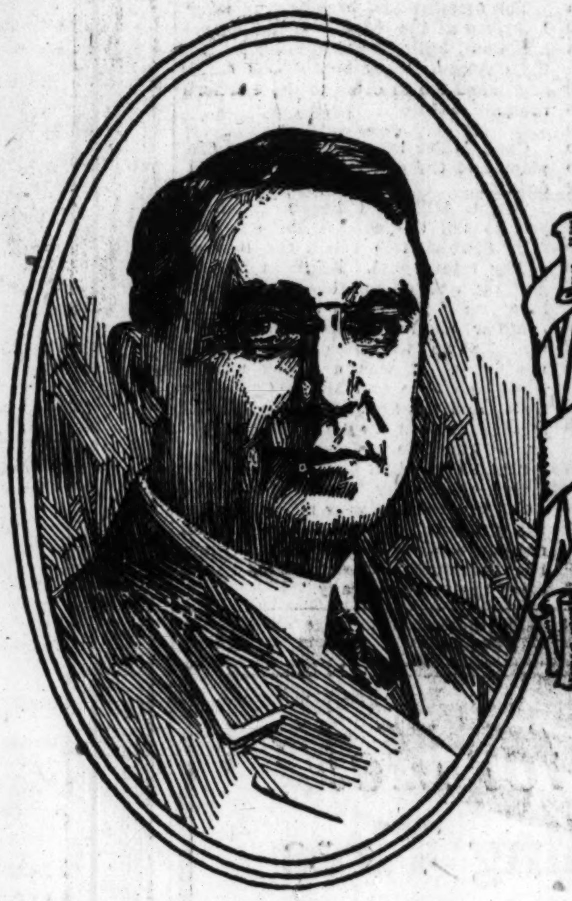
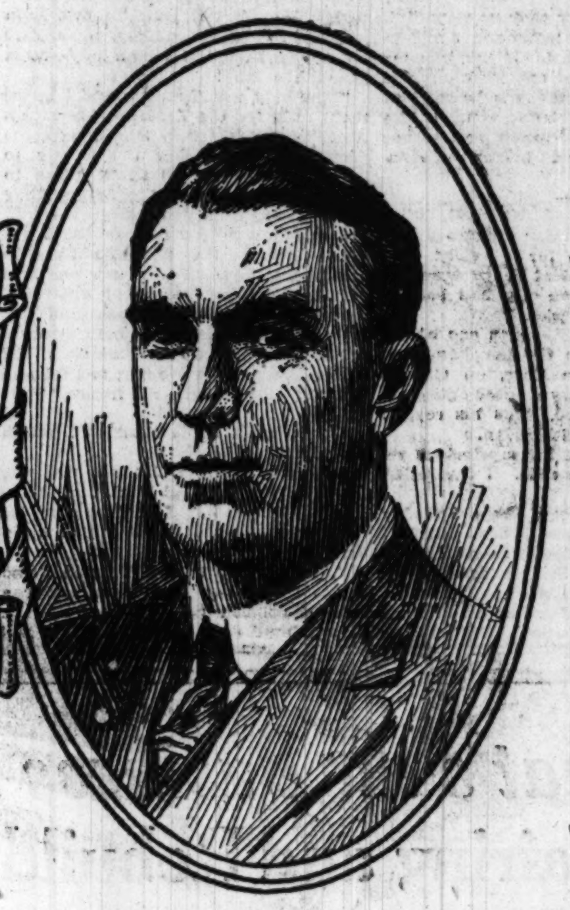
GRANT MOTOR CAR CORPORATION, CLEVELAND

QUALITY IS THE BASIS OF TRIBUNE ADVERTISIN



"The late Elmer Apperson, builder of America's first mechanically successful gasoline motor car."



"Edgar Apperson, co-builder of America's first car and President of the Apperson Brothers Automobile Company."

The Exact Facts Concerning Who Actually Built the First Mechanically Successful American Automobile

A Statement by the Apperson Bros. Automobile Co.

The first mechanically successful American automobile!

Who built it?

This statement is to establish the true facts once and for all.

An erroneous impression has been gained by a few that a controversy exists relative to the "First Car" matter.

We wish now to publicly announce that this is not true.

At the same time Elwood Haynes was associated with the Natural Gas Company of Portland, Indiana.

One day the thought came to Mr. Haynes that a gasoline vehicle would have untold economic possibilities in America.

It should be remembered that certain inventors in Europe had already been at work on the idea of the gasoline automobile. For example, the famous Benz cars had been operating for quite a while.

Thus it was Elwood Haynes, who initiated the idea which developed into the first mechanically successful American made motor car.

However, the most important step of anyone who has found a new idea is to locate the brains and ability which will enable the development of the idea in a practical manner, so it can become a reality

So in this instance the best and most practical mechanics were sought.

Messrs. Elmer and Edgar Apperson were selected as being the most competent.

At this time they owned the Riverside Machine Works, which was located on the site of one of our present plants.

It was here that the idea was discussed and developed by the three men.

The final outcome [of these meetings was the building, by the Apperson Brothers for Elwood Haynes, of the car destined to become famous.

The actual mechanical work on this first car was done by the Apperson Brothers and their employees.

The speed transmission, which included four individual clutches, was of the ordinary lathe clutch type and was bought at Dayton, Ohio.

These clutches were adapted to the job by the Appersons

It was at this time that the Appersons designed the first contracting band clutch, by means of which the power of the motor was applied to the driving mechanism. The car also was provided with compensating gears

Today many of the fundamental units and actions of this original car are still in use. Of course, they have been greatly refined, but the basic principles in many cases remain the same.

The point we wish to make—the point which we are entitled to make—the point, we believe, the public believes we are entitled to make, is that much of the initial engineering work, and actual process of building and assembling the car was done by the Apperson Brothers—by their own brains and with their own hands.

They were the engineers to design and produce the first successful American made motor car of the internal combustion type.

That car—America's first car, was a success from the start. When it was pulled into the country for its trial trip, it actually ran!

Inasmuch as the material and labor entering into the construction of this car were paid for by Elwood Haynes, it became his property. He presented it to the Smithsonian Institution at Washington, D. C., where it is now on exhibition, placarded as follows:—

> "Gasoline automobile built by Elwood Haynes in Kokomo, Indiana, 1893-1894. Successful trial trip made at a speed of six or seven miles per hour, July 4, 1894.
>
> "Gift of Elwood Haynes. 1910. 262,135."

Yet in its issue of April 14, 1920, the New York Globe published the following:—

> "With the death of Elmer Apperson a short time ago the automobile industry loses a man who has been an important factor in its development from the very beginning. There has been some controversy as to whether Elmer Apperson or Elwood Haynes was responsible for the first American Automobile. Suffice it to say here, however, that no matter whether it was Elwood Haynes or Elmer Apperson who furnished the idea for the car now on exhibition at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, labelled 'America's First Car,' there is no doubt that it was built by the Apperson Brothers in the Riverside Machine Works. Later the Apperson boys, in association with Elwood Haynes formed the first American company for the production of motor cars—the Haynes-Apperson Company. Later, the Appersons withdrew from the first organization and organized their own manufacturing company. Through all his life—and he was only fifty-eight years old—the soul of Elmer Apperson was in the building of automobiles. His death removes not only a pioneer of the industry but a useful citizen and an honorable man."

Also in confirmation of this same fact, Edward M. Souder, editor of the Kokomo Tribune and boyhood playmate of the Apperson Brothers, in a "Memory" written at the time of Elmer Apperson's death, had the following to say:—

> "Elmer Apperson's business career had its real beginning in 1889 when he founded the Riverside Machine Works. That unpretentious plant became actually, tho not in name, the first automobile factory in America, for it was there after plans suggested by Elwood Haynes, that he, in association with his brother, Edgar, built the first gasoline motor car constructed in this country. This car is in existence today comprising part of the mechanical exhibit in the Smithsonian Institution in the city of Washington."

With Elmer and Edgar Apperson there was associated with Elwood Haynes, John Maxwell, for whom some years later the now famous Maxwell automobile was named.

Thus we give all the facts concerning the conception, creation and construction of America's first mechanically successful motor car.

In 1898 the Haynes-Apperson Company was incorporated and a factory built to produce automobiles. This was the first regularly incorporated company in the United States for the manufacture of motor cars.

Elmer Apperson was General Manager of this Company and Edgar Apperson, General Superintendent.

As time went on the Apperson Brothers gave to the world many notable engineering motor car improvements, the most noteworthy of which are as follows:—

They designed and built the first double opposed motor;

Built the first car with electric ignition;

Built the first gasoline motor car engine to win an award in America;

Built the car that won the first American speed contest;

Built the car that made the first 100-mile non-stop run in America;

Built the car that made the first long overland American tour;

Built the two American cars that won first and second in the first Automobile Club of America run;

Built their first four-cylinder car in 1903;

Built their first six-cylinder car in 1907;

Built their first eight-cylinder car in 1914;

Built and designed the first "Chummy" roadster body;

From this initial conception and creation, which cost about $750 to build by hand, we find today billions of dollars worth of automobiles in use in the United States.

Since 1893 and 1894 the Appersons continually and consistently have built better and better automobiles. They put into practice their basic and fundamental designs that are today in use by the entire automobile industry.

The purpose of making public this full announcement of all the facts is to make clear everyone's position.

Just as there can be no doubt as to who conceived the first car, neither can there be any doubt as to who created and constructed it.

June five,
Kokomo, Indiana.

THE HONOR OF THE REGIMENT

BY CAPT. KARL W. DETZER

(Chief of the D. C. I., American Embarkation Center.)

A Story of the "D. C. I.," the American Secret Police in France, After the Troops Started Home

"SERGEANT GRAHAM," I addressed the desk sergeant on duty, "give me the case report book, the files, and the operators' reports for the day. Then close the door behind you!"

I locked the door after him. Returning to the desk before my open fire, I sat and thought. There are times in the life of every man when his official duty and his personal desires run at right angles. I had come to such a place, and was undecided.

Before me lay the case report book of the division of criminal investigation. It was opened to case 787. I thought for twenty minutes. Then carefully, with a sharp knife, I cut the page from the report book, and it, with files, card index, and reference notes, burned for a moment on the hearth. Case 787 was closed. Only I knew the result. No official report ever was made.

Because of the nature of the report I have changed the names in this narration, but otherwise it is absolute fact. You will understand why the names are changed—why the ashes that blew about the hearth in my locked office that day are all that remain of one of the most complex mysteries in the history of the American secret police, in France.

* * *

It was a wet, murky afternoon in the late spring of last year I sat before a pile of unfinished reports in the headquarters of the secret police at Le Mans. A clerk announced two officers to see me.

They entered and sat before the fire. One was the captain and adjutant of an artillery regiment, and the other the regimental supply officer. Their organization was billetted in the little city of La Ferte Bernard, thirty miles away. They had ridden a motorcycle side car and were chilled and wet and mud spattered.

The adjutant spoke. There had been a robbery in their regiment the night before, and they had been referred to our office for assistance. The funds of battery b, the savings of the enlisted men in the battery, amounting to 40,000 francs, had disappeared the night before from its hiding place in the headquarters.

Surely I would go back with them. My car was waiting. So we started through the rain for La Ferte Bernard.

"It hurts," explained Capt. Miller, the adjutant, "because never before in our organization has there been a trace of crime. Here we are about to sail for the States, and our long record is marred by this nasty piece of business. The colonel is broken up pretty badly and so are all the officers. And we cannot think who in the regiment could have touched it."

* * *

I was genuinely sorry for the young officer, a handsome, athletic type, hard and tan and boyish, with sensitive mouth and the eyes of a woman. Capt. Hunter, the supply officer, was worried. A small man, older than most captains, he said little, but I could see him turning over and over in his methodical mind the events of the night before. With me I had taken First Sergeant Madden, the shrewdest detective in the American secret police. Unlike most detectives, who trust no one, he trusted every one—a little. Both Madden and I were in army uniform, so as not to excite suspicion, for the robbery had not been reported to the enlisted men of the regiment.

Arriving at the ancient town of La Ferte Bernard, we whirled through the streets, across the "place," where young Americans by the score flirted and held hands with the village girls. On and up a winding hillside road lined with military looking elms we swung, through the gates of a chateau, and stopped before the door.

Inquiring for the colonel, we were told he was in his office, which I discovered was the old hunting lodge set across the little lake from the chateau proper.

The adjutant introduced us.

* * *

"Col. Harkness," I said, "I am very sorry to hear of the unfortunate occurrence of last night, and I assure you that the entire resources of my department are at your service. And it may encourage you to know that we never have left a mystery unsolved."

"Thank you, captain," he replied. "This case will not go long unsolved either. We must get at the bottom of it. The disgrace of it! My regiment! The money of my men! After our record—our five citations—our reputation in battle and in camp!

"I suppose you wish to start to work at once. Very well. I can tell you briefly. The fund of Battery B amounted to 40,000 francs—roughly $8,000. It was the property of the men. Because there is no bank, and because we have been on the march so much, my adjutant, Capt. Miller, and I have taken the responsibility of keeping it.

"It always was in my trunk. I slept with it by my bed—there in the chateau. Every minute of the day either Capt. Miller or I was there, or when we left my orderly sat by the trunk. It never has been alone a minute. Capt. Miller and I both trust the orderly—he was with me in the islands and is a good, reliable old soldier.

"Last night I sent Capt. Miller to the city to buy some supplies with part of the fund. The amount was small, 150 francs, and Capt. Miller and I got the money out of the trunk, and he counted out the amount, and placed it back in this envelope, and I locked the trunk. This morning there was blank paper in the envelope. There is your story; we must find it, we must; do tell me you can help!"

* * *

"We shall try," and the colonel shook my hand. He was the fine type of old regular army officer, big and straight, and broad shouldered, with a kindly light playing about in the fine wrinkles in the corners of his eyes. I pitied the old man, for he seemed crushed, broken.

We went to his bedroom. The trunk stood open. Beside it sat a mournful figure — the old orderly — and when we entered he stood at mournful attention.

"At what time last evening did you last see the money?" I asked.

"About 5:30, I think," and the colonel turned to Capt. Miller, "or perhaps it was later."

"Yes, it was nearly 6 o'clock, I rode the solo motorcycle and did not arrive in the city till nearly 7, it must have been after 6 I left."

"Then detail what happened during the evening, colonel, so I may have something to start on. I am going to leave Sergt. Madden to handle the case."

"I left the room a few minutes afterward, and Olcott — he's the orderly — was here till 9, and I returned and went to bed. I read till midnight, and then went to sleep. Capt. Miller awakened me at 7 o'clock. He had trouble with his motorcycle and had spent the night on the road. It was 8 o'clock when I noticed that the money was gone. I had the only key to the trunk, and it was locked."

* * *

I examined the trunk, and found that the lock had not been tampered with.

"It's your case, Sergt. Madden," I said. "Report by wire twice a day. Colonel, I shall be back within forty-eight hours and hope to have word for you by then. Good night, sir."

Twice the next day came Madden's word "Blank."

The following morning came another wire, a puzzling one, which showed that Madden was on the track of information.

"Hunt in city café, hotel, or house recently painted bright red. Signed M1."

Either it was very easy or very difficult to follow those instructions and to find what we wanted. If the interior of the house was red and freshly painted we might hunt till the walls chipped off and were repainted green. If the outside—well, the French are rather an artistic people and bright red exteriors were few.

* * *

Every man in the department, eighteen of them, received instructions that morning to search for a bright red house. Then the paint shops were visited. No one in the city had bought any red paint in weeks.

But late in the afternoon one of the operators called on the telephone.

"At Hotel de la Rose, on Grande Rue, there is a newly painted entrance, and I'll say it's red," was his report.

"Found," I wired Madden.

In an hour came his mysterious reply, telegraphed in code. I translated it to this:

"Find if American there Tuesday night. Money? Description. M1."

The French talk more than any other three nations. Sometimes they are annoying. But I was happy that night that the landlord at Hotel de la Rose liked conversation. Even in the dim light of a street lamp I was firmly convinced that the entrance was red—yes, red. In the little office I plied the landlord with questions.

"Tuesday night? O, yes, the night of the rain. Surely there were several Americans there. Yes, one of them had money—O, daughter of a cow, how much money! What did he look like—surely I can't tell you; he was in a raincoat like all the soldiers wear. And not only money, but such a lady—oo la la, such a lady!

"The lady was Spanish, and I heard them talk, for the American, being an American, talked very loud after some drinks. He gave her the money to keep and they talked about going to Spain in the morning. Spain they talked always; they would go there in the morning where no one could get them. But the lady walked out and in a moment the American saw she was gone. How they can carry on, those Americans! He came back and got me out of bed six times before morning to know if she had come back. Of course I wanted to see her, too, for she had not paid her bill, six francs."

* * *

I rode to La Ferte Bernard through the night.

At the gate Sergt. Madden met me, for I had telegraphed him of my coming. But after I told him the story he led me not to the house but to a deserted stable across the lake.

"I came here today," he said, "and found this thing," and from under a pile of rubbish he pulled a raincoat. It was mud spattered and damp, and across the back and shoulders was a smear of red paint. I turned it over quickly, and in the light of my electric pocket lamp read the tag: "Henry H. Miller, Capt. Field Art."

"The officers are in conference in the hunting lodge," said Madden.

"Very well, wait for me at the car," and I walked to the lodge.

The meeting was breaking up when I arrived at the lodge, and the colonel and Capt. Miller were walking toward the château. They both shook hands and asked me to come to the colonel's room.

* * *

Capt. Miller leaned against the fireplace and the colonel sat by the window.

"Capt. Miller," I began, "I want you to tell the colonel the story of your Spanish trip which the lady so rudely interrupted. Begin at the beginning, and go on through, and I'll help you if you forget anything."

Miller showed white through his tan. But he faced the colonel and told the story. It was a sordid tale of Paris and Nice and Monte Carlo on leave, and the Spanish siren, and the temptation, and the plan; of the meeting at Hotel de la Rose.

"And that night in this room when I took the money from the envelope, while you were at your table I slipped the paper in, and I had the bills in my pocket when you locked the trunk. but the woman deserted me, and I came back. I am ready."

On a Hot Day the CHALMERS Runs Cool with Hot Spot and Ram's-horn

THE reason the Chalmers runs cool on a hot day is the very same reason a Chalmers starts quickly and runs smoothly on a cold day. Service records show no complaints of over-heating in summer.

Such trouble in other cars comes from unevenness of the charges, "improperly digested fuel," and other matters often attributed to the raw, heavy, inferior gasoline you buy today.

Hot Spot transforms such "gas" into a "fine vapor cloud," just right for quick combustion.

Ram's-horn hurries it at a velocity of 100 miles an hour through "easy air bends" to the cylinders.

Thus follow power results that are smooth and even; and notably absent are those troubles that cause an engine to overheat, or burned bearings, or scored cylinders, or frequently fouled spark plugs and the like.

Engage a Chalmers owner in conversation about his car. He will tell you Chalmers is one of the few great cars of the world.

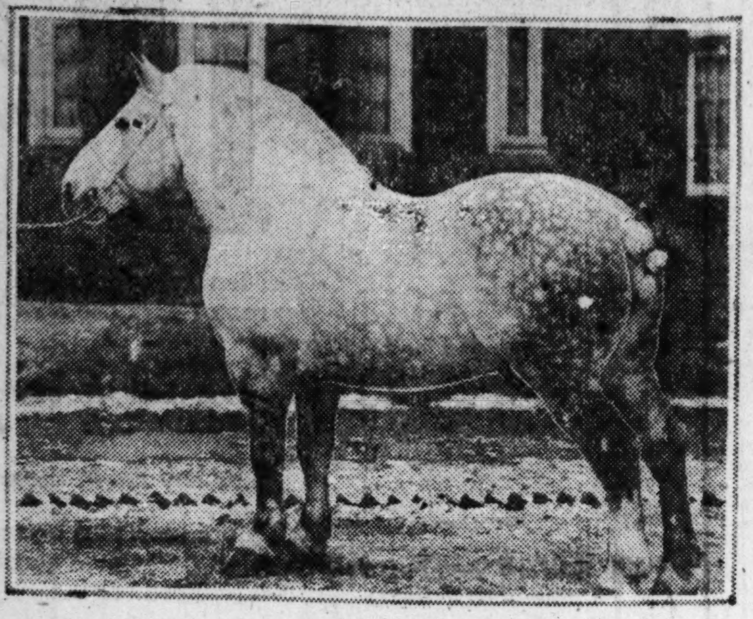
FARM AND GARDEN

Demand for Horses in Farm Work Far Ahead of Supply

By Frank Ridgway.



Jasmine, grand champion Percheron stallion, International Live Stock exhibition, 1919, owned by J. H. Serven & Son, Prairie City, Ill. An offer of $20,000 was refused for this giant of the draft horse world. He's considered the most perfect drafter ever shown in this country, and is the type breeders want.

GET in the collar and hustle is the advice leading agriculturists are giving to horsemen and breeders of drafters. Labor, the limiting factor in agriculture, is more acute now than ever before and the horse is playing a mighty important part. After attempts to displace them, the horses and mules are still the chief source of motive power in agriculture and industry. They are back on a basis that insures excellent returns to the producer of high class draft horses.

At the beginning of this year there were 21,109,000 horses and 4,995,000 mules on farms in this country, according to government figures. While this shows an increase of 1,276,000 horses and 785,000 mules during the last ten years, there is still a shortage. C. F. Curtiss, national authority on live stock and dean of the Iowa College of Agriculture, says that the supply of good breeding and market horses is already far short of the demand, and that the good ones will, within twelve months, sell at higher prices than have ever been received in America. He adds there is no real substitute for the draft horse on the farm.

Wayne Dinsmore, one of the foremost authorities on the horse and secretary of the Horse Association of America, says that unless horse breeding is stimulated the shortage of work animals will become more pronounced and interfere with normal processes of agricultural production and transportation.

Only Ten States Have Surplus.

In reviewing some of the vitally important questions concerning the horse situation as it is today, Mr. Dinsmore pointed out that there are only ten states which produce a surplus of high classed draft horses. They are Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Ohio, Indiana, Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma, and North and South Dakota. A few other states produce for their own needs, but no surplus. They are Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, Minnesota, and Wisconsin. The first three produce a surplus, but not of the kind wanted. It is the small, light weight kind which is not in general demand for farm or city work.

The balance of the United States is a purchasing district rather than a producing district. Pennsylvania and all states east and north do not produce one-fourth of the work animals needed for their farms, to say nothing of the surplus needed for cities, towns, and villages, and construction work. The territory south of the Ohio river and east of the Mississippi river, together with the states of Arkansas and Louisiana, do not produce one-fourth of the work animals they need. This great southern territory and the eastern states have always drawn their supply from the horse producing central states.

Within the last four years, due to war conditions, meat animals and grain have been so high in price and in such great demand that the farmers in the ten leading states, who have always produced a surplus of horses, have attempted to discontinue horse breeding to a great extent. They have remarked that they had enough horses on their own farms to take care of them for five or six years, but they have failed to realize that the south and east sections are absolutely dependent upon farmers of the Mississippi valley for work animals.

Drafters Bring High Prices.

A good understanding of the situation as it is today is gained by reviewing the experiences of leading horse buyers at the central markets. Harry McNair, Union Stockyards, Chicago, who has bought and sold more heavy draft horses than any other three men in America, it is claimed, says that his buyers, who operate all over the corn belt, report greater difficulty in finding good draft horses available for purchase than at any time heretofore. Furthermore, prices paid on the Chicago market for heavy draft horses to go east into cities and rich agricultural districts have been higher than ever before. The best drafters selling for $400 and $500 a head—a solid car load, averaging $450 each—was recently shipped to Maine. They came principally from Illinois and Iowa.

Similar reports come from J. J. Searcy, National Stockyards, East St. Louis, who has been selling horses and mules since 1887. He adds that prices for good horses and mules are higher than he has ever known.

A report from Frank H. Sweet, chief horse and mule buyer of the Kansas City market, is entirely in line with that of Mr. McNair. Reports from the markets at Omaha and Grand Island, Neb.; Sioux City, Ia., and Galesburg, Ill., are all of the same tenor.

Good Market in Cities.

"City purchasers are buying more heavy horses than they have for several years," said Mr. Dinsmore, "as they have found by actual experiments that they furnish the most economic and efficient motive power for 80 per cent of all city hauling."

"We are confronted, then, at present, with a rapidly increasing demand for drafters for city work, with a steady market for horses and mules needed in those states that do not produce enough for their own use. Farmers in the leading states should be urged to breed all of their good mares for a least three years more," he said.

"The production and using of horses has another important phase," added Mr. Dinsmore, "in that motive power in the form of horses is produced at less cost in days of labor than any other type. Only sixty-six days of human labor are required to bring four draft colts to the age of 36 months, by which time they are broken and ready for steady work on the farm, while competing types of motive power require from two to three times as much human labor in their production."

In order to stimulate interest and get more farmers to raise horses, the live stock department of the Iowa state fair offers $28,205 in premiums on horses this year, an increase of nearly $8,000 over last year's prizes.

Raising good horses should be worth while. Get in the collar.

Look Out Behind!

The rear end is where trouble often starts. There friction runs rampant, and grinding, squeaking gears clamor loudly for Dixon's.

Friction and noise can't exist where Dixon's is at work.

DIXON'S Gear LUBRICANT

For differential and transmission use Dixon's 677. Also the famous Dixon's Cup Grease and other Dixon's lubricants.

It smoothes over the invisible rough spots on gear and bearing surfaces with a protecting film that means—more power—less noise—fewer repairs—lower upkeep—a quieter, easier running car.

Dixon's can't "squeeze out" under pressure. And it takes the weather as it comes. No congealing or breaking up like plain grease and oil.

If you're half as particular about your lubrication as you are about your tires, you'll use Dixon's.

Your dealer has it in convenient red cans.

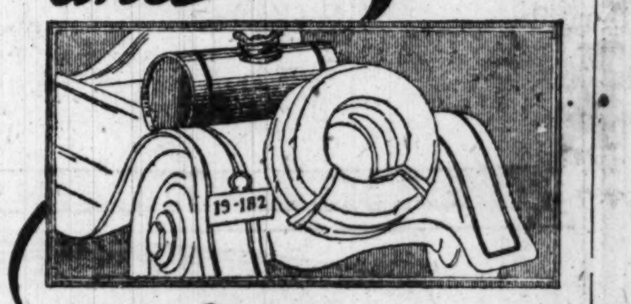
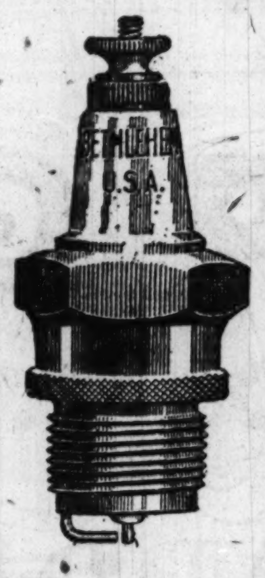
Spark Plugs and Gasoline





IT STANDS to reason that when you have to drop into "second" because of a "miss," you are using up more gasoline, without getting any farther. The gasoline wasted by a misfiring spark plug runs into several dollars in the course of a season.

Bethlehem Spark Plugs deliver a fat, hot spark right into the cylinder-head every time. They are the surest guarantee against misfiring that we know of.

Improved engineering ideas reduce liability of fouling. Special-formula porcelain reduces breakage and current-loss to a minimum.

Every single Bethlehem is tested on special electrical and compression-testing apparatus before it goes out of our shops. It MUST be sure-fire before our inspector approves it.

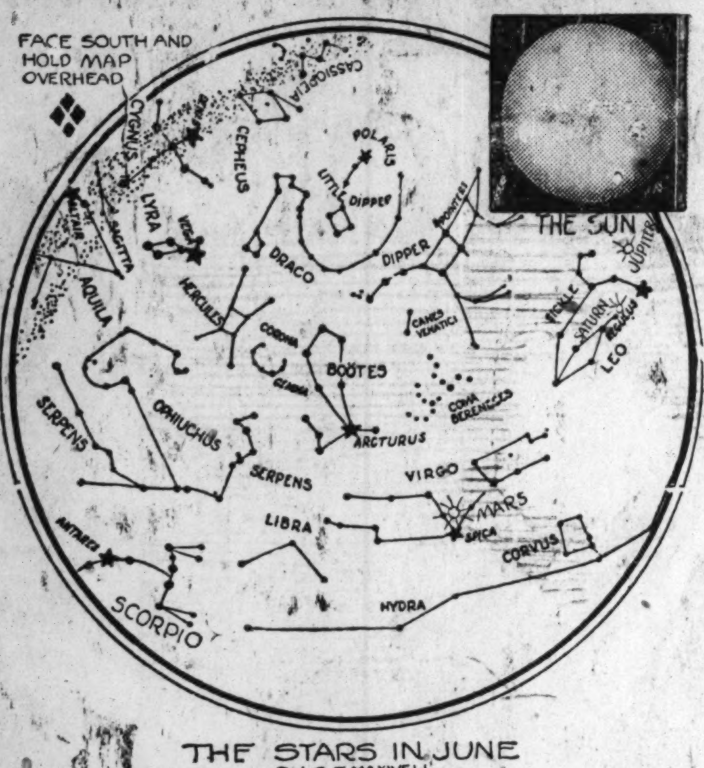
ASTRONOMY



THE STARS IN JUNE
BY S. F. MAXWELL

Questions on astronomy will be answered in this column or by mail if a stamped, addressed envelope is inclosed. Address Astronomy, Chicago Sunday Tribune.

TOLD BY THE SUNBEAM.

HAVE you ever noticed the ovals of light the sun casts through the leaves, or, better, the round discs from every sunbeam as it streams into a darkened room. These flecks of light tell a story about the sun.

If you single out some particularly pure beam that comes from a minute hole, you will observe that it is always a circle whose diameter bears the relation of one to 100 to the distance from the hole.

This might seem odd, until we remember that this is exactly the relation between the sun's diameter and its distance from the earth. The sun, you know, is 886,000 miles across and its distance from the earth is 92 million miles.

Light radiates from the sun in every direction; beams shoot this way and that in such great profusion that there is no point in space anywhere where one of them cannot be found. Not only is this true, but there are enough of them so that they crisscross each other at every point.

If you set up a screen of some opaque substance with one tiny hole in it, no matter where it be placed, the beams of sunlight which would normally cross at that point will find their way through quite unhindered, while all others will be stopped. The beams which pass go on keeping the same alignment that they had when they left the sun. If they are interrupted at any point they instantly cast an image of the sun just as it would appear to the naked eye, only, of course, much fainter, with the relation between the disc and the hole exactly the same as the relation between the sun itself and the earth on whose surface the hole is situated.

Examine such a solar image the next time you have an opportunity, and you will notice that the edges are decidedly darker and redder than the center. This is because the haze and smoke on the sun seem densest on the edge, where the light from within has to traverse a greater thickness to get out. The rays from these regions are in consequence colored, for exactly the same reason that our own sunsets are colored red. If there are any large sunspots visible this method will show them, as well as birds which may chance to fly across the sun, or even insects if they fly near the pinhole. Astronomers often employ devices hardly more elaborate than this through which to watch eclipses of the sun.

The summer stars are coming to their glory now. Bright Jupiter and duller Saturn are high up in the west at sunset, lying in the constellation of Leo, but they decline into the west before the evening is far advanced. Mars and Spica, in the southwest, follow a little later.

As you face directly south you see Scorpio before you, whose brightest star is the red Antares, while over your left shoulder you will notice Vega, Deneb, and Altair rising. These three are set in a great right triangle with Vega at the right angle.

MISS G. S.: The moon goes around the earth, and both together go around the sun. Jupiter has nine moons in all, four easily visible and five small.

J. W. C.: The sun is traveling in the direction of Lyra, carrying all its planets with it. The sun's motion does not affect the earth.

THE HONOR OF THE REGIMENT

He held out his hands for the cuffs. I did not move. On the window seat the colonel wept silently. Then he stood.

"Wait a minute, captain," he turned to me, "just a minute while I think."

He stood looking out into the blackness of the château grounds. For a few minutes his shoulders registered his sobs. Then he was still.

He lifted his head, faced about like a soldier, and walked to his desk. I saw him rummage through some papers, and then write something.

He looked at the disgraced captain—his adjutant.

"Miller," he said, and his voice was calm and low, his words smooth and showing no sign of his grief. "Miller, I can't call you 'captain' again. It is fortunate that I have been able to save in my twenty years in the army. I have on deposit in a bank at home just $8,000. Here is my personal check. It covers the shortage in this—unpleasant affair. Miller, I am not going to prosecute you, I am not going to mention this again—ever. The regiment sails for home in three days. In three weeks it will be a memory. I go back to the army, and you to what fields you choose—outside the army. I will not allow the disgrace to fall upon my command. From this minute till we disband you will not speak to me nor I to you except officially. Afterward, in my life—you never have lived. This check," he passed it to me, "is made out for $8,000—my life savings, and I am an old man. But I give it willingly, for the honor of the regiment."

He took the check again in his hand, and placed it in an envelope, and sealed it, and dropped it into his trunk. He turned the key. Walking to the door he opened it wide, and Capt. Miller, standing rigid, saluted, and walked out. The colonel returned the salute.

"And now, captain," he said to me, "I am sorry to have caused you this inconvenience through a mere oversight. The money was merely mislaid, and now that it has been found there is nothing more for you to do. May I thank you again. You understand?"

I understood.

Another story by Capt. Detzer will appear in an early issue.

STANDARD EIGHT
A Powerful Car

PRIDE of ownership is based on a car's power to do the seemingly impossible. Your feeling for a car that "has seen you through" every emergency is something more than impersonal.

The owner of a Standard Eight speaks of the car's flexibility, its quick acceleration and ability to level hills. Tremendous reserve power is a guarantee of economical driving service.

The beauty and finish of the Standard Eight are appreciated by the most casual observer.

Let us give you a demonstration.

DORT
Quality Goes Clear Through

Men who previously paid high prices for motor cars are now turning to the Dort.

It offers, they say, more dollar-for-dollar value than any other car of its type on the market today.

The key lies in these simple truths:

More steel and better grade. Uncommonly high mileage in gasoline, tires and oil. Most advanced engineering principles.

Simplicity and accessibility. Dort owners, mechanically inclined, do their own repair work.

Men who know, say there is no better value at the price than Dort. And many of these men previously paid higher prices for motor cars.

A limited number for immediate delivery

On our time payment plan you can own a Dort Car by making a cash payment of $377.

When "Miss Chicago" Rides or Drives

The car she drives—have you made it safe for her in all kinds of weather and on all pavements?.

There's enough danger and annoyance in weaving her way through the city's congested traffic. Give her tires that she can depend upon, even on the most slippery asphalt—tires that will enable her to respond instantly to the traffic officer's signals, even on wet pavements.

Many Chicago women are more carefree on shopping trips, in driving through the parks or on Michigan Boulevard because they know their Horse-Shoe Cord Tires will not skid.

Each little shoe in the Horse-Shoe tread forms a near-vacuum that cleaves noiselessly to the road with a stubborn grip that is as effectively non-skid as tire chains.

Then, too, there is dressiness and beauty in the carbon-black tread and silver grey sidewalls of these distinctive Cords.

A demonstration will convince you that the Horse-Shoe Cord is a safer tire for her to drive. Ask any of the following to show you how non-skid this tire really is.

LIVE FACTS ON LIVE STEAM

Automatic Steam Carburetor Co.,
2496 Milwaukee Avenue,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:

Since installing one of your Automatic Steam Carburetors on my car, its performance has proven so marvelous, that I must send you the record of test made by me, Sunday, June 6th.

On straight running, it increased the speed of car from 15 to 18 miles an hour, with gas lever set. I then drained vacuum tank and put in one quart of gasoline. Engine stopped at 2½ miles without using the Steam Carburetor. I put in another quart, and switched on the "Automatic," and on this quart, I got 3½ miles, or an increase in mileage of 40%. I find engine runs much smoother, with spark plug trouble practically eliminated.

I am recommending the Automatic Steam Carburetor to every motorist who is interested in lowering his costs and bettering the efficiency of his car, as I am "sold" completely.

Yours very truly,
Chas. S. Nelson
Secy & Treas.

So effective has the Automatic Steam Carburetor proved itself that every well-known make of car is making official tests with live steam. Live steam injected into the gasoline mixture increases the efficiency, power and smoothness of the motor, saves gasoline, eliminates carbon.

The figures are available for your car, too. We tell you what it will do—if it doesn't do just as we say your money is cheerfully refunded.

Start saving on your gasoline costs today. See the nearest dealer. If he can't supply you, call on us.

Remember, the Automatic Steam Carburetor does not replace your gasoline carburetor. It works in conjunction with it.

The New Packard Basis of Rating was Established by Absolute Transportation Facts revealed by more than 7000 Monthly National Standard Truck Cost System Reports, covering a period of Two Years

Why Packard Discarded "Ton Rating" for Packard Trucks

REASONING as transportation engineers, the Packard Company has believed for years that the arbitrary factory "ton rating" system was bound to become obsolete as soon as sufficient facts on transportation could be known.

These facts are now at hand—made available through more than 7000 Monthly National Standard Truck Cost System Reports, covering a period of two years.

These reports confirm what Packard has so long foreseen—the fallacy of rating a truck simply on the tonnage capacity of the chassis and engine under normal conditions.

They have proved again and again the sound Packard practice of rating a truck with all the transportation factors in mind—character of roads, grades to be met, speeds to be maintained, and the chances of overload, etc.

COMPARE a Packard Size G, Model E, Truck, developing nearly 6700 pounds' traction at rear wheels and able to pull a 28 per cent. grade on low gear; with the typical "6-ton truck," developing less than 4700 pounds' traction, and able to pull only a 20 per cent. grade!

The Packard frame both strong and flexible—made of rolled channel steel, not pressed steel,

Packard solid tired trucks governed at 11, 13, 15, 18 miles per hour, by the Packard transportation expert in touch with the actual job.

Today, as always, Packard is selling transportation.

HEREAFTER each Packard Truck will be designated by size and model.

The rating will be made on the ground, for the job, by the local Packard engineer—selected for what it will do in the individual customer's business, and with all his actual conditions in mind.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Open Conference on Religion at Moody Tabernacle

By the Rev. Frederick L. Gratiot

"TO TURN the Christian world back to the contemplation and practice of real Christian religion," is given as the object of the second world conference on Christian fundamentals, to be held here this week. There will be three sessions every day at the Moody Church tabernacle, North avenue and North Clark street, the opening service there to be this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The objects of the conference are to be "the discussion of the enlargement of Christian knowledge; the deepening of Christian faith; the meeting of menace and modernism; the viewing of present and future in the light of God's word."

A. M. Johnson is chairman of the local conference committee. The other members are Robert M. Russell, Edward P. James, Thomas S. Smith, Thomas J. Bolger, Howard J. White, Leslie J. Dodds, Henry P. Crowell, Frank Loesch, W. F. Hilker, Fred C. Hachtel, Charles S. Meacham, William G. Brimson, Hugh C. Beelman, Jesse Dimond, and Robert D. Lay.

Every one is invited by the committee to attend. It is expected that there will be a total daily attendance of 12,000. Prominent speakers and spiritual leaders from all over the world will make addresses.

THE REV. L. J. VELTE
—Photo—Waters.

The Rev. L. J. Velte, formerly captain in the A. E. F., having served as chaplain in France, has recently become pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist church, Spaulding avenue and Monroe street. Last Wednesday night he presented to the congregation plans for the next year's work of the church. The program includes all varieties of activity for the community as well as for the church members. Summer vacation school will be started, the Sunday school will be organized along modern lines, week day use of the church's plant will be extended so that it is busy every day, and a nursery will be opened.

◆

The United Presbyterians of America will continue their new world movement canvass until July 15, by which time it is expected that the full quota of $16,720,000 will have been secured.

◆

Jubilee services will be held in the Normal Park Methodist Episcopal church today, to commemorate the burning of the $50,000 mortgage on the new church property at West Seventy-first street and South Union avenue. The Rev. P. H. Swift, superintendent of the Chicago southern district of the Methodist Episcopal church, will deliver an address. Former Gov. Charles S. Deneen will speak in the evening.

◆

The Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the Methodist church is beginning its second fifty years of history. It comprises the states of Michigan, Wisconsin, Indiana, and Illinois, with headquarters in Chicago. Mrs. H. B. Williams of Evanston is its president and Mrs. Thomas Nicholoson, first vice president. Last year the society raised $2,006,370.66, of which $433,125 was from the northwestern branch. This society was started in 1869 in Boston with but eight women, and sent out two women as missionaries the first year, Miss Isabella Thoburn and Dr. Clara Swain, who went to India. There are at present 1,085 missionaries on the roll, 459,498 members in 15,113 organizations. The goal is 1,000,000 members, with their influence for good as wide as the world.

◆

There will be a community sing at the Lake View Presbyterian church parish house, Broadway and Madison street, this evening at 8 o'clock.

◆

The Illinois state convention of the Sunday School association will be held in Jacksonville on June 15, 16, and 17. There will be representatives from every county and city in the state. Among the speakers are Dr. Henry F. Cope, secretary Religious Education Association of America; Mrs. Maud J. Baldwin, superintendent children's division, International Sunday School association; Prof. H. Augustine Smith, Boston university; R. A. Waite, superintendent young people's division, International Sunday School association; Dr. H. E. Tralle, president Tralle Training school, Kansas City, Mo.

◆

Several important denominational conventions are scheduled for the summer months. The annual convention of the Northern Baptist church meets at Buffalo, N. Y., from June 23 to June 30. The work of their New World movement will be reviewed and plans for the expenditure of the funds made. Other important matters will come up. The Missouri synod Lutherans will meet in triennial session at Detroit from June 16 to June 23. Nearly a thousand delegates are expected at the session. Among the important matters for consideration will be the proposition to move their Concordia Theological seminary, the largest Protestant seminary in America, to Chicago.

Cross-sectional view showing Pistol Barrel that uses the force of each downward explosion to blow off, to dry off—the particles of oil and gas that collect, carbonize and foul the ordinary plug.

The First Successful Change in Plugs to Meet the Change in Gas

Experts pronounce the Arc-O Ribbon Fire Spark Plug a revolution in the automotive industry, for it is the first successful change in plugs to meet the change in gas.

Its big, powerful ribbon-of-fire spark gets the same power out of the lumpy, drizzly gas of today as was contained in the finest fuel of six years ago.

It is estimated by leading engineers that up to 50 per cent and more of present day gas fails to explode in cylinders because old-style spark plugs are too uncertain and weak. And unless the gas in each cylinder is completely exploded at every revolution you are not getting the power out of your engine that the maker built into it.

The change in gas calls for a change in spark plugs, and the Arc-O Ribbon Fire is the first to answer it successfully. It is four times more effective.

Pistol Blasts Keep Firing Parts Clean

The self-cleaning Pistol Barrel insulator of the Arc-O Ribbon Fire Spark Plug uses each downward explosion to dry out and blow off the particles of oil and gas that carbonize, clog, foul and short-circuit ordinary plugs.

This is why the Arc-O will fire for months without fouling—perhaps years—even in cylinders passing oil.

Electrodes Can't Burn, Corrode or Pre-Ignite

The Arc-O spark is a great waving Ribbon of Fire that constantly plays up and down the two electrodes, so that no point can become overheated. Electrodes on the ordinary plug spark at a single point and often get white hot, burn, corrode or pre-ignite the gas.

Salesmen, Solicitors, Etc.

ARE YOU INTERESTED IN SALESMANship? Beginning Tuesday evening, June 15, the Swenson School of Salesmanship announces a new four week summer course in salesmanship. Free Membership for Entire Four Week Course.
During the past 5 months Chicago men who attended these meetings, having had no previous salesmanship experience, have earned commissions of nearly $50,000. The Swenson School of Salesmanship has had a tremendous effect in guiding hundreds of men to greater opportunities.
Attendance at our meetings will not interfere with your present employment. We teach practical salesmanship, no textbooks used. Every member is also encouraged to use his spare time for actual personal selling experience. You earn while you learn.
Are you in a rut? We'll get you out. If you are sincere in your desire for greater success, attend the meeting—FREE—Tuesday evening, April 15, 8 o'clock, Room 849 First National Bank Bldg.

MAN—OUR BUSINESS, WITH ITS IDEALS of service to the man who works, was founded by a young man whose assets consisted of plans which many older heads advised couldn't be done. In six years he has built a spirited organization and a chain of corporations with assets in the millions, but has merely laid the foundation of future plans. This organization will need many men to carry out these plans, and it is the duty of the undersigned to pick them. I am not seeking men with records of unusual business success. We consider the man, rather than his previous vocation. It is our policy to develop plain, normal human beings who are sincerely interested in building their future. There is an immediate, remunerative opening for an active man, 25 to 35, who is now occupying a subordinate position where positions ahead are not sufficiently attractive to work for, or who is willing to sacrifice present title of manager or foreman for an opportunity in a broader field. Please reply by letter only. E. M. LAW, 63 E. Adams-st.

ONE OF THE OLDEST MANUFACTURERS in Chicago is in need of men between the ages of 25 and 30 whose experience includes a knowledge of selling with an understanding of and a liking for things mechanical. A knowledge of small motors and electrical equipment would be an asset.

A most excellent opportunity is offered to men who are conscientious in their work and who can appreciate sincere co-operation from their employer—the work is not selling, but is closely associated with sales and is very interesting outdoor employment. In reply give experience and full information regarding yourself. Address A P 558, Tribune.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE.

VACANT—NORTHWEST SIDE.

Every One Realizes That When the building situation adjusts itself, prices on vacant in a desirable location will go soaring.

Our subdivision can't be beat for beauty, exclusiveness, and location. Prices here will double and triple.

You can get your homesite here now on easy terms and get an

on every lot you purchase, as the property is under lease to a golf club at the present time and all rents collected will be distributed among lot owners until May 1st, 1921, when the lease expires. Lowest rent on smallest lot amounts to $2.50 per month, or 15% net on your investment!

We will start building next year and let you pay like rent for your home. We only help a few. You owe it to yourself to investigate. Address F F 336, Tribune.

A RARE OPPORTUNITY

To secure a choice location where big profits are certain, with a small down payment and easy terms will be offered in the next few days, in the last choice close in property in Chicago, 35 minutes from the LOOP, [ON THE NORTHWEST SIDE, SOLD WITHOUT INTEREST,] adjoining a $3,650,000 development where there are now schools, churches, transportation, theatres and prosperous business houses.

Quick action necessary to secure your allotment in advance. As no more than two parcels will be given to a customer.

ACT QUICK.

Address A M 454, Tribune.

Quick Action Demanded

Would you be interested if I could show you how to make some real big money quick? I have advance information of a development that will take place real soon on the Northwest Side that will cause a phenomenal raise in real estate values over night. This offer should appeal to the men that lost out by not being quick enough to buy in the Wilson-av., Howard-av., Kimball-av., and Lawrence-av. districts. This offer is limited to a few people with keen foresight and quick action, and those who will deal within the next 5 days. Very little cash needed. Address C K 461, Tribune.

Greatest Sale in Year

Don't miss this great sale of homesites in the beautiful Irving Park additions, which we are selling on very easy terms and at about one-half of the real market value. This property is well located; 3 car lines; also new Northwestern line, churches, theaters, schools, and stores in neighborhood.

COME OUT TODAY

to corner of Byron and Kedzie-avs, or mail in coupon. For free information address F F 335, Tribune.

DO YOU WANT A HOME IN THE SUBURBS?

You can own a home on nearly an acre of fertile land, two blocks from two stations on the Aurora, Elgin & Chicago Electric; over 70 trains daily; 34 minute ride to loop with a seat.

A home here means happiness and independence—no worry about the increase in rents, no worry about the price of eggs [your hens will take care of that]. No worry about the cost of potatoes, etc. You can grow your own garden stuff and put money in the bank.

This is the one and only sure method of cutting down the high cost of living.

This is not out in No Man's Land—miles from everywhere—but in a fast growing community where values are rapidly increasing. You will have water, gas, electricity, schools, churches, stores, etc., same as city. The entire district is already built up with a beautiful class of homes and all Chicago Department Stores make daily deliveries.

Acres as low as $550—10% cash—$10 a month.

We arrange the financing of your home so that you may pay as low as $35 a month, including interest, and have your home the way you want it.

Start yourself on the road to happiness and independence by answering this now.

THE DELIGHTFUL "POINT STUART" PROPERTY ON SPRING LAKE, MICHIGAN.

It comprises about 70 acres of high, rolling ground, with a frontage of nearly ¾ of a mile on the lake. There are woods, orchards, vineyards, and a garden planted, while the grounds around the buildings are set out with a variety of shrubs and trees and further beautified by an artificial pond.

The residence is large and well arranged for entertaining; has furnace, two baths, running water, and its own gas plant. A wide porch extends around three sides of the house.

There is a caretaker's house, a large combination barn and garage, an icehouse, and a bowling alley. Two windmills supply an ample quantity of water. All the buildings are in fine condition.

The front lawn runs in terraces with cement stairway [having artistic cement benches on landing] to the water, where are a cement retaining wall, dock, and boathouse.

REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS.

Michigan.

LAND ON CREDIT

BUYING LAND ON CREDIT is a recognized custom the country over. It is a sure way for American people to become land owners. It is a better way for most men to buy land because it sets a program of saving which they will follow.

MAKE YOUR CREDIT WORK for your independence and happiness. Buying a farm from us does not take a great deal of money. Just a small down payment, a convenient amount each month which you can easily spare from your earnings, and a rich tract of farm land is yours in a short time. More and more of your dollars are going to buy things to eat. Potatoes sold last week as high as $11 a bushel. Get on the farmer's end of the game and you won't have to worry about high prices or food shortages.

THE LAND IS LOCATED in the hardwood sections of Antrim and Kalkaska Counties, Michigan, where there are beautiful lakes and springs of cool pure water. Close to towns, schools, churches, railroads, and markets. These lands are an exceptional buy at $15 to $35 an acre. No swamps or stones. No oil or mineral reservations. You can select any size tract from 10 to 160 acres.

WE HELP YOU. A Warranty Deed and Abstract of Title is furnished with every purchase. We give you free insurance while paying for your land and free advice of agricultural experts as to the best farming methods. We loan money to buy live stock, machinery, etc., and to build. Ask about tax exemption.

TAKE A TRIP TO MICHIGAN. Our modern clubhouse offers accommodations for both men and women. See what others have done. Don't delay. Write today for big illustrated booklet which will be mailed to you free. Ask for excursion dates.

REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS.

Wisconsin.

Home Lands Credit System.

Sales Plan No. 1—$500 down, with no further payments for 5 years on either principal or interest buys 80 acres—40 acres of agricultural land and 40 acres of grazing land. If this payment is made we furnish on credit $500 worth of bldg. material. We will also extend credit for seed, dynamite and team hire. You may use your earnings for first five years for further improvements and living expenses.

Sales Plan No. 2—$100 down and $120 per year, or $50 down and $15 per month buys 80 acres—40 acres of agricultural land and 40 acres of grazing land. After $590 is paid you have the privilege of Plan No. 1.

Our lands are located in Forest and Oconto Counties, Wisconsin. Our prices range from $20 to $32.50 per acre for agricultural land and $8, $10, $12 to $15 per acre for grazing land.

With the above terms we offer good soil. That is most important to you. Without good soil you cannot expect to make a success. Our soils are silt loams and heavy sandy loams. These two types of soil are very similar except that the silt loams have a larger percentage of clay. Do not confuse these soils with the heavy clay soils that bake and crack. Neither confuse them with the slight sandy soils which are deficient in clay and silt and have no subsoil to hold either moisture or fertilizer. Our soils will stand heavy cropping of small grains, corn, clover, timothy, potatoes, sugar beets, etc. You can market your crops in R. R. towns in our district where you find cheese factories, potato warehouses, banks, stores, high school, etc.

We also have a separate dept. for the sale of improved and partially improved farms. These farms range in price from $40 per acre and up depending on improvements. Terms reasonable.

Write or call for further information.

LAND INFORMATION.

FLORIDA.

WATERMELONS AT $1,500 A CARLOAD—839 melons to the car—cash paid f. o. b. station. Shipments second week $1,000 a carload. Third week, $600 a carload. 3,000 acres to melons in Lake County. The last Valencia oranges sold at $14 to $15 a box, and 300 boxes is average per acre. Carloads of peaches went out from Lake County selling at 60 cents the 4 quart basket. That's the reason Lake County bank deposits have quadrupled the past year. Do you want a home here in the lake and hill region of Florida, 300 feet above sea level, swept by Atlantic or the Gulf, 40 miles to either? Fourteen hundred clear water lakes in the county insure against frost. 300 miles of good highways. 4 lines of railway. On federal aid highways east and west and north and south. We want you to know more about Lake County and its 400,000 acres of arable lands yet to cultivate. The County Commissioners have issued a book telling about this county. It is free for the asking, and when you write tell us what would most interest you—a grove, a general farm, a truck farm, a stock farm, poultry, bees, or a winter home where it is summer all the time. Come now and see. Our summers are a delight. Nights cool enough for a blanket, and only once in 42 years has the heat been excessive—that is 98 degrees. You can buy REAL SOIL in Lake County for $100 an acre—beautiful high pine land, graduating to a clear water lake. We challenge you to see the rest of the State before coming to Lake County, and without any influence know that you will say this is the best part of the entire State, with scenery as beautiful as that of the foothills of Blue Ridge Mountains. Address Lake County Chamber of Commerce, Tavares, Florida.

Apartments.

APARTMENTS.
ANY SIZE.

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY.

There are no apartment bldgs. being erected, and will not be for several years, due to high cost of material and labor. The supply is limited; the demand large. Rents have increased and will continue. CHICAGO REAL ESTATE IS THE SAFEST INVESTMENT. Get your smaller improved or farm converted into high grade apartment property now at PREVAILING PRICES, and you will MAKE MONEY. Don't delay. Send us full particulars in first letter of what you have to offer; save time. WE CAN MATCH ANY DEAL. None too large. Remember, we have been ESTABLISHED 27 YEARS. We have several experienced salesmen and cover the entire city. Out of town owners and responsible agents get in touch with us.

AUTO TIRES.

100,000 TIRES
Standard Make
MUST BE SOLD AT ONCE.
65% OFF COST
SEND NO MONEY.

Our tremendous summer stock of tires must be sold at this big sacrifice in prices. These standard make tires are practically new, only slightly used on demonstration cars. Not to be compared with double treads or seconds. Thousands of motorists use our tires exclusively because they get up to 8,000 miles out of them. Take advantage of this exceptional offering, and stock up a whole year's supply.

BUY NOW. These prices are thinning down our stock:

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Answers to inquiries are based upon information which THE TRIBUNE believes reliable, fair, and unprejudiced, but beyond the exercise of care in securing such information THE TRIBUNE assumes no responsibility.

Inquiries must bear the signature and address of writer in order to receive attention. Answers thought to be of public interest will be published. If an answer is not of general interest it will be mailed provided stamp is inclosed. Address letters to Investors' Guide.

Why Do Investors Dodge Politics?

The attitude of investors toward politics in general and political conventions in particular is a curious paradox. There is no doubt that a majority of the voters are investors, some only to the extent of Liberty bonds or life insurance policies, but many millions of them owning small or large amounts of miscellaneous securities.

It may be considered fairly certain that the proportion of investors is at least as large among the delegates to the Republican national convention and to other conventions as among voters in general. None of them, however, ever try to protect the legitimate interests of themselves or their constituents in investments. Apparently none of them think of investments and politics on the same day. The idea of investments suggests money and money suggests capital with Wall street in the background.

In view of the fact that most voters are directly interested in investments it would seem reasonable and necessary that their needs should have a just and fair hearing in framing policies for governing the country, but the only recognition they get is incidental and subordinate to other considerations.

Northern Texas Electric.

C. F., Souris, Man., Canada.—The Northern Texas Electric company operates the Fort Worth street railway, an extensive interurban system and furnishes light and power to one or more towns. The bonded debt is moderate and interest is earned three times over, giving the $4,000,000 of 6 per cent preferred stock a good position. Average earnings on preferred in the last eight years have been 16½ per cent. The dividend is not cumulative. This stock now offered on an 8% per cent income basis is attractive, but of course, is less conservative than bonds of the same company, which can be had on a 7% basis.

Libby, McNeill & Libby.

D. L. K.: Libby, McNeill and Libby reported net profits of $3,707,669 in the year ended May 1 last. This is 21 per cent on the $12,800,000 of stock, or $2.10 a share. It compares with 31 per cent preceding year. Dividends of 5 per cent semi-annually are paid. The surplus is now $10,753,812. A stock dividend of 50 per cent is to be paid on Aug. 14 and new stock to the amount of 50 per cent of their present holdings is offered to stockholders at par.

Brief Answers.

J. M.—The $3,000,000 of notes recently issued by the Carnation Milk Products company have a wide margin of security as to both principal and interest. The company has had a steady growth for years.

P. F.—Cresson is a speculation, not an investment. It is selling on a 25 per cent income basis.

PLAN 500 HOMES IN BIG CALUMET HOUSE PROJECT

$1,000,000 Body Buys 100 Acre Tract.

BY AL CHASE.

If there's any section of Chicago's industrial territory that has suffered longer or as bitterly from lack of houses than the Calumet steel belt, it's been kept mighty quiet. Many a big industry planning to move into the Calumet region has moved elsewhere when the housing situation was understood.

To meet this unpleasant condition a group of Calumet district business men have formed the Calumet Housing association, with $1,000,000 capital, and work will begin July 1 on the first twenty detached houses of a 500 house project, eventually to cover 100 acres.

Buy 100 Acres.

Peter Foote, chairman of the housing committee of the Calumet Manufacturers' association, is one of the active members of the new housing body. He has purchased 100 acres, bounded on the north by East One Hundred and Tenth street, south by East One Hundred and Fourteenth street, east by the Pennsylvania tracks, and west by Avenue O.

On this will be built brick and stucco two story houses of five and six rooms, to sell at from $5,500 to $8,500. Every exterior will be different, although the same interior plans will be used. Bright colored roofs of various shades and attractively tinted stucco will add variety to the district. Considerable time and thought is being given to landscaping the grounds of each house.

Playground in Each Block.

If the city hall powers will permit, William G. Carnegie, a member of the Carnegie company, which is designing and erecting the houses, will have an oval shaped playground, 50 feet wide, in each block. He plans to have two twelve foot alleys with the playground in between, instead of one wide alley down the center of the block.

Another idea expected to appeal to prospective home buyers is the gift of a church site to any group of persons large enough to support an organization, no matter what their religious belief may be. The housing association also expects to donate a school site to the city.

Close to Forest Preserve.

"We figure on the second growth of foreign workmen, those between 25 and 40," said Mr. Carnegie, "as our buyers. We'll charge $300 for an initial payment and about $35 a month, which will include interest. The lots will be 30x125.

"We're going to be right next to a good sized forest preserve tract and on the other sides there are big industries. The new central manufacturing district's Calumet project is a little to the northwest of us. The Hegewisch extension of the surface car line goes directly through the center of our tract."

The first twenty houses are to be ready Oct. 1.

Eastern Importing Co. Leases Clark St. Building

The Eastern Importing company and T. E. Roberts have leased from D. F. Kelly, executor of the estate of Margaret E. Nelson, Irene E. Kelly, and J. Bernard Mullen, the entire four story building at 426-28 South Clark street, for five years, at a term rental of $40,000, through J. G. Kirk & Co. The lessees expect to make about $10,000 improvements.

The same brokers have leased for the Peerless Light company to the Peppas & Alex company, hatters' supplies, the entire building at 174 West Randolph street, from May 15 for one year, at $10,000. The lessees recently were burned out at 167 West Lake street. They have released the building, now being remodeled, from Nov. 1, 1920, to April 30, 1930, at a term rental of $102,000. W. D. McArthur is lessor.

Wreckers Clear Site for New Edgewater Hotel

Wreckers will start work this week on the present improvements at the northeast corner of Ainslie street and Winthrop avenue, to make way for a five story apartment hotel, to be called The Ainslee and to cost in the neighborhood of $360,000. It will have fifty-seven furnished suites of two, three, and four rooms. The lot is 50x150. Roy F. France is architect. It is being erected by the Ainslie-Winthrop Building corporation.

Buys Two Acre Site for Big Wagon Plant on South Side

A two acre site for a big wagon manufacturing plant has been acquired by Jacob Press Sons at the southwest corner of West Thirty-third street and Normal avenue, for an indicated $52,000. The tract fronts 31 feet on Parnell avenue. Mildred Rosenthal was the seller. Title was taken by Jacob H. Press and William A. Press. According to the latter a one story plant is contemplated. The company now is at [illegible]00 North Halsted street.

Here are a few of the north shore's newest residences now going up in Evanston and Winnetka. All are designed by Architect Chester H. Walcott.

The top house is the home of William R. Johnston of the William R. Johnston Manufacturing company, auto window curtains, and is being erected at 1020 Lake Shore boulevard, Evanston, at an approximate cost of $75,000. It is 77x48 and is of the Maryland colonial type of architecture. It will have eleven rooms and four glazed and heated porches. It is of hollow tile and brick veneer construction.

No. 2 is the New England colonial farmhouse type being built by Frank J. Bersbach of the Manz Engraving company on the Indian Hill club grounds, Winnetka. It will have fifteen rooms, five baths, four porches, and is of frame construction with white shingle exterior. The garage is attached.

The lower picture is of the eleven room house, with garage attached, being built by Robert Laird of the Quaker Oats company, in Ridge avenue, Winnetka. It is 69x44 and is of Georgian colonial type, frame, with white shingle exterior.

News of the Architects

Chester Walcott is one of the latest recruits to the link district architects' colony. He has offices at 8 East Huron street.

John A. Armstrong, architect, has moved from 11 South La Salle street to 127 North Dearborn street, the American Bond and Mortgage building.

The Industrial Development and Improvement company, architects and engineers, have moved from 230 South La Salle street to 118 North La Salle street.

Nathaniel Koeingsberg and Louis I. Simon announce their association as architects and engineers at 8 South Dearborn street.

William T. Braun and Edward A. Nitsche have formed the architectural firm of Braun & Nitsche, and have offices at 64 East Van Buren street.

William H. Furst, architect, has opened offices with R. G. Wolff in the Marquette building.

LA GRANGE TO HAVE $500,000 HOTEL-THEATER

La Grange is to have a six story fireproof theater and hotel building at the northwest corner of Harris and Fifth avenue, to cost approximately $500,000, according to York, Regan & Burke, architects. Work is expected to start about July 1. It is to be built by K. C. Holman of La Grange.

The hotel will have 122 rooms divided into two and three room suites on the second, third and fourth floors and single rooms on the fifth and sixth. There will be a large restaurant in the basement; also a children's playroom. The theater will seat 1,000.

The architects have not confined themselves to any one style. For instance, the theater is Louis XIII., the hotel lobby will be Spanish mission; the banquet hall on the sixth floor will be done in the Italian renaissance; the basement café will be Henry VIII., and one of the shops will be in early colonial.

Vitagraph to Have Own Building in Film Row

Still another building for film row. Alfred Cowles is to erect a two-story office building, 42x102, at 839-43 South Wabash avenue, for the Vitagraph company, Inc., from plans by Holabird & Roche. It will cost $50,000.

Louis J. Borowsky of John C. Fetzer's office was broker in the deal announced last week by which the Fox Film corporation is to have a one story building erected for it at 910-14 South Wabash avenue by James F. Porter.

BUYS OLD CASTLE RESIDENCE.

George F. Porter has purchased from the Castle heirs their homestead at 1326 North State street. This is an old brownstone mansion fronting 124 feet on State street with a depth of 130 feet to an alley. William H. Mulholland & Co. were brokers.

Beg Your Pardon!

In the sale of the Boulevard apartments, the 114 flat building in Grand boulevard, between Forty-second and Bowen avenue, purchased by Jason S. Williams of Indianapolis, Ind., from A. L. Thomas of Columbus, Mont., the broker representing the seller was J. J. O'Connor and not H. H. O'Connor, as printed. This department was given the name as H. H. O'Connor, the error evidently be a stenographic one.

Wants Shorter Period of Redemption for Illinois

The question of shortening the period of redemption was discussed at a recent meeting of the Mortgage Bankers' club.

"It is believed that Illinois is at a disadvantage in comparison with some other states which have a much shorter redemption period," said President Byron V. Kanaley. "The period in this state is fifteen months, while other states range from this down to as short a period as sixty days. If the period in Illinois was materially shortened, say, to six months, real estate would become a more liquid asset, which would be of great benefit to every class—renting, sales, etc.—having to do with real estate.

"It is believed also that the already very large volume of money now loaned on real estate in Chicago and throughout the state might be increased were the redemption period materially shortened. A bill probably will be introduced in the next legislature with this end in view."

HUSKY YOUNG HOOSIER SUBURB GETS FACTORIES

Steps forward our husky young Hoosier industrial suburb, Hammond, with the announcement that it has secured five new manufacturing plants, eventually to occupy eighty-one acres of grounds, during the last eight weeks. These are all reported by one firm, Gostlin, Meyn & Hastings, Inc., so it may be the town's total is even more than five.

The largest plant will be that of the Union Railway Equipment company, manufacturers of car forgings, which has bought a forty-five acre site. The first unit of a huge plant planned by Frank D. Chase, Inc., will cost $250,000.

The American Manicopy Typewriter company has purchased for $10,000 a ten acre tract near the Standard Steel Car company's plant. The Metals Refining company has bought twenty acres and will erect a $100,000 plant. It now is at Hessville, Ind. The Moorhead Oil company has purchased two acres for $2,500 to use for storage purposes.

The Overland Crane company has bought four acres in the Calumet industrial district. It is occupied partly by the old office buildings of the G. H. Hammond Packing company, Hammond's pioneer industry. The buildings are being reconstructed for industrial uses. P. J. McCain, president of the company, built the famous Ferris wheel at the Chicago World's Fair.

New Home of Real Estate Board to Be Ready July 1

On Thursday, July 1, if you're thinking of dropping in at the rooms of the Chicago Real Estate board, just remember it'll be in its new quarters in the rejuvenated Inter Ocean building, in Monroe street, across from the First National Bank building. Moving day is set for June 30.

"Things will be in a sort of chaotic state for a few weeks," explained Secretary Herbert A. Cole, "so we don't plan our official housewarming until fall, when our kitchen and dining room will be ready. There'll be no regular meeting until Sept. 15."

The board's initiation fee has been reduced from $200 to $100 and the annual dues increased from $30 to $40. The special associate dues have been raised from $15 to $20.

Bartlett & Co. and Title & Trust Co. Get More Space

Two big changes are being made in the Chicago Title and Trust Company building which will affect both the trust company and Frederick H. Bartlett & Co.

After occupying the second floor of the trust company's annex building for fifteen years, Bartlett & Co. have leased the entire sixth floor of the main building and are making elaborate improvements. The Title and Trust company will move into the present Bartlett offices as soon as they are vacated. This will give the trust company a second floor frontage of 160 feet on Washington street.

Oliver Typewriter Co. to Add 3 Stories to Building

Three more floors are to be addded to the five story building at 159-167 North Dearborn street, occupied by the Oliver Typewriter company. The improvement will cost $250,000. Plans were by Holabird & Roche. The entire building will be used by the Oliver company.

KNOW YOUR CHICAGO.

Frederick Griswold, formerly with The Tribune and for many years real estate editor of the Herald and also musical critic on that paper, is writing a series of articles for Chicago Commerce, called "Know Your Chicago." Even if you think you do know your Chicago, they're well worth reading—you'll probably find out a lot you didn't know. The first was on Woodlawn. The next will be the Link district.
